THE CHURCHES WERE IN DARKNESS

Electric Lights Were Out of Commission for a Short Time Last Night.

Last night the electric power failed for a short time and many places waited hopefully for their return to a brilliant glow. Mid-weekly prayer meetings were to be held and for a short time and many places would have to be cancelled. In St. Peter's Cathedral the advent devotions had not yet commenced but the church was rapidly filling up. The incandescents all but went out and the dull glow encouraged the idea that it was not for good. In about ten minutes the power returned.

When the New Scalp Antiseptic is Used

A good head of hair is as much a "crown of glory" for man as it is for woman, notwithstanding all the poetry on the subject applied to the female sex exclusively. In the season when flies bite, the bald-headed man can sympathize with the Egyptians who were so sorely plaged on account of the children of Israel. Why not try Newbro's Herpicide? Others have been benefited and are loud in its praise. It cleanses the scalp, kills the germs at the root of the hair and by keeping the scalp sweet, pure and wholesome the hair is bound to grow as nature intended regardless of all temperature. INQUIRY INTO MARINE AFFAIRS

An Ottawa Marine Official Took $3,000 Safe Witness.

ACCUSED CALLS IT A LIE

J. B. A. Boudreau Is Charged Before Marine Inquiry With Getting Three Checks From Holliday Bros. In Connection With Payment For Work on Steamer—J. U. Gregory's Nephew on the Stand.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—A mass of contradictory evidence was presented at the Marine enquiry yesterday.

A sensational story that $3,000 had been given to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Marine Department in Ottawa in connection with payment for the services of the King Edward of the Holliday Brothers steamship line was the feature of the morning session. The story was told by James Holliday, second hand. Though he was the man alleged to have signed the checks he swore he had no recollection of doing it and simply repeated what Van Felsen, a Quebec bank manager, had told him, that he did.

A. B. Van Felsen, who is a nephew of J. U. Gregory, the Marine agent at Quebec, in the afternoon, swore positively that in his office Mr. Holliday had made out three checks for $1,000 each payable to bearer, which he had cashed in other banks and then handed the money over to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Department at Ottawa for himself and others. The money was alleged to be for the passing through of Holliday Bros'. accounts with the Department which amounted to over $30,000.

Mr. Van Felsen stated that in June, 1901, the overdraft of Holliday Bros'. of Halifax at the People's Bank was about $20,000, and the bank would make no further advances. Mr. Holliday had told him the accounts of the firm with the Department amounted to about $32,000, and J. V. Gregory confirmed the amount. This was eventually deposited with a reduction of $2,000 for the King Edward, Mr. Van Felsen said he took the three checks referred to above, between June 4 and June 10 to other banks to get them cashed, as there was not enough money in the People's Bank to Holliday's account to pay the checks. He has no idea where the checks were now. He could not trace them. After Mr. Holliday had gone the transaction seemed so peculiar that he discussed it with Mr. Boudreau. He knew him by sight. As Mr. Boudreau was going out he asked the accountant to mark him well as he might want to identify him later.

"Then you knew you were taking part in a transaction which was not straightforward?" asked G. H. Watson, K.C.

"Yes, sir. I was the go-between," replied Van Felsen.

"When did you see Mr. Boudreau first that day?"

Witness said Mr. Boudreau had called in the morning and introduced himself as an official of the Marine Department of Ottawa, calling about Holliday's account. Before setting it, however, he said certain little things would have to be done, certain sums would have to be paid over.

Mr. Van Felsen said to him this was a hold-up and a shame and asked Boudreau to go to Holliday himself, but Boudreau said that was impossible, as his name could not appear. It had to be done through a third party. After some discussion Boudreau agreed to take $3,000. He told Boudreau he would put the proposition before Holliday and so the official of the Department left to return in the afternoon. Mr. Holliday when approached was excited and indignant. He claimed it a hold-up. His money had been held up long enough. Finally he agreed that perhaps it would be better to pay over the money or his account would be delayed still longer. He wrote the three checks payable to bearer on Van Felsen's suggestion in order that the transaction could not be traced. The money was secured from the Banque Nationale, Quebec Bank, and the Bank of Hochelaga. He got the money without endorsing the checks. Boudreau on getting the money said: "Of course, you know I cannot give you a receipt for this."

Witness then declared that he had been threatened by Boudreau and others over this matter. In Senator Choquette's house Boudreau had called him a liar and a scoundrel. Another man told him he would have to be careful or go to jail.

Asked why he had not made known these things at Quebec, he said Mr. Holliday had asked him not to go to court unless they could find the checks as evidence of the story of the payment. They consulted Hon. Mr. Taschereau and his advice was to keep out of court.

Mr. Watson here remarked that the appearance book in the Department showed Mr. Boudreau to have been in attendance June 3 to June 11, 1905, while witness said he had been in Quebec between June 4 and June 10.

Van Felsen said these were the dates to the best of his knowledge.

J. B. A. Boudreau, assistant accountant of the Marine Department since 1904, said he had no knowledge of these checks signed in the Department for payment. He found, however, by reference that they were made out on June 2, and sent out on June 14 or 15. He denied ever having been in Quebec during June, 1905. He was there about July 10, but not in June. Mr. Van Felsen's statement of what had happened was false from beginning to end. He never got any money whatever from Van Felsen. He claimed the story to be a put up affair. He admitted that he had been in the People's Bank and met Van Felsen, but that was in August.

To this Mr. Van Felsen replied that the bank was closed up in August.

Mr. Boudreau then admitted that there was a possibility he had been mistaken. However, he was certain he had not been there in June.

PARLIAMENT IN TURKEY REOPENS

New Turkish Legislative Assembly Is Solemnly Inaugurated.

SULTAN AMONG HIS PEOPLE

Ruler Disarms Public Opinion by Driving Through the Streets of Constantinople Instead of Taking the Water Route—The Celebration Passes Off Without Slightest Trouble—Cheered by Crowds.

Constantinople, Dec. 18.—A new constitutional government was inaugurated yesterday with every sign of success. Brilliant weather favored the ceremonies attending the opening of the new Parliament, which was elected under the constitution promulgated by the Sultan last July and everything passed off without the slightest disorder.

Any fear that the Sultan may have had as to the temper of his subjects was dispelled by the ample display of whole-hearted enthusiasm. The fact that the Sultan came out openly to meet his people on this auspicious occasion has gone a long way towards removing the effects of past evils, which have been attributed to the palace rule while the grand vizier, Kiam II. Pasha, who insisted upon His Majesty coming by the road which passes through the European quarter of Pera and Stamboul, thus bringing the sovereign into contact with the masses, instead, as suggested by the timid-hearted, of proceeding by water, has shown his great wisdom and has by this move secured further success in the consolidation of the constitutional regime.

The opening of the Parliament was characterized by much solemnity. Two hundred deputies and senators, with the chiefs of various religious communities, a large number of other state dignitaries and ministers and the heads of the diplomatic missions, were present. With the exception of the Sultan's six sons, in the box adjoining the imperial box, no other princes were present.

From Congress to Parliament.

Washington, Dec. 18.—A resolution directing that best wishes and congratulations be sent to the newly-convened Parliament of Turkey was agreed to by both Houses of Congress.

Neighbors Donate Skin.

Windsor, Dec. 18.—John Delisle, a wealthy blacksmith of Anderson Township, was frightfully burned while working at his forge. He fell in a faint and a red-hot iron fell upon him burning the back of the leg from his hip to his foot.

Doctors have succeeded in grafting about 100 pieces of skin on Delisle's limb, and there are good chances of his recovery. The skin was obtained from the victim's family and neighbors, who volunteered the sacrifice.

Montreal Pool-Room Raided.

Montreal, Dec. 18.—The police were congratulating themselves on having closed up about all the pool-rooms in the city, when one was discovered in full blast and doing a rushing business in the rear of a saloon in St. Henri Ward.

When a visit was made by the police a blackboard and telegraph instrument were found and immediately confiscated, putting the proprietor out of business.

Cataract Will Fight Hard.

Brantford, Dec. 18.—The Cataract Power Co. has appointed an organizer here and will place canvassers in every ward next week in an endeavor to defeat the Hydro-Electric power by-law to raise $20,000, in addition to $55,000 voted last year.

The company makes the claim that its offer to the city has been misrepresented to the ratepayers.

Kingston's Deficit.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Kingston will end the year with a deficit of $15,000. This is largely due to the extraordinary expenditure of the Board of Health in fighting smallpox, which cost about $12,000.

May Become Millionaires.

Madoc, Dec. 18.—R. Hugh Ross an uncle of Thomas Ross and Miss Ann Ross of this place, died recently in California, leaving an estate valued at $18,000,000. They may share in the distribution.

BIG SMELTING FIRM TO LOCATE IN CANADA

Anti-Trust Company Will Operate in Canada.

WILL ERECT MANY PLANTS

Corporation With Intention of Fighting Present Combine Will Operate in U. S., Canada and Mexico—Big Financiers Are In Conference Over the Scheme—Capital Is Twenty-Five Million Dollars.

New York, Dec. 18.—Official announcement is made that a large smelting and refining company is organizing, the object of which is to build smelters in this country, Canada and Mexico.

It will be backed by some of the strongest interests in the financial world, and among the directors, it is understood, will be men high up in the Amalgamated Copper Co. and the United States Steel Corporation. One of these will be William Rockefeller. Dr. L. D. Ricketts of the Greene Cananea Copper Co. and Mr. Matheson of the Anaconda Smelter have been in the city in connection with the organization of the company.

The new company will cater to the metal and mining trade of Canada, Mexico, Utah, Colorado, Michigan and Montana, and will build smelters in this territory, and possibly Arizona. Its capital will be $25,000,000. It will compete with the Smelters' trust.

A large number of mining experts and legal representatives of the Cole-Ryan properties have been in the city for the last few days, perfecting plans of organization. The names of the interests identified with the new company will be made public within a short time.

Hains Looked For Annis.

Flushing, N.Y., Dec. 18.—Frederick A. Storm, a real estate dealer, testified yesterday in the trial of Thornton J. Hains, as principal witness with his brother, Capt. Peter S. Hains, in the killing of William E. Annis, that the defendant had enquired as to the whereabouts of Annis shortly before the latter sailed up to the dock where he was shot.

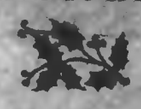
"Thornton Hains stopped talking about real estate and asked me where Annis was," said the witness. "I pointed out Annis' boat, then sailing toward the float." The shooting of Annis followed.

It is upon this statement of Storm the state hinges its contention that the Hains' brothers hunted up Annis for the purpose of killing him, and that the real estate enquiry at the yacht club was a blind.

Five Years For Hold Up.

North Bay, Dec. 18.—Joseph Varone, an Italian, was sentenced by Judge Valin to five years in Kingston Penitentiary for theft. Varone was implicated in the hold-up at Cobalt recently when several Italians coming from the mines were relieved of their savings by a gang of four Italians armed with knives.

HIS CHRISTMAS



In the hustle and the bustle of the Christmas Season after the hard trying summer months, one feels that it is all over on Christmas Morn, the happiest time of the whole year and is ready to take a new lease of life. Christmas day in the home is indeed a most joyous day, everyone making everyone else happy—perhaps only by a pleasant look, a kindness but usually by some token of remembrance—inexpensive it may be, yet the deed in itself reflects the good feeling that is imparted. How about father or big brother? have you thought of their neighbors? certainly you have! but have you decided yet on what you will give? Come and let us help you; we know the innermost feelings and wishes of the average man, the man of taste.

We have the ideas of the best Men's fashion makers in the world portrayed here in our fine range of Christmas togs—High-class, and yet modest in price. Handsome Cravats, Mufflers, Suspender Sets, in fact just what will suit any man and be appreciated. Make his Christmas happy.

ROSEMARY IN SEARCH OF A FATHER . . .

She had sat down on a bench between a French "nou-nou" with a wonderful headdress and a hawk visaged old lady with a golden wig and had fixed her eyes upon the Casino door when the throb-throb of a motor caught her attention.

Now, an automobile was a marvelous dragon for Rosemary, and she could never see too many for her pleasure. Above all things, she would have loved a spin on the back of such a dragon, and she liked choosing favorites from among the dragon brood.

A splendid dark blue one was panting and quivering before the door of the Hotel de Paris, having just been started by a slim chauffeur in a short fur coat. As Rosemary gazed, deciding that this was the noblest dragon of them all, a young man ran down the steps of the hotel and got into the car. He took his place in the driver's seat, laid his hand on the steering wheel as if he were caressing a baby's head, the chauffeur sprang up beside his master, and they were off. But with a cry Rosemary rushed across the road.

The nou-nou shrieked and hugged her muffled charge, the old lady screamed, and all the other old ladies and young ladies and pretty girls sitting on the benches or walking about screamed too.

The man who drove was pale under his coat of brown tan as with a crash of machinery he brought the big blue car to a stop so close to the child that its glittering bonnet touched her coat. He did not say a word for an instant, for his lips were pressed so tightly together that they were a white line.

That beautiful little golden haired, smiling thing, so full of life! But it was all right now. She was smiling still, as if she did not guess the deadly peril she had just escaped.

"Don't you know, little one," he asked gently, "that it's very dangerous to run in front of automobiles?"

"Oh, but I wanted so much to stop you!" said Rosemary.

"Why, do you know me?" and the young man smiled such a pleasant smile, with a gleam of white teeth, that the child was more than ever sure she had done right.

"Yes, I know you by 'eavensenthinstinct." She got out the long word with a gasp or two, but it was a great success. She had not mixed up a single syllable.

The young man burst out laughing. "Where's your nurse?" he asked.

"In London," said Rosemary. "She isn't my nurse any more."

"Well, your mother"—

"She isn't"—

"What! Are you going to tell me she isn't your mother any more? Are you out 'on your own,' little lady?"

"I don't know what that is, and my mother's my mother just as usual, thank you," said Rosemary, with dignity. "She's quite well, but she doesn't know I came out to look for you."

"Oh, doesn't she?" echoed the young man in the car. "Then don't you think the best thing you can do is to let me take you back to her?"

"She won't be home yet, not till it's dark, I expect," said the child.

"Oh, that's a long time yet! Well, since you know me wouldn't you like to climb in and have a little run?"

"May I, truly and really?" The little face grew pink with joy.

"Truly and really—if you're not afraid."

"What should I be afraid of?" Rosemary asked.

"I was talking nonsense. Get down, Paul, and put her into the tonneau. You'd better sit by her perhaps."

The chauffeur proceeded to obey, but when the child found herself being tucked into a back seat of the car she gave a little protesting cry. "Oh, can't I sit in front with you?"

"Of course you can if you like. Paul, wrap her up well in the rug. Now, little one, we're going to start. I won't take you too fast."

He turned the car and, passing the Casino, drove up the hill, taking the direction of Mentone when he had reached the top. He had not been over this road before, as he had arrived by way of Nice yesterday, but he had studied road maps and knew both how and where he wished to go.

"Now," said he, driving carefully, "how do you like it?"

"Oh, it's wonderful!" answered Rosemary, with a rapt smile on her rosy face.

"Have you ever motored before?"

She shook her head. "Never!"

"Brave baby."

"I don't usually care to be called a baby," she remarked, "but I don't mind from you."

"I'm especially favored, it seems," said the young man. "Tell me how you happen to know me. I can't think, I must confess, unless it was on shipboard"—

"There! I knew perfectly well it was you!" broke in Rosemary, with a look of rapture. "You were on a ship, and you were lost at sea. But you're found again now because it's Christmas eve."

"I wasn't lost at sea, though, or I shouldn't be here with you," said Hugh Egerton. He glanced rather wistfully in a puzzled way at the lovely little face framed with blowing golden hair. There was something in the child's eyes which stabbed his heart, yet there was sweetness in the pain. "I'm afraid we're playing at cross purposes, aren't we?" he went on. "Was it on a ship that you saw me?"

"Oh, I didn't see you on the ship!" said Rosemary. "I only knew you went away on one. I haven't seen you for ever and ever so long—not since I was a tiny baby."

"By Jove! And you've remembered me all this time?"

"Not exactly remembered. It was the feeling I had in my heart, just as Jane said I would the minute I saw you, that told me it was you. That was why I ran to keep you from going on in your motor car, because if you had I might have lost you again for ever and ever."

"So you might," said puzzled Hugh Egerton, pleased as well as puzzled. "And that would never have done for either of us."

"It would have been dreadful," replied Rosemary, "to have to wait for another Christmas eve."

"Christmas eve seems a day for adventures," said Hugh. "One finds new friends—and dear little girls, and—goodness knows what I shall find next!"

"We must find Angel next," Rosemary assured him. "She'll be so glad to see you."

"Do you really think so? By the way, who is Angel?"

"Mother. Didn't you know that?"

"I expect I'd forgotten," Hugh answered. She looked so reproachful that not for the world would he have denied all knowledge of Angel. The child evidently took him for some one she had known. Perhaps she had seen a photograph of some long lost friend of her family who resembled him and she had sprung to a conclusion, as children do. But she was an exquisitely pretty and engaging little thing, a grand little pal, and worth cultivating. Hugh liked children, especially girls, though he had always been rather shy with them, not knowing exactly how they liked best to be entertained and finding it difficult to think of things to say in keeping up a conversation. But there was no such difficulty with this child. It was really interesting to draw the little creature out and see what she would say next. As for finding Angel, however, when the time came to do that he thought he would prefer to bid Angel's daughter goodby at the door. He had no fancy for scraping up an acquaintance with strangers through their children.

Chapter Six

ROSEMARY sat in silence for a few moments, taking in the full meaning of her companion's answer to her last question. He had forgotten that Angel was Angel! Though she was warmly wrapped in a soft rug of silvery fur, a chill crept into her heart. Could it be that nurse's words about father had been true, after all, and, if they were, was she doing harm rather than good in bringing him home?

Presently Hugh waked out of his own thoughts and noticed the little girl's silence. "You're not afraid?" he asked, blissfully unconscious of offense. "I'm not driving too fast to please you?"

"Oh, no!" said Rosemary.

"You're not cold?"

"No, thank you."

"Nor tired?"

"No, not tired."

"But something is the matter?"

"I'm worrying," confessed the child.

"What about, little one?"

"I'm not sure if I ought to have spoken to you or have come with you, after all."

To save his life Hugh could not have helped laughing, though it was evidently a matter of serious importance. "What—do you think we ought to have a chaperon?" he asked. "Paul's in the tonneau, you know, and he's a most discreet chap."

"I don't know what a chaperon is," said Rosemary, "but will you promise not to be angry if I ask you something, and will you promise to answer, honor bright?"

"Yes, to both your questions."

"Were you really unkind to Angel before you were lost?"

This was a hard nut to crack if his past were not to be ruthlessly severed from Angel's by a word. He thought for a moment and then said, "Honor bright, I can't remember anything unkind I ever did to her."

"Oh, I'm so glad! I was afraid when you said you'd forgotten. But maybe her name wasn't Angel then?"

"That was it, I'm sure," replied Hugh soothingly. "Maybe you named her Angel yourself?"

"I don't know," said Rosemary. "She seems to have been it always, ever since I can remember. And she does look just like one, you know, she's so beautiful."

"I expect you remember a lot more about angels than I do, because it isn't so long since you came from where they live. But here we are in the woods at Cap Martin. Have you ever been here before?"

"Angel and I had a picnic here once, all by ourselves, and there were lots of sheep under the olive trees and a funny old shepherd who made music to them. Oh, I do love picnics! Don't you? Angel said if she were rich she'd take me on the loveliest kind of a picnic for Christmas; but, you see, it would cost too much money to do it, for we've hardly got any, especially since the comtesse doesn't pay us back."

"What kind of a picnic would it have been?" asked Hugh, driving along the beautiful shore road, where the wind blown pines lean forward like transformed wood nymphs caught in a spell just as they spread out their arms to spring into the sea.

"Angel has told me lots of history stories about the strange rock villages in the mountains. There's one called Eze on top of a hill shaped almost like a horn. She showed me a picture of it. Children live up in the rock villages and never come down to the towns. They've never even seen any toys, like other children play with, Angel says. All the strangers who come here give presents to the poor in Monte Carlo and Mentone and big places like that, but they never think of the ones up in the mountains. Angel said how nice it would be, if we were rich, to buy toys—baskets and baskets full—and give them away to the children of Eze. Perhaps you are rich. Are you?"

"Richer than I thought, a few years ago, that I ever should be. I used to be poor until I dug and found some gold lying about in the ground."

"How splendid! I suppose the fairies showed you where to look. Jane says there are no fairies, but I do hope she's mistaken. I wish you would send up some presents to the little children at Eze."

"I will, lots, if you'll take them."

"Perhaps we could all go together."

"I'm afraid your mother wouldn't care for that."

"Yes, she would, because, if you were never unkind to her, like nurse said you were, she'll be most awfully glad to see you again. I shouldn't wonder if she'd cry for joy to have you with us always and take care of us. Oh, do let's go back now, and I'll take you to her! She will be surprised!"

"I should think she would," said Hugh. "But, look here, you said she wouldn't get back till dark. We've come to Mentone now. See how pretty the shops are for Christmas. Can't you stop and have some nice hot chocolate and cakes with me and afterward choose a doll for yourself as a Christmas present from your old friend?"

As he put this temptation before her he slowed down the car in front of a shop with big glass windows full of sparkling cakes and ribbon tied baskets of crystallized fruits. Through the windows Rosemary could see a great many well dressed people sitting at little marble tables, and it would have been delightful to go in, but she shook her head. The sun was setting over the sea. The sky was flooded with pink and gold, while all the air was rosy with a wonderful glow which painted the mountains, even the dappled gray plane trees, and the fronts of the gayly decorated shops.

The donkey women were leading their patient little animals away from the stand on the sea promenade up to Sorbio for the night, and their dark faces under the queer mushroom hats were ruddy and beautiful in the rose light.

"As soon as the sun goes down it gets dark here," said Rosemary regretfully. "Thank you very much, but I'd rather go home now. You see, I do so want you to be there already, waiting to surprise Angel when she comes in."

"No time even to buy a doll?"

"I'd rather go home, thank you. Besides, though I should like to have a new doll, perhaps darling Evie would be sad if I played with another."

Hugh was obediently turning the car's bonnet toward Monte Carlo, and for the fraction of a second he was foolish enough almost to lose control of it on account of a start he gave. "Evie!" he echoed.

It was years since he had spoken that name.

"She's my doll," explained Rosemary.

"Oh!" said Hugh.

"But I don't think she'd mind or be sad if you gave me a doll's house," went on the child, "if you should have time to get it for me by and by—that is, if you really want to give me something for Christmas, you know."

"Of course I do. But, tell me, why did you name your doll Evie?"

He put the question in a low voice, as if he were half ashamed of asking it, and as at that instant a tram boomed by Rosemary heard only the first words.

"I s'posed you would," she replied. "Fathers do like to give their little girls Christmas presents, Jane says. Maybe that's why they're obliged to come back always on Christmas eve if they've been lost. Do you know, even if there aren't any fairies, it's just like a fairy story having my father come back and take me to 'Angel in a motor car on Christmas eve."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Hugh Egerton. "Did you say—father?"

"Yes," replied Rosemary. "You're almost like a fairy, father, I said."

So he was her father—her long lost father! Poor little lamb! He began to guess at the story now. There was a scamp of a father who had "not been very kind" to Angel and had been lost or had thoughtfully lost himself. For some extraordinary reason the child imagined that he—well, if it were not pathetic it would be funny. But somehow he did not feel much inclined to laugh. Poor little thing! His heart yearned over her, but the situation was becoming strained. Unless he could think of some good way out of it he might have a scene when he was obliged to rob the child of her father on reaching the door of her house.

"That's it," said he, calling all his tact to the rescue. "I am a fairy father, just as you thought. It's a mistake of Jane's about there being no fairies, only the trouble is fairies aren't so powerful as they used to be in the old days. Now, I should love to be able to stay with you for a long, long time, but because I'm only a poor fairy father I can't. We've been very happy together, and I'm tremendously glad you found me. I shall think of you and of this day often, but the cruel part is that when I bring you to your door I'm afraid I shall have to—vanish."

"Oh, how dreadful!" cried Rosemary, her voice quivering. "Must I lose you again?"

Educated.

Mrs. S. was in a Richmond hospital, and she was lonely, so welcomed the advent of a very black and very languid maid who came in one morning to wipe up the floor. Some one new to talk to, so no time was lost.

"I have not seen you working around here before. Aren't you a new girl?"

Edmonia willingly let the cloth slip back into the bucket and sat flat upon the floor before answering.

"Yas'm, I's new. I's jest washin' up de floor. But I don't work. I's edjikated."

"And where were you educated?" was the next question.

"In a seminary." Then, with a burst of confidence: "There was me an' another girl workin' in a house. She was cook, an' I was chambermaid, an' we had great times about who would git de prize, but I beat." Then, after a pause, "She was easy to beat, 'cause she got smothered to death with gas de night before de 'zaminations come off."—Cleveland Leader.

A Pair of Poets.

Hearing a noise in the street before his house one morning, Robert Browning, the poet, went to his window and saw a great crowd gazing at some Chinamen in gorgeous costumes who were just leaving their carriages to mount his steps. Presently they were announced as the Chinese minister at the court of St. James and his suit. A solemn presentation having taken place, Browning said to the interpreter, "May I ask to what I am indebted for the honor of his excellency's visit?" The interpreter replied, "His excellency is a poet in his own country." Thereupon the two poets shook hands heartily. Browning then said, "May I ask to what branch of poetry his excellency devotes himself?" To which the interpreter answered, "His excellency devotes himself to poetical enigmas." At this Browning, recognizing fully the comic element in the situation, extended his hand most cordially, saying: "His excellency is thrice welcome. He is a brother indeed!"

When the Sun Grows Cold.

Dr. Fridjof Nansen predicts the fate of the earth in the far distant future, when the sun grows cold. The simple, low organisms, he says, will probably live longest, until even they disappear. Finally, he says, all water on the earth's surface will freeze and the oceans will be transformed into ice to the bottom. Some time later the carbonic acid of the atmosphere will begin to fall on the surface of the earth in the form of snow. Some time after that the temperature on the surface will have reached about 330 degrees below zero F. New oceans will then be formed by the atmosphere being turned into liquid, and the atmosphere of that future earth will be only hydrogen and helium. The sun will go through the same process. It will continue in its way as a dark star through space, accompanied by the planets.

Salt Lakes.

The Great Salt lake is gradually drying up, and the inhabitants of Salt Lake City seem quite surprised. They ought not to be. All salt lakes owe their salinity to the fact of their having no outlet, and a lake without an outlet is a dying lake.

Nor is death usually long delayed, speaking geologically. Lakes Koko Nor and Lob Nor were undoubtedly extensive inland seas not so very many decades ago, yet Sven Hedin found them reduced to mere acrid puddles set in the midst of well nigh limitless salt deserts that once were their beds.

The terrible Taklamakan depert, too, in which Hedin nearly died of thirst, was once the bed of just such a lake. So also were the salt deserts of Persia. Northern Tibet is studded with salt lakes in process of desiccation. The Aral and the Caspian seas were at one time far more extensive than is now the case, proving that they, too, are undergoing the inevitable process of desiccation to which all such bodies of water are sooner or later invariably subjected.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

A Reassuring Truth.

A lady on one of the ocean liners who seemed very much afraid of icebergs asked the captain what would happen in case of a collision.

The captain replied, "The iceberg would move right along, madam, just as if nothing had happened." And the old lady seemed greatly relieved.—Success.

A PAGE FOR MISSES

HOW TO DRESS AND CARE FOR THE PET DOG

EVERY girl who owns a dog is anxious that it shall be supplied with all the necessities, not to mention the luxuries, of a fashionable dog existence, and so much attention is now paid to the personal belongings of a pet dog, especially in the case of the small dogs, that there is almost as much to consider in relation to fitting out the pet dog as in supplying the wants of his mistress. Fashionable dogs have not only a most correct equipment of blankets, coats, collars, &c., but also an array of motor togs that might do credit to the wardrobe of a human being addicted to the sport of automobiling—a rainy day outfit, a complete assortment of boots and shoes, a special collection of plaything, an array of toilet articles in ivory and silver, a most elaborate travelling outfit, and last, but not least, a luxurious resting place for its idle hours at home.

At the present moment there are a number of new designs for motoring and other coats for dogs which have come from Paris and are being copied to order in this country also, which is the more satisfactory way, as the fit and color are then sure to be satisfactory. One of the most remarkable of the new designs has a full hood, which makes the dog look rather like the wolf who had eaten up Red Riding Hood's grandmother and was seeking to deceive the public by appearing in her hood. The arrangement is a most comfortable one, however, and in dogs' motor clothes, as in those for human beings, the style of the garment must sometimes be a little bit sacrificed to the comfort which it will afford. The hood has a ruffle around the face and a square bow like a stiff cravat bow at the neck. The coat which accompanies this hood folds well over the chest, so that the wind cannot creep in there, and is fastened with two substantial straps. It is considered most important that the protection across the chest should be ample. This coat and hood is made in leather, lined with fur, or of cloth with fur lining. The cravat is of leather. With a hood made of leather the ruffle would be omitted. When made of cloth the coat has one piece of cloth above another, and each layer of cloth is cut smaller than the lower layer, making a smart finish at the edges of the coat.

Another most remarkable new motor coat for dogs has a very large rolling collar, which is trimmed with metal ornaments like buttons, set on in groups of three at equal intervals around the collar. The same ornaments are used down the middle of the back of the coat and down each side of the front piece. This coat is made also of cloth, with a fur lining, or a cloth lined with cloth of another shade.

One of the most remarkable innovations in canine finery is the cape coat, which bears a strange resemblance to the cape overcoats which were once so fashionable for men's evening wear. Triple capes adorn the dog's coat, all of them turning back from the face in a most distinguished manner. In cold weather, however, it is possible to turn the innermost collar well up about the dog's ears. This coat buttons with four straps across the chest. Narrow braid is used to trim the coat, a pattern being worked around the borders of the collar and the coat itself. A narrow leather cord, or braid, is sometimes used for making this pattern instead of the braid. This coat is made of Melton, in tan, gray, &c., with the braiding in dark brown or black. It may also be made of a light weight leather.

MOTOR GOGGLES OF MANY SHAPES.

Motor goggles of various shapes are now on the market, and the important point in selecting one is to see that it is complete. The choice depends on the shape of the dog's head and nose and something can be found comfortable for every dog, so varied are the designs. Some of the goggles have a straight band of leather that goes up from the nose, while others have two bands that go up on each side of the head and connect with bands coming around the ears.

Collars are chosen, of course, with a view to their becomingness to the dog, and there is no rule laid down as to exactly what any breed of dog must wear. For the small, short haired dogs the collars with long hair ruches are very fashionable. Sometimes these are studded with jewels and sometimes with brass nails, the latter being a little newer, as the jewels have been used some time. The dog's name and the owner's monogram in gold or silver usually appears on the collar and any amount of ingenuity is expended upon the monogram.

Among the luxurious things for dogs recently imported are the most wonderful baskets, which have been devised in Paris. They are to be had only at fashionable milliners and modistes, where they seem a fitting addition to the chiffons and plumes which are provided for the dog's owners.

Some of these baskets are of gilded cane in the shape of a small peaked roof house. Pale blue and white brocade was used for the cushions of one of them, and there were tiny curtains of satin to match. An equally elaborate basket, which was open on the side, was fitted with rose colored brocade. The tiny brocade curtains, which were looped back from the top of the basket, were festooned with garlands of tiny artificial roses. A ball gown could not have been more delicate, nor more elaborate, nor would any ball gown, considering the relative size, have been so expensive.

Booties for rainy weather, mackintoshes, light weight, medium weight, heavy, and midwinter blankets, party collars, plain collars and collars to match special gowns of his mistress must all be included in a fashionable dog's trousseau. "Twelve blankets and a mackintosh" has been quoted as being the least possible equipment for a fashionable small dog. Besides this its handkerchiefs, monogrammed and made to fit its small pocket, must not be forgotten, nor his silver rattles and his solid rubber ball.

The most important thing to consider in taking care of a dog is its diet. Dogs should no more be allowed to eat what they wish than should children. Under ordinary circumstances the diet for a dog includes, besides the cod liver oil, biscuits and underdone mutton, underdone beef or a little scraped raw beef, occasionally a little fish, rice and milk or cream, crackers and milk and sponge cake and cream. Richer cakes and bon bons, although they may occasionally be given to a pet dog, are even more dangerous to its digestion than to that of a child. Dogs differ in constitution as do human beings, and it is necessary to watch them to see whether they are shy feeders or not. If they are too greedy they must be restrained: if they are shy feeders they must be helped along with a little cod liver oil, which they do not dislike. As a dog's digestive organs are not of the strongest it is necessary to give them a little highly nourishing food rather than a larger amount of food which is not so nourishing. When dogs are not strong they are given a tonic. For the small dog this may be one grain of saccharated iron mixed with their food at every meal.

All dogs, especially the toy dogs, have sluggish livers, more so than any human being. It is usually necessary to give them a dose of Rochelle salts every ten days in winter and every week in summer. This may be given in their food or put down their throats, using a cigarette paper as a funnel. Not quite one-half teaspoonful is given as a dose for a small dog. Vegetable pills are also used to stir up a sluggish liver, but there must not be a bit of mercury in the pills, as mercury is deadly to dogs.

A toy dog should never get a chicken bone, a turkey bone or any splintering bone, as the splinters are swallowed by the dog and are fatal. It is safe to give the dog a large bone that he can gnaw. The dog should never be permitted to take food at odd hours and from other places than home, as gastritis will result from irregular and improper feeding. Dogs are very prone to gastritis, and the disease is frequently fatal to them.

Fresh air and exercise are absolutely necessary to the wellbeing of dogs of all kinds. Every dog should be taken out at least twice a day, and the more hours spent out of doors the better, except in very bad weather, when precautions must be taken against pneumonia. It is better, however, that the precautions should be in the direction of warm wraps than in keeping the dogs housed. If a dog is allowed to stay indoors and not to take exercise it frequently falls a victim to yellow jaundice.

FRESH AIR NECESSARY.

When improperly exposed or changed from an overheated atmosphere to a cold one dogs frequently get pneumonia, which disease is quickly fatal to them. When a dog has pneumonia, to ease itself it sits up on its hind feet and hangs its head on one side. It cannot lie down. When it is found that a dog has pneumonia or any of the serious troubles cited a good doctor should be consulted without a moment's delay.

Indoors as well as out of doors fresh air is necessary to a dog, and if it is kept housed up in an overheated flat its blood will be affected and the ruin of its coat will inevitably follow. At night it should also have fresh air and should sleep in a place having a temperature of from 60 degrees to 65 degrees. The mat on which it sleeps should be changed at least twice a week.

In combing out the long hair of a dog the greatest care must be taken not to pull it. The motion to be employed is somewhat akin to kneading. A very open comb is used, which must get down to the skin to take out all the loose hairs. After this has been done a soft brush is used to give the coat the finishing touch. It is not correct for all dogs to have glossy coats. Good Pomeranians, for instance, have fluffy rather than glossy coats. In caring for toy spaniels a most important feature is the brushing out of the feathers on their ears and legs. To preserve these feathers and their coats as well the dogs should wear socks on their hind feet, so that they will not be able to scratch the feathers and destroy their fluffiness.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"YOUR American young girls sit correctly is to hold the stomach in either pose or lounge whenever conscious that the gaze of the public is upon them.' That was Lady Critiquecliffe's comment as she directed her lorgnette across the diamond horseshoe the evening she sat in my opera box, and I had to admit the justice of her criticism. Self-conscious debutantes," continued the April Grandmother, "are apt to sit up like little ramrods throughout an entire act or—and it is infinitely more undignified—to half recline in a chair, leaning sidewise against an arm or resting one hand on the box rail. The girls who lounge in this manner are the most hopeless, as, unlike those of the ramrod type, they do not realize that neither at school nor at home have they been taught to sit correctly. While at school the average girl is permitted to sit on the edge of her chair and almost bend double as she curves her back above her desk when writing. Usually she rests her unoccupied hand on the paper, thus raising the left shoulder into an unnatural position and further rounding the back. Whereas, when not actually in use, the left hand should lie in the lap, and the practice of so placing it—palm upward—will help to keep the back straight. Meanwhile the head should be bent directly forward, instead of being slightly inclined to left or to right, and the chin held well away from the throat.

The kittenish pose of curling up on a chair, which so many young girls adopt when reading will do an immense amount of injury to the back as well as to the eyes. If a girl is really fatigued she should lie at full length, with lids closed, until thoroughly rested; but if she is inclined to stoutness she should be particularly wary about lounging, and as one means of remaining slender is to keep the spinal column erect, it is obvious that the back should be held straightly whenever its owner is in a sitting posture. An excellent way in which to acquire this vertical line is to practice balancing a small book on the crown of the head. This will force one to hold the head erectly and the spine will involuntarily imitate the good example. Another method of learning to sit correctly is to hold the stomach in and carry the head thrown backward, while an attitude that may conveniently be exercised three times daily is that of keeping the elbows as far as possible from the top of the table while at meals. To rest a cheek in the palm of a hand supported by a dining table is not only one of the etiquette laxities peculiar to the present decade, but it is a long stride toward habitual lounging.

"To sit correctly the soles of both feet should rest firmly upon the floor, the elbows should nearly touch the hips and the hands should lie on the lap. The shoulders will then assume their natural slope, and if the base of the spine nearly touches the rear of the chair seat it will be easy to lean backward in a restful and graceful posture. But the moment a girl sways against one side of her chair, grasps its arms with her hands, throws one arm across its back or props her chin on her knee-braced elbow she is in a fair way to contract the lounging habit which my English guest criticised.

"The remark of an old fashioned beau of ante-bellum days anent the inherent vulgarity of the feminine person who crosses her knees is quite as worthy of consideration to-day as when it was first uttered. Yet the number of refined young girls who habitually sit with crossed knees and with well developed feet plainly in evidence is astounding, particularly to those gentlewomen of an older day who, living in fear of exhibiting even their insteps, invariably sit with knees meeting and toe tips drawn beneath the skirt."

NOVELTIES IN DESK BOOKS.

DESK books are of such infinite variety and of such fascinatingly attractive appearance that they are charming gifts from one girl to another or to an older friend.

Engagement books are bound in embossed silk, in satin or moire and in walrus, pin seal, alligator, antique and grained leather. In the latter pelt are brought out shades like dull Indian red, with a darker tone of graining, verde grained upon green and tan on oiled brown.

Listed calling books are bound similarly to those used for registering engagements, and on their covers are inscribed the year and month dates in order that they may be conveniently consulted when necessary.

Diaries in all the fashionable light weight leathers, in taupe colored chamois and in corded silks are fitted with miniature padlocks, the key of which is attached to a chain worn about the owner's neck.

The baby's diary, in which admiring relatives eagerly inscribe all of his clever cooings and doings as well as the events of his daily life, is covered with fine white linen, silk or moire embroidered with forget-me-nots and stamped with his name in blue. Each satin smooth white page bears the day, month and year date, and at short intervals are casings for photographs taken at various stages of his career.

Birthday and autograph books are bound in fine soft leathers, rather elaborately lettered in embossed work and paged with thick satin surfaced paper. The covers, tied together with satin ribbon strings, delicately suggest that the merely curious are not expected to scan the contents.

Art needlework books containing rules and patterns for making an innumerable variety of knitting, crocheting, netting and embroidery are bound in taupe and tan colored heavy linen, decorated with hand painted floral designs, the edges of the cover joined with ribbon strings, bow knot tied.

Brides' books are the daintiest affairs of white satin or moire embroidered with silk or with ribbon work in pompadour designs. They carry silver lettering on the covers and contain special pages upon which the recipients may be pasted, a complete list of the attendants, guests, trousseau makers and domestic staff.

Magazine book covers are of flexible leather, silk or kid, equipped with strap handles which fold about the volume similarly to those on a hand bag.

Social Amenities for The School Girl.

GIRLS have a good deal of license these days in going about together, but they subject themselves to unpleasant criticism if they do not remember to be as well mannered in public as they are at home.

At matinees, for instance, where groups of young girls are frequently seen, and sometimes without a chaperon, there is great need of careful conduct, for persons, whether young or old, who are heedless of their manners in such a place make themselves not only disagreeable to those about them but conspicuous in a way not to be desired.

Jolly girls out for a good time sometimes forget that there are other persons in the world, and that these other persons, in a theatre, for example, are very near neighbors, with rights and privileges of their own, as well as their own way of taking their enjoyment. It is extremely trying to such people to be seated near girls who are heedless of every one but themselves.

These heedless girls laugh and talk in loud, unladylike tones between the acts and munch candy with avidity. During the play they often carry on conversation in whispers which can be plainly heard to the great annoyance of their neighbors, while many girls further disturb by being "wrigglers"—moving restlessly in their chairs, first an arm or a leg, or nervously fingering their programmes or their hats.

There is also the girl who, having seen the play before, cannot keep quiet through a second performance, but insists on whispering the development of the plot, as it goes along, to her companions. When the hero comes in she will tell what he is going to do and what the heroine will do, and whenever there is suspense in the plot she will explain exactly how it is all coming out. Not only her companions hear these things, but those sitting near are her victims, and as it spoils the play for them they do not feel very kindly toward the offender, who all the time is really quite unconscious of being objectionable.

Pray do not be this kind of girl. If you happen to know the play keep still and let others have the enjoyment of hearing it from the stage. Keep still in all circumstances while the play goes on—keep your tongue still and your body still. Between the acts chat all you like, provided you do it in quiet tones, but do not eat candy. It is as bad form to eat candy in a theatre as it would be in a street car.

Try not to be late to the play, for it is discourteous to disturb those who have taken the trouble to get there on time by your tardy arrival. The simplest way of disposing of your wraps is to check them, but should you not wish to do so remove them as soon as you get into your seat. If in spite of good intentions you are late slip off your wrap and hat before you go down the aisle, which will enable you to get seated with less disturbance to others. If you are sitting in a box it is not necessary to remove your hat, though you will wish to do so if you find it is obstructing the view of any one of your companions.

Inexpensive Christmas Gifts.

Work Bags.

"A STITCH in time saves nine" is a very good old proverb, and it would be well if many girls had taken it to heart and applied it to the work of making Christmas presents. No time like the present to start in, then there will not be the rush at the end to get things finished and off in time for them to reach their destination by Christmas morning. It is a very cheery feeling to wake up on Christmas and find our pile of presents neatly tied with ribbon and to know that our many friends have been thinking of us at this time of the year, when all troubles are put aside and good cheer and happiness ought to be in every home; but nothing goes so straight to the heart as home made presents, no matter how small, for what they lose in quantity is quite repaid by the loving thoughts and the time that has been spent on them by the busy girls and boys who offer them as the best evidence of their love and friendship. A bridge kit, or whatever one may choose to call it, is very easy and inexpensive to make. It requires about a yard and a half of flowered ribbon. Fold both ends deep enough to hold a bridge pad, then with the ribbon that is left in the centre make another pocket in which you put the cards. Run some ribbon around the top to draw it up, leaving enough to make ends to hang it on the arm or from the waist. These are very pretty and dainty when finished, and, as they are for bridge, of course most useful.

A work bag is useful for holding the different spools of silk, thus avoiding their getting all tangled up, an unfortunate occurrence that is so apt to happen: there is also a pocket for scissors and a thimble; thus the bag always looks neat. A powder case can be made of any little odd piece of silk and lined with chamois. Between the chamois and silk is put some good face powder, then little holes are cut in the chamois, which the powder can come out of when it is rubbed over the face. These cases are very easy to make and every girl is always delighted to receive one. The covering may be made as elaborate as one wishes. The male members of one's family are always the hardest to provide for, as there are so few things that one can make for a man. Of course, for the girl who has a brother at college nothing is more welcome than sofa cushions, the prettiest ones having the college crest stamped on the material and worked in outline, using the buttonhole stitch on the outer edge. Almost any shop will stamp the different crests. Then there is always the knitted or crocheted ties, which can be made in an infinite number of colors and stitches, and man has never yet owned more neckties than he could wear, so this gift is always acceptable. There are a great many more gifts that one can make, but it would take too much time and space to describe them all; but remember, girls, that the present that has had many loving stitches put in it is always more valued than the one that has cost twice as much but has come from a shop. So start in time and by doing a little each day, when Christmas comes there ought to be quite a little pile of presents to be distributed.

Needle Cases.

WHEN one wants to make a little gift for grandmother or any elderly friend or relative it is often difficult to know what to make that will be of any use to her. As women grow older they are not only apt to be pretty well supplied with all the dainty little trifles, but are also less inclined to use many of them. A very good solution of the question of what to make is a needle case with the needles all threaded. It is a great convenience not to have to thread a needle, especially when one's sight is not quite as clear and keen as it used to be.

This case is made of a piece of silk or brocade nine inches wide and fifteen inches long. It is lined with a piece of white flannel the same size. The two are held together by a binding of ribbon all around. One end of the case is turned over far enough to hold a spool of cotton and tacked at each end and in three other places, making four even spaces for the spools. In these are put a spool of coarse white cotton, one of fine white cotton, one of black cotton and one of black silk. Then a ribbon like the binding is run through all the spools and fastened at each end.

A whole paper of needles of the proper size is threaded on the silk or cotton of each spool, the thread pulled well through them, so there is no danger of its coming out, and the needles are quilted carefully into the flannel. The needles must be arranged in even rows running out from each spool across the case. As each needle is used the thread is pulled through all the others, so no new threading is needed until the whole row has been used. It is best to wind off at least one row of cotton from the spools before putting them in the case, as the cotton from full spools is apt to get tangled.

A piece of ribbon must be sewed to the middle of the end of the case opposite the spools; then the case is rolled around the spools and tied with this ribbon.

Christmas Cards.

PERSONAL Christmas cards are growing in favor. Many of the shops are making a specialty of having individual designs engraved or done in water colors with one's own verse added. Any size card can be ordered or a post card can be selected for conveying one's greetings of the season. Some of the cards are really quite elaborate, with the lettering done in gold and the design exquisitely handwrought.

ROSEMARY IN SEARCH OF A FATHER . .

"Perhaps I can write to you." Hugh tried to console her, feeling horribly guilty and helpless.

"That won't be the same. I do love you so much. Please don't vanish."

"I shall send you things—a doll's house for Evie. By the way, you didn't tell me why you named her that."

"After Angel, of course," returned the child absentmindedly. "But when you've vanished I"—

"Is your mother's name Evie?"

"Evelyn. But that's too long for a doll."

"Evelyn—what? You—you haven't told me your name yet."

"Rosemary Evelyn Clifford."

"Great heavens!"

"How strange your voice sounds!" said Rosemary. "Are you ill?"

"No—no! I feel a little odd; that's all."

"Oh, it isn't the vanishing coming on already! We're a long way from our hotel yet."

Hugh drove mechanically, though sky and sea and mountains seemed to be seething together, as if in the convulsions of an earthquake.

Her child! And her husband—what of him! The little one said he was lost; that he had not been kind. Hugh gritted his teeth together and heard only the singing of his blood in his ears. Was the man dead, or had he but disappeared! In any case she was here, alone in Monte Carlo, with her child, poor, unhappy, working by day, crying by night. He must see her at once—at once!

Yet—what if it were not she, after all, if the name were a coincidence! There might be other Evelyn Cliffords in the world. It must be that this was another. His Evelyn had married a rich and titled Englishman. She was Lady Clifford. The things that had happened to Rosemary's Angel could not have happened to her. Still, he must know, and know quickly.

"Where do you live, little Rosemary?" he asked, grimly schooling his voice, when he felt that he could trust himself to speak.

"The Hotel Pensior Beau Soleil, Rue Girasole, in the Condamine, Monte Carlo," answered the child, as if she were repeating a lesson she had been taught to rattle off by heart.

Lost as he was to most external things, Hugh roused himself to some surprise at the name of the hotel.

"Why, that is where Mlle. de Lavalette and her mother live!" he exclaimed.

"They're the ladies Angel lent the money to because she was so sorry for them," said Rosemary. "I've heard them talking about it with her and saying they can't pay it back. They're angry with her for asking, but she had to, you see. When they go past us in the dining room they turn their backs."

Hugh's attention was arrested now.

"Do they dine," he asked, "every night?"

"Oh, yes—always. Mademoiselle has lovely dresses. She is pretty, but the comtesse is such an ugly old lady—like Red Riding Hood's grandmother, I think. I'm afraid of her. Jane says her madame and monsieur don't believe she's really a comtesse. I had to knock at her door with a letter from Angel today, for Angel doesn't know I'm afraid. I couldn't help being glad madame wouldn't let me in, for it seemed as if she might eat me up. I knocked and knocked, and when I was going away I saw mademoiselle coming in in a pink dress with a rosy hat."

"I think she'll pay your mother back tomorrow," said Hugh, remembering the fatness of the pink bag.

"She didn't say she would. She was so cross with me that she called me a petit bete and snatched the letter out of my hand."

At this Hugh's face grew suddenly hot and red, and he muttered something under his breath. But it was not a word which Rosemary would have understood, even if she had heard.

Chapter Seven

ROSEMARY had tears in her eyes and voice when the fairy father stopped his car at the door of the hotel. He had driven so very quickly since he'd broken it to her that they must part!

"Now, have you to vanish this very minute?" she asked, choking back a sob, as he lifted her to the ground.

Vanish! He had forgotten all about vanishing. To vanish now was the last thing he wished to do.

"Something tells me that I shan't have to—quite yet, anyhow," he said hastily. "I—want to see your mother. Has she a sitting room where I could call upon her or wait till she comes in?"

"We haven't one of our own," said Rosemary, "but there's a nice old lady who lives next door to us on the top floor and is very good to Angel and me. She writes stories and things for the papers, and Angel types them sometimes. When she's away she lets us use the sitting room where she writes, and she's away now. Angel and I are going to be there this evening till it's my bedtime, and you can come up with me if you will. Oh, I'm so thankful you don't need to vanish for a little while!"

His heart pounding as it had not pounded for six years and more—not since the days when he had gone up other stairs in another land to see an Evelyn—Hugh followed the flitting figure of the child.

The stairs and corridors were not lighted yet. One economizes with electric light and many other little things at a hotel pension, where the prices are "from 5 francs a day, vin compris."

Rosemary opened a door on the fourth floor, and for a moment

(To be continued Saturday.)

Von Bulow and Sarasate.

In one of his letters Von Bulow refers to Sarasate as follows: "He has enchanted me beyond measure, particularly in his concert of yesterday, when he played a splendid work, 'Symphonie Espagnole,' by Lalo—played in so genuinely artistic a manner that today I am still intoxicated with it. His playing also of the Saint-Saens concert piece for violin is as entrancing as interesting. It is a shame that he cannot come to see me. N. B.—I have purposely avoided his personal acquaintance. Perhaps he has tried to see me, for over my door stands the notice:

"Mornings—not to be seen.
Afternoons—not at home.

"But perhaps he did not ring the bell. (He never plays under 1,000 francs—he received this sum here at a private musicale.) For secretary he has Otto Goldschmidt, who sent me a pass, which I returned with the remark that for such an important concert I could certainly afford to buy my ticket. Six marks was in no way too much to pay."

Bulow did make his acquaintance, however, as he refers in a later letter to Sarasate coming, quite unexpectedly, to a "conference with Johannes" (Brahms), at which he himself was present.

He Preferred Mules.

One of the pet hobbies of Senator Christopher Magee was his newspaper, the Pittsburg Times. He kept the paper well to the front, and it was a credit to modern journalism. One morning the Times had been scooped on a railway wreck.

"Senator," asked an intimate acquaintance, "how do you console yourself on the loss of that wreck story this morning?"

"By congratulating ourselves," he answered quickly, "that we are among the number who missed that ill fated train."

On another occasion as the senator was approaching the Times building on Fourth avenue he noticed a crowd gathered about a wagon which was filled with huge rolls of newspaper. A wheel was caught in a deep rut in the pavement and could not be budged.

"Senator," laughed a friend, "they managed at last to get your paper into a fix."

"Yes," answered Mr. Magee, his eyes twinkling with good humor, "and I'm not trusting to men to get it out again, but to mules."—Philadelphia Press.

The Thumb Mark Fad.

Don't mark your stationery any longer with a monogram. That is out of date. The latest symbol is a thumb mark. It is engraved in gold or silver and has all the value of a Bertillon mark of identification. The stationers who have introduced this way of marking use the prints in the center of a correspondence card and about half an inch from the top to make them most effective. The thumb is sometimes printed in red or blue, although the metal colors are more popular.—New York Sun.

An Ancient Trust.

There is a trust corporation of immemorial antiquity at Cairo known as the Wakfs. It holds landed property which has been conveyed to it for pious uses. But this was frequently a device to secure to the family of the donor or testator a large share of the annual proceeds. Its net income last year, according to the Egyptian Standard, was $2,161,500, and it carried forward a balance of $581,070, to be expended in new enterprises, presumably of a religious or educational character.

Spoiled His Appetite.

"Every bit of food on this table," said the serving lady to Lamson as he sat down to eat at the church supper, "was cooked by your wife."

"Oh, I don't mind," rejoined Lamson faintly. "I'm not a bit hungry, anyway!"—New York Times.

"THE maxim of many housewives is, "When in doubt blame the flour." This is unfair.

If your baking goes wrong, investigate—find the cause. Look to your stove, your yeast, your baking methods.

If you succeed in pinning the trouble down to the flour—if you clear yourself—then take up the flour question in dead earnest.

Consider that flour, to be successful from a baking standpoint, must be fine to produce light bread or pastry, pure to make that bread or pastry wholesome, and rich in nutriment to make it nourishing.

The good housewives all over the country are learning that has these three qualities in the greatest degree.

Ogilvie's Royal Household is milled by the most modern methods, purified by the only process that makes for absolute purity and made only from Manitoba Hard Wheat which contains the highest percentage of nutriment.

Royal Household Flour, in competent hands, never disappoints. Your grocer will guarantee this and gladly furnish the flour.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. O. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and caring all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organised by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

Doctor Told This Mother That Vinol is a Fine Remedy—Mrs. Flagg Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Vinol

"Our little daughter, six years of age, after a severe attack of the measles, which developed into pneumonia, was left pitifully thin, weak and emaciated. She had no appetite, and her stomach was so weak it could not retain food. She lay in this condition for weeks, nothing the doctor prescribed did a bit of good, and we were beginning to think she would never recover.

"At this time we commenced to give her Vinol, and the effect was marvellous. The doctor was amazed at her progress, and when we told him we were giving her Vinol, he replied, 'It is a fine remedy, keep it up.' We did so, and she recovered her health and strength months before the doctor said she would."—Mrs W J Flagg, Portland, Me.

Vinol is a real cod liver preparation, containing in a highly concentrated form all of the body-building, strength-creating and curative elements of cod liver oil and tonic iron added. It is delicious to take and children love it.

Brakeman Admits Negligence In C.P.R. Disaster at Sandbank.

Bowmanbille, . 18.—W. C. Read the brakeman w. opened the switch at Sandbank Nov. 23 on the C.P.R., was yesterday morning committed for trial in June on a charge of criminal negligence.

Conductor Knapp said he had not instructed Read to open the switch, and the latter had no right to open it without orders.

To J. G. O'Donoghue, counsel for Read, witness admitted that brakemen commonly opened and closed switches when they understand what they are doing. It was no breach of duty to open a switch to let 54 into siding. He did not reprove him for it; he admitted the conductor and engineer are responsible for the safety of the train on sidings, and the conductor is supposed to see that switches are right.

In reply to the question, "If you had been watching the east switch, would this accident have occurred?" he said "No."

In Family Fifty Years.

Thorold, Dec. 18.—Miss Mina Dougan, town treasurer, has tendered her resignation. The treasurership has been in the Dougan family for half a century.

Killed by Fall of Ice.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Rene Gosselin, a six-year-old boy, was injured by a fall of ice from a house on Tuesday. He died of a fractured skull yesterday.

REFORMS IN INDIA.

Councils Will Be Enlarged and Natives Will Help to Rule.

London, Dec. 18.—Lord Morley, Secretary of State for India, speaking in the House of Lords yesterday afternoon, unfolded a plan for the reform of the governmental administration of India, opening what he described as "a very important chapter in the history of the relations between Great Britain and India."

The Government's proposals were first to increase the membership of both the judicial and the Viceroy's Councils by nomination and election, giving the different classes of the community each its representative; secondly, to repeal the prohibition against the Legislative Council discussing matters of general importance; third, to increase the Executive Councils of Bombay and Madras from two to four members each; fourth, to give the Lieutenant-Governor an Executive Council of two members, and, fifth, to adopt a device to secure an official majority in the Legislative Council.

Lord Morley said he anticipated criticism of this fifth proposal, but he explained that he made no pretension of inaugurating a Parliamentary system in India. What he wanted to do was simply to assign the Indians a greater share in the government of India without divesting the central authority of any of its power.

Checking Indian Unrest.

Calcutta, Dec. 18.—The course adopted recently by the Indian authorities to cause the arrest, swiftly and mysteriously, of all natives suspected of revolutionary activity, is having a good effect on the unrest of the population.

Instead of being deported, the leaders taken into custody are being distributed to the various jails in India. It is reported that the powerful native secret societies are dissolving as a result of the energy displayed by the Government. A delegation of prominent natives supposed to be implicated in the revolutionary movement called on the local commissioner yesterday and were assured of his support.

Another result of the campaign is that the native newspapers are becoming extremely cautious in their comments on the Government.

Victory For Scott Act.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 18.—The plebiscite in Westmoreland County yesterday resulted in a victory for the Scott Act by 1,100 majority, 350 greater than the Scott Act majority of last year.

The campaign was the hardest fought ever known in the Maritime Provinces, ministers from all over the country flocking into Moncton and immediate towns to carry on the struggle against the liquor men.

Last Sunday special prayers for the cause were offered in most of the churches in the provinces, and the result yesterday is hailed with great delight by the temperance people.

The vote polled was surprisingly large.

Attempted Arson and Murder.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 18.—A daring attempt at wholesale murder and arson is reported from Chilliwack.

On Sunday night an attempt was made to wipe out the entire family of Mr. and Mrs. B. Morden of that town and to destroy their home. A huge pile of hay saturated with coal oil was placed in front of the house and a match touched to it. The flames were discovered within a few moments after the fire was started.

Hops Bill Withdrawn.

London, Dec. 18.—The bill introduced by David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, prohibiting the use of hops substitutes in the manufacture of beer, was withdrawn from the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

This step was a result of the opposition of the ultra free trade Liberals to what they consider the protective character of the measure.

To Double Taft's Salary.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senator Bourne yesterday introduced a bill providing for an increase in the salary of the President of the United States from $50,000 to $100,000, and in the salary of the vice-president from $12,000 to $25,000.

The bill is intended to take effect at the beginning of the next administration.

Laborer Gives to Charity.

Ottawa, Dec. 18.—Without any relatives as far as can be learned, John Dancey, a German laborer living latterly in Hull, has left $12,000 to charity. Among his belongings was found a will bequeathing $12,000, which was in his Hull bank, to Rev. Father Provost of Montreal, to be disbursed for charity purposes under his direction.

Woman Goes Free.

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—Mrs. Kata Kataranin, the Austrian woman who was arrested Wednesday evening on the charge of shooting with intent at Harrish Gaskparovitch, a boarder, was acquitted in the Police Court yesterday morning, and the boarder was arrested on the charge of aggravated assault.

Seventy-Five Millions for Armament.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 18.—The Chamber of Deputies has sanctioned a bill authorizing the Government to spend not exceeding $75,000,000 for armaments. The bill provides for the construction of two large battleships, and authorizes a third if necessary.

Costs of Fleet's Tour.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—The combined salaries of 17,000 ministers for one year would be needed to pay the expenses of the present cruise around the world of the United States fleet, according to Charles H. Beals of the American Peace Society.

Auto Plunges Into River.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 18.—An automobile containing three men dashed into the open draw of the Oneida street bridge early yesterday and went to the bottom of the river, carrying two of the occupants to death.

Hayti's New President.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Dec. 18.—Gen. Antoine was yesterday unanimously elected President of the republic by the Haytian Congress.

Crown Attorney Takes Action.

Windsor, Dec. 18.—Following the publication of certain statements to which he took exception, J. H. Rodd, crown attorney and law partner of Mayor Wigle, has issued a writ against Ald. Foster, and threatens to enter two other actions.

Ald. Foster is chairman of the finance committee, and alleged that certain debentures had been sold by Mr. Rodd, acting for Wood, Gundy & Co., to Toronto brokerage firms without tenders being asked, and without the matter coming before the finance committee. The debentures were sold at a premium, and Mr. Rodd thinks the city should be congratulated.

Hanna In Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 18.—Hon. W. J. Hanna was the guest of honor last night at Queen's medical banquet. Interviewed by J. B. Walkem, K.C., acting for the widow of Samuel Stevenson, guard killed at Rockwood Asylum by a patient, and several prominent citizens, and asked that the Government do something for the support of the wife and nine children, Stevenson having met death while on duty. Mr. Hanna promised to take the matter up. He inspected the asylum and was entertained by the Frontenac Club.

Oil Ship Burning.

Singapore, Dec. 18.—The first attempt to scuttle the British steamer Kalamee has not been entirely successful. The Kalamee arrived here on Wednesday from New York with fire in her cargo of case oil. The engine-room, the reserve and the reserve holds were flooded yesterday, and No. 2 hold was pierced with a cannon shot to make it possible to flood it.

The oil is burning furiously, and the situation is serious. It is impossible to go close in to the Kalamee because of the danger of an explosion.

Yanks Get Submerged Timber.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Five hundred cords of sunken pine piling, submerged for 80 years in the Rideau River and in the lakes some miles back of Kingston, Canada, has been bought by an American concern, which will raise the timber and take it by boat down the St. Lawrence to Ogdensburg, where it will be made into bleached soda pulp.

British Torpedo Boat Lost.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Dec. 18.—Torpedo boat 059 ran ashore on the rocks while manoeuvring off Bembridge ledge, Isle of Wight, Wednesday night. The crew of 14 had a narrow escape. Two feet of water was in the hold when the Bembridge lifeboat arrived in response to signals. The vessel is a complete wreck.

Rigs Coal Fire.

Fort William, Dec. 18.—The most destructive coal fire ever known at the head of the lakes has been in progress for several weeks at the Canadian Pacific coal docks. To save thousands of tons of soft coal the company has resorted to almost every known means without avail. More than a hundred thousand tons are in the pile, and a big gang of shovellers has failed to get at the fire. In a final effort, the company is preparing to put in operation a steam shovel, but it will be weeks, if at all, before the heart of the fire is reached. Spontaneous combustion is responsible.

AN IRRITATING NUDGE

Cause of Quarrel in Bobcaygeon Hotel----Three Men Fined by the Magistrate And Had to Pay Costs.

HARRY KURLEY WAS HURT

Bobcaygeon, Dec. 18.—Special.—Mr. F. D. Moore, County Magistrate, held court on Thursday. The evidence in the assault case showed that Harry Kurley, who had been working for the last year or more with Millar Johns, was taking a glass of beer at the Rockland bar. As he was raising the glass to his mouth Arthur McGregor nudged his side. A second time McGregor did this and Kurley told him he had better be careful. With that McGregor struck him. Miller Johns started over to see what the trouble was about, and was knocked down, receiving a split nose. He could not swear positively who struck him, but Percy Nichols admitted trying to stop him going to Kurley. G. Nichols, the bartender, parted the men. The court imposed fines of $5 on McGregor, $2 on P. Nichols and $1 on M. Johns, each with costs.

"DEATH WAS DUE ONLY TO NATURAL CAUSES"

Jury Empanelled to Inquire Into the Death of Edward O'Brien Bring in the Above Verdict---Dr. Gray Was Coroner----Entire Absence of Foul Play Was Shown.

ARTERY IN THE HEAD BURST

"That the said Edward O'Brien came to his death from natural causes."

(Signed) A. E. Micks, foreman; Jas. R Bell, Archie Campbell, Jas. Head, John Hulpin, Fred Cook, Joseph Hickey, Jas. Murty, Jas. T. C. Lang, K. G. Leeb, J. D. Craig, Wm. Hudson, J. W. Carey and Dr. W. J. Gray, coroner.

The above verdict was brought in last night by the jury empanelled to inquire into the death of the late Edward O'Brien, who died suddenly last Saturday evening, on the road leading from the city to Indian River, at a point three and a half miles from Peterborough. John Smith and James Guerin, the young men who were with him, were entirely exonerated from all censure with which idle rumour had connected their names, because of their being present at the time the sad affair occurred.

The last sentence in the report read by Dr. Young, of the post mortem examination, was the most important, as far as the cause of the death was concerned. It was as follows: "After cutting through the brain substance we found a blood clot caused by a rupture of the posterior cerebral artery, which, in our opinion, was sufficient to cause death. the artery being in an atheromatous condition; therefore, in our opinion, death was due to natural causes." Dr. Boucher and Dr. Young performed the post mortem examination at Lane & Bono's undertaking establishment.

In his evidence Dr. Young explained that there was no sign of a blow on the exterior of the head, which would have been visible had the blood clot been the result of an exterior cause.

The Story of the Affair

O'Brien had left Peterborough, in company with James O'Brien and John Smith, on a sleigh owned by the latter, on which he had brought a load of hay into the city and sold during the day.

In the afternoon Smith had traded one of the team of horses for one which Mr. John McCormick had owned. About three miles of the city the horse secured in the trade dropped in the road and died almost instantly. O'Brien had been driving and the other two men got out, and when they discovered that the animal had expired, they hitched up the other horse and went to get in the sleigh, when they found O'Brien lying on his hands and face in the bottom of the sleigh. They sat him up on the seat but his head fell back inanimate. Guerin, alarmed at bi condition, and fearing the worst, said, "The man is dead."

The latter held the lifeless body on the seat while Smith led the single horse along the lonely road for a mile or more, until they came to the farm house of Mr. J. Corkery, who told them to come in. He thought that the heat from the stove and other attentions might revive him, although he admitted that O'Brien seemed dead when the body was brought into the yard.

These were the most important parts of the evidence. The jury was not long out when they returned the verdict given above. The witnesses were examined by County Crown Attorney R E Wood, as follows: John McCormick. Dr. T. W. H. Young, John Smith, James Guerin, J. Corkery and James Collins.

LAKEFIELD MAN FALLS THIRTY FEET FROM TOP OF AN ELECTRIC LIGHT POLE TO THE GROUND BELOW

In Lakefield on Thursday afternoon Mr Wm Leggott met with a bad accident while working on an electric light pole. He was fixing some wires in front of the new Methodist church when a wire broke throing him to the ground, from a height of about thirty feet. He fell on his back on the frozen road. He was picked up and taken to his home, where it was found that no bones were broken, but that he was badly shaken up. He will have to remain quiet for a few days.

Mr. Leggott's escape from serious injury was a most fortunate one, as he fell directly on his back.

Dr. Marsh In Hamilton At Meeting Of Astronomers

Upon the invitation of Hamilton astronomers, Rev. Dr. Marsh, President of the R. A. S., Peterborough centre, gave a lecture in Hamilton on Tuesday night, and also assisted in the organization of a branch there. He was given a hearty welcome by Mr. G. Parry Jenkins, F. R. A. S, who was elected president of the new branch which will be affiliated with the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

Dr. Marsh was the father of astronomy in Hamilton. He presented the advantages to those present of belonging to teh society, of dropping the old charter and casting in their lot with R. A. S. of anCada. His opinions were accepted and an application through Dr. Marsh will be made to teh council at its meeting in Toronto next Tuesday. Among those belonging to the society in Hamilton are Senator Gibson, Mayor Stewart, Ald. Bailey, Ald. Stewart, and Mr Sheppard, American Consul.

After the election of officers, Dr. Marsh gave a lecture on the "Phenomena of the Solar Surface" explaining the Faculae, sun spots, floculous clouds, etc.

Rattray Before Magistrate To-day; Was Remanded Until Thursday Next

Wm Rattray was arraigned before City Clerk Armstrong at the police court this morning, on a charge of breaking into the dwelling house of Martin Connors and stealing therefrom $683.12. The court room was crowded with a throng of curious spectators, but they were doomed to disappointment as the case was not proceeded with this morning.

"I would like a remand for one week," said the chief, when the charge against the prisoner was read

Mr. Armstrong remandfed Rattray until next Thursday, in order to give the Crown a chance to prepare their case.

Rattray was brought down from Toronto last night by P. C. Newhall, who went up for his man yesterday morning.

No Smoking In Brock Street Rink; Directors To Put Stop To Practice

The Board of Directors in connection with the Brock street rink have drawn up a list of new rules for the management of the popular winter resort, which they intend to see are strictly observed. The most important rule is in regard to smoking. Henceforth the worshippers of Lady Nicotine will find that they will not be permitted to smoke in the rink with the exception of in the room upstairs on the east side of the building which will be fitted up as a smoking and check room, the latter department being in charge of Mr. Larone who conducted the check room at Jackson Park last winter. Smoking in any other part of the building will not be tolerated. There are also some rules in connection with skating which will be carried out this winter. Any disorderly or boisterous conduct is liable to result in the suspension of the offender and games of tag, crack the whip lash, etc., which are dangerous and liable to cause accidents will it persisted in, result in the cancelling of the offender's ticket. The new rules have been printed on neat cards which are hung up in conspicuous places in the rink, so that the public will have no excuse for failure to observe them.

By-law On Village Statute Books Entitled Assessor To Sum Of Twenty-five Dollars Only Interesting Legal Case at Lakefield Yesterday at Which Local Lawyers Were Present---Plaintiff Had No Knowledge of Existence of By-law.

PAYS COSTS OF THE COURT

One case came up for trial before Judge Weller at the Town Hall, Lakefield, on Thursday. Mr. John Hull sued the Village of Lakefield for $50 services as assessor. It appeared that the Village had passed a by-law appointing Mr Hull and had fixed the salary at $25. Mr. Hull swore that he did not know that any salary had been fixed or even that a by-law had been passed. He however accepted the task of assessing and made the usual declaration before the clerk. After he had completed his work he was tendered $25 which he refused, claiming $50. His Honour decided that Mr Hull was only entitled to the $25 named in the by-law, that in making the declaration he accepted the office in the terms of the by-law. Judgment was given Mr. Hull for the $25. but as this amount had been tendered him and was now paid into court he must pay his own costs as well as the costs of the village. Mr. W H Moore, Peterborough, acted for the plaintiff and Mr. G M Reget, of Peterborough for defendent.

PETERBORO' MAN WINS HIS SUIT IN HAMILTON

Hamilton, Dec. 18.—Special.—A decision was given out in the case of W. J. Overend, of Peterborough, against the firm of Millen, Stewart & Burrows, in which the plaintiff won. Some time ago a writ for damages was issued by Mr. Overend against the above named firm, who were accused of infringing upon a patent which he had secured on a new model of curry comb. The now for some time, but the favourable decision for Mr. Overend to-day will likely terminate the case.

57TH REGIMENTAL BAND AT BROCK STREET RINK

It will be learned with pleasure by those who skate at Brock street rink, that arrangements are being made for plenty of music during skating hours in the evening. This was learned today, but the exact details were not to hand. It is likely that special numbers will be played for changes, such as were given at the Roller Rink. The management are aiming at providing as interesting a programme as possible. Certain selections will be played when others will be played for reverse skating. Features of this character will be introduced and it is thought will be much appreciated by the skaters. The ice is in excellent condition just now, and to-night the first band of the season will be present.

RIGHT ARM WAS CAUGHT AND BROKEN YESTERDAY MORNING WHILE WORKING NEAR MACHINE

Mr. Thomas J McManus, son of Mr. T Frances McManus, 516 Park street, met with a painful accident yesterday while engaged at work in the preparation department of the Cordage Works, in which his right arm was broken. He was doing some cleaning work when in some manner his arm caught and before he could extricate it, it was broken. He was taken to the Nicholls Hospital where the arm was set and to-day he was reported resting favourably. His many friends will regret to learn of this accident which will keep him inactive for a considerable time.

Special Grants For Rural Public School Libraries

The County Treasurer has received from the Department of Education, notice of grants to rural public schools, on account of libraries purchased between July 1st, 1907 and September 30th, 1908. The grant this year amounts to 34 per cent. of the amount expended. That is sections spending $10 receive a grant of $3.40, sections making an expenditure of $20 get $6.80, and others in proportion. The largest grant is $10 and goes to No. 3, Harvey. In addition to this special grant for libraries there is an annual grant of ten per cent. of the total value of the library, which is paid as a part of the grant for equipment. The schools receiving grants for libraries are: Asphodel, Nos. 1, 5, 6, 7 and 9; Belmont and Methuen, Nos. 2, 3, 4, 8 and 10; Burleigh and Anstruther, Nos. 1B, 2B, 1A and 2A; Chandos, Nos. 2, 4, 5, 7 and 8; Douro, Nos. 1, 3, 5, 11 and 12; Dummer, Nos. 2, 4 and 5; Ennismore, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4; Galway, Nos. 4 and 6; Harvey, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8; North Monaghan, Nos. 2 and 3; Otonabee, No. 5; Smith, Nos. 2, 5, 7, 8 and 9.

The Normal School Students Began Their Holidays To-day

The Christmas vacations of the Normal School students began today and will continue until the 6th of January. During the last week or more the examinations have been under way, the results of which will count at the finals next summer, at the end of the term. There are 27 subjects taight at the Normal School and on 14 of these papers were set for their examinations, which have just been concluded. Some of them were as follows: Grammar, Psychology, Art and Writing, History, Geography, Elementary Science, Algebra, Literature, Composition, School Management and Household Science. The course for the Normalites is a comprehensive one, and it means constant study to make a good showing in the one year.

His Arm Concealed--This Man Is Said To Have Claimed To Be Crippled

Two roughly-dressed young men, who gave their names as Fred Kane and Jos. Kerr, and who were arrested by P. C. Adams, appeared before City Clerk Armstrong to-day on a charge of vagrancy and pleaded not guilty.

"We have been working for the Westinghouse people in Hamilton," said one of the prisoners, "and came down here, thinking we could get work in the Canadian General Electric Works."

There have been complaints to the effect that a man who represented himself as being crippled to the extent of having had one arm cut off, but who in reality was an imposter, having his arm concealed beneath the coat, leaving the sleeve empty, has been securing alms from charitably inclined citizens, and it is said that one of the men arraigned this morning was the individual in question.

Splendid Camera Exhibit To Be Seen At The Y. W. C. A.

The camera section of the arts and crafts exhibit in the Green room at the Y.W.C.A. is attracting considerable attention. There are 100 entries all of which are worthy of inspection. The prizes for this department were allotted to-day by the judges, Mrs. D Hughes Charles, Miss Hatton and Mr. Fred Roy. The successful exhibitors for the first two prizes were first, Mr. N A Howard-Moore, who won a 1A folding pocket kodak valued at $12, presented by the Eastman Kodak Company. The second prize was won by Mr. R Picard, it being a set of scales valued at $6. presented by the Tate-Taylor Optical Company. The other prize winners will be announced later. The exhibit will be open to-night when it is expected that many will avail themselves of the opportunity of examining the exhibit

Large Crate At Rear Of George Street Store Probably The Bed Of Two Small Boys

Had Been Unpacked and Seaweed Packing Put Into It—Impressions of Small Bodies Plainly Evident.

IT WAS FOUND RECENTLY

A George street merchant discovered in an empty crate behind his store an improved bed which from its appearance suggests that two boys have sought the sweets of youthful slumber on the dry sea weed which had formed the packing of the articles which the crate had contained. The lane behind the store is that which leads from Hunter street on the south side between LeBrun's store and the Times building. The crate is at the rear of one of the stores nearly half way down the block. It came from Europe and the soft packing was replaced. It presents a rather appealing bed in one sense, but the occupants would need some extra warm covering, on nights such as have been experienced recently. The impressions of the two small bodies are plainly evident, and in all probability the merchant's conjecture is correct.

WANTS INCREASE IN PEDDLER LICENSE FEE

Mr. E M Trowern, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, appeared before the Board of Control recently in Toronto, to ask that the peddlers' licenses be increased from $10 to $30 a year, and that there be no half-yearly licenses issued at $5. The half-yearly license was allowed to accommodate a poor man who had a family and wanted to make a living, said the Mayor.

"But a small business man would not be allowed a reduction in business assessment if he was poor,' remarked Mr. Trowern.

"All we want is a square deal."

The Mayor assured Mr. Trowern that the Board would give the request their careful consideration.

A CHRISTMAS TREAT

The Examiner is Prescribing for Jealous People----Do You Want to Reform?

READ THE CONDITIONS BELOW

Are you jealous and do you want to be cured? If so the Examiner is going to help you to reform. Here is the proposition.

"East Lynne" will be presented at the Grand Opera House Christmas Day, matinee and night. A more powerful sermon against jealousy was never preached from any pulpit. We believe that any jealous man or woman who will go and see this play will have at least some portion of the "green eyed monster" eliminated.

We are so impressed with this that we have bought thirty tickets for this play and to the first thirty jealous, men or women, who will come to the Daily Examiner and say to us, "I am jealous and really want to reform," we will give these tickets. These tickets will be at the free disposal of jealous men and women at 2.30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

This is to be the Daily Examiner's missionary work against jealousy.

King's East Lynne is based upon jealousy. The heroine is one of the most jealous women that ever existed. Her jealousy is not of the mild type, but she is cursed with that cankering, blighting sort, the kind that eats into one's heart and brain until everything good and elevating is destroyed.

The only stipulation placed on the receipt of this ticket is that you must have a copy of the DAILY EXAMINER with you at the time. We want our readers to have the benefit of this opportunity of getting absolutely free a 75c. ticket to this most beautiful play, for either the matinee or night.

SCHEDULES TO BE DRAWN UP TO-NIGHT

Meeting of the Representatives of Teams in This District at Port Hope.

The schedule for the junior and intermediate groups of the O H A in which Peterborough are represented are being drawn up to-night at a meeting to be held in Port Hope. The locals were unable to send a representative but have arranged for Mr. G L Galley, now of Port Hope and formerly of Peterborough, to look after their interests.

The executive of the club held a meeting last night in the Oriental Hotel, at which there were present—Dr A W MacPherson; C G Graham, vice president; Chas A Barber, asst. secretary; Treasurer H P Morgan, and F A Clarke. Satisfactory arrangements were made with the rink company for the use of Brock st. rink this season.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. At all events you will act wisely if you advertise in the EXAMINER.

HOW TO DO IT.

In this age of industrial activity enterprising promotors and directors of industrial concerns are constantly seeking places to establish themselves —new sites where can be obtained, improved facilities, conveniences and other desirable conditions. A case in point is the Otis-Fensom Elevator Company with headquarters at Yonkers, N.Y. A branch is established in Hamilton and negotiations are going forward for the establishment of another in Toronto. The company wants the city to sell it twenty-two acres of land of which five acres is land and the remainder Don Flats marsh. It seems, therefore, that this company is not asking favours that will cost the city much, but, on the contrary only offers the advantages springing from the operation of an industry paying out wages to between 200 and 300 hands.

Peterborough could accommodate such and establishment, as well as Toronto, and even go them one better. We can offer cheaper power, better inducements as to real estate and with the completion of the Trent Canal to Lake Ontario, equally good transportation facilities. By parenthesis, the fact that the Trent Canal will equalize the transportation advantages of Toronto and Peterborough, accounts for the hostility or armed neutrality of the former to the canal and this city.

Do our Manufacturers' Committee of the City Council and our Board of Trade know that the industrial Noah's dove in question has been on the wing seeking a place to rest the sole of its foot? Is our Board of Trade seized of the fact that this important industry is looking for a good place to locate? Have any steps been taken by either to secure its location in Peterborough? If not, why not? If not, simply because the machinery is too complicated, the responsibility too indirect and dispersed. Both bodies have too many other duties to attend to to concentrate the attention and take the initiative with sufficient directness and promptitude, to meet the conditions that insure success. In this connection the proposal under discussion by the Board of Trade to create and employ some such official as an Industrial Commissioner, becomes a very pertinent matter. The Examiner has repeatedly quoted the town of Welland, whose phenomenal and almost romantic success in securing industries is proverbial. This is done because effective machinery is employed in the form of a commissioner whose duty it is to keep on the alert, to have the whole industrial field under his eye and who is empowered to take resolute and immediate action. The town of Welland does not capture new industries by red tape diplomatic negotiations. It goes after an industry and brings it back on the return journey. Such a commissioner as that suggested, might be worthy of consideration for Peterborough. His duties might include in addition to industrial acquisition, a general oversight and employment of expedients to keep the city advertised, to entice excursions and conventions to the city and thus secure us the substantial advantages that would accrue from large concourses of outsiders. Such a man, assuming that he be a live man, would find abundance of employment, and if he did his duty faithfully would bring ample returns for whatever expenditure his employment might involve.

One form of an old proverb is to the effect that, if you want your business done, do it; if not, send.

THE WHEREFORE OF FAILURE.

A writer in the University Magazine, for December, Mr. Andrew McPhail, its editor, gives, what he considers, reasons why the Conservatives failed in the last Dominion elections. The writer's argument converges to the conclusion that the Conservative party did not succeed because it did not deserve to succeed. Mr. Borden's Halifax platform in the different phases of its presentation was not only so theoretical that it could not be translated into action, but it was so obscure that both the sophisticated and the simple were forced to alternative conclusions—that "he (Mr. Borden) meant nothing or did not know what he meant." Arising from these conditions the writer achieves a second reason in Mr. Borden's Halifax nomination day manifesto. It is written:

"In it he told the people what he proposed to do, but he neglected to tell them how he was going to do it. He promised them a Cabinet worthy of their highest ideals, but he neglected to mention the names of those ideal Ministers whom he proposed should sit with him. It would have been just as useful to the Conservatives if Mr. Borden had issued the Decalogue as a manifesto."

In a word, the Conservatives hungry for office, asked bread of Mr. Borden and he gave them a stone. The scandal plan in the House and out of it—during the session and after it—suggests to Mr. McPhail another reason for the failure of the Conservative battle at the polls. In regard to this he says:

"The Conservatives endeavoured to fasten the charge of flagrant breach of public morality upon their opponents, but the people did not believe they were telling the truth. When a person cries 'stop thief,' and the person who is addressed stops and demands that the charge be proven, the situation is embarrassing for him and no great commotion is likely to ensue. If he does not prove the charge, he is apt to be regarded as a traducer or a disturber of the peace. In these days the people are interested not in what a man says, but in what he can prove. At any rate, the Conservatives did not prove up to the limit of their assertions, certainly not in the way in which the Liberals proved it in 1873, and again in 1891."

The writer fails to detail sequential reasons for failure. Whatever merits the campaign of slander had in the eyes of Conservatives, in addition to the demerit mentioned above, there was no method in their madness. They began the campaign of slander too soon. When they began making charges they knew they could not prove, they should have so timed the charges that they could not be disproved before the time of the voting they were sought to influence. Additionally, the hypocritical assumption of immunity from political irregularities created disgust in the minds of fair men. A party which appeals for support on grounds of political purity should be sure that its own skirts are clear—and clean. Briefly, the Conservative party in the last appeal to the country as a ground of claim to support, stood for an exaction of political virtues in respect of its opponents which it did not itself possess, and exploited nebulous abstractions entirely unrelated to prospect of practical application. This attitude maintained towards a party which, with all the faults imputed, (impossibly greater than those of their accusers) had the merit of a definite and practical programme of policy of government and administration, the concrete expression of a hopeful outlook and faith in national possibilities

If a certain party would amend its own life, more real moral and political reform would result than from a hypocritical assumption of unpossessed virtue, used as a cover for assaults on the faults of others.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Long distance running seems to be a soul-stirring sport.

The reasons submitted for dismissing the protest against Mr. Wm. Thorburn, the Conservative member-elect for North Lanark, are practically identical in form and substance with those submitted for the dismissal of the protest in the West Peterborough election.

General sympathy will be extended Lieutenant-Governor Gibson on the occasion of the death of his eldest son on the threshold of a professional career which promised a distinction equalled by that attained by the father. Death sad, at any time, becomes doubly so when it comes in the season of general rejoicing. The surrounding brightness deepens the gloom that falls on the bereaved home, whether it be palace or cottage.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE CAPITAL

The Grand Trunk Continental's Great Achievement—Battle River Bridge is Completed — New Angle in Marine Inquiry—Accused Official Claims He is Being "Jobbed" by False Statements.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Ottawa, Dec. 17.—The authorities here are rejoicing over news that the great Battle River Bridge, which has been in course of construction during the entire season, is now completed and was put in actual use yesterday. The bridge is nearly four thousand feet long, and is very high, so that the construction has been slow, on account of night winds interfering with the handling of aerial steel work. On the west side of the bridge the grading has been practically completed to Edmonton for a long time. Steel is now being laid towards that city, and the work will be prosecuted as fast as the weather will permit. There are still nearly 125 miles of track to be laid before Edmonton is reached, and the shortest railway line from Winnipeg to the Alberta capital will be complete.

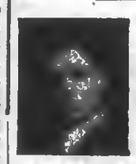
An astounding development of the marine inquiry yesterday was the evidence of A B Van Felsen, ex-banker, who swore that to obtain the payment of $30,000, owing to Mr. James Holliday, of Quebec by the Marine Department, he on the authority of Mr. Holliday paid J B A Beaudreau of the accountant's branch of the Marine Department $3,000 in June, 1905. Mr. Holliday took the stand and swore that he had no recollection of the transaction, that his books did not show a shortage of $3,000, and he could find no record of it in the bank. Mr. Beaudreau followed and swore that Mr. Van Felsen's story was false and that he was not in Quebec during June, 1905. A carefully-kept attendance book of the Marine Department was produced, and showed the signature of Mr. Beaudreau on every day covered by the period when Mr. Van Felsen swore he saw him in Quebec and paid him the money. Many officials claim that fictitious sensational evidence is being offered in the investigation to "even-up" grudges for alleged ill-treatment, or the refusal of favours, and that in pursuit of an excess of zeal to overtake and punish irregularities, injustice is done innocent parties.

OPENING OF ROYAL THEATRE

Curiosity of Citizens to be Appeased To-morrow—A Beautiful Moving Picture Establishment.

LARGE CROWDS EXPECTED

The curiosity that has for some weeks been aroused in our citizens will to-morrow be allayed. The boarding that has so long surrounded the front of the former Times office, 346 George street, will be removed, and a vision of splendid architectural perfection and beautiful illumination will attract the attention of passers by. Mr. M Pappas, who has so successfully operated a cigar and billiard business for the past three years has completely torn out the ground floor interior, extended the rear of the premises some sixteen feet and has replaced the former building by one of the most artistic and modern places of amusement in the Dominion. This handsome home of the muse and moving pictures will open its doors to the public at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. A visit to the Royal Theatre, as Mr. Pappas has christened his latest venture, is well repaid by the sight of the unique combination of the carpenters' and electricians' best work. Over the entrance is a sign "Royal Theatre" illuminated by two hundred electric lamps. The entrance proper is protected from the rude gales of winter by a plate glass front, which, whilst protecting ticket buyers from the cold, still allows the arched entrance to be seen and admired by passers by as well as patrons. In the entrance arch are scores of varied coloured electric lamps whilst the walls are splendid specimens of the glaziers' doors of diamond shaped plate glass mirrors on either side of the ticket office, affords ingress and egress to the crowds that will throng the theatre. The walls of the theatre are divided into framed panels with hand painted devices. The electric lighting is all that money can procure or good taste suggest. A wide stage will allow of vaudeville performances being given when wanted. MacGregor & Reid, who have had the contract for the work, have completed a job in keeping with the old reputation of that firm. Mr. James Graham, who was in charge of the carpenter work, has also accomplished good work. This latest addition to Peterborough's places of amusement whilst not fully completed, will open its doors to the public to-morrow morning, and remain open all day with a good display of moving pictures. Whilst a good show will be given to-morrow, the real show with high class singers and grand pictures, will be inaugurated on Monday. Even when the best pictures and talent procurable are presented, the admission price will only be a nickle.



TAKE NOTICE!

Please take notice and don't forget the lecture to be given by Mr. J. R. Bengough, the nephew of Canada's greatest cartoonist, Mr. Elven Bengough, will deliver an instructive lecture on "The Symbol Life," that will be of interest to all, especially to young men.

The lecture will be given in the Park Street Baptist Church, Friday evening, December 18th, under the auspices of the South City A. A. A. Admission 15c. 2dwf

CHRISTMAS NUMBER IS ARTISTIC

Prospectus of the American Horse Breeders' Magazine is at Hand.

The prospectus of the forth coming Christmas number of the American Horse Breeder, published in Boston, Mass., is full of promise of good things for horse lovers. The covers are in colours, the first page figure being that of an Indian and his pony, and entitled "A Primitive American Horseman." It is a striking design and is executed in Artist Duntley's best style. Indian figures and symbols are used in the embellishment of the reading and pictorial pages of the magazine, giving it an unique and artistic effect.

The number contains 20 full-page engravures, including a double page insert entitled "When Horses Were Money," showing a young buck in the act of negotiating for the purchase of a chief's daughter. The page illustrations include the notable trotters of the year, both in the aged and colt classes.

The literary contents will afford entertainment and instructive reading for many a winter's evening, for there are many solid and instructive articles, containing historical facts of interest and discussions of fascinating phases of the breeding problem and these are balanced with contributions in a lighter vein in the shape of illustrated stories and poems; in short, fact and fiction are harmoniously blended.

The number will also contain many other meatures not mentioned here.

BAD LEGS

One of the after effects of the recent summer is the serious sores and Bad Legs brought on through scratching the heat blains or insect stings. Few people realize the danger of a scratch. It often ends in blood poisoning and death, but invariably in a life-long BAD LEG. CUROL will prevent either, for immediately it is applied to a sore or wound, it gets busy and destroys the disease germs with a rapidity which is wonderful. There is no need for any one to suffer from bad leg, ulcers, and irritating, annoying skin troubles when the CUROL treatment will remove them. CUROL is a pure HEALING BALM, free from injurious minerals and rancid animal fats, and is absolutely pure. CUROL is a wonderful HEALER, and in long standing cases goes to the root of the difficulty with a determination which is simply marvellous. It first of all eradicates every particle of disease and foreign matter. Having accomplished this, the healing is often only a matter of days. THE HEALING DONE BY CUROL IS WELL DONE, for it positively will not heal until the wound is clean and free from impurities. 25 CENTS BOX. EDWARDS—FIFE

The wedding took place on Wednesday evening, December 16th, of Mr Chas. Edwards, Jr., of Lang to Miss Maggie Malvina, the daughter of Mr. John Fife, Otonabee. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Gilchrist, Evangelist, of Bancroft, at the residence of the groom's sister, Mrs. F. Doughty, 508 Bolivar street. The bride was charmingly attaired in a dress of white silk mull trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion and was given away by her brother, Mr. J. O. Fife, of East City. They were unattended. The wedding march was played by Miss Lillie Edwards, sister of the groom. An elaborate supper was served at the conclusion of the ceremony, which took place at 5.30, and at which 35 guests, all close relatives of the bride and groom, participated.

The presents were numerous and handsome, including several cheeks. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome check. The happy couple left for eastern points on a trip and on returning will reside at Lang.

BABCOCK—WOODLEY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Woodley, Lindsay street, Lindsay was Wednesday afternoon the scene of a very pretty wedding, when their daughter, Miss May, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred S. Babcock, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Real, of Queen street Methodist church. The young couple left on the 8 o'clock train for Peterborough. They will reside in Omemee.

Y.M.C.A. TRACK AND FIELD CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS AT ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF MEMBERS LAST NIGHT

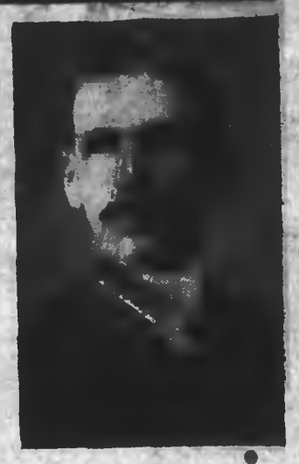
At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Track and Field Club was completed the election of officers for the coming season. Much enthusiasm was show by the members and the club should have a most successful existence with the following list of able officers at the helm:

Hon. Pres.—J J Howden.
Hon. Vice-Pres.—V Eastwood.
Pres.—C E Simon.
Vice-Pres.—J H Adams.
Sec.-Treas.—E A Wilson.
Executive Committee—S W Collings, P Wallace and Geo. Fowler.

The officers and executive committee will meet in the near future for the purpose of drafting a constitution for the new organization. It was decided to have one track and one field event every Wednesday night at 9 p.m., during the winter, commencing on Wednesday, Jan 6. This will keep the men in shape during the winter so that they will be ready for the campaign next spring and will be in good shape for the Hexalon competition and other events.

It was decided that the Club's colours should be blue and white, and the committee was empowered to select a monogram for the jerseys which will likely be white with blue trimmings. The members of the team will start outdoor training just as soon as the weather permits and a big effort will be made next season to have the Canadian championships fought out here.

MR. E. N. McWILLIAMS,
President of the Church League and its leading spirit. He has been instrumental in providing a splendid constitution for the League.



MR. V. EASTWOOD,
Hon. Vice-President of the newly organized Y. M. C. A. Track and Field Club.

CHURCH LEAGUE SCHEDULE WAS ARRANGED AT MEETING LAST NIGHT

A meeting of the executive of the Church Hockey League was held last night when the Senior schedule was drawn up. The teams represented were St. Andrew's, George Street, Park Street and Knox.

President E N McWilliams was in the chair and piloted matters safely and rapidly. He has been chiefly responsible for the capable and comprehensive rules that have been formed and under which the league should have a highly successful season.

Senior Schedule

The senior schedule was arranged as follows:

Jan. 5—George Street vs. Knox, 7—8, Knox.
Jan. 7—Park Street vs. St. Andrew's, 8—9, Park.
Jan. 12—Park Street vs. Knox, 7—8, Knox.
Jan. 14—St. Andrew's vs. George Street, 8—9, Park.
Jan. 19—St. Andrew's vs. Knox, 7—8, Knox.
Jan. 21—George street vs. Park Street, 8—9, Park.
Jan. 26—Knox vs. George Street, 7—8, Park.
Jan. 28—St. Andrew's vs. Park Street, 8—9, Knox.
Feb. 2—Knox vs. Park Street, 7—8, Park.
Feb. 4—George Street vs. St. Andrew's, 8—9, Knox.
Feb. 9—Knox vs. St. Andrew's, 7—8, Park.
Feb. 11—Park Street vs. George Street, 8—9, Knox.

In the above the date is given, the two teams, the time they play and on what rink. All the games will be played on Knox and Park Street Rinks.

A few changes were made in the constitution as follows: The representative of any club is not allowed a vote if that club is under protest. Another important change was, "All players are ineligible to compete in church league games after playing two games in the O.H.A. or City League." This allows all church leaguers to play in the Mercantile League. Amendments to the constitution can only be made at the annual meeting and notice of the same must be given in writing two weeks before the date of the annual meeting.

The question of referees will receive careful attention, it being desired that only capable men handle the gong in the church league games.

O. H. A. TEAM HAD FAST WORKOUT; CITY LEAGUE PLAYERS OUT IN FORCE

The first practice of the Peterborough O. H. A. team was held last night and a good squad of available intermediate material were out in uniform taking advantage of the good ice to indulge in a lively workout for an hour. Most of the men out were city league men, the Strathconas being represented by Ray, Dusty, Weatherstone, Dobson and Seymour while Crough and Derocher of the T A S A C and Wallie Parnell were also on hand. Considering that it was the first workout of the season the boys showed good form and the practice was a lively one. Derocher was in the nets and he cannot be overlooked in selecting the line up this year as he was picking them out all ways last night. Seymour who played for the Straths two seasons ago, and who has not been out in uniform since owing to his absence from the city showed out well last night boring them in from right wing in a manner that kept the goal keeper on the jump. Ray, Dusty, Dobson and Weatherstone were travelling at mid winter speed and got away with a lot of nice work while Parnell and Crough also did some nice work.

With the addition of the older players no difficulty should be experienced in getting together a seven that should give all the teams in the district a hard contest for the honours. The team will be out again tonight and all candidates for the intermediates are invited to be out in uniform. Trainer Milburn was on hand and the boys were given a good rub down after the practice.

J. H. ADAMS,
Vice-President of the Y. M. C. A. Track and Field Club.

PETER WALLACE,
Member of the Executive of Y. M. C. A. Track and Field Club.

THE BENEFICIAL EFFECTS OF SKATING; A MOST HEALTHFUL CANADIAN PASTIME

A writer to the Toronto News says with a good deal of truth:—

"As an antidote to many of the ills that flesh is heir to, I know of nothing to supersede ice skating, our own national winter pastime. The greatest physicians are agreed that the tendency of modern life with its cheap means of locomotion and transit, is that we do not take sufficient open air exercise to keep our bodies in good health, and in consequence the tendency of the race is to become less physically fit. Notice the faces of dwellers in country districts who are constantly exercising in the open air. Do they not tell their own story of sound good health? It is then an imperative necessity that city dwellers, employed in occupations which call for confinement in heated factories, workshops, rooms, or stores, during the day, should take sufficient exercise to build up the wasted tissues of the body.

"At this season of the year especially, does nature send us a clear bracing atmosphere, which, coming to us from the great north-west, is laden with health giving ozone. We owe it to ourselves to get out into the rejuvenating, life giving atmosphere as much as possible.

"Notice a car load of skaters returning from some rink after their evening's enjoyment. See the happy, ruddy faces they have to show; compare them with a party returning from some theatre where they have been confined for some hours in an impure atmosphere. The contrast at once declares which of the parties have followed the most health giving and pleasure inspiring pastime. Nature demands that fresh air and exercise be supplied with no niggardly hand, if we would live contented, healthful, happy lives.

"Skating should be liberally indulged in by every one who is physically fit for it. Its easy, gliding motion, especially when accompanied by good music, is most enjoyable, and while not unduly straining any set of muscles, it exercises every limb, artery and tissue of the body. New comers from the Old Country, where there is little skating to be obtained, should at once equip themselves with a good pair of skates and take full advantage of Canada's best pastime."

THE PACIFICS AND LOCK WORKS EACH TAKE TWO OF THREE GAMES

The Pacifics, by capturing two out of three games from the Midgets in the ten pin league series at the P.B.C. last night, improved their standing in the race for the leadership, and are now within easy striking distance of the Bankers, whose consistent work since the league opened has kept them well to the front. But there is a strong probability of their being supplanted, as the schedule calls for Pacifics to meet Hutch's team, which is struggling bravely to wrest the cellar honours from the Grays, while the Bankers will be called upon to meet the Lock Works, who are going strong.

In the second game of the double header last night, the Lock Works took two from Exam B, and the winners are now safely ensconced in fourth place in the league race. Dela Fosse was easily the best of the losers while LaPlante gave the best exhibition of the night, when he ran up a score of 255 in his three games. Lang, who played in the first two for the Lock Works and then gave way to Lacheur, did excellently, but Charlie Westbrooke was off colour, as was also Rishea of the Exam B's.

McIlroy was high man for the Pacifics, closely followed by Jack Connors, who showed flashes of his old time brilliance in the first and second game, falling a trifle in his final ten frames.

Carol Hayes was high man for the losers with 484.

The scores follow:—

DRIVER HELD SULKY TIRE ON WITH ONE HAND WHILE HE DROVE WITH OTHER

Toronto, Dec. 17—Visitors to the weekly light harness matinee at Dufferin Park yesterday afternoon saw one of the most sensational incidents ever recorded on any race track, and an occurrence that all of the regulars declare never before was recorded.

It happened in the second heat of the Class A race, in which there were four starters, Stroud, Walter S, William C. and Lady Belmont. They got away to a good break, and at the first turn the tire on the right hand wheel of Stroud's sulky slipped off. Ordinary drivers would have pulled up and not attempted to go on with the race. This was not Driver Jim Smith's way of doing business. He reached down and grabbed the loosened tire. Holding it tight for three-quarters of a mile and driving with his left hand holding whip and reins, he came on and won in a furious drive from Walter S. The big crowd gave Smith an ovation that is seldom heard at Dufferin Park.

LONGBOAT RAN BEAUTIFUL RACE WRITES OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY

Chris. Graham has received a delightfully breezy letter from an old Peterboroug hboy Mr. Bert Dolan of Smith, Grey and Co., New York giving his impressions of the Dorando—Longboat race on Tuesday night. Mr. Dolan who will be remembered as playing with the old Peterborough Baseball Club says of the race—"Just a few lines in my enthusiasm to tell you how your famous Indian runner put to grief Dorando several thousand fruit peddlars, boot blacks, Caruso et al, and had spaghetti and macaroni stretched from the bill of fare of all the reputable eating houses. Tammany to-day is stronger than ever and it is a good thing for the Republican powers that to-day is not election day, for the Indian sign is on everything.

Personally I did not think the Indian had a chance on account of lack of condition but he evidently has the constitution of John L Sullivan, for he was there under wraps with the race well in hand from the crack of pistol. He simply raced the little man from Sunny Italy off his feet, although the latter put up a game fight. He was simply outclassed last night. Longboat ran a beautiful race, and received a remarkable ovation from the largest crowd that was ever in Madison Square Garden."

NO CURLING YET IN TORONTO

Ice is Soft on Account of the Mildness of Weather.

On account of the continued mild weather and consequent lack of ice, the Toronto Curling Club have found it necessary to postpone their bonspiel until Tuesday evening, December 29th. The initial games were to have been played last night. It is evident that Peterborough is as far advanced in the season's curling as any of the other teams along the line.

E. A. WILSON,
Secretary-Treasurer of the Y. M. C.A. Track and Field Club.

CHARLOTTE ST. CHOIR BANQUET

Delightful Social Evening Spent at the Church—About Fifty in Attendance —Splendid Musical Programme.

WORK OF CHOIR LEADER

The members of the Charlotte Street Choir held a very successful banquet last night, in the Sunday School room, adjoining the church. The object was to spend a social evening together, to which the pastor, Rev. G. W. Henderson and his wife, and the Musical Committee of the church were invited.

The tables were very prettily decorated in red and white, with bouquets of carnations, and were loaded with roast turkey, goose and other delicacies, to which the choir and the guests sat down at 7.30 p. m.

The toast list after supper, with Mr. Downey as chairman, was as follows:

"The King," proposed by Mr. Bidyard, and responded to by Mr. W. Stocker.

"Canada," proposed by Mr. Lebar, and responded to by Mr. W. F. Skitch.

"Church," proposed by Mr. H. B. Collier, and responded to by Rev. G. W. Henderson.

"Choir Leader," by Chas. Harmer, and responded to by Miss Clarry.

"Ladies," Mr. Eccleston, and reply Mr. Armstrong.

"Gentlemen," Mrs. H. B. Collier, reply Miss Jackson.

"Guests," Mr., Cunningham and Rev. G. W. Henderson.

A splendid musical programme was rendered at intervals during the evening, as follows:

"The Boys of the Old Brigade," Mr. W. F. Skitch.

"O, Canada," Mr. W. Stocker.

"The Maid of Malabar," Mr. Jas. Browne.

"Daddy," Master Jno. Ridyard.

"On the Rolling Deep," Mr. W. F. Skitch.

Mr. A. B Cunningham, in his congratulatory remarks, said he was sure he voiced the spirit of the congregation, and spoke in glowing terms of the work of the leader, Miss Clarry and her splendid body of gifted singers, the music being always up to a very high standard, and was a real inspiration in the service.

He also stated that there always existed a spirit of harmony and good will in the choir, which is very rarely found in choir organizations. He also wished to congratulate Mrs. Hughes on her splendid work during her ion gengagement as soloist, and it was with extreme regret on the part of the congregation that she was about to retire. Congratulatory remarks were also made by the pastor.

C. G. E. REPRESENTATIVE IN EDMONTON

In Connection With Contract for Proposed Filtration System.

Edmonton Bulletin: The plans for the proposed filtration system are taking shape rapidly and will be ready for submission to the council in the course of a few days. Mr. Roberts, of Philadelphia, the filtration expert, will arrive in the city this afternoon and will take up the question with the commissioners tomorrow. Although representing a firm of manufacturers of filters and coming in response to the agitation for filtered water, Mr. Roberts is expected by the commissioners to give them much valuable information while in the city. It must be made clear that the filtration system to be installed next summer is not intended to be a permanent one, as it will be absolutely necessary before many years to move the pumping plant further up the river. It may even happen that next year's council will require that this be done in 1909. Among the men now in town in connection with the rumours of extensions to the electric and waterworks systems are Mr. Potter, of the Robb Engineering Co., Amherst, N.S.; Mr. McBurnie, of the Canadian General Electric Co., Peterborough; Mr. Ross, of Goldie-McCulloch Co., Galt, and Messrs Duff and Huffman, of the Canadian Westinghouse Co.

EXAMINER'S PAGES ARE WIDELY READ

First Applicant to Free Labour Bureau in Toronto Reads Examiner.

A few days ago the Examiner published an account of the opening of the free labour Bureau in Toronto by the Associated Charities of Toronto, and its purposes. The publication of this news in the Examiner has already brought results as the following letter received this morning from Mr. Samuel Arnold, the secretary, illustrates:

"Many thanks for your prompt reply to our request for the item in your paper regarding our free labour bureau. You were the first to respond to our 311 letters which we sent throughout the Province, and the first application we had came to hand this morning from Peterborough."

COLLIE RESCUED FROM STRYCHININE POISON

Narrow Escape of Mr. Haines' Dog on Wednesday Night.

On Wednesday evening an attempt Owas made to poison the valuable collie dog belonging to Mr. Haines, Brock street. Dr. Poole V.S., was summoned and it was found the animal had been given strychnina poison. An antidote was administered and the dog is all right again.

THREE NEW WESTMINSTER MURDERERS MEET THEIR DEATH TO-DAY AT THE HANGMAN'S HANDS

Two Negroes and One Chinaman Suffer for Their Misdeeds—The Crimes for Which They Are Punished.

RADCLIFFE THE HANGMAN

Examiner Special.

New Westminster, Dec. 18. -- The Cabinet-in-Council having decided not to commute the sentences in the cases of three murderers, these men were hanged here this morning. Radcliffe was the official executioner and the sentence was carried out in accordance with the law. One case was that of a negro named Jenkins, who was found guilty of the brutal murder of a woman near the International boundary line, south of New Westminster, last summer. The second was the case of a Chinaman, named Lee Chung, and the third that of a negro named John Pertilla, who were both under sentence to be hanged. In none of these cases was it thought advisable to interfere with the carrying out of the dire sentence of the law, and the result was the triple hanging that took place this morning. During the time that he was imprisoned, Pertilla made a desperate attempt on the life of Head Warder James Brymer, of the provincial jail at New Westminster. Brymer had just taken the man into the bath room and was entering the small apartment, when the negro seized a broken section of a fruit jar and rained blow after blow on the warder's head. His head, ears and face were badly cut, and it took two other warders' help before the desperate man could be cowed into submission. Warder Brymerr was confined to his bed for several days as a result of the injuries that he received. Lee Chung was sentenced for the murder of his partner, Yung Hing, in a quarrel in South Vancouver, last July. Both these men owned a pig ranch, and the evidence showed that they quarreled about the ownership of some pigs. Yung Hing's body was found in the bush terribly mutilated, and a trail of blood was found leading to Lee Chung's shack, where clothes were also found stained with blood.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

THE EXAMINER welcomes all Items of Interest for this column. Phone 234 or send post card with name and address.

Miss Traill of Lakefiels was in the city yesterday.

Miss Barbara Traill who has been attending school in Lakefield for the past few months returned to her home at Prince Albert, Sask., on Thursday.

Mr G G Pope, of Peterborough, was in town yesterday in the interests of the Federal Life.....Mr and Mrs. Barney Frederick, of Peterborough, have returned to town to spend several weeks.—Campbellford Despatch.

Mr. Norman Brown, ledger keeper at the Bank of Montreal, has received notice of his transference to Toronto. He will leave about the end of the week and his departure will be greatly regretted by a large circle of friends.

A very successful concert in aid of the Presbyterian Church shed fund was held in the town hall last Friday evening, says the Hastings Star. The rendering of the numbers was far above the average of most local concerts, and all who attended received a decided treat. Miss Julia Choate, violiniste, and Miss Fife, pianist, of Peterborough, contributed some artistically rendered numbers, as also did Miss Jessie Anderson, Miss Fraser, Messrs. Plant, Pelton and the Male Quartette.

Sporting Comment

A Pittsburg humourist rises to remark that the Cubs ought to be called the Artisans, because there is an Archer a Tinker, a Butcher, a Marshall, and a Miller on the team. This habit of punning is very Klinging —Toronto Star.

This gives us a chance to show that we still have it Overall these home grown or foreign punsters, in fact we have them done up Browne in asking if Steinfeldt that one?

A FEW ADVANTAGES OF THE Diamond Calk Horseshoe

It saves time—it saves money—it saves your horse. The calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The calk being made of case-hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal 9 ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

Your horse always having perfectly sharp calks is thoroughly protected against slipping.

The Shoe, and all the parts are made of the best material. The fittings—that is the calks, clamps and cap screws—are renewable at very small cost, while the shoe itself is practically indestructible.

For full particulars apply to the Company's office, 340 George Street.

LILLIAN RUSSELL

When Joseph Brooks presents Lillian Russell at the Grand Operahouse next week, in teh racing comedy "Wildfire" a treat is in store for local theatre-goers, The play needs no further introduction here, for the stirring incidents and the delicious comedy will be immediately recalled by the mention of the engagement.

Since Canadians took so kindly to "Wildfire" last season, it has more than duplicated its early success by a run of several months in New York city, where it was voted the biggest hit of the season to date.

Miss Russell brings her play here direct from the New York and Boston runs. It will be seen exactly as originally offered, except tant the company has, if possible, been materially improved, and a new third act now brings the story to a very satisfactory termination.

Miss Russell's new Directoire gowns will also be a great for her feminine admirers.

The plan opens Monday and a big rush for seats may well be expected.

POTVIN'S DELICACIES FOR XMAS

You'll make no mistake if you select your fancy boxes of confectionery at Potvin's. Nothing nicer in the city than his fresh-made chocolates, creams, caramels and other delicious bon-bons. They are made of the best material and put up in beautiful boxes for dainty Xmas gifts. Don't buy any Christmas cakes until you have seen Potvin's, as well as his lovely buns, pastry and holiday tancies. 425 George street. 6d-117

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S SPECIAL RATE TO ATTEND THE COMING POULTRY SHOW

About thirty energetic members of the Peterborough Poultry Association attended the special meeting last night and a most enthusiastic session was held. Everything points to a splendid show on the 5th, 6th and 7th of January. A large number of new members have been secured and the financial success of the affair is a certainty. It was finally decided last night to place the admission fee for school children at the small sum of five cents, for the hours between four and six o'clock.

Mr. Geo. Pexman, Vice-President, was unanimously elected Superintendent of the show and a committee to assist him will be appointed later.

Mr. Harry Lush reported on the poultry show in Guelph which he attended last week and stated that a large number of the exhibitors who were there will be coming to Peterough.

Mr. C. J. Hicks was elected secretary of the Association, upon the resignation of Mr. B. T. Huston.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

We have reached now a period in English literature, which ranks as the most brilliant, and the most marvellous in history.

Within the small compass of some seventy years, almost all the greatest authors that England has ever produced, played their destined parts on life's stage, and wrote their immortal work. As Lord Jeffrey expressed it, in the Edinburgh Review, "In point of real force and originality of genius, neither the age of Pericles nor the age of Augustus, nor the times of Leo. the Tenth, or of Louis the Fourteenth, can come at all into comparison. For in that short period we shall find the names of Shakspere, and Bacon, and Spenser, and Sidney, of Raleigh, and Hooker, and Taylor, of Napier, and Milton, and Cudworth, and Hobbes, an dmany others; men all of them not merely of great talents and accomplishments, but of vast compass, and reach of understanding, and of minds truly creative and original; not men who perfected art by the delicacy of their taste, or digested knowledge by the justness of their reasonings; but men who made vast and substantial additions to the materials upon which taste and reason must hereafter be employed, and who enlarged to an incredible and unparalleled extent, both the stores and the resources of the human faculties."

Edmund Spenser

Foremost in this wonderful array, in point of time, stands Edmund Spenser, "the poet's poet," who, born one year before Sidney, was destined by Providence to almost as brief a mortal career.

Spenser is the second of the four grand masters of poetical literature. He was born in 1553, in East Smithfield, near the Tower of London. Our knowledge of his early life is meagre. Little or nothing is known of his parents, or even of where he went to school. All that is known is that at sixteen he entered Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, as a sizar, and in 1576, took his degree of Master of Arts.

Friendship With Gabriel Harvey

At Cambridge he formed a friendship with Gabriel Harvey, the poet, who was some five years older than himself, and this friendship had a considerable influence in determining his future career, for by Harvey's kindness he was introduced to Sir Philip Sidney, and through Sidney to the Earl of Leicester. By the influence of this powerful nobleman he was appointed, in 1580, secretary to Lord Grey, of Wilton, the then newly-appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. Spenser spent two years in Ireland. On his return he was rewarded for his services, by Elizabeth, with a grant of 3,000 acres in County Cork. This was part of the estates of the Desmonds, which had been confiscated to the Crown, and of which Raleigh had already obtained a large share.

Spenser Retires to his Irish Estate

On the death of Sidney, Spenser retired to his estate in Ireland, and there, in the Castle of Kilcolman, and with Raleigh to encourage him in his task, he penned the first three books of the "Faerie Queene." On the completion of the books, Raleigh and Spenser, crossed the channel together, and the poet was introduced to the Queen by his zealous friend. On the publication of the work it was received with great enthusiasm. Elizabeth rewarded the poet with a pension of £50, and he returned again to Ireland, there to indulge in further poetical labours, and to officiate as Clerk of the council for Munster, and at a later period as Sheriff of Cork.

Spenser's Marriage and Death

In 1594 he married a lady named Elizabeth, in whose honour he composed the Epithalamion termed "The sweetest marriage song our language boasts," and in 1595 he went to England and published the 4th, 5th and 6th books of the "Faerie Queene." It is perhaps needless to state that Ireland was not any more disposed in those days to be under the yoke of England than she was two decades ago. Spenser had scarcely settled down once more in his well-loved home ere rebellion was rampant in the land. Kilcolman was besieged by the peasantry and Spenser and his wife, in the haste of flight, left their new-born child (their fifth) behind to perish in the flames. Three months later, Spenser, probably broken-hearted, breathed his last, at an inn in Westminster.

Spenser occupies an altogether unique place in literature, for he belongs as much to the old world of mediaevalism, as to the new world of progressive thought and enlightenment. He was the last Minstrel of Chivalry, greater beyond comparison than the greatest of his forerunners, but he was no more than the modern poet of the remote past. His mind revelled in conjuring up phantasmagoria in which gallant knights, distressed maidens and elfs play their parts in wonderful adventures by flood and field, but his style is the style on which modern poets have based their own endeavours, and he may thus be regarded not only as the last of the old school, but also as the first of the new.

The following extract is from his Epithalamion:

"Now is my love all ready for to come;
Let all the virgins therefore well await;
And ye fresh boys that tend upon her groom,
Prepare yourselves, for he is coming straight.
Set all your things in seemly good array,
Fit for so joyful day;
The joyfullest day that ever sun did see.
Fair sun, show forth thy favourable ray,
And let thy life-full heat not fervent be,
For fear of burning her sunshiny face,
Her beauty to disgrace.
O fairest Phoebus, father of the Muse,
If ever I did honour thee aright,
Or sing the thing that mote thy mind delight,
Do not thy servant's simple boon refuse;
But let this day, let this one day be mine—
Let all the rest be thine.
Then I thy sovereign praises loud will sing,
That all the woods shall answer and their echo ring."

"Behold, whiles she before the altar stands,
Hearing the holy priest that to her speaks,
And blesseth her with his two happy hands
How the red roses flush up in her cheeks,
And the pure snow, with goodly vermeil stain
Like crimson dyed in grain,
That even the angels, which continually
About the sacred altar do remain,
Forget their service and about her fly,
Oft peeping in her face, that seems more fair
The more they on her stare.
But her sad eyes, still fastened on the ground,
Are governed with goodly modesty,
That suffers not one look to glance away,
Which may let in a little thought unsound.
Why blush ye, love, to give to me your hand,
The pledge of all our band?
Sing, ye sweet angels, Alleluia sing,
That all the woods may answer, and your echo ring."

The Epithalamion is composed of ten stanzas, and to those who relish the true music of poetry, nothing can be more pleasurable than the perusal of its mellifluous lines.

Spenser wrote besides the "Faerie Queene," and the "Epithalamion," a few other pieces, among them The Shepherd's Calender, a work brought forth by the sorrow of an early but unsuccessful love affair. "Colin Clouts Come Home Again," a pastoral describing his voyage with Raleigh across the channel, in which that nobleman figures as the "Shepherd of the Ocean," and a "View of the State of Ireland," in which the poet upholds the time-honoured fallacy of brute force to subdue the Irish, of which his chief, Lord Grey, and other "very wise governors and counsellors," had been untiring exponents. This belief in might quelling right was with Spenser to the end, for his last known writing was a paper urging the policy in regard to Ireland. It is said that Spenser wrote in all twelve books of the Faerie Queene, of which six were lost either by shipwreck or fire. His remains repose in Westminster Abbey, near the tomb of Chaucer, the grand old father of English poetry.

Awful Nature Of The Foot And Mouth Disease That Is Ruining American Cattle

Epidemic Now Raging Across the Border Known as the Murrain —How it Spreads.

BURYING THE DEAD CATTLE

The foot and mouth disease, which is at present causing such a severe quarantine of animals from the States along the Canadian border, is a malignant epizootic fever. This sounds bad enough, as anyone will admit, but it is not very enlightening to the public. With the assistance of the dictionary it is open to anyone to ascertain that this description is somewhat of a sham, for it merely indicates that the disease is one which is epidemic among animals, and that they "get it bad."

AND AN APHTHOUS FEVER, TOO.

This entitles the public to another drink at the fountain of knowledge, when it learns to its horror that the disease which is making all the trouble across the line is an aphthous fever; this, in turn, being interpreted as a condition of affairs in which small round white ulcerous vehicles are present. At this stage of the game the public probably becomes tired of explanations which do not explain, and presents a modest request for something understandable.

WHAT THE DISEASE IS.

The ailment is not one distinctly new. The villain, indeed, who struts the stage, and declares "a murrain on you," is talking about the foot and mouth disease, for the murrain it is. It is dangerous chiefly because of its contagious nature, and its deadly effect upon the cattle which it attacks.

Though there has never been any of the foot and mouth trouble in Ontario its danger to the herds of the Dominion is fully appreciated here. The animal attacked by it is apt to feel in the initial stages, an irritation in its feet. Then the trouble breaks out in earnest. Just above the hoof small eruptions appear, "vesicular," so the veterinarians say. At any rate they are there, and the matter oozes out of them to the ground. The next cow that comes that way steps in the stuff, and if so, is taken sick in turn. A dog may step in it or even a human, and thus carry the disease to cattle in far distant parts of the country. So malignant is the plague that any part of a diseased animal is apt to carry infection with it.

THE MOUTH, TOO.

Thus is explained the relation of this murrain to the foot, and incidentally becomes apparent the reason for disinfecting the shoes of travellers entering Canada from the States. The mouth disease follows the foot sickness in the very natural course of things.

Animals instinctively lick their sores, a wise provision of nature having given healing powers to saliva. In the case of the foot and mouth disease, however, the licking only communicates the trouble to the mouth, where the virulent matter from the sores causes immediate eruptions similar to those upon the feet.

The afflicted animal shows many symptoms of its trouble. It loses appetite, has a fever, is lame, and has sores on its feet and mouth. Later, it dies.

BURYING THE DEAD

In order to prevent the spread of the terrible disease, herd after herd of cattle has been sacrificed in the States, the pistol being the weapon generally used to put an end to the lives of the animals in infected districts. Sometimes as many as eight shots are necessary to kill a cow, so thick are some of their skulls.

Pigs as well as cattle are being killed and even pigeons are slaughtered. Some valuable dogs have been saved by dipping them in a disinfecting solution. Dogs and birds are said to be the most dangerous agents in spreading the disease. Hay must not be shipped out of the infested districts but speculators are buying it up at low prices to hold it until the quarantine is raised.

On some of the farms where the plague has secured a hold huge trenches have been dug, and the slaughtered live stock buried deep therein, together with disinfectants. To the owners of such farms the loss is a bitter one, but it is recognized that the spread of the disease would be fatal to the cattle industry of the whole country.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Bible Study Club for Dec. 20th, 1908, are as follows:—

Solomon's Downfall — I Kings xi: 4-13.

Golden Text — Thou shalt have no other gods before me.—Ex.xx: 3.

Verses 4-6 — Should a Christian man ever marry a worldly woman?

If a Christian marries a worldly woman, and really loves and respects her, delighting in her company, is it possible for him to be a holy man?

As a matter of fact, is it possible for two to be united into one, as marriage contemplates, if they are not one in God? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the Club).

Suppose Solomon had selected godly Hebrew women for his wives, what would have been the result upon his religious life?

Did Solomon sin in marrying more than one wife?

In what sense did David's heart remain true to God, seeing that he, too, had a number of wives?

If a strong man can keep from undue love of women, to what extent is that a guarantee of the favour of God, with health, long life and prosperity thrown in?

Why is one man for one wife God's ideal for the marriage relation?

Verses 4-8 — Apart from his polygamy in what other respects did Solomon so signally sin against God?

Why is it that a man's loyalty to the true God is such a factor in his happiness and to the continuity of his worldly success?

Hundreds of strong brainy men are serving long terms in penitentiaries; what proportion of them would be there if they had been true to the Christian's God?

The chief sin with which Solomon is charged here is not so much his polygamy, as that he allowed his heathen wives to turn his heart from the true God; now is it true that disloyalty to God is the very worst of moral crimes, as it is the foundation of every crime?

Is polygamy a social crime because the Bible says so, or does the Bible say so because it is so; that is, is it a crime in the nature of things?

A devout Mohammedan is necessarily a polygamist, how would you say that all such are under the ban of God?

Verses 9-10 — Can anything happen to disturb the natural complacence of the eternal God?

What is that operation in God, or in the law of God, which answers to anger in man?

How do you account for Solomon's apostasy, in view of God's marvellous appearances to him, and of God's wondrous dealings with him, giving him wisdom and riches and vast influence?

Verses 11-13 — On what conditions did God promise Solomon and his sons prosperity, and the establishment of his throne forever?

In how many respects did Solomon break his part in the covenant?

What is the only condition of every man's continuous prosperity?

Lesson for Sunday, Dec. 27, 1908—Review.

A CANADIAN CRITICISM

"I recall the time," said the Veteran Actor, "when I was with a show playing a piece called 'Nerve.' It was well and truly named. During the action of this fierce attempt, I had to sit upon a cake of ice and joke the audience. It was no joke to me.

"The first was what I consider the rottenest effort from a literary standpoint I had ever been connected with, but oatmeal and chops, you know, Beau, must have their call. So I hung.

"Time cures all ills, so after we had trisked about with the outfit all over New England and half-way through Canada, we finally reach Halifax on our trunks. By this I mean our trunks were held in bondage in fee simple for the unpaid railroad fare, Great Scot! We played Halifax.

"Here is a clipping from the morning paper of that centre of refinement:

"'The Standard Opera Bouffe Company gave something at the Queen's Theatre last night. It was said to be a production of "Nerve." Probably it was, in case the leading lady could have lifted up her voice in praise, it might have been possible for those seated in the row behind the orchestra to have heard her.

"'The comedian would doubtless have been funny if he had three square meals and some substance to work on. The title would be fine if she would cut out her raven locks and get hoarse. The dances are made baleens in a sepulchre, for he would wake the dead.

"'It would be criminal to speak of of the chorus, for it is defiling to cavil at old age. They did the best they could, though heavily handicapped by the principals. Of all the hard-looking bunch of grandmas that ever hit Halifax, they were the limit.'

"There is one thing, however, that we have cause to be thankful for, and that is, this aggregation will not remain with us forever. They had but a one-night date.'

"Now ain't it nice to be a actor?"

"ONLY MEDICINE THAT DID ME ANY GOOD"

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Backache After Doctors Failed Utterly.

"I have received most wonderful benefit from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered for years from backaches and pain in the head and I consulted doctors and took every remedy obtainable without any relief. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives" and this was the only medicine that ever did me any real good. I took several boxes altogether, and now I am entirely well of all my dreadful headaches and backaches. I take "Fruit-a-tives" occasionally still, but I am quite cured of a trouble that was said to be incurable. I give this testimony voluntarily, in order that others who suffer as I suffered may try this wonderful medicine and be cured."

Mrs. Frank Eaton, Frankville, Ont.

Be wise. Profit by Mrs. Eaton's example, and start with "Fruit-a-tives." They will quickly relieve Pain in the Back, and stop Headaches because they keep bowels, kidneys and skin in perfect order and insure the blood being always pure and rich.

"Fruit-a-tives" is now put up in the new 25c trial size as well as the regular 50c boxes. All dealers should have both sizes. If yours does not, write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ANTHONY HOPE

Copyright, 1906, Anthony Hope Hawkins

"And no reasons given!" It had sounded all right—before five years of intimacy and a life transformed. It sounded different now. Yet the agreement had been made between the strange lady and the eager girl. Nor were reasons hard to find. They stood out brutally plain. Having sent her prophet to the right about, Lady Meg wanted no more of her medium—her most disappointing medium. "They" would not speak through Sophy. Perhaps Lady Meg did not now want them to speak at all.

Sophy tore the envelope right across its breadth and shook out the flimsy paper within. It was folded in four. She did not trouble to open it. Lady Meg was a woman of her word, and here was the hundred pound note of the Bank of England—"Upon which you'll go, and no reasons given!" With a bitter smile she noticed that the note was soiled, the foldings old, the edges black where they were exposed. She had no doubt that all these years Lady Meg had carried it about, so as to be ready for the literal fulfillment of her bond.

"Upon which," said Sophy, "I go."

The bitter smile lasted perhaps a minute more, then the girl flung herself into a chair in a fit of tears as bitter. She had served—or failed to serve—Lady Meg's mad purpose, and she was flung aside. Very likely she had grown hateful—she, the witness of insane whims now past and out of favor. The dismissal might not be unnatural; but, for all their bargain, the manner was inhuman. They had lived and eaten and drunk together for so long. Had there been no touch of affection, no softening of the heart? It seemed not—it seemed not. Sophy wept and wondered. "Oh, that I had never left you, Julia!" she cries in her letter, and no doubt cried now, for Julia had given her a friend's love. If Lady Meg had given her only what one spares for a dog—a kind word before he is banished, a friendly lament at parting!

Flung herself into a chair in a fit of tears.

Sophy sprang to her feet, caught up the dirty note and thrust it inside her glove. Without delay, seeming without hesitation, she left the house, passed swiftly along the street and made for the Pont Royal. She was bound for the other bank and for the Boulevard des Italiens, where Casimir de Savres had his lodging.

The stream of traffic set with her. She heeded it not. The streets were full of excited groups, but there was no great tumult yet. Men were eagerly reading the latest editions of the papers. Sophy pushed on till she reached Casimir's house. She was known there. Her coming caused surprise to the concierge. It was not the proper thing, but he made no difficulty. He showed her to Casimir's sitting room, but of Casimir he could give no information save that he presumed he would return to sleep.

"I must wait—I must see him," she said, and, as the man left her, she went to the window, flung it wide open and stood there, looking down into the great street.

The lights blazed now. Every seat at every cafe was full. The newspapers did a great trade. A wave of infinite talk, infinite chaff, infinite laughter rose to her ears. A loud voiced fellow was selling pictures of the king of Prussia, as he looks now, and as he will look! The second sheet never failed of a great success. Bands of lads came by with flags and warlike shouts. Some cheered them, more laughed and chaffed. One broad faced old man she distinguished in the cafe opposite. He looked glum and sulky and kept arguing to his neighbor, wagging a fat forefinger at him repeatedly. The neighbor shrugged bored shoulders. After all, he had not made the war—it was the emperor and those gentlemen at St. Cloud! As she watched the stir grew greater, the bands of marching students more frequent and noisy. "A Berlin!" they cried now, amid the same mixture of applause and tolerant amusement. A party of girls paraded down the middle of the street, singing "J'aime les militaires!" The applause grew to thunder as they went by, and the laughter broke into one great crackle when the heroines had passed.

She turned away with a start, conscience of a presence in the room. Casimir came quickly across to her, throwing his helmet on the table as he passed. He took her hands. "I know, Lady Meg wrote to me," he said. "And you are here!"

"I have no other home now," she said.

With a light of joy in his eyes he kissed her lips.

"I come to you only when I'm in trouble!" she said softly.

A loud voiced fellow was selling pictures of the king of Prussia.

"It is well," he answered and drew her with him back to the window.

Together they stood, looking down.

"It is war, then?" she asked.

"Without doubt it's war—without doubt," he answered gravely. "And beyond that no man knows anything."

"And you?" she asked.

He took her hands again, both of hers in his. "My lady of the red star!" he murmured softly.

"And you?"

"You wouldn't have it otherwise?"

"I have an hour now—and all the campaign," said he.

"Heaven forbid! God go with you, as my heart goes! When do you go?"

"I take the road in an hour for Strassburg. We are to be of MacMahon's corps."

"In an hour?"

"Yes."

"Your preparations—are they made?"

"Yes."

"And you are free?"

"Yes."

"Then you've an hour to make me sure I love you!"

He answered as to a woman of his own stock:

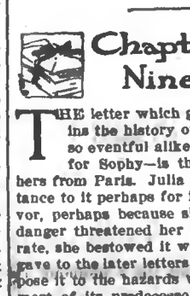
"I have an hour now—and all the campaign," said he.

Chapter Nine

THE letter which gives Julia Robbins the history of that Sunday—so eventful alike for France and for Sophy—is the last word of hers from Paris. Julia attached importance to it perhaps for its romantic flavor, perhaps because she fancied that danger threatened her friend. At any rate, she bestowed it with the care she gave to the later letters and did not expose it to the hazards which destroyed most of its predecessors. It is dated from Marie Zerkovitch's apartment in the Rue du Bac, and it ends, "I shall stay here, whatever happens, unless Casimir tells me to meet him in Berlin!"

The rash comprehensiveness of "whatever happens" was not for times like those, when neither man nor nation knew what fate an hour held, but for three weeks more she abode with Marie Zerkovitch. Marie was much disturbed in her mind. Zerkovitch had begun to send her ominous letters from the front—or as near thereto as he could get. The burden of them was that things looked bad for the French and that her hold on Paris should be a loose one. He urged her to go home, where he would join her, for a visit at all events, very likely to stay. Marie began to talk of going home in a week or so, but she lingered on for the sake of being nearer the news of war. So, amid the rumors of unreal victories and the tidings of reverses only too real, if not yet great, the two women waited.

Casimir had found time and opportunity to send Sophy some half dozen notes (assuming she preserved all she received). On the 5th of August, the eve of Worth, he wrote at somewhat greater length: "It is night. I am off duty for an hour. I have been in the saddle full twelve hours, and I believe that, except the sentries and the outposts, I am the only man awake. We need to sleep. The red star, which shines everywhere for me, shines for all of us over our bivouac tonight. It must be that we fight tomorrow. Fritz is in front of us, and tomorrow he will come on. The marshal must stop him and spoil his game. If we don't go forward now, we must go back, and we don't mean going back. It will be the first big clash, and a big one, I think, it will be. Other fellows are in fine heart—I wish their boots were as good! But those devils over there—well, they can fight, too, and Fritz can get every ounce out of them. I am thinking of glory and of you. Is it not one and the same thing, for in that hour I didn't make you sure? I know it. Sophie, I'm hardly sorry for it. It seems sweet to have something left to do. Ah, but you're hard, aren't you? Shall I ever be sure of you, even though I march into Berlin at the head of a regiment?

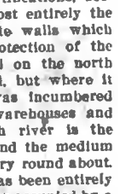


He wrote at somewhat greater length.

"I can say little more—the orderly waits for my letter. Yet I have so much, much more to say. All comes back to me in vivid snatches. I am with you in the old house or by the calvaire—you remember?—or again by the window or while we walked back that Sunday night. I hear your voice—the low, full charged voice. I see your eyes. The star glows anew for me. Adieu! I live for you always so long as I live. If I die it will be in the thought of you, and they will kill no prouder man than Sophie's lover. To have won your love (ah, by tomorrow night, yes!) and to die for France, would it be ill done for a short life? By my faith, no! I'll make my bow to my ancestors without shame. 'I, too, have done my part, messieurs!' say I as I sit down with my forefathers. Sophie, adieu! You won't forget? I don't think you can quite forget. Your picture rides with me, your star shines ahead. CASIMIR."

He was not wrong. They fought next day. The letter is indorsed "8th August," presumably the date of its receipt. That day came also the news of the disaster. On the 11th the casualty list revealed Casimir de Savres' name. A few lines from a brother officer a day later gave scanty details. In the great charge of French cavalry which marked the closing stages of the battle he had been the first man hit of all his regiment—shot through the heart—and through the picture of Sophy which lay over his heart.

No word comes from Sophy herself, and Mme. Zerkovitch is brief. "She showed me the picture. The bullet passed exactly through where that mark on her cheek is. It was fearful. I shuddered. I hoped she didn't see. She seemed quite stunned, but she insisted on coming with me to Kravonia, where I had now determined to go at once. I did not want her to come. I thought no good would come of it. But what could I do? She would not return to England. She could not stay alone in Paris. I was the only friend she had in the world. She asked no more than to travel with me. 'When once I am there I can look after myself,' she said."



"She showed me the picture."

The pair—a little fragment of a great throng, escaping or thrust forth—left Paris together on the 13th or 14th of August en route for Kravonia. With Sophy went the bullet pierced picture and the little bundle of letters. She did not forget. With a sore wound in her heart she turned to face a future, dark, uncertain, empty of all she had loved.

Chapter Ten

THE ancient city of Slavna, for a thousand years or more and under many dynasties the capital of Kravonia, is an island set in a plain. It lies in the broad valley of the Krath, which at this point flows due east. Immediately above the city the river divides into two branches, known as the North and South rivers Slavna is clasped in the embrace of these channels. Conditioned by their course, its form is not circular, but pear shaped, for they bend out in gradual broad curves to their greatest distance from one another, reapproaching quickly after that point is passed till they meet again at the end, or, rather, what was originally the end, of the city to the east. The single reunited river may stand for the stalk of the pear.

In old days the position was a strong one. Nowadays it is obviously much less defensible, and those in power had recognized this fact in two ways—first by allocating money for a new and scientific system of fortifications, second by destroying almost entirely the ancient and out of date walls which had once been the protection of the city. Part of the wall on the north side, indeed, still stood, but where it had escaped ruin it was incumbered and built over with warehouses and wharfs, for the North river is the channel of commerce and the medium of trade with the country round about. To the south the wall has been entirely demolished, its site being occupied by a boulevard, on to which faces a line of handsome modern residences, for as the North river is for trade, so the South is for pleasure, and this boulevard has been carried across the stream and on beyond the old limits of the city and runs for a mile or farther on the right bank of the reunited Krath, forming a delightful and well shaded promenade, where the citizens are accustomed to take their various forms of exercise.

Opposite to it, on the left bank, lies the park attached to the palace. That building itself, dating from 1820 and regrettably typical of the style of its period, faces the river on the left bank just where the stream takes a broad sweep to the south, giving a rounded margin to the king's pleasure grounds. Below the palace there soon comes open country on both banks. The boulevard merges in the main postroad to Volseni and to the mountains which form the eastern frontier of the kingdom. At this date and for a considerable number of years afterward the only railway line in Kravonia did not follow the course of the Krath, which itself afforded facilities for traffic and intercourse, but ran down from the north, having its terminus on the left bank of the North river, whence a carriage bridge gave access to the city.

To vote money is one thing, to raise it another, and to spend it on the designated objects a third. Not a stone nor a sod of the new forts was yet in place, and Slavna's solitary defense was the ancient castle which stood on the left of the bank just at the point of bisection, facing the casino and the botanical gardens on the opposite bank. Suleiman's tower, a relic of Turkish rule, is built on a simple plan—a square curtain, with a bastion at each corner, inclosed a massive circular tower. The gate faces the North river, and a bridge, which admits of being raised and lowered, connects this outwork with the north wall of the city, which at this point is in good preservation. The fort is roomy. Two or three hundred men could find quarters there, and, although it is under modern conditions of little use against an enemy from without, it occupies a position of considerable strength with regard to the city itself. It formed at this time the headquarters and residence of the commandant of the garrison, a post held by the heir to the throne, the Prince of Slavna.

In spite of the flatness of the surrounding country, the appearance of Slavna is not unpicturesque. Time and the hand of man (the people are a color loving race) have given many tints, soft and bright, to the roofs, gables and walls of the old quarter of the north town, over which Suleiman's tower broods with an antique impressiveness. Behind the pleasant residences which border on the southern boulevard lie handsome streets of commercial buildings and shops, these last again glowing with diversified and gaudy colors. In the center of the city, where, but for its bisection, we may imagine the Krath would have run, a pretty little canal has been made by abstracting water from the river and conducting it through the streets. On either side of this stream a broad road runs. Almost exactly midway through the city the roads broaden and open into the spacious square of St. Michael, containing the cathedral, the fine old city hall, several good town houses dating two or three hundred years back, barracks and the modern but not unsightly government offices. Through this square and the streets leading to it from west and east there now runs an excellent service of electric cars, but at the date with which we are concerned a crazy fincre or a crazier omnibus was the only public means of conveyance. Not a few good private equipages were, however, to be seen, for the Kravonians have been from of old lovers of horses. The city has a population bordering on a hundred thousand, and, besides being the principal depot and center of distribution for a rich pastoral and agricultural country, it transacts a respectable export trade in hides and timber. It was possible for a careful man to grow rich in Slavna, even though he were not a politician nor a government official.

Two or three years earlier an enterprising Frenchman of the name of Rousseau had determined to provide Slavna with a first rate modern hotel and cafe. Nothing could have consorted better with the views of King Alexis Stefanovitch, and M. Rousseau obtained on very favorable terms a large site at the southeast end of the city, just where the North and South rivers reunite. Here he built his hostelry and named it the Hotel de Paris. A fine terrace ran along the front of the house, abutting on the boulevard and affording a pleasant view of the royal park and the palace in the distance on the opposite bank.

On this terrace, it being a fine October morning, sat Sophy, drinking a cup of chocolate.

The scene before her, if not quite living up to the name of the hotel, was yet animated enough. A score of handsome carriages drove by, some containing gayly dressed ladies, some officers in smart uniforms. Other officers rode or walked by. Civil functionaries, journalists and a straggling line of onlookers swelled the stream which set toward the palace. Awakening from a reverie to mark the unwonted air, Sophy saw the leaders of the informal procession crossing the ornamental iron bridge which spanned the Krath, a quarter of a mile from where she sat, and gave access to the king's demesne on the left bank.

"Ah, I know why you remember that."

"Right bank—left bank! It sounds like home!" she thought to herself, smiling perhaps rather bitterly. "Home!" Her home now was a single room over a goldsmith's shop, whither she had removed to relieve Marie Zerkovitch from a hospitality too burdensome, as Sophy feared, for her existing resources to sustain.

ROSEMARY IN SEARCH OF A FATHER . . .

the twilight on the other side was shot for Hugh with red and purple spots. But the colors faded when the childish voice said: "Angel isn't here. If you'll come in, I'll go and see if she's in our room."

"Don't tell her—don't say—anything about a fairy father," he stammered.

"Oh, no! That's to be the surprise," Rosemary reassured him as she pattered away.

It was deep twilight in the room and rather cold, for the eucalyptus and olive logs in the fireplace still awaited the match. Hugh could see the blurred outlines of a few pieces of cheap furniture—a sofa, three or four chairs, a table and a clumsy writing desk. But the window was still a square of pale bluish light, cut out of the violet dusk, and as the young man's eyes accustomed themselves to the dimness of the room the room did not seem dark.

He was not left alone for long. In two or three minutes Rosemary appeared once more, without her hat and coat, to say that Angel had not yet come back. "But she'll soon be here now," went on the child. "Do you mind waiting in the twilight, fairy father? The electric light doesn't come on till after 5, and I've just heard the clock downstairs strike 5."

"I shall like it," answered Hugh, glad that his face should be hidden by the dusk in these moments of waiting.

"Angel tells me stories in the twilight," said Rosemary as she sat down on the sofa by the cold fireplace, and she let him lift her light little body to his knee. "Would you tell me one about when you were lost?"

"I'll try," Hugh said. "Let me think—what story shall I tell?"

"I won't speak while you're remembering," Rosemary promised, leaning her head confidingly against his shoulder. "I always keep quiet while Angel puts on her thinking cap."

Hugh laughed and was silent. But his head was too hot to wear a thinking cap, and no story would come at his half hearted call.

Rosemary waited in patience for him to begin. "One, two three," she counted under her breath, for she had learned to count up to fifty, and it was good practice when one wished to make the time pass. She had just come to forty-nine and was wondering if she might remind the fairy father of his duty when the door opened.

It was Angel, of course. But Angel did not come in. She stopped on the threshold, talking to somebody, or, rather, somebody was talking to her. Rosemary could not see the person, but she recognized the voice. It was that of Mlle. de Lavalette.

"You are not to write my mother letters and trouble us about that money, madame," said the voice, as shrill now as it could be sweet. "Once for all, I will not have it. I have followed you to tell you this. You will be paid soon—that is enough. I am engaged to be married to a rich man, an American. He will be glad to pay all our debts by and by, but meantime, madame, you are to let us alone."

"I have done nothing except to write and say that I needed the money, which you promised to return weeks ago, or I couldn't possibly have spared it," protested a voice which Hugh had heard in dreams three nights out of every six in as many years.

"Well, if you write any more letters we shall burn them unread, so it is no use to trouble us, and we will pay when we choose."

With the last words the other voice died into distance. Mademoiselle had said what she came to say and was retreating with dignity down the corridor.

Now the figure of a slender woman was silhouetted in the doorway. Hugh heard a sigh and saw a hand that glimmered white in the dusk against the dark paper on the wall as it groped for the button of the electric light. Then suddenly the room was filled with a white radiance, and she stood in the midst of it, young and beautiful, the woman he had loved for seven years.

Putting Rosemary away, he sprang up, and her eyes, dazzled at first by the sudden flood of light, opened wide in startled recognition. "Hugh—Hugh Egerton!" she stammered, whispering as one whispers in a dream.

She was pale as a lily, but the whiteness of her face was like light, shining from within, and there was a light in her great eyes, too, such as had never shone for Hugh on sea or land. Once, a long time ago, he had hoped that she cared or would come to care, but she had chosen another man, and Hugh had gone away. That had been the end. Yet now—what stars her eyes were! One might almost think that she had not forgotten; that sometimes she had wished for him; that she was glad to see him now.

"Lady Clifford," he stammered, "I—will you forgive my being here—my frightening you like this?"

The brightness died out of her face. "Lady Clifford!" she echoed. "Don't call me that unless—I'm to call you Mr. Egerton! And, besides, I'm only Mme. Clifford here. It is better. The other would seem like ostentation in a woman who works."

"Evelyn," he said. "Thank you for letting it be Evelyn." Then, his voice breaking a little, "Oh, say you're a tiny bit glad to see me—just a tiny bit glad!"

She did not answer in words, but her eyes spoke as she held out both hands.

He crushed them in his, then bent his head and kissed them, first the girlish right hand, then the left. But she saw his face contract as he caught the gleam of her wedding ring. As he looked up their eyes met again, and each knew what was in the other's mind.

"Angel, dearest," said Rosemary, "do tell the fairy father you're glad to see him."

Evelyn started. "Why do you call him that?"

"Because he said he was a fairy and would have to vanish soon. But you'll beg him not to, won't you?"

"I—I should be sorry to lose him again. We haven't many friends in these days." The bright head was bowed over the child's as Rosemary clung to her mother's dress.

"You never lost me," said Hugh Egerton. "It was I who lost you. Evie, you don't know what black years these have been. I loved you so."

"But that—was—long ago."

"It was always!"

"Hugh! I thought you must have learned to hate me."

"Hate you because I couldn't make you care for me as—I hoped you would and because you cared for some one else? No; I"—

"But—I did care for you. It was for my father's sake that—that—ah, I can't talk of it, Hugh. You know we were so poor after father lost his money I tried with all my heart to forget and to do my best for—my husband. Perhaps it was my punishment that he—oh, Hugh, I was so miserable! And then—then he went away. He was tired of me. He was on a yacht, and there was a great storm! But you must have read in the papers"—

"Never. I never knew till this day."

"It was more than three years ago."

Hugh was very pale. Three years ago—three long years in which he had worked and tried not to think of her! And if he had known! "You see, I've had a queer life knocking about in strange places," he said, trying to speak calmly. "Often I didn't see any newspapers for weeks together. I thought of you always as rich and happy, living in England, the wife of Sir Edward Clifford"—

"Rich and happy!" she repeated bitterly. "How little one knows of another's life! After his death there was nothing. There had been some wild speculations, and the estates went with the title, of course, to his cousin. But, yes—in a way you were right. I was rich and happy because I had Rosemary."

"And Rosemary had you, Angel!" cried the child, who had been listening, puzzled and bewildered, not knowing that they had forgotten her presence until this moment. "Rosemary had you. And now we've all got each other—till the fairy father vanishes."

"But I shan't have to vanish after all," said Hugh.

* * * * * * * * * *

After that—it seemed they had been together but for a moment when a wild wail went moaning through the house—the first gong for the pensionnaires' dinner.

So loud it was that it hushed their voices for a long minute. And when cool silence came again Hugh begged that the two would have their Christmas eve dinner with him at his hotel. "There's so much to plan for tomorrow and all the days," he pleaded. "And just for once Rosemary shall have a late dinner like the grownups. Do say yes."

So Evelyn said yes. And it was not until they were all three seated in the restaurant of the Hotel de Paris that he remembered he had been engaged to dine at the Beau Soleil with mademoiselle and the comtesse, her mother.

But he did not even blush because he had forgotten.

Chapter Eight

MANY of Hugh Egerton's best moments during the last six years had been spent in dreams. In those dreams the past had lived again, for he had seen the future as once he had hoped it might be for him.

But all through this night of Christmas eve he lay awake, and no dreams had ever been half as sweet as the thoughts that came to him then. It would have been a hideous waste of time to sleep when he could lie there and live over again each moment of his evening, beginning at the beginning, when she had come into the room, and going on to the end, when he had brought her and Rosemary to the door of the Hotel Pension Beau Soleil to say "goodby until tomorrow." When he came to the end he went back to the beginning again with renewed zest, trying to call up some word, some look of hers which he might have neglected to count among his treasured jewels.

Then, when he was sure that he had each pearl and ruby and diamond duly polished and strung on the fine gold chain of loving memory, he would let his mind run ahead of time to the next day.

What a Christmas it was going to be! There never had been one like it before in the history of the world, but—the best of it was there was reason to hope that there would be many others to come just as exquisite, if not more perfect.

Evelyn Clifford had loved him even when she had let him go. She loved him now, and she had promised to make up for the long gray years of the past by marrying him almost at once.

There was nothing to wait for. He was lonely and rich. She was

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

THE Edison Phonograph differs from all other sound-reproducing instruments because it was invented and perfected by Thomas A. Edison, and because it is constructed on a principle which is more nearly perfect than that of any other instrument made for the purpose.

The first Phonograph ever made was made by Mr. Edison, and from that invention was perfected the Edison Phonograph which today is considered the most perfect instrument for reproducing music, voice and other sounds.
For you the Edison Phonograph means constant and varied entertainment of the kind for which you would pay theatre and concert prices to enjoy otherwise, but which, with the Edison Phonograph, you can enjoy in your own home.
No method of spending an evening can be pleasanter, whether you use it for the enjoyment of yourself and family, whether you invite friends to hear it, or whether you use it for informal entertaining, either for a program or dance. It is always there, always ready to be turned on; it is easily operated, and the cost is slight.

Edison Amberol Records

Mr. Edison did not consider his Phonograph good enough with Records that played only two minutes, so he experimented until he produced a Record which will play more than four minutes. It is no larger than the other Record. It is played on the same Phonograph by means of an attachment which your dealer has. It more than doubles the enjoyment of the Phonograph.
Music formerly unavailable for the two-minute Record, on account of its length, can now be heard in full and to better advantage.
There is an Edison dealer near you. Go and hear the Edison Phonograph, and especially ask to hear the new Edison Amberol Records.

FREE. Ask your dealer or write to us for illustrated catalogue of Edison Phonographs, also catalogue containing complete lists of Edison Records, old and new.
We Desire Good Live Dealers in all Edison Phonographs in every town where we are not now well represented. Dealers having established stores should write at once to

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

A Genius Who Went Wrong

BY A. L. DRUMMOND, FORMERLY CHIEF OF THE U. S. SECRET SERVICE

(Copyright, 1908, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

FOR many years prior to 1880 the country had been flooded with counterfeit Treasury notes and spurious United States bonds. The Treasury notes were of large denominations; some for $100, some for $500, some for $1,000. All of the notes were splendidly engraved and perfectly printed, as were the bonds. The most dangerous of these notes, however, was one for $100 that purported to have been issued by the Pittsburg National Bank. A hundred sheets of silk thread fibre paper had been stolen from the mill at Media, Pa., which made bank note paper for the government, and the counterfeit Pittsburg note was printed on this stolen paper.

Whenever one of the spurious notes appeared it was traced back as far as possible by secret service operatives. Usually one bank had sent it to another, or a collector of customs had sent it to a bank. In no case did the trail lead to a person who might well be suspected.

In 1880, while I was chief of the New York district of the secret service, a counterfeiter who had often given to me information concerning members of his craft came into my office in the Post Office Building. In the course of a half hour's conversation he said he wished he could get into the Eastern Penitentiary of Pennsylvania to see old Jack Cannon, who was serving a ten years' term for forgery.

"Old Jack always promised me," said he, "that he would get me some $100 bills, but he never did. He had to get them from 'Long Bill,' and I guess Jack never happened to run on to him."

I made no comment, but I put the name "Long Bill" down in my mind and that night I went to Washington. The next morning I visited the chief of the secret service, repeated the remark, told him why I did not dare ask any questions of my informer and asked permission to go to the Eastern Penitentiary and visit Cannon.

Chief Brookes was sceptical. He did not believe Cannon would give me any information. I told him I thought I could get what I wanted without Cannon knowing he had given it to me. Mr. Brookes agreed with me that the plan was worth trying and let me go.

The next day I called on old Jack. For an hour or more I talked with him about everything that happened to come up—old friends, old times and so on—and just as I was about to go, I said:—

"You could never guess whom I saw the other day—an old friend of yours"—at the same time mentioning the name of the man who had spoken of him.

"He said he wished he could see you," I continued; "that you had promised to get him some $100 notes from 'Long Bill.'"

"Oh, from old Brockway," he said with a smile, as if piecing out my sentence.

I dropped the subject immediately, and in a few minutes went away. I had got what I went after. I now knew the identity of "Long Bill."

William E. Brockway sometimes travelled under his own name, but more frequently under the alias of Colonel E. W. Spencer. He was a remarkable man. In his youth he had been employed in a bank in New Haven, Conn. The bank, under federal law, printed and issued its own notes. The boy Brockway worked the press. One day, when the directors were not looking, he ran a sheet of lead through instead of a sheet of paper. Instantly he had an impression of the plate from which the notes were printed.

Brockway had a confederate in this, his first criminal undertaking. They had both looked forward a long while to this day. The confederate had paid Brockway's expenses while he was taking a course in electro-chemistry under Professor Silliman, at Yale. Brockway was an apt pupil. When he finished his studies he was an expert chemist.

The first use to which he put his new knowledge was to place a coating of copper on the sheet of lead that bore the impression of the bank note plate. This done, he had as good a plate as the bank had. And he and his confederate printed notes—plenty of them. The notes were sent out all over New England, and they looked so good that the bank that was supposed to have issued them accepted some. Brockway had forged the signatures of the bank officials and imitated them so well that they went unchallenged for some time.

This was in 1851. His success seemed to make him a monomaniac. He became convinced he could surpass even the government in making notes and bonds. In a way he succeeded. I have in my office now a facsimile of one of his counterfeit United States bonds upon which some of the engraving is better than any work of the same kind that appears on a genuine bond. He sold Jay Cooke $90,000 worth of counterfeit seven per cent thirty year bonds that the government unhesitatingly redeemed—and they recovered the money from Cooke by suit after it was learned that they were counterfeits. But when I had connected this man with the fraudulent one hundred dollar Pittsburg National Bank notes I couldn't find him. The government did not know where he was. I couldn't find any one who did. Nor did I dare ask those who might know—criminals like himself. A word might send him flying. All I could do was to make indirect inquiries and wait.

I was in a court room one day when a lawyer whom I knew came over to me and asked me why I didn't arrest old man Brockway. I told him I would be glad to do so, but didn't know where he was.

"Why, he is living over at Canarsie, Long Island," replied the attorney. "He goes by the name of Colonel E. W. Spencer. He has a boat, goes out fishing every day and lives in fine style. I know all about him, because I am the attorney for his wife, who is getting a divorce."

The next day I went to Canarsie, taking with me Dan McSweeney and James J. Scanlon, two of my men. Ostensibly we wanted to fish. We went to the only boathouse on the beach and tried to hire a boat. The proprietor showed us several, but none suited me. Finally I pointed to a boat that was swinging at anchor a little distance away and told him I would like that one. He said he was sorry, but the craft to which I pointed, as well as the others with round bottoms, all belonged to private individuals. We talked a while longer and then I spoke of another boat that pleased me, asking him who owned it. He said that was Colonel Spencer's boat.

We didn't haggle over boats any longer, but engaged one that was big enough to carry the three of us safely and started out. While we were pulling away from the shore I looked Spencer's boat over carefully so I could recognize it thereafter without trouble, and for the next hour we fished, first in one place and then in another. But wherever we went one of us always had his eyes on Spencer's boat.

A little after noon a man, whom I recognized as Spencer—or Brockway, to use his real name—came down to the beach, accompanied by a tall, big man, clambered into the boat and pulled away. We kept away from them. There was no warrant out for Brockway, nor had I any evidence upon which to ask one. What I wanted was to get some. So we went back to the boathouse, paid for our boat and went up to King's hotel, the only place of the sort in Canarsie. What I wanted was to establish McSweeney in the hotel where he could watch Brockway. On the way to the hotel I noticed that a view of the boats at anchor could be had only from the rooms on the west side.

So when we reached the hotel I told the proprietor I had with me a man whose physician had ordered him to go to some seaside place where he could have a sunny room. It was then midsummer and most resorters were in search of shady rooms, so the hotelkeeper had no difficulty in accommodating me. He said he had precisely the sort of room my friend wanted—a large, roomy parlor on the second floor, west. McSweeney looked about as much like an invalid then as Jim Jeffries does now, but he agreed that the room seemed to be of the sort that was necessary to improve his health, though he afterward told me in private that he almost roasted in it. Then McSweeney begged Scanlon to remain with him. Scanlon said he couldn't, but promised he would visit him as much as possible. The fact of the matter was, I didn't want to put two men on the job at first. I wanted to wait and see if more than one was required.

McSweeney remained at the hotel fifty-nine days, during which time he saw Brockway and the big man go fishing many times, and traced Brockway to his home in the twelve hundred block in Broadway, Williamsburg. McSweeney knew the house in Broadway was Brockway's home, because the first time he entered it he saw him kiss a woman who was apparently his wife—a fact that was afterward definitely ascertained.

By this time it was autumn, and the fishing season being over, we could no longer watch Brockway at Canarsie. Nor was there more than one house in the vicinity of his home. This house was a big residence, set back in large grounds, and belonged to a wealthy New York hat manufacturer named Burr. I couldn't attempt to shadow a man like Brockway from the street, so I sought and obtained from Mr. Burr permission to station a man in his house.

The first day that my man took up the watch from this point he saw the big man who had fished with Brockway at Canarsie enter the house. He remained perhaps an hour and then went back to New York, my man trailing him to an apartment house in Thirty-third street, West. Then I moved McSweeney to a second floor room opposite the apartment house and provided him with a pair of opera glasses. He reported at once that Brockway had visited the house in the evening, and that, immediately following his arrival, the big man had fastened a piece of white muslin over the window.

Brockway made frequent visits at night to the house in West Thirty-third street, and on each occasion the white muslin was fastened over the front windows. One night shadows began to play on the muslin. McSweeney, sitting in the dark in his own room, watched them intently with his opera glasses. First somebody seemed to be writing. Then a shadow appeared that looked like a piece of paper perhaps ten inches long by eight inches wide. We figured that they were forging the signatures to bonds.

A day or two later the big man was followed to the general delivery window at the post office and heard to inquire for mail for James Brace. Another man followed Brockway to a house in Brooklyn that was found to be the home of Charles H. Smith. Smith also was seen to go to the home of Brockway.

At this point many things began to happen at once. McSweeney rushed into my office one day and reported that Brace at that moment was down stairs to get his mail, and, he believed, was about to leave the city. McSweeney and I hastened down to the post office. Brace was pointed out to me and I followed him to a ticket scalper's office. Brace said he wanted a sleeping car ticket to Chicago. Asked if he had his transportation he replied in the affirmative, saying he intended to go over the Erie at half-past seven the next night.

Before I saw him at the Post Office McSweeney had seen him buy an expensive travelling bag, and after he left the scalper's office I followed him to a clothing store, where he bought an expensive overcoat, paying for it with a big bill. As soon as he went out of the store I went to the proprietor, showed him my card, and asked him if the man who bought the coat had not paid for it with a one hundred dollar bill.

"Yes," he replied; "what's the matter, is it counterfeit?"

"Let me see it a moment and I will tell you," I said. He showed it to me. It was a genuine bill.

The next night McSweeney and I were at the Jersey City station of the Erie half an hour before train time. We had waited only a few minutes when McSweeney dug me with his elbow and said, "There's our man."

I looked and saw a chin whiskered man of Brace's build and size, 275 pounds, carrying a travelling bag and coming toward us. As he came nearer we both saw it was not Brace, though the resemblance was startling, considering his unusual bulk. We had hardly ceased the discussion of the peculiar fate that should send Brace's double to the place where he were looking for him when Brace himself appeared. We followed him into the train and learned that he was indeed bound for Chicago.

Then I sent a telegram to W. W. Hall, who was in charge of the Chicago office of the secret service, asking him to meet the train upon which Brace was travelling and arrest him on a charge of embezzlement. I didn't know that Brace had ever embezzled anything, but I did believe that he was a counterfeiter, and I wanted to see if a search of his person and effects would not reveal something that would justify his arrest on a charge of counterfeiting. Whether any such evidence would be found or not, I did not want Brace to know that I suspected him of counterfeiting, because if I did not get him in Chicago I expected to get him later.

Hall was at the train and promptly took Brace into custody on a charge of embezzlement. Brace, who was a big, fine looking fellow, played the grand and lofty. He told Hall he had made a mistake—that he was a business man, not an embezzler, and that the sooner he was released the better it would be for Hall.

But Hall told him he would have to be searched, and that, furthermore, he would have to go to jail. Nothing incriminating was found on his person. He had considerable money, but no more than a man of his appearance might be expected to have. Then Hall asked him for the key to his travelling bag.

At this Brace demurred. He could see no reason why a gentleman should be subjected to such an indignity. There had been a mistake, which Hall might better rectify than to search the effects of the victim. But Hall insisted upon having the key and got it.

In the travelling bag, besides the usual articles, Hall found $204,000 of United States six per cent bonds. Hall and the officer who accompanied him expressed surprise at the discovery of so large an amount of securities and said something that indicated their belief that the bonds were not genuine. Brace smiled at them.

"You gentlemen evidently are not accustomed to the sight of government bonds," he said. "If you don't know genuine bonds when you see them take them to the largest banker in Chicago and ask him to tell you whether they are all right or not."

That seemed to be a good way to test the bonds, so Hall adopted it. A banker whose name is known all over this country looked the bonds over carefully and said he would give one hundred cents on the dollar for them.

"You see," said Brace, triumphantly, "what I told you was true. Now let me go. I am James Brace Doyle. I am a man of means, as you see. I do not have to embezzle anybody else's money—I have enough of my own."

Things began to look bad for Hall, who did not know the real reason I had for wiring him to arrest Brace, or Doyle, as I shall henceforth call him, for that was his real name. But before letting him go Hall thought he would take one more precaution—he would wire to Washington and ask the chief of the secret service if he ever heard of James Brace Doyle. As quickly as an answer could come this message was delivered:—

"Yes. Big counterfeiter. Hold him."

The chief knew I was on the trail of Brockway and Smith, who, I had learned, was an engraver, so the same day he sent me a telegram to this effect:—

"Doyle's bonds were altered, not counterfeited, so it is a case for the police, not for us. Turn it over to Inspector Byrnes."

Nevertheless I called upon the Superintendent of the Brooklyn police force for an officer and the next night went to the home of Charles H. Smith. As the door opened and the policeman became visible to those inside a man jumped out of a side window, taking the sash with him. The man who jumped was Smith's son, who was expecting a visit from the police on quite a different charge. The officer and I went inside, where we first encountered Mrs. Smith and her daughter, a fine girl of perhaps eighteen. A moment after we entered the old man came from an adjoining room, inquired what was the matter and I told him he was under arrest on a charge of counterfeiting.

"This is blackmail," shrieked Mrs. Smith, who seemed likely to become hysterical.

"Mrs. Smith," said I, "you have no reason to make such a remark. You and your daughter will now go into another room while I talk to your husband."

Gently guided by the policeman, the women left the room, and I had just begun to question the man when his wife started to make unpleasant remarks in a voice so loud that we could hear it.

"Mind the officer, mother, and don't talk," said Smith, and from that moment she was quiet.

Then, as rapidly as I could make accusations against Smith he denied them. He knew Brockway, but he had never made any plates for him, nor had any counterfeit bonds or notes been printed in his house. In short, he was guiltless of any crime.

"Smith," said I, "you are an old man. They tell me that you have lived twenty-six years in this house, next door to the home of the superintendent of police. And, while I know you have engraved counterfeit plates, your friends tell me you will not lie. Where are the plates you made for Brockway?"

Tears began to trickle down the old man's face and for a moment he did not speak.

"He's got them," he finally said.

The ice thus broken, Smith made a full confession, in which he told of making numerous sets of plates for Brockway, though he denied that any impressions except proofs had been taken in his house from them. He said Brockway once printed twenty notes in the house, but he destroyed them because they were imperfect.

"Now, go and tell your wife and daughter," I said, "that you have got to go with me down town and that you do not know when you will come back. Tell them you will have to appear in court to-morrow, at which time something may be learned regarding your future movements."

After a tearful parting between Smith and his wife and daughter, he accompanied me to the station house, where I reduced his confession to writing and he signed it. And while I was taking Smith into custody Detectives Scanlon and Blackwood were arresting Brockway, a performance that was accomplished without incident. Brockway simply insisting that he knew neither Doyle nor Smith and had done no counterfeiting.

The next day I visited Brockway in the prison in which he was confined and told him of Smith's confession. He said he supposed one man could lie about another if he felt so inclined, and Smith had evidently chosen to lie about him. At any rate, he had committed no crime and had nothing to say.

"All right, Brockway," said I. "If you have nothing to say to me, I have nothing to say to you except this—I know you are guilty, and I am going to prove it. If you feel disposed to do so you might say something that would lessen the severity of your sentence. You will never have so good an opportunity to speak as you have to-day. As soon as your arrest becomes known the people where you and Doyle have been staying will get rid of some of your belongings. They will get rid of them to protect themselves. These things you can turn over to me now, if you will, as you can turn over other things of which no one knows but yourself. However, it is for you to decide what you will do."

He said he had nothing to say, and I left him.

A few days later I met Brockway's attorney, an eminent lawyer whom I knew well.

"Well," he said, "I see you've got Brockway."

"Yes," I said. "It took a long while to land him, but we finally turned the trick."

"What kind of a case have you got against the old man?" he asked.

"I don't think that question is quite a fair one," said I, "but I don't mind telling you that I've got a strong one. If old Brockway has got money enough to buy twelve jurors he can get free. If he has only enough to buy eleven there will be a disagreement, because our case is so strong that the twelfth man will stand out forever for conviction."

"That's unfortunate for Brockway," said the lawyer. "However, I want to do the best I can for him. What kind of a recommendation would you feel disposed to make if he would tell everything he may know?"

"If Brockway will plead guilty," said I, "and agree to take a ten years' sentence, I should feel that he ought to be given it."

The lawyer thought such a sentence would be too severe, since Brockway then was fifty-eight years old. In his opinion, if Brockway would make a full confession and plead guilty to what was then known as a criminal information, he ought to be permitted to go on suspended sentence, provided he would surrender all the plates used in making the counterfeit notes and bonds that he had put into circulation.

"In any event," continued the lawyer, "will you meet Brockway if I make the necessary arrangements? And will you promise not to use against him anything he may tell you?"

I told him I would and the meeting was arranged for the next day.

Before going to see Brockway I had prepared a list of the various plates that I wanted him to turn over to me. As soon as I saw him he asked me what I wanted him to surrender.

"The things noted on this list," said I, handing it to him.

The old man read it over carefully.

"Will you be satisfied with just these?" he said.

"Not if there are others," I replied. "I want them all."

Then he talked for an hour about other things, during which time he was apparently sizing me up to determine whether he could trust me, and then made a full confession.

That night I went to Washington, where, the next morning, I told the whole story to the chief and asked him to ascertain from the Department of Justice what assurances, if any, would be given to Brockway, provided he would plead guilty to a criminal information. The department replied that if the plates were surrendered it would be glad to approve any recommendation I might make with regard to the disposition of Brockway. The government was extremely eager to get the plates and was disposed to be lenient, if necessary, to get them. Furthermore, as the chief said, we did not have enough evidence against Brockway to hold him over night. The situation was in his hands. We knew he was a counterfeiter, but we could prove nothing specific against him. And we couldn't get the plates unless he would tell where they were.

The next morning I saw Brockway and his attorney again and told them the result of my trip to Washington. Brockway said the plates were buried in lead caskets in a forest near Richmond Hill, Long Island.

The next day, which chanced to be the day prior to Thanksgiving, Brockway, his attorney, District Attorney Tenney, a deputy sheriff or two and myself went to Richmond Hill to unearth the plates. Brockway pointed to a spot beside a chestnut tree, and cautioned the man who swung the pick not to strike too hard. But the pick went deeper and deeper, and nothing was found. Brockway was plainly puzzled. He said one other man knew where the plates were, and visions of treachery evidently began to play across his mind. Then he suggested that he might be mistaken in the tree he had used as a landmark, and pointed to another spot. Almost the first blow of the pick brought a metallic sound. A few more blows and the caskets, made of six inch lead pipe flattened and soldered at the ends, were lying on the grass. We opened them, and found twenty-two sets of steel and copper plates that had been used to print the $100, $500 and $1,000 notes that had been troubling bankers for years, together with the plates used to print many kinds of bonds. We also found a set of half finished plates that were to be used to make $1,000 notes.

But this was not all. We found $350,000 in counterfeit $100 notes and a quantity of stolen fibre paper. The notes and the blank paper were in glass jars. The plates had been shellacked and wrapped in flannels. There was not a spot on them.

Doyle was tried in Chicago, convicted and sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. Smith, although his uncorroborated confession would not have been sufficient to convict Brockway, was released because he nevertheless enabled me to force Brockway's hand. Brockway was let off on suspended sentence, according to agreement, and in 1883 was sentenced to Sing Sing for five years for counterfeiting the bonds of the Morris and Essex Street Railway Company. In 1806 he was sent up for ten years for counterfeiting a $1,000 United States bond.

Brockway made and sold hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of counterfeit notes and bonds. When he was arrested for selling the bonds to Jay Cooke that the government redeemed, his wife drew from her bosom forty $1,000 bills and handed them to the clerk of the court as bail.

"And that was the only time I ever had any money in my life," said Brockway—"the time I did business with Cooke."

Which was true; for it kept him broke to keep out of jail.

Making the Oyster Produce Pearls.

THE man who first persuaded the humble and lethargic oyster to work for him achieved a victory over the animal creation as worthy of our laurels—at least at the point of ingenuity—as the subject of the horse or the ox. Nothing but the keen desire of greed could have suggested such a feat, a determination to spur the mollusc to a greater industry in the production of a jewel that must have charmed its first discoverer by its soft and splendid beauty. We shall never know who it was that first persuaded the oyster to do what nothing but an oyster can do, who goaded and harrassed that torpid intelligence to minister to the vanity of men. But he deserves an immortality of fame that can never now be conferred upon him.

The problem was no doubt first suggested by the fact that even among pearl bearing oysters the number of shells containing pearls was very small. Scores might be opened without the sight of a single treasure to reward the seeker. If the oyster had any free will in the matter at all—and it is hard to associate the oyster with the idea of free will—why should a single specimen yield the shining jewel while its comrades for yards around were content to lie in unproductive sloth? The conditions of temperature, food and location were identical. Why, then, these differences in activity?

The Chinese had solved the problem even before it had presented itself to the Western mind. The guileless Celestial knew how the milk got into the cocoanut, or rather the pearl into the oyster shell, long before the Western mind had evolved the poetic but not very profound theory that pearls were congealed dewdrops, although how the dewdrop penetrated the bivalve was never clearly stated.

The dewdrop theory finally gave way to the more tolerable belief that pearls were the eggs of the oyster; but even then no one seems to have wondered why the number of pearl bearing oysters should be so small and at a time when race suicide had not become a human, much less than an animal, failing.

But to return to the Chinese, who was at work upon this problem many centuries ago, but who has never shown any great eagerness to share his knowledge with the "white devils" of the outside world. The Chinese speedily discovered that the pearl was due to nothing more than an attempt on the part of the oyster to protect himself from the irritation of a foreign intrusion, such as a grain of sand, into his shell.

The oyster, beneath a rough and forbidding exterior, conceals a tender and sensitive nature, and it will sometimes happen that a fragment of rock or an atom of shell is washed by the tide into his fortress and refuses to be dislodged. Making a virtue of necessity and annoyed by the asperities of the unwelcome guest, he proceeds to cover it smoothly with a secretion similar to the nacre with which he lines the interior of his own shell, and the result is a pearl. The process is simplicity itself when you know how it is done, and the ingenious Chinese proceeded at once to turn his discovery to his own advantage.

Dr. D. T. Macgowan, in the Journal of the Society of Arts, tells us something of a process that is now no longer secret. The shells are gently separated and the nucleus of the pearl is inserted under the fleshy mantle within. A small fragment of mud is used for the nucleus or else a tiny leaden image of some god. When these have been placed in position the shells are allowed to close and the animal is carefully placed in a stream of water and fed regularly with manure. When the shells are opened the inserted articles, finely coated with nacre, are removed. As a rule the original nucleus, grain of sand or leaden image is extracted from the pearl and the cavity left by it is filled with wax.

Since that time the manufacture of artificial pearls has become an extensive industry, in which the Japanese have especially excelled. A large area of sea bottom in the province of Shima is devoted wholly to the purpose; and it is said that a million oysters have been laid down, all of them containing the irritating nuclei, which the unfortunate animals are coating to their own destruction. Four years are allowed for the process, and the resulting pearls, while by no means perfect, are sufficiently attractive in appearance to have a market value.

That they are not equal to the pearls naturally produced is a proof that something still remains to be learned. Evidently the oyster himself is yet in tenacious possession of exclusive information. The artificial pearl is not so beautiful, it is not so well shaped, and its lower surface is usually without any lustre at all. Such pearls are therefore unsuitable for necklaces, but they can be readily adapted to those other forms of jewelry wherein only half the pearl is in sight, such as rings and brooches. It may be that the oyster, although he is notoriously uncommittal, can yet be persuaded to give up his secret. Time and continued experiment may show the mystery of his workshop.

Hotel Accommodations for Dogs.

WITHIN a few days an elaborately equipped room has been opened in one of New York's most sumptuous hotels for the accommodation of pet dogs. It is designed to offer every comfort to the most carefully reared dog while its master or mistress may be otherwise engaged.

The dogs are checked in the care of a maid. A long felt want is thus satisfied. A man or woman taking a dog out for a stroll may thus be relieved of the responsibility while lunching or making a call. No regular fee is charged, although the maid is, as a rule, very liberally tipped.

Doctor Changes his Mind! Psychine Stands 18 Years' Test.

In the year 1890, 18 years ago, Mrs. G. S. Oebner, of Belle Isle, N.S., was in a sad condition. All her relatives had died of consumption, and there was every indication that she was going the same way. This was aggravated by an attack of Kidney Trouble.

At this point her husband suggested to try PSYCHINE. The doctor who attended said Psychine was worthless; but it effected a wonderful cure. EIGHTEEN YEARS AFTER in a letter bearing date August 14, 1908, Mrs. Oebner says, "I am better than I have been for years. My lungs have not troubled me since I took your treatment. My physician told me I could not take a better tonic than PSYCHINE, and I recommend it to all who are suffering from Lung Trouble and General Debility."

lonely and poor. Both were young and starving for happiness. In a week they would be married, for she had promised to begin the new year as his wife. Meanwhile there would be a great deal to do—so she said, though he could not see why—in getting ready. But Christmas was to be a holiday. They were going on that picnic to Eze—all three. That was already planned, but Hugh had mentally made an addition to the plan of which he had said not a word.

He was as excited over the thought of this plan as Rosemary would have been had she known. And, lest there should be a hitch or he should not have time to accomplish all, he was out of bed by half past 6, that mysterious hour of dawn when across the glimmering sea Corsica can be seen floating like a heaped basket of violets in waves of transparent gold.

Last night he had anxiously inquired of the concierge whether the Monte Carlo shops would be open on Christmas morning and had been informed that they would. Otherwise Hugh Egerton would have been capable of battering down the doors, helping himself to the things he wanted and leaving enough money to pay for damages as well as purchases.

After all, he was ready long before the shutters of those attractive plate glass windows were taken away, but he was not sorry for that. He had the joy of walking down to the Condamine and gazing up at other windows far more attractive and saying to the closed green blind, "Merry Christmas, merry Christmas, my darling—mine for always now!"

Then he darted back to rolls and coffee, beamed on the waiters, gave them fat five franc pieces merely for beaming in return and arrived in the Galerie Charles Trois just as the shop windows were opening radiant Christmas eyes.

The first visit he paid was to the florists, and to save time in choosing he simply said, "I'll take all those things you have in the window, please."

There were about 200 francs' worth of roses, the same of white lilies and enough lilies of the valley, nestling in baby leaves of yellow green, to clean out any save a well filled pocketbook, but that was all the better. The more he could spend today the more was Hugh Egerton pleased. He gave "Mme. Clifford's" address and wrote something in English on his visiting card. The flowers were to go at once—at once, mind; not in fifteen minutes, but now—this very now.

"How much in love is that handsome young monsieur!" thought the mademoiselle of the shop, with a little sigh for some of the wonders of the world which she had missed and must always miss. Her heels were appallingly high, and her waist was incredibly small, but she had a heart, and there was no heart which would not have softened to Hugh and wished him the best of good luck this day.

The next window which attracted the young man's eye was one which displayed just such a dress as he had vaguely pictured yesterday for a dear companion on the terrace. It was white, of course, and he was not sure, but he thought it was made of cloth. Anyway, there was a lot of embroidery on it full of little holes which somehow contrived to be extraordinarily fetching. It had a mantle which hung in soft folds, marvelously intricate, yet simple in effect, and he could have fallen upon the neck of the stout powdered lady in black silk who assured him that the costume could be worn without alteration by any dame de jolie taille.

He bought it instantly and then seized upon precisely such a "long white thing" of ermine as he had seen in his mind's eye. A "granny" muff went with it. Really the people of the shop must have had prophetic souls! And there was a white hat, with a gold buckle and a long white ostrich feather which looked as if it had been born to shade the face of Evelyn Clifford.

When these "confections" had been secured madame of the black satin and powdered nose assured monsieur that his Christmas purchases would be incomplete without a certain blouse which, to an untutored eye, appeared to be a combination of sea foam and rose leaves. There was a belt, too, crusted with seed pearls, and a hanging bag to match. Oh, certainly monsieur would take these and anything else which madame could conscientiously recommend! She could and did recommend several other things, and no doubt it was a mere coincidence that they happened to be among the most expensive in the shop. She also won Hugh's gratitude by being able to produce a coat and a frock in which a little girl of five, already beautiful, would be more akin to fairyhood than ordinary childhood and might become the "exception that would prove the rule" to an unbelieving Jane.

The cloak was pale blue, and another shop had to be searched for a hat to be worn with it, but madame was most kind in directing monsieur where to find one. Her sister would serve him; therefore he would be well served.

On the way he passed a jeweler's, and exactly the right string of pearls and the right "swallow brooch" stared him in the face in the window. It was odd how all the prettiest things in the world of whatever description looked as if they ought to belong to Evelyn and Rosemary Clifford. There was a gold bag, too, but that was a detail, for really the principal thing he had called for was a ring with a single diamond in it—and perhaps—well, yes, that little sapphire band to keep it on a slender finger.

The rings, in their delicate cases, he put into his pocket when he had paid, but the other purchases were to go in that very same now which had been impressed upon the florist—the sort of now to which Riviera shopkeepers are accustomed only when they deal with Americans.

Then madame's sister was found, and a blue hat, and there was just time left for a frantic rush to a toyshop round a corner and up a hill. Perhaps Doll Evie might be jealous of one rival, but there's safety in numbers, and Hugh thought that a dozen assorted sizes from life size down would keep a doll's house from echoing with loneliness.

As for the presents for the Eze children, Rosemary was to choose them herself by and by, but all these special things were to be served up, so to speak, at the Hotel Pension Beau Soleil with early breakfast.

When he had finished—which means when he had bought everything he could think of—Hugh looked at his watch. It was half an hour to the minute since he had left his hotel.

"I don't see why it should take women a long time to shop," said he to himself. "It seems to me the simplest thing in the world. You just see what you want, and then you buy it."

It was not until all the boxes and parcels must have arrived in the Condamine that an agonizing thought struck Hugh. What if Evie should be offended with him for buying her things to wear! What if she should imagine him capable of thinking that the things she already had were not good enough when she was coming out with him!

He suddenly felt a hundred years old. "Ass—worm—mene-ge-rie!" he anathematized himself.

It was now 9:30. At 10:45 he was to call at the Hotel Pension Beau Soleil to take Evelyn and Rosemary to the English church. How could he bear the suspense till then—how endure it not to know whether he had ruined the Christmas which was to have been so perfect!

He dashed into his hotel and wrote five notes one after the other, tearing up each one before it was finished. It was no good explaining. If she didn't understand, nothing would make her. But would she understand? He knew now why some women said that all men were fools. They were quite right.

If he had dared, he would have gone to her at once to be put out of his misery one way or the other. But he did not dare, so he waited until he had persuaded himself that not only his watch, but the hotel clock and the Casino clock, must be slow.

Then he started, and suffered five suffocating minutes in the public sitting room of the Beau Soleil. It was a hideous room, with abominable flowers sprawling over the wall paper and carpet, and all the windows were shut, but he did not notice these things, nor did he recognize the heavy scent that hung in the air as that which Mlle. de Lavalette affected. The lady of the roses had ceased to exist for him, but if he had thought of her at all he would have been glad that he had opened her pink leather bag when it was thin and shut it up when it was very fat.

At the end of the five minutes the door opened and gave to his eyes a vision—Evelyn and Rosemary in their new dresses and new hats.

It was all he could do to keep from crying "Thank heaven!" and to say a mere "Merry Christmas!" instead.

"Wicked, extravagant boy!" exclaimed Evelyn. "Do you know we are most unsuitably dressed? But we had to put the things on, hadn't we? It was wrong of you to buy them, but—don't look so terrified—it was sweet, too, and I know just the feeling that prompted you to do it. What a dream Christmas this is going to be!"

And then she and Rosemary thanked him separately for each individual thing he had given. It took some time, and they were nearly late for church, but not quite.

If Mlle. de Lavalette had been looking out of her window at a certain moment she would have been exceedingly surprised, not only by the transformation of Mme. Clifford and la petite bete from church mice into visions, but still more by the sight of their companion.

But hot rage and cold disappointment had given her a bad night.

She had expected a guest for dinner. She had put on her prettiest frock and had forbidden her mother the comtesse to paint. She had ordered champagne, an extra entree and a bunch of flowers for the table. Yet the guest had neither come nor sent an excuse. She had stopped in the house all the evening, thinking that he might have been detained by an accident to his automobile, but the hours had dragged on emptily. Nothing happened except a bad headache and a quarrel with her mother, who was ungratefully inclined to be sarcastic at her expense.

Half the night mademoiselle had lain awake wondering why the bird had not come hopping into the trap, and through the other half she had wondered anxiously if the bird would come tomorrow with excuses which she might graciously accept. At last she had fallen asleep and dreamed ecstatic dreams about diamond necklaces and thousand franc notes. When the procession of three left the Beau Soleil on its way to the English church strings of diamonds were still being drawn through mademoiselle's head, charming, though wreathed with patent curling pins.

It was half past 11 when she was waked by the comtesse ringing for petits pains and chocolate. A toilette was hastily made without too much time being wasted on water, and mademoiselle—all in black and white this morning, like a jeune fille in second mourning—hurried out to walk on the terrace at the fashionable hour. If she did not find the truant there, she said to herself, she would go into the Casino, for he was sure to be in one place or the other at this time of day, even though it was Christmas.

She walked a little, but not much, for her high heeled shoes were tight and made her feel even more annoyed with the world and every one in it, except herself, than she had been before she started. Presently she sat down on one of the green benches and arranged a "peace on earth, good will to men" expression which pinched her lips almost as painfully as her shoes pinched her toes. She wore it unremittingly, nevertheless, even though many of the women who passed her walking on the terrace were prettier and younger and better dressed than she and, more grievous still, were accompanied by agreeable looking man, while she sat alone, scarcely glanced at by the promenaders.

ROSEMARY IN SEARCH OF A FATHER . .

She had just begun to think that she had better try the Casino when down the steps from the upper terrace came three figures. There was something familiar about them all, but to see them together made them more than strange. Besides, the two she knew best were strange in another way. Their habit was to be shabby, though neat. Now there was no one on the terrace as beautifully dressed as this tall young woman and the slim little girl. No; it couldn't be Mme. Clifford and her petit choux! And yet—and yet—as they came nearer, near enough for mademoiselle to recognize the man with them, she felt a horrid sensation, as if something which she called her heart were dropping out of her bosom from sheer heaviness, leaving a vacuum.

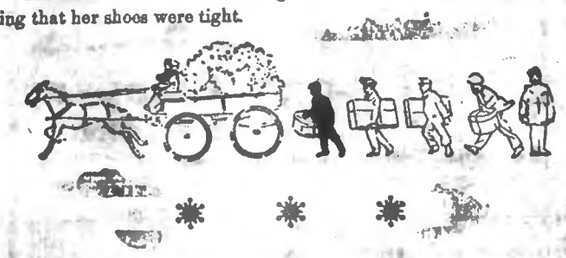
Hardly knowing what she did, she sprang up from her bench while they were still far off and began walking toward them. There was a queer singing noise in her head and a feeling as if the skin were too tightly stretched across her forehead. Still she smiled and winked her long lashes to keep her eyes moist and soft.

The sun was on Evelyn Clifford's hair, burnishing it to a halo of gold under the white hat. She looked radiantly beautiful and as happy as if her soul were singing a Christmas carol. On the face of Hugh Egerton was a look which no woman could mistake, least of all such a woman as Julia de Lavalette, and it was not for her—never would be for her.

Now she knew why her expected guest had not come last night or remembered to send an excuse. Sick with jealousy and spite, she bowed as she passed, trying to look eighteen and tenderly reproachful.

Her bow was returned indifferently by Evelyn, but by Hugh with eyes of steel and a mouth of bronze. If he had cut her, he would have shown less contempt than in that stiff raising of the hat.

Julie turned and walked straight down to the Condamine, forgetting that her shoes were tight.



Chapter Nine

ROSEMARY chose the toys for the children of the rock village, and then the "picnic" began.

The car whizzed them up the zigzag road to La Turbie while the noon sunshine still gilded Caesar's trophy. They lunched in the Moorish restaurant and then sped on along the upper Corniche, with a white sea of snow mountains billowing away to the right and a sea of sapphire spreading to the horizon on their left.

Out from orange groves and olives they saw the hill of Eze rising like a horn, while on its almost pointed apex the old town hung like some carved fetich to keep away the witches.

The car swooped down and up again, but half way up the rocky horn the wide white road turned into a stone paved mule path old as the Romans. Evelyn and Rosemary climbed hand in hand, singing a Christmas carol, while Hugh carried the two huge baskets filled with toys and sweets in little packets.

Some small sentinel perched on high, perhaps hidden among the ruins of that fortress castle where once the temple of Isis stood, must have spied the odd procession, for as the tall white girl and the little blue one, with the brown young man, reached the last step of the steep mule path a tidal wave of children swept down upon them out from the mystery of dark tunneled streets.

Such eyes were never seen as those that gleamed at the newcomers, great with surprise and wonder—eyes of brown velvet, with diamonds shining through; eyes like black wells, with mirrored stars in their unfathomed depths; eyes of wild deer, eyes of fierce Saracens, eyes of baby saints, all set in small bronze faces clear cut as the profiles on ancient Roman coins.

"Bella madonna, bella madonna!" piped a tiny voice, and forty other voices caught up the adoring cry.

The brown children of the old rock village had poured down from their high eyrie to bombard the strangers from the world below, to stare, to beg, to laugh, to lisp out strange epithets in their crude patois, but at sight of the wonderful white lady and her gold haired child they crowded back upon each other, hushed, after their first cry, into awed admiration for visitants from another world.

Few tourists climbed to their dark fastness, and of those who came none had ever shone with such blinding radiance of white and gold.

It was certain that the lovely lady was none other than the Madonna herself, and the child she had brought was some baby angel. The man alone was mortal. He had perhaps been bidden to show la bella madonna the way to Eze.

Rosemary, shy, but happy, began giving out the toys, diving with both hands at once into the baskets which the fairy father held. Trumpets, bags of marbles, tops and furry animals for the boys, according to their age—oh, Rosemary was a good judge and never hesitated once!—dolls for the girls, dolls by the dozen, dolls by the legion, and sweets for all.

As the amazed children received their gifts they fell respectfully back, as if they had received an order to give place to their companions, and others came forward, open mouthed, large eyed, ready to fall upon their knees if but one of their number should set an example.

Still there were toys left, toys in abundance. The wondrous benefactors passed slowly on, always going up, up into the huddled village streets, tunneled in rock or arched with stone, where eager, astonished faces peered from the mystery of shadowed doorways and the hum of joy and admiration swelled to a sound like the murmur of the sea.

Of grown folk there were not many—a few mothers with brown babies in their arms, a few mumbling crones and bent old men, with faces like strange masks—but the flow of children never ceased.

As the children of Hamlin followed the pied piper to the sea, so the black browed children of Eze followed the Christmas visitors from crooked street to crooked street, up to the castle ruins and back again. They did not shout as they took their gifts, but still the murmur ran from mouth to mouth, "Bella madonna, bella madonna!"

At the end of an enchanted hour, when there was not a child in Eze who had not both hands full, the benefactors turned to go, with empty baskets. Massed on the plateau above the mule path, the whole population of the village stood to watch them down the steep descent. As they went the church bells of Eze boomed out, calling all pious souls, young and old, to vespers, and, as if the loosened tongues of the bells loosened also the tongues of the children, at last there arose a cry:

"Come again, bella madonna and little angel! Come again! We shall pray to see you next Christmas day, bella madonna and little angel! Don't forget—next Christmas day!"

* * * * * * * * * *

"I'm perfectly happy, dearest," said Rosemary when once more they sat in the car spinning back from the shaded eyrie to their fair world where the sunshine lay.

The others did not speak, but the same thought was in their hearts.

When you are positively bursting with happiness the best outlet for the surplus quantity is to benefit somebody else, and there is no time like Christmas for a successful experiment.

"What else can we do for somebody?" asked Hugh.

"There's Jane," suggested Rosemary. "I told her this morning how I went out and found a father, and she said pooh, he was all in my eye, and, besides, she'd never heard of fathers growing on blackberry bushes, but if we bought her a present and you gave it to her yourself she'd have to believe in you."

"I shan't feel I have a sure hold on existence until she does," said Hugh. "Let's buy her something without the loss of a moment."

So they bought Jane a ring, which Rosemary chose herself after mature deliberation and with due regard to the recipient's somewhat pronounced taste in colors.

"She admires red and green together more than anything," said the child, "and I want her to have what she really likes, because if it hadn't been for her I shouldn't have known Christmas eve was the time to search for fathers. Just supposing somebody else had gone out and snapped him up instead of me!"

As a matter of fact, somebody else had gone out and had come very near indeed to snapping him up, but there are things which do not bear thinking of. It was Hugh's firm conviction that destiny and not Jane had flung Rosemary in front of his motor, but destiny could not be rewarded, and Jane could.

Rosemary would be satisfied with nothing less than a formal presentation, and that the ceremony might be gone through with without delay the car was directed toward the Condamine. As they neared the street of the Hotel Pension Beau Soleil a cab came jingling round the corner.

It was occupied by two ladies who sat half buried in traveling bags, rugs, baskets and shawl straps, such as women who are not of the Anglo-Saxon races love. A tiny motorphobe in the shape of a black Pomeranian yapped viciously at the automobile as the vehicles passed each other, and, though the ladies, one stout, the other slim, were thickly veiled, Rosemary cried out: "Oh, it's the comtesse and mademoiselle! They must be going away!"

Hugh said nothing, but his silence was eloquent to Evelyn, who knew now the whole story of the girl with the soft eyes. Both were pleased that this was the last of her, but neither quite knew Mlle. de Lavalette. She had been busy with other matters besides her packing while la bella madonna and her suit were collecting adorers on the heights of Eze.

Evelyn and Rosemary disappeared to take off their hats before the grand presentation ceremony should begin, and Hugh had begun to occupy the time of their absence by lighting the fire with pine cones when a cry from the beloved voice called him to the room adjoining.

The door was open, and the woman and the child stood dumfounded and overwhelmed in a scene of incredible desolation.

The air was acrid with the smell of burning. Blouses, pink and green and cream and blue, were stirred into a seething mass in the fireplace as in a witch's caldron, their fluffy laces burnt and blackened. Chiffon fichus torn in ribbons strewed the carpet. An ivory fan had been trampled into fragments on the hearth rug, and a snowstorm of feathers from a white boa had drifted over the furniture. On the washstand a spangled white tulle hat lay drowning in a basin half full of water.

It was a sight to turn the brain of madame in the magasin of smart "confections," nor would the presiding genius of the toyshop have gone scathless, for Rosemary's possessions had not been spared by the cyclone.

Dolls had lost their wigs, their arms, their legs, and beautiful blue eyes had been poked into far recesses of porcelain heads with ruthless violence. Little dresses of silk and satin had been flung to feed the flames which devoured ill starred blouses, picture books had made fine kindlings, and that proud and stately mansion which might have afforded shelter to many dolls had collapsed as if shattered by a cyclone.

"Oh, Angel, is it some dreadful dream!" wailed Rosemary, and Evelyn found no answer. But Hugh had pounced upon a card pinned on the window curtain, and as he held it out in eloquent silence she read aloud over his shoulder, "Compliments of Mlle. de Lavalette."

At the end of the first shocked instant they both laughed wildly, desperately. It was the only thing to do.

"After all," gasped Evelyn, "she has paid me back—what she owed me—and Rosemary."

"She's given me the pleasure of making Christmas come all over again tomorrow, that's all," said Hugh. "Women are strange. Thank heaven, she has vanished!"

"But nothing matters—at least not much," said Rosemary, smiling through her tears, "since you're not going to vanish, fairy father."

FILLING OF THE ICE HOUSE

Examiner Special.

Havelock, December 15th.—The "missionary social," or "pink tea," given by the members of the Presbyterian choir at the residence of Mrs. John Howes on Friday evening, proved in every way to be a delightful success. The house was most tastefully decorated for the occasion in pink and white, as also was the table from which lunch was served, pink carnations being used in abundance. The female members of the choir were dressed in muslin dresses of pink and white, and pink carnations in the hair. All as they entered were measured and charged an admission of 15 cents and one cent for every inch in height over five feet. Games and music were the special amusements of the evening, the choir giving a number of selections. Misses Ida and Flo Howe of town, and Miss Lottie Chiles of Peterborough, gave a number of piano solos which were much appreciated.

Misses Emily Swain of Warsaw, and Laura Kelly of Victoria, spent Sunday in town, the guests of the Misses Bryans.

More Particulars Of Accident In Which Engineer Wm. Ryan Met Death

Downeyville, Dec. 15th.—The weather for the past two weeks has been intensely cold, but owing to the recent snow storms the roads are in excellent condition.

Messrs O Rice and D Shutt spent the last two weeks in our neighbourhood and the farmers have kept them and their valuable machine, a well-drill and gasoline driver, busy having their wells sunk.

Mrs Paull fo Butte, Montana, who has been visiting her sisters and brother in Downeyville, started for home on Tuesday, Dec. 8th.

Mr. and Mrs Daniel Heenan, Lindsay, spent Sunday with friends here.

Mr. David Crowley of Enniskmore died in Peterborough Hospital of appendicitis on Wednesday, Dec. 9th.

The Owasso Press has the following in connection with the death of Engineer Wm. Ryan, a former resident of this place.

Hamburg, Mich., Dec. 8th—The coroners jury in the case of the Ann Arbor railway wreck which occurred one mile from this place on the morning of November 21st, causing the death of Engineer Wm. Ryan, and Fireman A. Gregan, returned a verdict placing the blame for the accident on Thomas Leahy, the train dispatcher.

Prosecutor James Green of Howell, would not state at the conclusion of the hearing as to what action he would take in the matter.

The Press also says —In the matter of the Hamburg wreck, the Ann Arbor Railroad has calmly ignored the verdict of the coroner's jury. The six men who sifted the evidence as presented by train men, operators and others, exonerated Mrs. Emma Bryant operator at Hamburg, and blamed dispatcher Thomas Leahy of Owasso for the wreck. The railway fired Mrs. Bryant soon after the wreck and Leahy is at work.

As damage suits will likely grow out of the wreck, it is necessary in the eyes of the officials to go carefully so that those who intend suing will not be given an advantage before the case gets into court.

A dispatcher is regarded as a sort of official of the company. He is higher up than an operator.

Mr Leahy is at his key nightly, handling the north end of the line. He is about 28 years of age and came here from the D. T. and I at Springfield, O., where he was a dispatcher about seven months ago. One of the causes alleged for the accident is that on the night of the wreck Leahy was handling the whole road alone his partner, Dispatcher Foltz being sick. This is not regarded as the whole cause for Leahy getting "balled up", if he did, as up to a year ago one dispatcher regularly handled the whole line during the quiet night trick. It was not considered too much for one experienced man.

Another point which may or may not have caused confusion between the dispatcher and the operator, Mrs. Bryant, was the fact that there were two engines No. 107 on the road that night both south bound, Ann Arbor 107 was ahead; then came D T & I 112, D T & I 110, and D T & I 107 in order. All had right of track over No. 15 north bound which was drawn by No. 45, Engineer Ryans engine to Hamburg. When No. 15 reached Hamburg on the way north, there was a misunderstanding of some sort either on the part of the operator, the dispatcher or both. The first three south bound trains had already passed No. 15; D T & I No. 107 had not yet reached Hamburg. Whatever the misunderstanding was No. 15 was allowed to pull out supposedly on a clear track, and the crash came.

Norwood Board of Education Holds Its Regular Meeting

Examiner Special

Norwood, Dec. 14.—The Board of Education met Monday evening, those present being Messrs. Squire, Waters, Doherty, Anderson, Harrison, Drain, Elliott and Cuffe.

Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Reply by Deputy Minister of Education, that on account of Cadet Corps not having sufficient number of members the grant should not be paid, only being 21 members instead of 26.

Mr. Doherty said that he had no report re metallic ceiling.

Mr. Bruder's agreement was laid before the Board.

Mr. Squire said he was sorry he had neglected bringing the Public School Inspector's report. Mr. Lees, being present, addressed the board and advised the procuring of some sets of supplementary readers, and providing some new black boards, and also recommended that provision be made in the Public School for proper ventilation.

Mr. Squire said that in view of a probable grant of $160 (Government), he thought that most of the improvements could be completed with this amount.

Moved by Messrs. Anderson and Drain, that the chairman of the Supply Committee procure the books recommended by the inspector.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Cuffe and Elliott, that the matter of ceilings and black boards be referred to the Special Committee, appointed at last meeting, to be attended to as soon as possible, and that the same committee report on the probable cost of ventilation, as recommended by the inspector.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Doherty and Waters, that the matter of closing the schools on Friday evening, December 18th, be left with the principals of the schools.—Carried.

The chairman of the Supply Committee brought before the Board the requirements of the High School to bring our school on the approved list.

Moved by Messrs. Anderson and Waters, that the Supply Committee procure the necessary equipment for the High School, to the amount of about $100, if necessary.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Waters and Elliott, that the Property Committee get the measurements and submit an estimate of the cost of black boards at the January meeting.

Accounts were presented as follows:

Corporation of Norwood to share of auditing and printing report	$ 11 00
Norwood Register, printing and advertising	9 00
C. J. Searight, 12 chairs at 60c	7 20
Secretary, postage	2 45
W. H. Tucker, supplies	37 50
T. J. Rahal, supplies	118 90

Moved by Messrs. Cuffe and Harrison, that the accounts of the secretary and the Register be paid and that the other accounts be referred to their respective committees, and if found correct, paid.—Carried.

Mrs. T. J. Dentt, of Carbury, Man., accompanied by her son Allan, are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S Patterson.

The death occurred on Saturday of Eliza Rork, wife of Mr. R. Francis Parker, of this place, Deceased had only been ill for a very short time and her sudden death was a shock to many friends. The funeral, which was largely attended, took place on Monday afternoon from her late residence, Hastings Road, and proceeded to the Norwood Cemetery for interment.

Mr. Wm. Shea, of Peterborough, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. Thos. Rork, of Peterborough, was in town this week, attending the funeral of his sister, the late Mrs. Parker.

Miss Kathleen Graham, of Hastings, was in town on Tuesday.

Mr. John Marks spent a few days of last week in western Ontario.

Mrs. J. Stewart, of High Bluff, Man., is visiting her daughter, Miss Beatrice Stewart.

Mrs Walter Fowlds, of Hastings, was in town on Tuesday.

One of Norwood's oldest and much respected residents passed away early Monday morning in the person of Mr. W H Stephenson. Deceased had been in poor health for some time past, but was taken suddenly worse about a week ago. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, three daughters and two sons, viz., Miss O L Stephenson and Mrs J S Mullen of Montreal; Mrs A N Squire, Norwood; William and Herbert of Chicago, Ill. The funeral which will be under Masonic orders, will take place on Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, Queen street to the Norwood Cemetery.

Mrs Valleau of Hastings was in town on Monday.

The Presbyterian congregation held their annual fowl supper in the basement of the church on Monday night Mrs. Jessie Quite, elocutionist of Belleville was the chief attraction.

Miss Phyllis Bonnycastle of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal was the guest of Miss Rose Squire last week.

An Ample Supply Of Food For All Classes Of Cattle Is Imperative

From the Canadian Dairyman

I am hoping that some of the suggestions offered some weeks ago have already been, or are being put into practice. As asserted then, too much importance cannot be attached to having the stable in good shape and getting the cattle well prepared for the long winter by getting their digestive organs in good shape, freeing them from lice, surplus hair, etc., and having bright airy quarters wherein to house them.

All these are very important, but cattle cannot produce milk or lay on flesh by means of these alone, although they count for much when the right foods are being fed. It is of course rather late to suggest what foods ought to be provided, but most farmers have a fair supply of the most acceptable feeds. Those who are not well supplied this year have my sympathy.

To begin with do not imagine that because it is autumn and not yet winter therefore the cattle should run on rather short rations and should be expected to spend a large part of each day roaming aimlessly over the fields, seeking shelter behind wire fences and lone trees. No more expensive mistake can be made at this time of year and none is more common. If you are at it, quit it, and see how much better off you will be. Of course advantage should be taken of every warm sunny day to let the stock out. A run out doors under such conditions will be of benefit to them.

For all classes an ample supply of food is imperative. Cattle that begin to lose now are hard to bring back, and show the effects of any neglect for long enough. What seems economical at the time is sure to be extravagant in the long run on account of extra supplies of feed required to start them on the up grade again or even to keep them running in uniform condition.

Young stock and dry stock can of course stand more of such usage than can the milkers and if the owner feels that some saving in feed must be effected, it should all be done by shortening up on the yearlings and dry stuff. The calves and milch cows resent bitterly any curtailment of rations, and resent it in a way to make itself noticeable.

Naturally all odds and ends of feed should now be utilized. Here a field of turnip tops and there a bit of corn stover, in this corner a bit of hay not quite so well made as it might have been, in that some rakings, a bit of millet or some other odd or end probably not in quite such good shape as the average run, and now is the time to feed it off. Spurred on by the bracing air heifers and dry stock make good use of such, of course the tit-bits ever being selected or reserved for the dairy cows in milk.

Before beginning the winter's feeding, stock should be taken of the supply of different kinds of feed on hand. As is well known cattle like a variety of feeds. Variety lends appetite, improves digestion and causes animals to make better use of the food received. By variety however one does not, or at least cattle do not mean a period of one kind of food followed by a few weeks of some other kind. What cattle mean by variety (judging by results, and that is what we are after) is a mixture of many kinds of feed on the same day rather than a succession of feeds for shorter or longer periods.

A mistake very commonly made is to reserve some choice lots of coarse feed for spring feeding or midwinter feeding, as the case may be. This is a practice based on a mistaken theory as to animal nutrition. The idea that cows or cattle should go out in the spring improving in flesh is not necessarily fallacious, but what is wrong is this, that cattle should be allowed to lose flesh till March or early April and then be rushed to get them into better shape for grass. Less food more evenly distributed throughout the feeding period would have left as good and most likely much better results. Cattle on the downhill road are hard to check in their tendency to lose flesh and are very much harder to start up grade than when in uniform fair condition. The best practice calls for a fairly uniform ration from the time normal winter conditions set in till cattle are once more on grass.

To do this may seem like scrapy feeding, but it is the kind of feeding that pays both as to economy of feeds and quality of results. Supposing the supply of feed to consist of 24 tons corn stover, 100 tons ensilage, 50 tons roots, 24 tons clover hay, 24 tons timothy hay, 18 tons oat straw, 6 tons wheat straw. Then this food should be divided so as to feed about two tons corn stover, 15 tons ensilage, 4 tons roots, 3 or 4 tons clover hay, 3 or 4 tons timothy hay, 3 tons oat straw, and a ton or so of wheat straw each month during the feeding period.

Where cows calve in the spring it might be found advisable to feed rather more freely of straw, timothy hay and silage during the early part of the season in order to have something extra for the new calving cows in April and May in the shape of roots and clover hay. Where year round milk production is followed then not much variation should be allowed save that a slight reserve of roots and clover hay is usually advisable for an emergency such as where a cow is desired to do her best in order to make a record.

Feed a uniform variety at practically all times to all classes of stock if it is wished to get the best results. —"After Results."

Spectacles Involving Risk Of Life Should Be Barred From Fairs

From the Canadian Dairyman.

The following news item appeared in a recent issue of a Toronto daily paper:

"Maria La Blonche, who was injured by falling from a wire at the "exhibition in September, died Sunday afternoon at the General Hospital. One of the stays of the post "to which the wire upon which she "was performing was fastened, gave "way and the wire sagged. Mlle. La "Blonche falling about 20 feet and "fracturing the ninth vertebra. "Since the accident, she was "paralyzed and no hope was held "out for her recovery."

Some time before the exhibition season opened, we drew attention in these columns to the unwise action of those directors of agricultural societies and exhibitions, who offer inducements to men and women to risk their lives at their exhibitions. At that time, we little thought that Marie La Blonche would be another victim of the demand for performances in which the chief feature is the jeopardising of human life. Occasional protests against such spectacles have been made but they have but little effect. It will be fortunate when a more reasonable public opinion makes such exhibitions fall flat and give place to others less closely related to the bull fights of Spain. We may assure ourselves, however, that so long as the public demands the risking of human life, men and women will be found willing to put their lives in temporary jeopardy.

The performance in this case was of no value to anybody. On the contrary, because it involved risk of life and limb, the effect on spectators was almost as demoralising as that produced by the cocking main or the bull fight. A few brutalized specimens of humanity may delight in them, but we are satisfied that the great majority of our people are anxious to see such performances eliminated. If such things are to be permitted, the effect is likely to be to create a taste which will demand more and more of the same sort of thing. Such a public sentiment is anything but desirable. Those who have to do with the management of our fairs and exhibitions should see to it that the event in which Marie La Blonche lost her life shall be the last event of the kind permitted at our fairs. Our readers should talk against them at every opportunity.

Two Ways Of Cooling Milk Are Discussed By Dairy Commissioner

From The Canadian Dairyman.

From results of experiments carried on during the past summer with the care of milk, Mr. G. H. Barr, assistant dairy commissioner, Ottawa, addressed a dairy meeting at Warsaw, Peterboro Co., Ont., recently. He and another member of the staff at Ottawa, had personally taken care of the evening milk from two herds of cows throughout the summer. The next day they made it into cheese at the factory. The results of the experiments were illustrated by means of lantern views, with telling effect, on the audience.

"There are two ways of cooling down milk," said Mr. Barr. "By means of ice or water and by dipping or aerating it. There were 18 cows at each of these two farms. No charge was taken of the morning milk. We went out each evening at milking time to care for the milk. At both farms, what might be termed good milk stands in good locations were to be found. At one stand, however, when the milk was aerated, 38 per cent. of the curds showed gas. At the other stand, which appeared equally as good, in its surroundings, 61 per cent. of the curds were gassey when the milk had been aerated. Both looked all right and were much better than most stands. The best appearing stand proved to be in the worst location, when the curds were made. When the stand was located in a barn yard, gassey curds and often floaters were invariably the result.

"Better success was secured when the milk was cooled with water. The can was set into a tub in which was about 20 lbs. of water carried from the well. The cover was put on the can immediately and the milk got no agitation of any kind except what little was given when the thermometer was put in to take the temperature. From the milk cooled in this way only 6% per cent. of the curds showed any gas, and these were only very slight with the test. No gas was noticeable at all in the curds in the vat. A box or a tank would be better than the half-barrel, though somewhat more expensive. In one instance, the barrel had been arranged with the can in it near the pump. As the water was pumped for the cattle, it flowed through the tub on the way to the trough. In this way, the milk was thoroughly cooled and no more water was required than that which the cattle drank. With the can in this location in the barnyard, the cover was put on immediately. The same results were secured as in the case of the stand where the milk was cooled with water, only 6½ per cent. of the curds showed any signs of gas.

"It required practically no time to care for the milk when cooled, and it came out all right. It took time to aerate the milk and it was not so good. The conclusions to be drawn are, cool the milk down without exposure to the atmosphere. The system followed in the experiments was very inexpensive and required but little time to cool.

"Nearly as good results were obtained by ice and water set in the milk in a shotgun can. There is one danger, however, in this practice. The can might be set down on the ground and then there would be sure to be gas." They had proven it a dangerous thing to expose milk to air under any farm conditions one can get. Milk can be sent to the factory cool and sweet the same every day by cooling it down with water. No extra work was put on the cows or on the stables at the farms where these experiments were conducted. The milk was simply cooled down under average conditions. It would have been much better had the cows been cleaned up and the stables kept more sanitary. This would have made the experiment less valuable however, as what was wanted was some method by which milk could be properly cared for under average farm conditions.

The lantern slides showing the location of the stands, the aparatus used for cooling and the results of the curd test made were very entertaining as well as instructive, and they served to clinch the argument conclusively.

THE DISTRICT DAIRY MEETINGS

Banquet in Hotel Quinte Was One of the Features of the Belleville Meeting.

From The Canadian Dairyman.

The dairymen of the Belleville, Ont., district, turned out in large numbers last Wednesday to attend the district dairy meeting held in Belleville under the auspices of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association in the afternoon, and the annual banquet of the cheese board held in the evening. At the afternoon meeting the principal speakers were Senator D. Derbyshire and Mr. R. G. Murphy, of Brockville, the honorary president, and the secretary of the Dairymen's Association.

Chief Dairy Instructor G. G. Publow, of Kingston, and Mr. H. Glendinning of Manilla, Dairy Instructor Hugh Howie of Belleville, and T. E. Whattam, of Picton, presented their annual reports which will be published separately. Mr. A. S. White, a dairy farmer of Sidney Crossing, and the president of the Belleville cheese board, was elected as the director for the district of the Dairymen's Association. Mr. White is the president of the Acme cheese factory.

The banquet in the Hotel Quinte in the evening was a great success. The principal speakers were W. B. Northrup, M.P., Senator D. Derbyshire; Hon. J. S. Duff, Minister of Agriculture; Dairy Commissioner J. A. Ruddick; H. A. Hodgson, of Montreal. Extracts from some of the speeches will be published separately. In spite of the protests of Senator Derbyshire, the leading speakers gave the Belleville and Quinte district credit for having made greater progress during the past few years than any other dairy district in Canada. One of the features of the banquet was a statement by J. A. Holagte, that his cheese factory had saved over $1000 discriminating among publishers, in in two years through the construction of a cool curing room. The factory manufactures 200,000 lbs. of milk in a season.

THERE ARE TOO MANY FAIR SOCIETIES

Mr. Wm. Collins Thinks That There is No Reason for Township Fairs in Central Districts.

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Ed., The Dairyman and Farming World:—As an old subscriber to your Paper, I read an editorial in the issue of October 21st, under the Caption "Too Many Societies." To my mind it so completely covers the ground, that I endorse it without hesitation. It is well known to all that we have too many shows, not too many of the larger ones, but too many small ones. These are not at all necessary now that we have such good facilities for reaching central points where the larger fairs are held.

If these smaller shows were abandoned and more united effort put forth to make the larger ones larger and better, more good to the whole agricultural community would result. As it is now these small exhibitions with the small prize lists and their smaller prizes, seem to be a waste of time to the whole community who patronize them, and we all know that to the farmer, time is money. If he goes to all the shows, within, say a radius of twenty miles, he will find he has lost too much time.

Of course in isolated districts there may be a reason for holding Township fairs, but none whatever in the old, well settled districts, of Ontario. It would be in the best interest of the farmers to have fewer and better shows, at which good prizes were offered. This would induce a better class of stock to be brought together, in larger numbers, thus making better competition in ring and greater choice for those who want to make purchases.

Now Sir, I am speaking as one who has had a long experience at our Exhibitions, as a Breeder, as an Exhibitor, as a Fair Director, and for some years as Secretary of the Peterborough Fair.—Wm. Collins, Peterborough Co., Ont.

HISTORIC COPY OF THE EDMONTON BULLETIN PUBLISHED DURING THE NORTH WEST RISING GIVING ACCOUNTS OF THE ENGAGEMENTS THERE

Articles That Would Now Have Heavy Black Headings are Written in the Form of Personal---What Would a Modern Paper Have Been Like if it Had Flourished in Those Days?

ONLY FOUR PAGES OF NEWS

An interesting copy of the Edmonton Bulletin has been shown the Examiner by Mr. Bert Hayes, Water street. It is dated Saturday, June 6th, 1885, and contains many accounts of events which occurred during the North West Rebellion which broke out in March of that year. In form it is simply one sheet of paper folded once, presenting four pages of readable matter. The dimensions of each of these pages is 9 inches by 12 in. There is not a single heading through out. The only heavy type used in the whole was the name of the paper, at the top of the first page.

Great News Values

But the news that it contains! To-day one page of this little sheet would supply enough "startlers" to keep any of the big dailies to-day provided for a week. The stories however are "boiled down" in almost every case to the very barest facts.

There are accounts of indian massacres, hold ups, the disappearance of small bodies of men who had started from one settlement to go to another, news regarding the war which was then practically over. These and many others are found recorded in a few lines whereas to-day they would have been given columns.

For instance under the little heading of "general locals" there is the following minor article. "The Ottawa Sun says Clemency to Riel would be injustice to ourselves" To-day there would be extras in black type, reporters would give even the most minute details as to his actions, his appearance, and in fact everything which the public of to-day would be looking for.

A Few Extracts

A few of the articles found in this primitive edition of a newspaper that is now one of the most flourishing in the west and even in Canada, are given herewith to show exactly how and what the paper printed. They are as follows—

"Mail leaves this morning. W. McInnes, driver."

"Rumoured that Nelson, courier, has been taken prisoner by Indians this side of Pitt."

"Rev. A. B. Baird arrived from Winnipeg on Tuesday evening, accompanied by an assistant missionary, Mr. Hamilton, of Toronto."

"Twenty-one teamsters, chiefly from Regina, were captured in the Eagle Hills, eight miles from Battleford."

"The report of Riel's capture was received in silence in the House of Commons. They are a noble band who represent the government for the support of which the volunteers have fought, bled, and died. Not a word of praise, not a cheer at the consummation of their efforts to crush the rebellion."

Frog Lake Massacre

"An item published elsewhere confirms the report of the Frog Lake massacre with all or even more than all the horrors generally attributed to it, if indeed the bodies found were not the victims of a second massacre which is only too probable. In the case of the bands under Big Bear, who committed these treasonous treacherous, cold blooded, cowardly, and fiendish to the last degree, there can be only one verdict, and that is that as the only adequate punishment for the crimes committed and the only proper and weighty caution that can be given to other Indians not to do likewise, the band or bands should be utterly destroyed, neither man, woman or child left alive. Humanity and justice not revenge demand this."

"Rev. Pere Maclin was found in his house after the battle of Batoche with a bullet wound from a rebel revolver in his legs."

In the advertisement columns there appears the business card of Miss Ross, milliner and dressmaker, bonnets, costumes, etc. There is no mention of the Merry Widow or the "Sheath."

There is no sporting column, and consequently nothing is said of the eastern trip for the Stanley Cup. No, these latter day affairs were probably never dreamed of.

An Idotic Act

One column is devoted to the engagements that lead up to the stand at Batoche, where Riel was captured. It is pithy and interesting. Another article is as follows: "At midnight on April 3rd, Alex Bremner, of Bresaylor Settlement, rode hastily into Battleford, stating that the settlement was in danger, and asking for an escort to bring in the people and their cattle. The answer made by the "hero" in command of the place, W. S. Morris, was, not to send an escort, not to let the man ride back as quickly as possible and inform his friends that help could not be given them—but to place him under arrest as a rebel and a sympathizer with the Indians. Further on, in the same issue the Herald (Saskatchewan), innocently remarks 'The Bremners and Sayers, in the upper settlement, refuse to come in, alleging that they are safer there than in the barracks.' Small wonder that they did not like to come in.

CHRISTMAS

Emmanuel, God with us, was the name the angel gave
To the Son of God, the Saviour, who then came the world to save,
And the star which God suspended low, there in the eastern sky,
As a token of His glory, of the Christ they'd crucify,
Was the light that led the wise men, over hill and dale until
They came unto a stable door, when lo! the star stood still,
And the men, who but the mandate of an earthly king obey,
Went in and found the Saviour in a manger where he lay.

And the angels up in heaven around the great white throne,
Praised God of the creation for the mercy he had shown;
And the wise men, bending lowly, at the feet of God on earth,
Then joined their praise with angels for the lowly Saviour's birth;
And the bells which rang so sweet and clear on this fair Christmas morn
But echoed great rejoicing on the day that Christ was born,
With a sweeter note of worship for the Christ who set us free,
Who bore our sins upon Him when He hung upon the tree.

And the music floating outward from the belfry in the tower,
Then spoke of love and pity, more than majesty and power,
And told once more the story of the love of God to me,
Of Jesus and the children whom He held upon His knee,
The story of the coming of the Christ once more to earth,
In a glory far surpassing that attending Him at birth,
Once more the welcome knowledge that to earth he'd come again,
Once more the loving words of peace, good will on earth to men.

The Illustrated Story Of Industrial Peterborough In Examiner's Souvenir Number

Comprehensive Review of the Natural and Provided Advantages of the City---Its Industrial and Commercial Equipment and Resources.

THE CITY'S BUSINESS HOUSES

The special industrial souvenir edition of the Evening Examiner was issued to-day and it is unique in the completness and inclusiveness of its review of the advantages and resources of the City of Peterborough in all respects. This splendid editon was compiled under the authority of the Peterborough Board of Trade by Mr. John H. Dyas and to his special skill in compilation, to his knowledge of industrial and commercial values are due a special number which gives in fair proportion a condensed and complete, conspectus of the wide range of interests dealt with in letter press and illustration.

The souvenir number consists of 60 quarto pages of matter, with 200 superb photo engravures, largely made from special photographs and new in this number. The illustrations include pictures of our industrial establishments, public buildings, banking offices, business houses, etc., and portraits of citizens prominent in every realm of civic activity. This feature brings to view and identifies the faces of many of our prominent business and professional citizens whose names are well known but of whose faces the public has no knowledge except through the medit is a worthy reflection.

The general typography, printing, paper and binding, is sufficiently indicated as to excellence and artistic effect, by the statement that it is the work of the Examiner Printing and Publishing establishment.

The special souvenir number will have a wide circulation throughout the province and will serve to make known in a striking manner, the advantages, enterprise and importance of the city of Peterborough, of which it is a worthy reflection.

Sometimes by happy fortuity the square peg becomes fitted into the square hole, as is excellently illustrated by the choice of Mr. T. F. Matthews as president of the Children's Aid Society. Both the society and the new president are apt subjects for cordial congratulations—the right man has found the right place, for the exercise of those excellent qualities of mind and heart which have hetetofore distinguished his exercise of the duties of citizenship in all the important relations he has sustained.

LAW FALLS HEAVILY ON MEN AND WOMEN IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Dec. 19 — A sensational round-up of outlawry in Northern Ontario has been made, and one day's record of 47 convictions is established by magistrate O'Brien. Eight men were fined in all $750 for selling liquor without licence. Several women were fined $210 for keeping disorderly houses, 29 women inmates paid $550, and three frequenters, $40. In addition to that 25 women were sentenced to six months in the Mercer reformatory. The roundup covered Kenora, Vermilion and Jaffray townships, and was made on the complaints of clergymen.

SURGING CROWDS GAVE OLD GEORGE STREET APPEARANCE OF THE GAY WHITE WAY

"More like New York every day" was the remark heard on George street this morning. Like the Saturday prior to Christmas in other years, it was expected that there would be a crowd in the city to-day, and the anticipations were more than realised. One of the reasons was the fact that old Santa had been around during the week leaving a large stock of his manufactures for distribution through the country. It was a monied throng judging from the manner in which they crowded the stores. There was an unusually heavy market and the turkeys, butter, etc., were turned into money and then into dry goods, toys, presents and the general wares that the merchants were carrying. The trains this morning were well crowded and from an early hour the main highways from the surrounding townships were dotted with cutters and sleighs bringing in the country folk. In the hotels at noon the dining room accommodation was inadequate and from one of the leading hostelries a well know citizen was seen issuing without a hat. He was heard to remark, "Well, I got my dinner, but some one else got my hat." Probably it was used to pay a belated election bet.

MAN WANTED BY TORONTO POLICE MAY BE HARRY SCHRIEBER SAID TO BE LODGED IN JAIL AT STRATFORD

Toronto, Dec. 19.—Special.—Harry Schrieber, a man for whose arrest the local police hold a warrant charging false pretences, and who is alleged to have defrauded about fifty street railwaymen by representing himself as an insurance agent, is believed to be serving a term in Stratford jail. At the time the warrant was issued for Schrieber's arrest the man had disappeared, and although circulars were sent out by the local police to all the principall cities in the province and along the border no trace of him was secured. Yesterday a bank clerk, who had been in Stratford, gave the police information that the man they were looking for was in Stratford jail serving a four months' term. Inspector of Detectives Duncan will communicate with the Stratford officers this morning and make arrangements to have the man, if it is Schrieber, brought back to the city when he has served his term.

Schrieber, it is alleged, represented himself as an agent for the Insurance Specialties Company in the Board of Trade building, and induced about fifty street railwaymen to take out insurance policies. He received sums generally of $5 from the men, but none of them got their policies. Schrieber is also wanted by the Hamilton police on charges similar to those held against him locally.

FINE NEW GOVERNMENT WHARF BEING BUILT AT THE BEWDLEY LANDING

A new wharf is being constructed by the Dominion Government at Bewdley, Rice Lake. The work began under the foremanship of Mr. James Sidey, the postmaster, about the beginning of December, and is being rapidly pushed forward to completion. It is being constructed of piles and stout timbers, and will no doubt be a substantial stopping place for the steamers during open navigation. Six teams and about ten men are engaged in the construction work. The approach to the wharf is of stone.

BOYS SELL CHRISTMAS TREES FROM JACKSON'S PARK FOR TWENTY CENTS

Christmas trees at twenty cents a piece are snaps that are found only in small towns. In Toronto or New York they would sell for—well, almost any price, according to their size and beauty. But, coming back home, and to the twenty cent tree, a merchant told a reporter that a boy came to his house a few days ago with a pretty tree of just the right proportions for inside use. The lad wanted twenty cents for it, and this snap was picked up at once. He explained that a man was cutting them down near Jackson Park, and gave them to a number of boys to sell. The merchant discovered that there were three other boys with the one who had sold him the tree. Two of them were carrying another of the evergreens, and the two that had disposposed of theirs immediately started back on the run for another.

LITTLE GIRL ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN BITTEN BY DOG WANTS CANINE KILLED

A young man appeared in the police court this morning on the charge of being the owner of a dog which had bitten a little girl residing in the southwest part of the city, and considerable evidence was heard in regard to the matter. The young man's interests were looked after by Mr. G. N. Gordon.

The little girl testified that she was running, while on her way to school, when the dog ran at her and bit her leg. She admitted that she had struck the dog on several occasions.

The girl's brother and mother also gave evidence in connection with the matter.

The defendant said that he was willing to destroy the dog if he thought that the injury was of a serious nature, and it was decided to adjourn the case until Monday morning, when Dr. Young, who was called in to attend the little girl, will give evidence.

THE DOMESTIC SCIENCE CLOSING EXHIBIT YESTERDAY ATTRACTS ADMIRING CROWDS TO THE Y. W. C. A.

The culmination of a most successful season in the teaching of Domestic Science at the Young Women's Christian Association, was reached yesterday afternoon and evening at the closing exercises and exhibits. The provisions spread on the handsomely decorated tables were eagerly sought by the visitors, their quality and arrangement being a splendid tribute to the success of the tutorship of Miss Florence Johnson, teacher, for the past year of Domestic Science.

The green drawing room of the Young Women's institution contained the beautiful domestic arts and crafts exhibits. Handsome cushions, laces, embroidery work and other specimens of the skill of the ladies were arrayed artistically about the tables of the room. Needless to say they were greatly admired, not only by the lady visitors, but by the members of the sterner sex, who attended the exhibit. During the afternoon an old fashioned spinning wheel was in motion. This served to revert the modern minds back to the times when grandmothers and great grandmothers made the yarn and clothing for the households. The pillow-lace making exhibition by Mrs. R. J. Dever was also a revelation to many. It showed how the hand made laces are knitted in the Old Country, which ecommand such high prices on this side of the water. The green room also contained an exhibit of amateur photography arranged by the Camera Club. Much interest was taken in this section.

The gymnasium was the scene of activity. The tables were spread with Christmas puddings, cake and candy. Each was attended by the young ladies of the Domestic Science Class and a considerable sum realized from sales to aid in the work of the Y.W.C.A. The exhibit of candy, cake, Banbury-tart and ice cream making was an interesting feature. "The setting of an invalid's Tray," by Miss Browett and its appetising appearance when completed was sufficient, one would think, to produce hunger in an invalid.

By way of Diversion

In the afternoon the piano numbers by Miss Gladman lent a pleasing charm to the function. Prior to the presentation in the evening of "The Reveries of a Bachelor" a delightful piano duet was given by Misses Sutton and Hawkey. The "pipe-dream" of the "bachelor" played by Mr. Chas. Barber, between 8.30 and 9 o'clock was greatly admired as were also the young ladies who occupied the central stage of the reveries. Mr. D Hughes Charles made an efficient chairman. The cast was as follows:

Misses Jessie Cressman, Lillian Dean, Effie Munroe, Helen Davidson, Marlie Hall, Elsie Anderson, Browett, Stinson, Waters, E. Aylmer, Gwen. Hall, S. Pearce, M. Meldrum, Ostrom, Johnson Reesor.

THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY WORK DURING THE PAST YEAR HAS BEEN GREATEST IN ORGANIZATION'S HISTORY

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY WAS HELD

MR. E. L. GOODWILL,
The Energetic Secretary of the Children's Aid Society.

Annual meeting Was Held Yesterday---Encouraging Reports Were Presented---Old Board of Officers Were Re-elected by the Members

PROBLEM OF THE UNEMPLOYED

That the Children's Aid Society's work during the past year was greater than ever before was shown by the report of Secretary E. L. Goodwill which was one of the features of the annual meeting of the society held yesterday afternoon in the city council chamber. The interest taken in the operations of the society was evidenced by the fact that there was a representative and fairly large attendance. The president, Mr. T. F. Matthews occupied the chair.

The most interesting feature in connection with the meeting was the reading of the officers' reports; the secretary's showing that during the year the society had dealt with 160 cases in addition to conducting a soup kitchen for the benefit of the unemployed and in many other ways had worked for the benefit of suffering humanity. The report of the treasurer, Mr. Peter Campbell, was a satisfactory one.

In calling the meeting to order Mr. Matthews paid a tribute to the efficient work done during the year by the secretary and treasurer and then called upon them to submit their reports.

The Secretary's Report

Secretary Goodwill's report was as follows—:

Peterborough, Dec. 17, 1908.

To the President, Officers and Members of the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough:

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have the honour to present my second annual report as secretary of the Society, and am glad to be able to state that the past year has followed in the footsteps of those preceding, and will be placed on record as a year of splendid progress, more work having been accomplished in the past year than in any previous year of the Society's history.

The work has, of course, been similar in nature to that done in prior years, but by reason of our well-equipped Shelter we have been enabled to extend our work, and render assistance in numerous cases that formerly it would have been impossible for us to have dealt with at all.

In the first place, it is our duty to express warm and cordial thanks to the City Council and Commissioners of the City Trust for their liberal grant of the new Shelter property, and to Richard Hall, Esq., trustee of the Nicholls Estate, for the liberal grant which enabled us to place this building in shape for our purposes. I think that I am safe in saying that we have the finest Shelter property in Ontario, and of which the Society and the city may well feel proud. It is in an ideal location, roomy and very warm and comfortable, and has adequate accommodation for a large number of children. It is heated by a hot water heating system, installed by Mr. R. J. G. Sutherland, who performed the work in conection with the installation in a manner which reflects great credit upon him and his assistants.

We express our warm and cordial thanks to the City and County Councils for continued interest in the work and cheerful contributions to our finances, and it has been with pleasure that we have heard from time to time words of commendation in recognition of services which the Society has performed for the municipalities.

We are also indebted to the general public for the kind assistance which has been rendered in many ways. Subscriptions of money come from most unexpected sources, and much good has been accomplished and pleasure to helpless children from the kindness of these generous patrons.

To the ladies of the city, thanks are due. They freely contributed their aid and assistance in promoting the various entertainments and benefits for the Society, and have on several occasions gathered at the Shelter and held sewing meetings, at which new clothing has been made for the children without which the work of the Society could not have been properly carried on.

Several organizations and associations have applied to us to have various entertainments carried on for our aid, and have sent us money, which has been collected in an undenominational way, and we have a good deal of satisfaction in feeling that the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough is perhaps the only strictly undenominational work which is being carried on in the community, and appeals to all nationalities and creeds alike, and is able to offer splendid machinery for child-saving, which could not be reached through any other channel.

The thanks of the Society are also due to the committee of citizens who

MIDNIGHT FIRE ALARM GIVES FIRE BRIGADE AN UNNECESSARY RUN

Some one last night thought the horses of the fire brigade were not having enough exercise, so he rang in an alarm about midnight from the corner of Concession and Hazlitt streets. This alarm box is situated at the north end of Ashburnham, and when the brigade got there they found nobody to tell them where the blaze was.

This morning at 7.40 an alarm came in calling them to a chimney fire at 483 McDonnel street, the home of Mr. William Richardson, and it was extinguished before any damage was done.

COMMENDABLE WORK ACCOMPLISHED AT SICK CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Dr. A. W. McPherson gave a most interesting talk in St. Andrew's church hall last night on the history and work of the Sick Children's Hospital in Toronto. Knox church and Murray street church boys were represented by large delegations, and a bright song service was held first.

In opening, Dr. McPherson gave a brief history of the beginning of the work for sick children in Toronto. It originated in 1873 through the benevolence of Mr. J. Ross Robertson. He took up the building of the Lakeside Hospital, and later the present structure. He described the way in which the little patients put in their time with games and sports. The treatment offered them gave the boys many interesting instances of the bandaging treatment. He specialized on club feet and bow legs, paralysis, tuberculor troubles, spinal troubles, burns, frost bites, etc., and he closed by inviting the boys to assist in the work of this institution.

CATHOLIC CHURCH ALLOWS USE OF MEAT ON FRIDAY NEXT

Christmas day this year falls on Friday, as has been before mentioned, and there are many who refrain from eating meat on that day of the week. In the Catholic Church it is an ecclesiastical law that its members shall abstain from eating meat on that day. However, every time that Christmas falls on Friday a papal dispensation allows thhe use of meat for that occasion.

STOCK BROKER SHOT LEAVING HIS OFFICE

J. N. Barber, (Special)

THE BY-LAW MEETING.

It is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance of the ratepayers at the Board of Trade meeting on Monday night, when the rather heavy contract will be undertaken of discussing three heavy money by-laws—that to authorize the expenditure of $30,000 to purchase grounds for exhibition and recreation purposes; $49,000 to build a new bridge across the river at Smith street, and $21,500 for street extensions, making a total of $100,500. The admitted desirability of any or all the interests involved in these bylaws, is subject to important modification arising out of the financial position of the city, and the needs of civic funds for other purposes. If these proposals are sensibly discussed, in many and necessarily brief speeches, those attending will receive information which will assist in determining their attitude towards them at the polls. With the merits and demerits frankly discussed, and the knowledge resulting generally distributed the electors will be in a position to vote intelligently and will not endorse what is unworthy of support or blindly oppose what may be regarded as in the public interests.

The more attention ratepayers pay to public questions, the more they know, the more intelligently they will vote in selecting aldermen; or deciding the fate of money and other by-laws.

THE ONLY TRUE MEANS.

A firm of Ohio grocers has distributed a circular, showing what could be bought in the course of a year by the amount spent in the same time by a man who takes three ten-cent drinks of whiskey per day—so many barrels of flour, so many bushels of potatoes, and other articles to cover an expenditure of $109.50. Naturally the grocers interested think this sum would be better invested in groceries. And they are right; but the same line of argument applies to other expenditures—to the amounts spent upon tobacco, hairpins, bridge stakes, bonnets, feathers, frills, laces, furs, carriages and ten thousand other things that are not necessaries and not in the common enjoyment of the people as are the articles in a list of groceries. Appeals to reform lose their force, as in the case of the Ohio grocers, if self interest is palpably behind them. Principle is the only basis upon which satisfactory reform can be established. We may adopt expedients by means of laws, necessarily imperfect, but well intentioned, to mitigate the appalling moral and material evils that flow from intemperance, to check political corruption, to minimise crime and curtail a host of minor moral evils, but in all these things we only scotch the snake, don't kill it. It is only when the conscience is aroused, the moral sense quickened, and the desire and resolve to do right for right's sake, awakened and taken, that satisfactory reform in any of the respects mentioned, will be attained. Law can never make man good; the best it can do is to make a man less bad than he would be if his evil inclinations were permitted full swing. Two thousand years ago the world passed under a divine regime which made a right spirit the sole condition of reform. We may employ palliatory measures as the best we can do, but they can never be considered as more than imperfect means to an end. They never can be an end in themselves.

Turkey, the "sick man of the East," is on the high road to health—he has got a new constitution.

THE COMING SESSION.

The Dominion Parliament will meet "for the despatch of business" on January 20th, 1909, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier will proceed to "finish his work." With an absence of the obstruction which served to so lamentably prolong the last session of the last Parliament, the coming session will be probably a comparatively short one; but it will be an important one in many respects. The provincial boundary bill will arouse much interest, but probably very little contentious discussion. The legislation dealing with the whole question of civil service reform and administration, having to do with venerable and long entrenched defects, may present some points of divergence of opinion or interest—convertible terms under some conditions—but the bona fides of the Government may be counted upon to insure satisfactory results. The Intercolonial Railway will doubtless come in for some practical consideration in the direction of management responsibility. The attitude Parliament may assume in the discussion of the questions mentioned, the spirit which the Opposition will bring to its discharge of its Parliamentary responsibility will probably determine whether Parliament will be called upon to consider changes in Parliamentary procedure so as to eliminate the power of members to obstructively prolong debate. Last session the Opposition provoked consideration of the necessity of such a measure and much will depend upon the attitude they assume this session whether or not action is taken. The freedom of Parliamentary debate is a too precious possession to be interfered with unless such action is forced upon it by intolerable obstruction.

And let him be sure to leave other men their turns to speak.—Bacon.

DATE OF MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

The Hamilton Herald deals with the question of why our municipal elections are held at the most inconvenient season of the year. It says:

"Our municipal campaigns are conducted in the last few weeks of the year, a time when Christmas and New Year activities make it hard for many citizens to devote much thought or work to civic duties. Ontario is alone among the provinces in adherence to this ancient folly. The Ottawa Journal points out that in Quebec the municipal elections are held on the third Monday in January; New Brunswick on the last Tuesday in October, Nova Scotia on the third Tuesday in November; Manitoba on the first Tuesday in December; in British Columbia on dates fixed by the different municipalities, and in Saskatchewan and Alberta on the second Monday in December."

The principal justification of the demand of the Herald would be found in the fact that a change of date would result in securing a larger share of popular attention to municipal matters. But would it do so? If we are badly governed in municipal matters it does not seem to greatly worry the general body of electors. The time to think of municipal matters is not only a few days before election time, but the year round. The public are not in the habit of watching the proceedings of the city council as generally as could be desired. As a rule the meetings and what they involve are a matter of indifference to the body of ratepayers. The latter only awake to a little spasmodic interest as the election season approaches. They enter into a discussion of these matters with necessarily a misty conception of what they are talking about, and necessarily they are thrown back upon the ex-parte arguments provided by interested candidates. This is only true, of course, of the general body of electors. There may be a few—a baker's dozen or so—who attend the meetings of the council and gain thereby more or less knowledge of municipal affairs, and of the mode in which the city's business is done or not done. Would a change in the date make any difference in the respect of enlisting more general electoral interest? If not, there is no sufficient reason for a change. The only valid reason is to secure improvement in our civic representation and this can be done only by the mass of the ratepayers taking an intelligent, continuous and active interest in the management of our civic affairs, whose character must be the chief element in deciding the question of aldermanic representation. There is one element in the holding of elections at the holiday season which should be taken into some consideration. The spirit of peace and good will especially in evidence at that time, may and doubtless does tend to soften the asperities of discussion, and so far as absence of passion and antagonistic animus influence calm judgment and unprejudiced consideration of civic questions so far is the reason for retaining the present date tenable. Of course, if countervailing reasons, arising out of the promotion of civic interests could be advanced, a change of dates would be advisable. The real question is what is best in the interests of the municipality.

The value of representative government is to be measured by the extent to which the representation expresses the knowledge and good faith of those who constitute representatives.

STILL GROWING.

Canada's growing time continues. The west is expanding in settlement, population, production and equipment. We shall soon have completed the third transcontinental railway, and even two additional cannot check the prosperity of the pioneer line, the C. P. R. It will have to keep in pace with its traditional enterprise to meet the traffic demands, which continuous growth creates. While the new lines will create their own traffic by development of the territories they serve, the C. P. R. will be kept busy in its own field. That its traffic is growing is evidenced in many ways, but one particular evidence is the fact that it has entered into an agreement with Fort William Council, to purchase a site for a mammoth new railway station, to be the second largest west of the great lakes, and to be a union station—in the words of the agreement, "suitable and sufficient for the joint use" of the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railways. This action on the part of the C. P. R. shows that the shrewdest corporation on the continent, has a large faith in the future of the west and of the place where it is placing such an elaborate station and freight sheds.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has well said that "the twentieth century belongs to Canada."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The theory that Emperor William's erraticism is due to softening of the head is strengthened by the fact that he has taken to soft drinks.

Will the Hains' trial provide as much newspaper sewage as the Thaw trial did? Why should decent Canadian newspapers pay so much telegraph toll for such lurid filth?

The Mail and Empire condemns the employment of the word "liar," by President Roosevelt in a presidential message. Is the Mail's vocabulary of gentle terms devoted so generously to its political opponents, copyrighted in the United States?

The doubling of the salary of the president of the United States is a symmetrical proceeding. Taft is about double the size of Roosevelt—barring, perhaps, the head—and it seems fitting that his salary should be increased—from $50,000 to $100,000.

The Toronto Globe and the Toronto World seem slopping over with the conciliatory spirit of Christmas. They see with the same eye on the management of the Intercolonial Railway, and on the infinitely more momentous question of spelling reform. Such unanimity should appal suxes for both cones.

It is reported that Lord Minto is using the iron hand to repress sedition in India, and his plan is meeting with success. Moderate means and conciliatory measures having failed, such a course seems justified, both on its merits and as the adoption of a precedent established by the rule of the East India Company, under the administration of Warren Hastings.

Some few new arrivals among Englishmen, complain of the conditions in Canada. It is probable they are the exceptions, and their experience may be due to "hard luck," or their own indifference to exertion, their unwillingness to work. That many of the English immigrants do well here is shown by the remittances home. The number of registered letters sent from Canada to England has increased eighty per cent. within the past year.

La Patrie, Montreal is inclined to regard the action of the Montreal woollen mills in closing down, as premature. It thinks that action might have been postponed till the report of the special commission on the subject of the effects of the Preference, which he is now investigating in the Old Country, is presented. At the banquet of the Canadian Manufacturers, at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that if the report of the special commissioner established the fact that the complaints of the Canadian woollen manufacturers were well founded, an immediate remedy would be proposed to Parliament.

STOMACH COMFORT

When the Stomach Rebels, Headache, Indigestion and Nerve Pain Follows—Mi-o-na Brings Relief.

Just as soon as you are done eating the healthy stomach commences to churn the food around and mixes it thoroughly with the juices of the stomach.

If the food is not churned it lays heavily in your stomach, turns sour and causes all kinds of distressing symptoms, such as headache, indigestion, stomach pain and dyspepsia. Mi-o-na helps the stomach to properly mix the food.

John S. May, of Isabella street Belleville, Ont., says, "For over seven months I was in constan agony with a case of nervous dyspepsia and indigestion that medical skill could not relieve. I was weak and had lost much weight through loss of appetite and suffering. My meals would fill me with gas and a feeling of oppression across the stomach and all up the left side, left me in a miserable condition I was restless at night and as tired and unrefreshed in the morning as on going to bed. A smoking sensation in my throat was always constant when lying down, and my heart seemed to flutter and pound as though it were coming through my side. I was benefited from the first two days' use of Mi-o-na. I began to feel like myself again, my appetite returned and the depressive feeling left me. I can enjoy my meals without the least worry of after suffering. I have gained in weight and can sleep the night through in comfort.

Go to Wm Madill, the druggist and get a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na Tablets. Money back if Mi-o-na does not cure.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. At all events you will act wisely if you advertise in the EXAMINER.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY WORK FOR THE YEAR

interested themselves so strongly on our behalf and were the means of bringing to the city the Sheffield choir and arranged such favourable terms as a result of which a large sum, the proceeds of the concert, was placed in our treasury.

Attached to this report is a reference to a few of the cases which have come under our notice since last annual meeting:

INFANTS. — During the year as usual we were requested to take control of a number of infant children, which we were obliged to decline, as the Society makes it a fixed rule not to take infants except in exceptional cases where we are obliged to take proceedings, and have them made wards of the Society in the regular way. Several small children, however, have been in the Shelter this year; one little boy, a ward of the C. A. S., Belleville, is now in the Shelter, and for whom we are desirous of obtaining a comfortable home.

A perusal of the cases attached furnishes some idea of the varied work of the Society. Over 100 children have passed through our hands during the year, of whom a large majority have been placed in comfortable homes. A number of others have unfortunately, and as a last resort, been placed in the Provincial Industrial Schools, the latter being, as a rule, boys and girls of more mature years. Twenty per cent. have been made wards of the Society by order of the Magistrates; 35 per cent. by the parents' voluntarily making the children wards, and of the remainder, a large number were children placed in the Shelter while their parents were undergoing medical treatment in the hospitals, and from various causes of like nature.

WILLS.—The officers of your Society note that some people when making their will kindly remember this Socieg with a small legacy. It is to be hoped that this practice will become universal. A small legacy in a man's will will not be missed by his family when his estate is being wound up, and will go a long way to care for some poor and needy children.

The treasurer's report shows we began the year with a substantial balance in the treasury, but we close the year with that reduced and the prospect of a deficit to face in the near future. The great increase of our work necessarily also means a correspondingly large expenditure of money; that taken with the amount expended on account of the permanent improvements placed in our Shelter, accounts for our present financial standing. We feel confident, however, that our many good friends will assist us as they have done in the past under similar circumstances.

All of which is respectfully presented.

E. L. GOODWILL,
Secretary.

Following are some of the cases referred to:

Cases 510-511.—Two boys under the age of 12, were several times brought before the Magistrate on charges of theft and burglary. The mother was unable to manage and control them, and they apeared to be rapidly travelling along the road to development into criminals. The mother, in delicate health, was the only one providing for a family of six children. She consented to an order being made by the Magistrate making the two boys wards of the Society. They are now reported as progressing favourably, and their education, which was for so long neglected, is receiving considerable attention.

Case 515.—This is a case similar to a large number of others which have come to our attention during the past year. A Barnardo girl, accustomed to living in a thickly populated district, married a native of a northern township, and went to reside there, some five or six years ago. The solitude, absence of neighbours, and want of care, food and kind treatment from her husband, soon resulted in a miserable household. The husband was brought before the Magistrate charged with non-support; and at the trial his wife wished to have a separation order, and to have the care and custody of her two infant children. The Society, however, persuaded her to wait six months before making up her mind and in the meantime were able to have the woman placed in the hospital and receive very needful medical treatment, and the children were placed in the Shelter. After a number of months, the mother, completely restored to health, and an entirely different looking person to what she had been a few months before, and her children, bright and healthy, went with her husband, who had formerly entertained great animosity to the Society, but upon having his wife and children restored to him, healthy and bright, expressed himself as unable to adequately express his gratitude to the Society. The family proceeded to a new home, where they are now living comfortably and happily together.

Cases 519-29-29.—These are cases of a similar nature to that last referred to, namely, where the Society cared for a number of small children while parents, through the aid of the Society, were placed in the hospitals or other institutions to receive medical attention; and upon their restoration to health their children were returned to them.

Cases 520-521.—Two young girls were placed in the Shelter, on complaint of the mother, who was unable to control them. They were placed in a number of homes but ran away on each occasion and acquired a considerable reputation as long distance walkers. They were subsequently returned to their mother and are now going to school regularly every day. Their conduct and behavious is now all that can be desired.

Case 522.—This is one of a number of cases of a boy of more mature years who had acquired a reputation for general badness, and although considerable pressure was placed upon us to have this boy placed in a reformatory, we succeeded in our plea of having him placed on a farm and obtained a home for him with a good-natured farmer, believing that his reputation was on a parallel with the saying, "Give a dog a bad name, and it will stick to him." The boy is living up, in every respect, to our expectations, and is working hard and industriously. His employer speaks of him in the highest terms.

Cases 530-31-32.—Three nice boys taken from the mother who was bringing them up under evil influences, and who on account of her life and surroundings, was an improper person to have the custody of these children of tender years.

Two of the boys are now adopted in foster homes, and foster parents say they wouldn't part with them for anything.

Case 540.—A particularly sad case of a young girl, who figured in the police court on many occasions. The Society was unable to procure a home for her on account of her bad reputation. She was ultimately placed in the Reformatory.

Case 543.—A young girl of 16, an orphan, residing with a relative, associating with evil companions, resulted in friction at home; and upon being checked for her conduct, ran away. The assistance of the Society was requested. We had the girl located, and investigated the matter, with the result that, with the assistance of Mr. Kelso, a new home in a distant part of the province, was secured for her among strangers. We received a letter from her a short time ago expressing her thanks and gratitude. She reported that her new home was so nice, and people were so good to her, she felt she didn't deserve it at all.

Case 544.—"Baby Roy," the Shelter baby—a ward of the Belleville Society, who is awaiting a good home.

In concluding his report Mr. Goodwill tendered his resignation as secretary of the Society. The work, especially of a clerical nature, was increasing so much that he would find it impossible to get time in which to attend to the duties, but he promised to assist the society by any means in his power.

Mr. J. H. Burnham remarked that the society could not afford to do without Mr. Goodwill and suggested that an assistant might be appointed who would take the clerical work off his hands.

The Treasurer's report was read by Mr. Peter Campbell as follows:

	$ 985 19
Hospital for Sick Children's Cot Fund..... ....$	100 00

Mr. Campbell also reported that the fund for upkeep in the Sick Children's Hospital amounted to $130.00. The fund had been started some years ago, but little had been done recently, and he suggested that some action should be taken.

Other members agreed with this and something will be done in the matter.

Secretary Goodwill reported that Messrs. R Glidden and Wm McIlroy had asked to be allowed to put on an opera in aid of the Children's Aid Society, the latter to be given the entire receipts provided that they would guarantee the expenses.

A committee composed of the President, secretary and Treasurer was appointed with power to add to its numbers to deal with the matter.

The election of officers was then proceeded with, and resulted in the old board being re-elected by acclamation throughout. Mr. Goodwill was persuaded to accept the secretaryship on condition that an assistant be appointed, and the matter of selecting the latter was left in the hands of the executive.

Officers for the Year

Following will be the officers for the ensuing year:

Hon. President—Mayor Rush.
President—T. J. Matthews.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. Birdsall.
2nd Vice-President—A. Montizambert.
Secretary—E. L. Goodwill.
Treasurer—Peter Campbell.
Board of Managers—Officers of the city and the clergymen of the city. Mesdames Best, Peck, Garvin, Davis, Wards, O'Sullivan, Montgomery, Potter, Hughes-Charles, Harding, Lloyd, Dr Jessie Birnie, Miss Gow, Mrs. R. F. McWilliams, Miss Halliday, Miss Dickson, Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, Dr. Geo. Burnham, D. Hughes-Charles, John Butcher, Magistrates Edmison and Dumble.
Agent—Geo. Cochrane.

Mrs. Garvin brought up the question of the unemployed poor and advocated the securing of employment for men who were able to work, in preference to giving them money, and there was some discussion over this point, after which a committee, composed of the president, treasurer, J. H. Burnham, and Agent Cochrane, was appointed to take up the matter with the city council.

Mr. Cochrane pointed out that in connection with the giving out of Christmas baskets, the work was to be done this year by the relief officer, to prevent over-lapping.

Mr Matthews, however, thought that Mr. Cochrane should supervise the cases in which the society was interested.

"I would rather see a home with two baskets than another without any," he remarked.

The meeting adjourned after this point had been settled.

A Bicyclist Recommends Pe-ru-na.

He says: "I have been a bicyclist for over four years. Last spring I caught cold causing catarrh. I took Peruna, and am well. I often recommend Peruna to my friends."

Many Athletes Praise Pe-ru-na.

Builds Up Worn-Out Systems.

MR. JOHN PERRAULT.

Mr. John Perrault, 339 Bordeaux street, Boulevard St. Paul, near Montreal, Canada, writes:

"I have been a bicyclist for over five years, and last spring I caught cold and did not take anything for it, for I thought it was not bad enough, but it came to catarrh. I was so discouraged that I didn't know what to do. I could not sleep; I always felt tired and troubled.

"Finally I began to take Peruna. After I had taken one bottle I felt better. I took another one, and now I am well. I would like to always feel as I do to-day. I often recommend Peruna to my friends."

Close Confinement.

Mr. G. W. Woodbury, Rogers, Ohio, formerly Captain and Center of the Hiram College Basket Ball Team, writes:

"There are times in the life of every student when excessive study and too close confinement and attention to the object in view will tell on your health.

"I have found that when body and mind alike are weary and refuse to work, a few doses of Peruna restores lost strength and invigorates one quicker and more permanently than anything I know.

"It gives one nerves of iron and muscles of steel, and assists the mental activities together with the physical to a wonderful degree."

The athlete knows the importance of being in fine form. Peruna is a valuable assistant to anyone who wishes to keep himself in vigorous health every day.

HEARTY APPETITE BUT AFRAID TO EAT

Why Not Put an End to Your Stomach Trouble Forever?

Some people think they have indigestion, others Catarrh of the stomach, others Nervousness, Cancer or Dyspepsia, etc. Call it this if you will, but the real name for your trouble is Food Fermentation, with only partial digestion. Everything you eat turns to either Acid, Stomach gas or Stomach poison, which weaken the digestive organs, cannot make the gastric juice. Your food sours, is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, burning sensation, a feeling of vomiting, heartburn, water brash and tenderness in the pit of the stomach, slimy tongue, bad taste in the mouth, constipation, nausea, rolling of gas, dizziness, sick headaches, mental depression and many other common symptoms.

You can cure all this by not eating, by not putting any food in your stomach to ferment; but how about the nourishment needed to sustain your bodily strength? If you are a stomach sufferer, either man or woman, young or old, whether you call it Indigestion or any other name, go now to your druggist and give 50 cents for a case of Pape's Diapepsin.

Every possible kind of stomach trouble is readily cured by Diapepsin, which takes right hold of the food in your stomach and digests it alone, without the help of the stomach, just as if your stomach wasn't there.

After a few day's use of Diapepsin your Stomach will again be in good working order, your meals will thoroughly digest and your intestines will be clean and fresh, and you will have no use for laxatives or liver regulators.

CHIPPING IN, FOR MOTHER.

In the old days, I remember, just about this time of year,
Ere we scattered to the corners of this good old hemisphere,
How we used to get together in a corner and discuss
What we'd buy for mother, darling, as a gift from all of us;
How we planned and talked it over,
and agreed it mustn't be Any skimpy little present she'd get off the Christmas tree,
But a set of furs or something that she needed just as bad,
Maybe something she had wished for,
but somehow she'd never had.
We ordered Sis to buy the best there was, an' take no other,
For we didn't care about expense when chipping in for mother.

It was a custom in our house—we all of us agreed
It wasn't right to make her gifts of things she didn't need;
That she'd appreciate one thing with all our love combined:
A Sunday dress, maybe, or else a coat with sealskin lined.
More than she would a dozen things,
and, looking back to-day,
It really seems to me that that was just the proper way;
We pooled our money with our love,
and then we gathered round
To see how she would take it when her
Christmas gift she found;
And then the tears would fill her eyes,
and soon as she could see,
She'd always say "My loved ones, you have spent too much on me."

'Most every year at Christmas time it all comes back to me,
And when I get to thinking, sometimes
I can hardly see;
For the mist that settles in my eyes,
I'm wishing, wishing then
For the days before we children grew to women and to men,
And I'm wishing she was with us, and
I'm wishing I could hear
Her "Merry Christmas, children!" now the day is drawing near.
I would like to get together in the way
we used to do,
And plan for mother's present. Those were happy times, we knew;
O, I wish, my little sister, you would come unto your brother,
For it doesn't seem like Christmas since we don't chip in for mother.

THE PURCHASE OF FAIR GROUNDS

"Ratepayer" Suggests Site South of the Present Grounds.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: Please allow me space in your columns for a few words in regard to the City purchasing the Fair Grounds. I think it would not be wise for the City to involve itself to the amount of fifteen hundred dollars yearly, in the purchase of the Fair Grounds. It was the intention of the late Mrs. Nichols that the south end of this City should have a good large park free of cost, and I would like to see her good intentions carried out.

There are fifty acres fronting the Street Railway on the west side, and south of Braidwood avenue, which if an option was taken by a real estate dealer upon these five ten acre lots, perhaps they might be bought for less than thirty thousand dollars, and at the south of these five ten acre lots, there are about twenty acres fronting the river, which would make a nice park in honour of the late Mrs. Nichols.

It is said that a real estate dealer has offered a price for the Fair Grounds; if so, he might as well go on and purchase the land at the south which I have mentioned, and the City should take the late Mrs. Nichols' endowment and buy the twenty acres on the river front for a park.

If a real estate dealer can see his way clear to speculate in the above lands and make the purchase satisfactory to himself, he would have to extend George and Aylmer streets to the south, and lap our park at the river. Then the City might give the Agricultural Directors a space for building as the case may be, on the riverbank.

I remain, yours,
A RATEPAYER.

MERRY CHATTER OF THE MANY CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS

Trade Brisk and Money Seems to be Rather Plentiful—A Happy Druggist.

LADIES ARE IN THE LEAD

A stout lady with her furs hanging limply and crookedly from her left shoulder was the centre scrimmage of one group, and she was saying to a smaller, but no less determined lady, who seemed to be playing quarter-back inasmuch as she stood behind and received the parcels the older lady handed back: "There's just mother and Uncle Harry left, and I have that toilet set for mother. What are we going to get Uncle Harry? I can't remember if he smokes or not."

In another group two sweet-faced girls stood before a counter piled high with men's things. One girl laughed in a low merry tone and the other's colour seemed to be a little higher than usual. "Oh," she was saying to the salesgirl, whose attention she had just attracted, " I wanted something for my—something simple but good, for my, my brother." The other girl gracefully placed the edge of her little kerchief in her mouth and tried to keep a straight face, while the salesgirl looked tired, but sympathetic.

They were Christmas shoppers, gentle reader, and mayhap you were among them. They over-ran the stores this week and they bought many hundred dollars' worth of goods. They are still buying, early though it be, and they will continue to buy until the merry peal of the Yule-tide bells announces the festival of festivals nigh.

Most of the shops had received their holiday goods in plenty of time and the demand was met. Of course the real old-fashioned rush will be deferred, but a decided tendeney to begin Christmas shopping two weeks and more in advance of the holiday week noticeable.

This tendency is the source of delight to both merchants and clerks, and it also gives the wise early-birds a distinct advantage over the sluggards in point of variety of goods to select from. There are just as good bargains offering now as there will be the day before Christmas and there are many more of them.

Money is Plentiful

"I haven't noticed any shortage of money among the shopping public," said one large merchant yesterday. "Of course there is not the same indiscriminate buying we had a couple of years ago at this time, when people would walk in and look over the stock, pick out what suited them best, have it wrapped up, give their address and then ask, as an after-thought, how much it cost. They are a little more careful about the price now than that, but we are selling expensive stuff right and left and having no trouble about the prices."

Pretty Good Old World

Late last night a George street druggist was found in his office at the back of his store with a cash book and a ledger at his elbow and a broad grin of satisfaction on his face.

"What's the joke?" asked the visitor. "Rich uncle left you a legacy or your mining stock panned out?"

"No," said the man of drugs, still smiling, "just general principles. Pretty good old world this we're living in!"

"'Tis for druggists as long as they don't take any of their own pills. But why the dimples?"

"Well, if you'll keep it strictly under your hat, I don't mind saying that this little old store is coining money just now. Best Christmas trade I've had and getting better all the time. I was just figuring whether I'd buy a six-cylinder limousine or three run-abouts. I suppose it wouldn't be just the thing to buy a flying machine yet."

"Behave, behave," said the visitor, reflecting the druggist's grin, "anchor your flying machine for a minute and whisper me this: What is the trade good in?"

"Why, in everything in the way of Christmas goods. People are buying already and nobody has his money riveted down. The only customer I've had so far who had trouble getting separated from the price was an old boy from down east, who came in to buy a gallon of perfume. What he really wanted was kerosene judging by the coin he was offering along this line of sueculation, but I finally sold him a cheap line at fifty cents and even he got the money loose without using a chisel.

One or two merchants were found who pretended to be having a hard time, but the majority of the dealers in all lines were smiling with the delighted druggist and if they delivered themselves of any comment at all it was in the tenor of the gentleman who said: "I vonder where these Ghristtians get all the money ve get from dem?"

Ladies to the Fore

It is noticeable that the early shoppers are largely women. The men do not seem to take much stock in the old adage about the early bird getting the worm. Perhaps some of them have found that once in a while the worm gets the early bird. However, this may be, the shoppers who are snapping up gifts just now are mainly women. The stores are full of beautiful suggestions and the variety is even greater and even more bewildering than it was last year. But the shoppers do not look as though they found it a matter for worry. Naturally there are the little debates as to whether a necktie or a box of cigars will tickle Percy the more. But this adds zest to the feminine shopping and doubtless it will be all the same to Percy unless his particular feminine friends have unusual feminine taste in turkey-cock scarfs and Cadobgeos di Havanas.

"Are you sure these are Havana cigars?" she will ask sweetly of the cigar salesman.

"No madam," he will assure her solemnly, "those are not exactly Havanas, but they came from a small place just outside Havana."

"Oh, really; well I suppose there can't be much difference then and I do so like the pretthy box." (Poor Percy).

Mr. E. J. Bengough Addresses The South City Athletic Club

"The Symbol Life" the Subject—Humorous Pictures Presented.

NEPHEW OF CARTOONIST

The lecture given by Mr. Elven J Bengough, B.A., Registrar of McMaster University, Toronto, in the Park Street Baptist Church, held last night, under the auspices of the South City Athletic Association, was in every respect a great success. Mr. Bengough, who is a nephew of the great cartoonist and entertainer, Mr. J W Bengough, of Toronto, took for his subject "The Symbol Life' which he illustrated with chalk work, executed ina remarkably facile and clever manner, reminidng one of the lightning-like work of the founder of "Grip."

The lecture was replete with humour from start to finish and showed Mr. Bengough as the possesor of no mean talent in this respect. He began with a drawing depicting a street, showingt he various signs of the different trades, such as a barber's pole and a shoe maker's sign to illustrate his point that symbols are still used in our modern industries. He gave a very interesting history of these signs which delighted the audience.

Humorous stories were interspersed throughout the lecture. One story in particular showing the lack of imagination in what he termed an English "dude," evoked peals of laughter. In contrast to this he told a story of a man fishing to illustrate exaggeration of imagination using three pictures. The first shows a man fishing who does not catch any fish, but goes nevertheless to the hotel and tells the landlord that he had hooked one and indicates how long it was. He tells his wife and it has grown considerably. The third picture shows him dreaming of it at night.

Master Harold Mather sang two excellent solos and Miss Pentland favoured the audience with a pathetic recitation entitled "Jim, the Troop horse.

Rev. W C Riddiford proved an acceptable chairman. The proceedings terminated with the singing of the National Anthem.

POLICE WILL ENDEAVOUR TO HAVE THIS MAN SENT BACK TO ENGLAND

Alf King who informed the police that he had come to Canada from the Old Country some eighteen months ago, appeared before Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning on a charge of vagrancy and pleaded guilty.

Chief Roszel supplied the information that King had been coming to the police station frequently for a night's lodging.

He thought that it would be a good case for deporting, and the Magistrate agreed with him.

King said that he had been working for a farmer in Emily for seventeen months, and that he had received $120 for his services in that time.

The magistrate decided to send King to gaol, while efforts will be made to have him sent back to England.

Peterboro' Man Wins His Case And Hamilton Firm Must Not Infringe

Mr. D. W. Dumble appeared for Mr. Wm. Overend, in his action against Burrow, Stewart and Milne, of Hamilton, which was won by Mr. Overend. The Spectator, in reporting the case, says:

The action of Wm. Overend, Peterborough, for an injunction to restrain Burrow, Stewart & Milne, this city, from manufacturing a curry comb, thereby infringing his patent, and for $2,000 damages, lasted all yesterday afternoon and for four hours to-day, the judgment not being given until one o'clock. Overend secured a patent on a curry comb, and claimed that the local firm infringed on it. The defence was that the comb was not patentable. His lordship gave judgment for the plaintiff for $20.80 damages, which amount represented the royalty Overend would have received from the sale of his combs to his agents if the infringement had not taken place, granted the injunction to restrain the defendant from further infringement and ordered that the defendants pay all costs.

Dainty, Useful Gifts---These Beautiful

Net and Muslin Waists

Style, that priceless part of woman's dress, is so inseparable a feature of the beautiful Waists in this special collection that no women would deny their appropriateness for Christmas presentation—they are a treat to look at, a delight to receive.

The styles picture the fashions of the minute—there is nothing newer, nothing more exclusive or dressier. Finest net in white, ecru and black—richly embroidered, and pretty dotted muslin in white and colours—trimmings in exquisite taste; all these and much more are blended in the beauty of these charming Waists.

The assortment is a broad one and affords an excellent selection from 1.50 to 15.00 in detail, as follows:—

EXHIBITION GROUNDS PURCHASE

Mr. J. J. Turner, Sr., Another Advocate for the Passing of the By-law—Thinks Fair Will Soon Last a Week.

BENEFITS TO THE CITY

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—As the time is drawing near when the vote will be taken by the people of Peterborough for the purchase of the present Exhibition Grounds, I hope that all good, true and loyal citizens will come out on January 1st., next, and vote for the purchase of the Exhibition Grounds, as I fully believe that it will prove one of the best assets the City will have and the property will be increasing in value every year. It is one of the best Exhibition Grounds in this part of the Province, and as it is quite necessary for an exhibition to be held in Peterborough, we must have grounds to hold that Exhibition on. At the present time the grounds are under lease, but that lease will soon expire and the Directors of the Exhibition do not feel like spending money on new buildings until the City buy the grounds. When the city owns the grounds the Directors are ready to go ahead and put up new buildings and improve the grounds and make Peterborough Exhibition the best in this part of the Province, and I believe in a few years that this Exhibition can be run for one week and you all know what that would mean to Peterborough. It would bring a great many people to our city and those people would spend a lot of money here, just as the National Exhibition at Toronto does, and we all benefit by it. Then, again, these grounds could be rented out for lacrosse matches, baseball, football and many other sports and when not in use could be used for a park. The grounds are very conveniently situated and the street cars running right to the gates. There is another matter to be thought of in the buying of these grounds, the stables, sheds and buildings are there and go with the grounds, if new grounds were bought in any other part of the city these would all have to be built and that would cost a lot of money. The President and Directors of the Peterborough Exhibition have worked hard without pay to make it a success for the benefit of the public generally, so go to the polls on January 1st and mark your ballot in favour of buying the present Exhibition Grounds and show the President and Directors that you appreciate their efforts and it will give them renewed energy to go ahead and put up buildings and present to you a first-class and up-to-date Exhibition.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for the use of your valuable space, I remain,

Yours truly,
J. J. TURNER, SR.

GOOD-WILL-TO-MEN STAMPS BOVRIL AND TEA SALE

In Behalf of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, at Richard Hall & Son's Store, Under the Guidance of the King's Daughters.

With a commendable spirit, quite in harmony with this "Goodwill toward men" season of the year, the firm of Messrs. Richard Hall & Son have done a generous act worthy of endorsement.

It seems the King's Daughters, a local charitable organization, have secured the sale in Peterborough of the Good-Will-to-Men Stamps, in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. They have also taken up the good work of providing additional revenue for the maintenance of this Hospital, by the sale of Bovril and Tea—every cent from the sale of which is to be applied to this benevolent object.

In order to have these articles placed on sale at some central place where a large number of generous buyers might always be counted upon, the King's Daughters secured the hearty co-operation of Richard Hll & Son, who gratuitously placed their store at their service in order to help on the good work. The firm has also, at its own expense, fitted up two booths in the store—one in the main isle near the door, for the sale of the Stamps and the other in the centre aisle, for the sale of Bovril and Tea. Both these booths have been tastefully furnished and decorated by the store's expert decorator, Mr. H C McDonald, who has made them very inviting and attractive quarters. The young ladies selling the stamps are in nurse's costume and those in the tea room are dressed in Japanese costume.

This is the Christmas season, when every hand is open for good deeds, and every contribution that can possibly be spared will be gladly applied in assisting to maintain this Free Hospital for Consumptives at Muskoka. The little Christmas stamps are sold for one cent each, and it is said that a million is to be sold before Christmas. The stamps are red and white and every penny from their sale as well as from the sale of the Bovril and Tea at Richard Hall & Son's store will be used in behalf of the poor patients at the Consumptive Hospital and for lighting the dread White Plague.

"WILDFIRE" PRINCIPAL TRAVELS IN SECLUSION

Miss Lillian Russell Has Her Own Private Car and Cab.

Fre actresses of to-day travel in such a sumptuous manner as Miss Lillian Russell, who appears in the great racing comedy "Wildfire," at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday night, of next week. Miss Russell has her own private care for her own personal use. She has two maids and is surrounded by every luxury. She travels from her car to the theatre in a cab, Mr. Gibbs having the contract for this work in Peterborough. She will leave the car at 6.45 p. m., and return to it immediately after the performance.

MY OLD RICE LAKE CANOE.

'Twas strange to meet in a city street
With a banner exposed to view,
Extolling the fame of the dear old name,
Of an old Rice Lake canoe.

I'm afloat once more, as I've oft before,
And with stroke both deft and true,
In my heart a song I paddle along
In my old Rice Lake canoe.

With paddle adrip I make the trip
O'er the waters dark and blue;
I am here a king is the song I sing
In my old Rice Lake canoe.

But a jostle rude brings another mood,
And the paddle held fast as glue
Falls down and away till some other day,
In an old Rice Lake canoe.

THE MISSION BAND WERE "AT HOME"

Enjoyable Time in George Street Sunday School Last Night.

The members of the Mission Band of the George Street Methodist Church were "at home" to their friends in the school room yesterday afternoon between 4 and 7 o'clock, and a large number took advantage of the opportunity to be present and had a very enjoyable time. The tea room was in charge of Mrs. M. A. Turner and Mrs. Cruikshanks, assisted by members of the band, and the refreshments served were much appreciated. A very enjoyable musical programme was given in which the following took part with much acceptance: Miss Maggie Weart, Miss Etta Kempt, the Misses Helen and Hannah Greaves, Miss Irene Mitchell, Miss Lillian Fife, and Miss Margery Mann.

A doll table in charge of members of the band was well patronized during the evening.

Annual Meeting of Peterborough Lodge No. 135 A.O.U.W. will be held next Tuesday Evening, Dec. 22, in Foresters' Hall, Simcoe Street, at 8 p.m. Business, Election of Officers. 2d-118

THE CANOPY IS VERY USEFUL AND DECORATIVE

Entrance to the Grand Has New Protection to Patrons.

One of George street's new adornments is the canopy over the entrance to the Grand Opera House. It greatly enhances the appearance of that block and gives the theatrre a decided metropolitan effect. Its purpose is, however, more than ornamental, for under its shelter on a stormy night patrons have a chance to enter their cabs, or if walking, to put up their umbrellas and button storm coats before they meet the gale.

COLEMAN BROS. BEST DISPLAY

Christmas Dainties of the Most Artistic and Fascinating Character—New Illuminated Sign.

No person interested in the confectioner's art can afford to miss the meritorious display of cakes and confectionery shown by Coleman Bros. The two bewitching show wwindows of this enterprising firm's store, on George street, have been growing more and more Christmasy every day, until the exhibits of to-day is the finest they have ever made. The really artistic iced work on the cakes displayed has attracted crowds of admirers by and has been highly spoken of by good judges. The delicate confections, fancy candies and chocolates are also much admired. Beautifully designed bon bon boxes for Christmas giving are shown in a pretty decorated booth, and are in various assorted sizes and designs. In fact, all through the store is a sparkle and glow which tells Merry Christmas is near with its snow. Already the sleighs and its tiny reindeer, with Santa Claus shouting the road for to clear.

A new and attractive illuminated sign has just been placed over the store door, which has the intermittent dights that cannot fail to catch the eye.

ORDINATION AT ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL TO-MORROW MORNING

To-morrow at St. Peter's Cathedral at the 10.30 o'clock mass, Rev. Victor McFadden will be ordained priest. The ceremony will be performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. It is two years since this last young man was received into the priesthood. Rev. Father O'Leary was then ordained. He is now located at North Bay.

The Royal Theatre Was Opened To Large Crowds This Morning

This morning the Royal Theatre Peterborough's most recent addition to its places of public amusement, opened under most auspicious conditions. At 10 o'clock the wide front doors were thrown open to admit the scores of people who hor fully an hour previous had crowded the pavement in front. The general opinion, as gathered from expressions passed by patrons on their way out was to the unanimous effect that the Royal was born to raise to a lusty career. The main portion of the morning's patrons was naturally gathered from the farming community as they left the market. As the good people entered the building looks of incredulour surprise were cast at the automatically operated electric piano. 'How does that instrument work" And others would remark, "Why look at those keys pounding away without anyone at the piano," Such remarks were frequent As the crowds that thronged the place made their exit, exclamations of delight over the splendid performance were heard on all sides. The pictures shown were of high class, in fact the best ever seen in Peterborough and fully equal, if not superior to those shown in the best theatres in Montreal and Toronto, and leading American cities. Mr. Pappas the enterprising proprietor of the Royal, is to be congratulated not only on the splendid place of amusement he has provided but on the generous and general appreciation displayed by the public of Peterborough. On Monday singers and other musicians will arrive from Detroit and Chicago and appear at the performances that day and on Tuesday. Mr. Pappas has been fortunate in his choice of employees at the theatre having given employment where possible to local citizens.

The Christmas Turkey Was Sold On The Market In Large Numbers

Turkeys were the top-liners at the market this morning. There were piles and piles of them all in a row, and behind this precious barricade were rows of farmers' wives with one eye on their money bags and the other on the prepared poultry. There were turkey carcasses that sold from $1.25 up to $2.50. The former were adapted to newlyweds, just making a meal for two, the others—well there were some mastodons that would gratify the appetites of a family of 12.

Butter was down to 26, and eggs sold at from 25 to 27 cents. Next to turkeys, geese were most plentiful. The price ranged between $1.00 and $1.25. Many a mother expended her strength carrying home the Christmas turkey or goose; the wiser housewives worked a graft on their grocer by having him send it with the regular week-end order.

Beef was plentiful at five and six cents, pork at ten and eleven. Altogether the market was well up to the Xmas standard.

Two Hounds Lost During Hunting Season Brought Back To The City

Mr. Hugh Cochrane came down to the city yesterday with two hounds, belonging to Mr. H. Winch. They had become lost during the deer hunting season and the party had come away without recovering them, fully expected that some of the farmers back in that country would find them and return them to the owner. Mr. Winch is a member of the Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club, and it was while they were back on the chase that the dogs were lost.

Deer Have Returned

Mr Cochrane states that the deer are now quite plentiful. It seems that just previous to the opening of the late autumn season they go back farther north, and are rather scarce when the hunters start out on their trails. They return again at this season and remain almost throughout the entire year.

A FEW ADVANTAGES OF THE Diamond Calk Horseshoe

It saves time—it saves money—it saves your horse. The calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The calk being made of case-hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal 9 ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

Your horse always having perfectly sharp calks is thoroughly protected against slipping.

The Shoe, and all the parts are made of the best material The fittings—that is the calks, clamps and cap screws—are renewable at very small cost, while the shoe itself is practically indestructible.

BOUDREAU DENIES THE ALLEGATION

Maintains His Denial of Receiving $3,000 Graft Money.

CHARGE IS CORROBORATED

Accountant Lawrence of People's Bank Declares That Boudreau Was In Quebec Bank at the Time When Latter Says He Was Not In That City—Holliday Has Forgotten —Some More Developments.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The sensational allegation that James Holliday of Quebec had paid $3,000 to J. B. A. Boudreau of the Marine Department, was not made any clearer at the Cassels' enquiry yesterday.

A. R. Lawrence, accountant of the People's Bank at the time, swore that he saw Boudreau in the bank at Quebec on two occasions at the end of May or beginning of June. He also saw Van Felsen, who made the allegation, go out and get some large bills, but saw no money paid.

Boudreau's reply to this later testimony in effect was a reiteration of the denial that he was in Quebec in May or June and that in making his statement Lawrence was influenced by Van Felsen.

Holliday, the man who is alleged to have signed the checks, persists in saying that "to the best of my knowledge, I did not do so at all."

E. G. Odell of Quebec, grandson of Agent Gregory, said he had a private arrangement in respect to the sale of contractors' supplies with Mr. Ritchie of Quebec. Witness sold Ritchie, who was on the patronage list, and the latter sold to the Government. His grandfather knew nothing of the arrangement.

Witness deposed that he often made 50 per cent. profit on his sales and Ritchie made as much, too. He also worked for J. J. Murphy and got a commission on orders secured, while Mr. Gregory got 5 per cent. on money advanced in paying of drafts.

There were some interesting developments at the afternoon session. John McKelvey of Kingston, continuing his evidence in respect to house fittings supplied to J. F. Fraser, the suspended superintendent of light and payments therefor. There was an entry in his book of "J. F. Fraser, $1,591, note." The witness said that it was a mistake. It should have read "check." It was a draft on the Bank of Montreal from either British Columbia or Winnipeg, which was received in October last.

R. O. Mackay of Hamilton was further examined in regard to the payment to him of $7,500 for the steamer Goldspie, which was used to deliver light house supplies in 1906. He said the first offer to the Department was $5,800, but it was for the steamer Myles, a smaller vessel. Witness admitted that he had the influence of friends. That was always the case when possible.

The Myles was placed in commission and subsequently the firm offered the Lake Michigan at $6,000, but the Department would not accept. Mr. Mackay then came to Ottawa, where he saw Mr. Zimmerman, Mr. Brodeur and Col. Gourdeau. He offered the Golspie for $10,000, but after some negotiations it was agreed that she would be hired for three years at $7,500.

This continued till the Golspie was lost.

"What contracts or arrangements did you make with officials of the Department?"

"We don't do business in that way."

Sinks Off Goodwin Sands.

Dover, Eng., Dec. 19.—The Swedish steamer Lindholman, 803 tons, went down off Goodwin Sands yesterday morning following a collision with the German steamer Friedricke-Muller, 1,790 tons, from Grimsby, for Stockholm. Eight of the crew of the Lindholman were drowned.

The Goodwin Sands are known to mariners as "The Sailors' Graveyard." They are a series of dangerous shoals about five miles east of Kent, from which they are separated by the Downs. Wrecks there are of more or less frequent occurrence.

Tacoma Steamer Captured.

Prince Rupert, B.C., Dec. 19.—Captain Newcomb, commander of the Dominion fisheries protection cruiser Kestrel, recently overhauled and captured the Tacoma fishing steamer Seapora for an alleged infraction of the Dominion fisheries regulations. The steamer was released on payment of a fine of $1,600.

Horseman Sent to Central.

Welland, Dec. 19.—Arthur Willis, who is a well-known horseman at Fort Erie, was yesterday convicted of having received stolen goods, and was sentenced by Judge Wells to one year in the Central Prison. Fort Erie, Kenilworth and Lexington horsemen testified as to his good character.

Skull Fractured.

Welland, Dec. 19.—William McLaughlin, a moulder for the Ontario Iron & Steel Co., was hit by a falling pulley Thursday night and suffered a severe fracture of the skull. He was removed to a Buffalo hospital, but it is not anticipated that he can recover.

THREE MEN HANGED.

Triple Execution Takes Place in New Westminster.

New Westminster, B.C., Dec. 19.—Without assistance, James Jenkins, negro; Jack Pertella, negro; Lee Chung, Chinaman, walked to the gallows yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, and took the drop without a murmur. Only when Radcliffe tightened the rope about Jenkins' and Chung's neck did they commence to lose nerve, but Pertella never moved a muscle. They dropped together while a Salvation Army officer repeated prayers. Sheriff Armstrong giving the signal, and Radcliffe pulling the bolt.

The three men slept well Sunday night, Pertella remaining in bed till the guards roused him out to go to the gallows. He smiled at the crowd of seventy-five before the cap was pulled down.

Jenkins murdered Mrs. Morrison at Hazelmere, Pertella killed a mulatta woman in Vancouver, and Chung murdered another Chinaman. Chung and Pertella confessed; Jenkins did not.

Swindler at Brockville.

Brockville, Dec. 19.—A stranger going under the name of J. T. Jamieson, advertising for salesmen for whom he had good positions, operated a new and novel method of catching the unsuspecting in Brockville.

Several young men applied at his headquarters in a leading hotel. He had jobs for them all, but stipulated that each should accompany him to a bank for the purpose of identifying him so that he might cash checks, purporting that he had a bank account in Montreal.

Three victims nibbled, one of which he caught for a "ten spot." The other two checks were for sums of $25, but the bank managers became suspicious and refused to honor the paper.

It turns out that he has no bank account in Montreal, so a telegram to the police says. There is a warrant for his arrest, but Jamieson has jumped this town.

Kaiser Swears Off Liquor.

London, Dec. 19.—The Kaiser has gone one step further in his policy of personal reform by becoming a teetotaler. He has pledged himself to abstain from all alcoholic drinks for the remainder of his life.

This ascetic vow would, according to strict etiquette, banish drink from all dinners at which the Emperor is present, but His Majesty, desiring not to compel his courtiers to follow his example, has prepared a temperance drink, like champagne, which he drinks while the others enjoy the real champagne.

When the Emperor is invited to dinner this special non-alcoholic drink is supplied to the host in advance and is served to the Kaiser in champagne bottles.

Probing Cause of Six Deaths.

Somerville, Mass., Dec. 19.—Pending the result of an examination of Mrs. Mary Kelleher of this city, now in jail at Cambridge, as to sanity, District Attorney Higgins has ordered an investigation into the causes of the deaths of six members of Mrs. Kelleher's family during the past three years. The specific charge against Mrs. Kelleher is that of arson. It is said that the insurance on the lives of the deceased was paid to Mrs. Kelleher. The persons who have died were Mrs. Kelleher's husband, son, two daughters and two sisters-in-law.

Representative at Rome.

Montreal, Dec. 19.—It is announced here that Mgr. L. A. Paquet, apostolic prothonotary, will leave at once for Rome, where he will permanently reside as the official representative of the Ecclesiastical Province of Quebec. In fact, it is necessary since Canada was taken out of the mission list. We must have a representative at the pontifical court for every ecclesiastical province, and Mgr. Paquet, one of the oldest men of the French clergy, will go to represent this province.

Airship Fails as a Night Terror.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 19.—Roy Knabenshue on Thursday night attempted to demonstrate how an airship could sail over a city unobserved under cover of darkness and destroy the city by the use of powerful explosives. His airship was easily discernible, however, and the whir of the motor and propeller could be heard a great distance. Knabenshue dropped a harmless bomb on the City Hall.

Brakeman Held Up.

Woodstock, Dec. 19.—A G.T.R. brakeman on a through freight west bound was the victim of a hold-up at the station here at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He was about to climb on to the engine to assist in taking water when a man confronted him and at the point of a revolver demanded his money. The brakeman closed with his assailant, who got away.

Japanese Budget Pleases.

Yokohama, Dec. 19.—The Tokio budget has been received with general satisfaction throughout Japan. It is accepted as an indication of Premier Katsura's determination to maintain his position as an economist. An explanatory note announces that there would be an avoidance of foreign loans.

Murderous Quarrel Over Dead Dog.

Goldsboro, N.C., Dec. 19.—Ira Hatch, a prominent resident of Dudley, was shot and killed by Badger J. Bowden, mayor of Dudley, as the result of a quarrel over a dead dog. Bowden was seriously wounded by his victim's son.

ROOSEVELT APPEARS TO BE NERVOUS

He and Taft Will Investigate Condition of Canal.

CORPS OF EXPERTS TO GO

President-Elect's Trip to Panama Will Be For the Purpose of Examining the Lock System—Sea-Level Aqueduct May Still Have to Be Built Gatun Dam May Be Unsafe—Engineers Will Make Tests.

Washington, Dec. 19.—William H. Taft will be accompanied by a corps of expert engineers when he goes to Panama late in January for the purpose of investigating the work on the canal and deciding whether it shall be continued under the present system or whether it would be advisable to call a halt and begin construction of a sea level canal.

There were many stories as to the meaning of the sudden meeting between the President and President-elect.

Mr. Taft, it was finally admitted, came here of his own initiative to consult with the President about the Panama Canal, as this question has become one of the greatest concern to both the outgoing and the incoming President.

It was learned that Mr. Taft, when he goes to Panama, accompanied by several eminent engineers, will test finally whether the lock canal plan, with the questionable Gatun Dam, is to be continued, or whether, while, there is time, the plan shall be changed. It will thus be plain that the visit of the President-elect to Panama is to be of the most momentous importance.

The President, it is said, realizes that if he insists on the lock plan being continued and it should prove to be a failure, it will greatly reflect on his fame. There have been many disquieting things about the Gatun Dam scheme and the entire lock canal plan, including the constantly mounting figures of the total probable cost.

Woodstock-Guelph Trolley.

Woodstock, Dec. 19.—A. N. Warfield of Toronto, consulting engineer, was in the city yesterday arranging the preliminary work in connection with the construction of the proposed electric road between Woodstock and Guelph.

The proposed route is by way of Innerkip, Bright, Plattsville, New Hamburg, Baden and Berlin to Guelph, and it is proposed to run an hourly passenger service. The promoters of the scheme are said to be Plattsville men. A charter has been applied for and Woodstock may be asked to subscribe about $50,000 worth of stock.

Railways Ask Extension.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The following railway companies have given notice of their intention to ask for legislation granting extension of time: Brandon Transfer Railway; Alcock and Yukon; Athabaska; Ontario and Western; Algoma Central and Hudson Bay; Crawford Bay and St. Mary's. The last named company wishes to change its name to the British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba Railway Co. The Victoria and Barclay Sound Railway Co. is seeking for incorporation. The Western Canadian Life Assurance Co. is applying for incorporation.

Riddell Temporary Judge.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—Judge Riddell of the Ontario High Court will act as judge of the Exchequer Court in the case of the Berlin Gramaphone Co. v. the Columbia Phonograph Co., now pending.

The following appointments to the bench are gazetted: C. J. Mickle, junior judge of Essex, Ont.; C. E. Hewson, district judge, Manitoulin; E. A. Wismer, junior judge of Simcoe, Ont.

Enthusiasm For Simon.

Cape Haytien, Hayti, Dec. 19.—The election of Anione Simon was received with numerous manifestations of enthusiasm in his favor yesterday morning. The te deum was chanted at the cathedral, followed by a reception in the salons. The local delegates to the congress, which elected Gen. Simon on Thursday, was received everywhere with rejoicing. There is no prospect of any disorder.

Dr. Bell's Experiments.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, left here yesterday for Hammondsport, N.Y., where he will witness experiments with the Silver Dart, the fourth machine of the Aeronautic Experiment Association. Dr. Bell has decided to continue experiments with his tetrahedren machine at Badeck, N.S., and will go to that place from Hammondsport.

British Ship Sunk.

New York, Dec. 19.—The steamship Catalene, bound from Boston, last night collided with and sunk the British steamship Daghestan south of Gedney Channel. The crew of the Daghestan was saved, and the Catalene anchored apparently not greatly damaged.

Knox, Secretary of State.

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 19.—W. H. Taft, President-elect of the United States last night announced the appointment of U. S. Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania as Secretary of State in his Cabinet.

The announcement followed the receipt by Mr. Taft of a telegram which came late yesterday afternoon conveying the information from Mr. Knox that he would accept the Premiership of the Taft Cabinet.

Appeal to Press.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Council of Jewish Women has issued an appeal to newspapers for the elimination of indecent details in the published evidence at murder and divorce trials.

Special request is made for a conservative dealing with the present Hains murder trial "in order to safeguard our homes and our children from the demoralizing influence of prurient details."

HIGHWAYMEN HOLD UP THE TRAIN

Robbers Turn Semaphore and Loot Freight Car.

TWO SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Daring Trio at Niagara Falls, Ont., Stop a Freight Train and Steal Champagne and Turkeys — Large Part of Booty Is Found in Culvert—Two Caught by Officers Pursuing in an Engine.

Niagara Falls, Dec. 19.—Setting the semaphore against an eastbound freight coming into this city, three men carried out a daring hold-up of Wabash train No. 82 in the early hours of yesterday morning at Stamford. Two men, W. Forbes and A. Scott, are under arrest on suspicion, and the capture of a third is expected shortly. The engineer seeing the signal against him stopped the train at the semaphore, and for an hour waited to receive the signal to enter the Grand Trunk freight yards. During this time the thieves secured from a refrigerator car 13 turkeys and 5 cases of Moet & Chandon extra dry champagne. While guarding the train the conductor discovered that a car had been pilfered, and secured instructions to pull into the yards and Chief Kinnmins was notified. An engine was placed at the disposal of the police, and Sergt. Welsh went to investigate. About two miles up the line he saw foot tracks, and in a culvert he found the turkeys and champagne. They were taken on the engine and Welsh remained and traced the footsteps. Following up the clues he made a visit to the home of Forbes, placing him under arrest. Officers Brown and Dart arrested Scott. They will come up for hearing to-day.

Bank Statement Issued.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—According to the November bank statement issued yesterday demand deposits increased from 190 to 206 1-8 millions in October, while notice deposits ran up from slightly under 414 millions to almost 420 millions.

There was a slight decrease in deposits outside of Canada.

Call loans outside of Canada increased from $70,000,000 to $85,000,000, which indicates dearer money across the border. There was a shrinkage of three and a half million in current loans at home, as compared with October.

Total liabilities were $815,539,495, as against $791,972,683, and the total assets $994,885,648, as against $971,219,560.

Chops Off Fingers.

Cornwall, Dec. 19.—"These fingers will steal no more," said William Bero as he chopped the four fingers off his left hand in a local meat market at 10 a.m. yesterday.

Bero was on his way to the Police Court in charge of an official to receive sentence for stealing six hides and selling them. He asked the policeman to take him inside to speak to the proprietor, and, seizing the cleaver at the block, made himself a cripple for life.

Bero is a married man, about 40 years of age.

Wanted to Go to Hell.

Charlotte, N.C., Dec. 19.—Henry Harvey, a negro, was hanged at Rockingham, N.C., for murder. He refused spiritual comfort, telling the ministers that he desired to go to hell for a special purpose.

On the march to the gallows a chicken flew over the heads of the party, and the condemned man exclaimed laughingly: "Somebody catch that chicken."

To Prison For Defrauding State.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 19.—Judge Kunkel yesterday morning imposed sentence upon the men convicted of conspiracy to defraud the state in contracts for supplying furniture to the new state capitol, as follows: J. H. Sanderson, W. P. Snyder, W. L. Mathues and J. M. Shumaker, $500 fine and two years' imprisonment, the maximum penalty.

Jury's Censure General.

Virden, Man., Dec. 19.—A coroner's jury found that Michael Farrell came to his death by burns from a coal oil explosion. The jury added a rider that this case shows a lack of supervision by both local and federal Governments, and much carelessness in the whole matter of handling oil.

Harty's Expenses.

Kingston, Dec. 19.—The financial agent of Hon. William Harty, the successful candidate for the Federal House of Kingston, reports his expenditure for the campaign as $2,411.52. For advertising and stationery $1,000 was spent, and for rent and clerical help $1,130.

Played Cards In Church.

Belleville, Dec. 19.—At Bancroft on Sunday last Rev. Mr. Spargo delivered a scathing rebuke to some young men who were playing cards in church during the service. The young men belonged to respectable families in the village.

Big School Burns.

Altoona, Pa., Dec. 19.—A fire which threatened the destruction of the magnificent Altoona High School building started yesterday while 600 pupils were at their studies. The fire drill worked perfectly. Loss $100,000.

Advertising Co. Incorporated.

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—The Canadian Advertising Co., Ltd., of Montreal, has been incorporated with a capital of $99,000.

The Charm of the Piano

A piano ceases to be an instrument and becomes a thing of life under the hands of a master. It breathes every emotion—that is, if the piano is a great one, like the New Scale Williams. It is matchless for tone and volume. 3

Development Of Christmas As Revealed By Pages Of History; The Holly And The Mistletoe

On Christmas eve the bells were rung;
On Christmas eve the mass was sung;
That only night of all the year,
Saw the stoled priest the chalice rear.
'Twas Christmas broach'd the mightiest ale,
'Twas Christmas told the merriest tale;
A Christmas gambol oft would cheer
A poor man's heart through half the year.

Christmas was first instituted by one of the Popes in the year 138, and it soon became the most important of all the festive days in the calendar. For 200 years it was movable like ower church days, but in the fourth century by order of Pope Julius I., a convention was called to make investigation regarding the day of Christ's nativity, and by common agreement the twenty-fifth of December was accepted, and Christmas then changed from a movable to a fixed festive day. It has always been celebrated in its double significance, both as a day of holy commemoration and of festive merriment.

EARLY CHRISTMAS REVELS

Among the early revels of the Christmas season were the so-called feasts of fools. The lower classes imitated the higher, and the higher for the time being laid aside their usual decorum. This reversing of the usual conditions of society was sometimes prearranged by the appointment of a "lord of misrule." It became his duty to provide all possible forms of amusement with the people of all grades and of all ages as the actors. Comic masks and fancy costumes were worn and everything was encouraged that would add to the mirth of the season. In later years the custom of decking the houses and churches during the Christmas season with evergreens became common. This had its origin in the forms of worship practised by the Druids, who believed that the sylvan spirits made their homes amid the groves that were never nipped by the frost. The holly, ivy, laurel, mistletoe and rosemary, served for these churches and home trimmings, and they were not removed till February 2nd, Feast of Candlemas.

This Christmas celebration in some parts of Europe, soon became to be regarded as the "children's festial," and Christmas Eve was the favourite period of the year for the giving of presents, especially in the family circle. A small yew tree was set up in the house and illuminated with small candles. The branches were decorated with trinkets and hung with nuts, fruit and all manner of gifts, each gift bearing the name of the party for whom it was intended.

CUSTOMS HAVE BEEN PRESERVED

The ways of the world and the customs of the people change more or less from century to century, but it is pleasing to know that for 1900 years December 25th has been observed as the most festive day of the year. We have preserved all the charming customs that had their origin many centuries ago. We decorate our churches and our homes with the same evergreens; we erect the Christmas tree, and every limb is illuminated and loaded with presents. The day is still the "children's day," and it is dedicated from morn till eve, to feasting and merry-making.

The evergreens are all intimately associated with our Christmas season. The holly is possibly the favourite; in fact, it seems to have but this one purpose of Christmas decoration in mind during its growth. The leaves are rigid and their arrangement is such as to produce the very best effects. The harmony in color between the green of the leaves and the red of the berries is perfect.

HOLLY AND MISTLETOE

We may be led to suppose that the holly is able to retain its coloring during the cold season because the leaves are so firm and rigid, being almost leather like in texture. Yet a charming fern included in our winter gathering for decorating purposes is not tough and rigid like the holly. On the contrary it appears quite delicate, like all of its fern associates, and it is wonderful that, even in midwinter, it retains its summer colouring. The upper leaflets of the frond are covered with spore cases. This evergreen is honoured with the name of Christmas fern.

The mistletoe rightfully finds a place in all Christmas decorations. The lycopodium is a long, creeping vine, with branchlets spreading themselves, fan shaped at frequent intervals. This is found in great abundance in the pine regions, and every year large quantities are brought to market for the purpose indicated by its appropriate name, the trailing Christmas green. It is admirably adapted for festoon effects.

Exciting Games At Curling Rink---Just Like Old Times

The first games at the curling rink were played last night, and if they are any criterion of what is to come the new building will be continually resounding with excitement and shouts of encouragement. A rink skipped by Mr. Geo. Giroux went the fourteen ends with that which M. C. N Brown was skipping, the score board showing 13 all. The tie was played off. Mr. Giroux's rink winning out by 14 to 13. According to all reports it was a game that draws the crowd around and everybody was interested in the outcome. The rinks were as follows:

Geo. Hill, ...F. Brownscomb
A. Webb, ... M. Lyle
Wm. Lang, ...Dr. Wightman
Geo. Giroux, ...C. N. Brown

That was not the only game that was played last night. There was another, a little more decisive, but still close enough to be exciting. Skip Archie Moore's rink went down before the quartette which Mr. J. H. Ferguson was skipping.

The rinks were as follows:

W. P. Adamson, ...L. F. Cross
Harry Evans, Dr. G. Stewart Cameron
A. Moore, (14)...J. H. Ferguson, (16)

With good ice from now on if the weather is of the zero variety the rink should be the meeting place of the lovers of the good old game. Everything is promising for a pleasant winter and there is nothing to suggest that every expectation will not be realized.

CRESSMAN'S HOCKEY TEAM ORGANIZES FOR SEASON

Red and white are at best very conspicuous but will be more so when Cressman's fast hockey seven will disport them on the crystal sheet this winter. A meeting was held last night on the third floor of the establishment when the following election of officers was made—

Hon Pres—A W Cressman
Pres—A Temple.
Sec Treas—Russell Patterson
Manager—John Titterson
Capt—J Duffie

A managing committee of the manager, captain and J. Petrie was also selected. The Brock street rink has been secured for an hour each week and a series of games between two teams from the store is being arranged

OLD PETERBOROUGH BOY WRITES TO PAINTERS' UNION

Gives Them Some Words of Encouragement in Their New Undertaking.

At the regular meeting of the Painters and Decorators Union held on Tuesday night, the following interesting letter from an old Peterborough boy was read to the members—

Toronto, Dec. 14th, 1908.

To Mr. Fred Cook, Pres. of the P. and D. Union, Peterborough:

Dear Sir—I, having read in the Examiner, the account of a meeting of the Master Painter and Decorators of Peterborough, was pleased to read that you had visitors of the standing of J. J. Obearn and S. N. Hughes, the latter person I only know by reputation. You have taken the right step to elevate the trade in Peterborough. You may find it hard and rough at first, but you will get it all right in a short time by sticking to the rules and constitution.

Peterborough has let the trade run down for years, the worst of any I know of. I speak as an old Peterborough painter and a native of the town.

I started to learn the trade in 1860 and worked at it ever since; I only know one other in Peterborough or county that has worked at it as steady or as long as I have and that is John Gibbs. He was in harness when I last saw him. I consider this the best move that ever was taken in the old town to make the trade respected, and put in the right place of standing where it ought to be one of the first crafts of the day. Stop all dissensions and pull together, there is work enough for all; you will never make a success by cutting prices or petty jealousy. Things are not now-a-days what they used to be, and we have to co-operate and pull together to make a success. So I wish the Master Painters of Peterborough all sorts of good luck.

Yours truly,
JOHN SIMONS,
50 Humberb st., Toronto

HERE'S THE CHAMPION HEIFER WITH 752 POUNDS OF BEEF

Splendid Showing of Christmas Meats at R. Dale's Meat Mart, Rubidge Street.

Who said there was no prime fat beef in this section? Let him go down to Mr. R. Dale's meat market on Rubidge street and size up the dressed beef on the hooks, and see if he won't "take it all back." Three heifers are displayed which were brought from Thompson Bros., of South Monaghan, and by good judges to be the best beef yet shown this season. One of the heifers produced 752 pounds of dressed beef, and only a three-year-old at that. And such beef! Rich, juicy, pink, and red meat, with a combination of creamy yellow fat that would set an epicure's teeth on edge. A roll of clear fat on the ribs of one hind quarter is over six inches in thickness. Such beef is a credit to the Thompson Bros' careful feeding and raising.

THE LINDSAY PEOPLE SHOWED THEMSELVES VERY CLEVER AMATEURS

Mr. Irving Beers, under whose direction "All the Comforts of Home" was presented here recently by a caste of local amateurs, is in the city for a few days, after putting on the clever comedy in Lindsay, under the auspices of the Rugby Club on Thursday night. Mr. Beers speaks on terms of highest praise of the treatment he has received at the hands of the Lindsay people, whom he reports were most hospitable in their attentions. He succeeded in securing a most clever caste, and was greatly pleased with their work which was most delightful throughout. Byron Green, well known here, made a hit in the role as Dr. Hastings, his acting being most acceptable.

COCOA DEMONSTRATION.

—The free demonstration of Cowan's Cocoa, Chocolates and Icing at White & Gillespie's store, George street, is growing more interesting to the ladies every day. All this week Miss Shepherd, the expert from Toronto, will be in attendance. Call in and have a cup of cocoa and sample the toothsome delicacies on exhibition. Cowan's Icings are also very popular.

Give Furs For Xmas

¶ No Gift would be more acceptable at this season of the year than one of our Fur articles. We have one of the largest and best assorted stocks of Furs in this district—in fact it's too large, and we have decided to inaugurate a Before Xmas Sale in order to reduce.

¶ Below we offer a few suggestions for Xmas Shoppers and prices—worth more than a passing notice.

¶ Alaska Sable Muffs, from 10.00 up, worth 13.50. Mink Muffs, from 33.00 to 55.00, worth 35.00 to 65.00, Rock Marten Sets for Girls and Misses. Original price 18.00, on sale now at 13.00.

¶ White Thibet Stole and Muff for Misses and Young Girls. On sale at from 13.50 to 18.00 per set.

¶ Ladies' Fur Lined Coats at greatly reduced prices.

¶ MEN'S COON COATS anywhere in Canada 75.00, we sell them for $65.00. We invite comparison of our Coon Coats with any other Coon Coat of the price on the market, in fact, we prefer probable purchasers to look around and compare prices and qualities with ours.

¶ MEN'S FUR LINED COATS—Nice dark natural Muskrat skins with Otter or Persian Lamb Collars from $65.00 to $100.00. The best value to be had anywhere.

¶ MEN'S PERSIAN GAUNTLETS—With rich, glossy curl for $20.00, worth 25.00.

¶ MEN'S PERSIAN LAMB CAPS, wedge and jockey shapes from $10.00 to $15.00. We have also a cheaper line of Men's Persian Lamb Caps that are exceptionally good value.

¶ CHILDREN'S FURS—Grey Lamb Caps, Gauntlets and Collars at greatly reduced prices.

¶ It's a pleasure to meet people who are stylishly and appropriately dressed for the season and this weather is giving the average man and woman an intense desire for the comfort of Furs.

Ours is the store to get the best at most reasonable prices. We have a select stock of Furs and the latest styles. Don't forget that it's Furs for Christmas.

VALUE OF CHRISTMAS STAMPS

The World-Wide Fight Against the Great White Plague.

EXAMPLES FOR CANADIANS

What Is Being Done In New York—Where the Stamps Have been Tried—The Work That Is Being Done.

The sale of stamps in aid of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is by no means a new idea. Its success has been proven elsewhere just as it is being proven here. The New York Herald says:

On millions of letters and packages carrying messages and tokens of good will this holiday season there will appear a new stamp, the stamp of the Red Cross Society, now placed on the market at a cent each to raise funds to enable the society to extend its work against tuberculosis where organized effort is not now being made to stamp out the disease.

New in New York, the stamp idea has been tried with marked success in Europe and last year in the States of Delaware and Pennsylvania. Though the idea is essentially American, having first been used at a sanitary fair held in Boston in 1862 to raise funds for work on the battle fields of the South, it has not since been used for that purpose until the Portuguese and Danish Red Cross adopted it as a means to raise funds. Its great success in these countries attracted the attention of Jacob A. Riis, himself a Dane, and led to its adoption by the American society.

Those who attended the sessions of the International Congress on Tuberculosis in Washington, in September and October, and heard the experts of the world describe the progress made in the study and control of the disease, and who saw the great exhibition connected with the Congress in the Museum of Natural History, were impressed by the new note of hope sounded. This crusade had its beginning in the work of the German Red Cross, following the discovery of Dr. Koch that tuberculosis is transmissible by the tubercle bacillus. One of the most interesting contributions presented at the Congress, to accompany the exhibit of the German Red Cross, was a book describing the latter's fight against tuberculosis.

Many Portable Houses.

The campaign of the German Red Cross began ten or eleven years ago, when it had on hand many hundred portable houses designed for use as hospital barracks in time of war. These were converted to use for the housing of tuberculous patients. From this beginning has grown the present highly developed work. The Russian Red Cross was not long in following the example set by Germany. Some tuberculosis work has been done by the Austrian Red Cross. Other Red Crosses have undertaken different kinds of "peace activity," the Japanese, for instance, campaigning against a native plague, the Italian Red Cross against malaria and the Congo Red Cross against the sleeping sickness.

The advent of the American Red Cross to the field was welcomed by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. After consultation, the Red Cross decided last January to concentrate its efforts at first upon establishing tuberculosis day camps, which are places, in or near cities, where tuberculous patients may find the conditions essential to improvement and cure—rest, air, light and proper food. The first Red Cross day camp in America was opened in Schenectady on June 29, and was conducted three months in co-operation with the Municipal Tuberculosis Dispensary and the local charities. The District of Columbia Red Cross soon after opened another camp. Camps will be opened next spring in several other cities.

The largest of all the Red Cross day camps was opened on December 1, on the roof of the Vanderbilt Clinic, which is the dispensary of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the medical department of Columbia University. The clinic fitted the roof and furnishes physicians. The expense of nursing and feeding the forty patients is being met by the New York County Red Cross. Eventually there will be accommodation for more than one hundred patients, and the camp will become a night camp as well. Other camps will be opened by the county committee as soon as receipts warrant. It is hoped that the sale of the Christmas stamps will be so successful that camps may be opened in every district of the city.

The new stamps have been gotten out by the million. No one makes any profit on them, and practically every cent goes into the fight against tuberculosis. Where the Red Cross is not undertaking work of its own, it is helping other tuberculosis work. But the raising of money is not the sole purpose of the Christmas stamp. As Jacob Riis says:

"Every one who sees this stamp on a letter or post card wants to know what it means. And when people want to know the fight is won. It is because they do not know a few amazingly simple things that people die of tuberculosis."

A Word of Warning.

Remember that it is not necessary that one be a lavish spitter to infect his surroundings with tubercle germs. Experiments have demonstrated that these germs are sometimes to be found in large numbers in mere droplets of saliva thrown about when one is coughing, or talking, or laughing or singing.

Customs Revenues Show Improvement—A Danger Signal for Steamers—C.P.R. and G.T.P.R. on Joint Terminal Arrangement at Fort William—The Canadian Banks are Prosperous.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Ottawa, Dec. 19.—An increase of $8,509,333 in exports, a decrease of $7,859,622 in imports, and a trade balance in Canada's favour of $6,965,875, are the outstanding features of the trade returns for the past month, as compared with November of last year. The excess of exports over imports for the month is the largest for any month in Canada's trade for years past. Exports of domestic goods for the month totalled $31,672,224. As compared with last year, agricultural products increased by $7,939,436, exports of animals and their produce increased by $1,291,580, exports of the forest increased by $135,047, exports of the mine decreased by $780,504. Total imports for the month were $24,706,349. For first eight months of present fiscal year the imports have totalled $194,827,463, a decrease of $64,867,721. Total exports of domestic products were $168,080,189, a decrease of $4,363,190.

An order in council has been passed amending the Canadian rules of the road for the great lakes, by making the danger signal at least five short and rapid blasts of the whistle, instead of four, as at present.

Notice is given in the Official Gazette that the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Companies will apply at the coming session of Parliament for an act to ratify the agreement, dated the first of December, providing for joint terminal facilities at Fort William.

Deposits in Canadian banks at the end of November were of record proportions, being $694,470,000. Commercial loans amounted to $543,594,492.

OBITUARY.

MRS. S. WOOLMER

Late in the afternoon of Tuesday, Dec. 8th, there passed away one of the residents of Robinson street in the person of Mrs. Woolmer, wife of Samuel Woolmer and daughter of Matthew Henderson, at the early age of thirty-two years.

With indomitable hopefulness and strength of mind she battled with pneumonia and its complications for five weeks, but in spite of the summoning of the aid of everything known to medical skill, the spirit of her favourite hymn, Gathering Home, became true to her. Mrs. Woolmer was beloved by all who held her acquaintance. She was a member of the George street Methodist Church for many years, while before the cares of a growing family demanded her attention she was an active worker. An husband survives her and six children, the youngest of which is a little boy just four weeks old. The funeral service, which was held at the private residence on Friday at 2 p.m., was largely attended and the remains were interred in the Methodist cemetery. Many floral tributes were laid upon the coffin by sympathizing friends. The pall bearers were Messrs. Ignatius Sprouls, Allan McIntosh, Andrew Duncan, Harry Hill, Charles Harris and John Brown. Mr. Woolmer and his motherless boys and daughter have the heartfelt sympathy of all.

—Collingwood Bulletin.

Mr. Woolmer was a sister of Mrs. Wood. J Metheral, 140 Murray street, Peterborough.

THE DOMESTIC SCIENCE CLOSING EXHIBIT YESTERDAY

Miss Reesor led in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," at the conclusion, accompanied by Mrs. Roger-Collins, pianiste.

The Prize Winners
The winners in the Camera Club competition and their prizes were:
1. Folding pocket camera, valued at $12, donated by Eastman Kodak Company.—N A Howard-Moore.
2. Scales donated by Tate-Taylor Optical Company.—R Picard.
3. Year's subscription to Camera Craft—R S Rose.
4. Photo, valued at $2.25—Mrs. A McCarthy.

Three prizes of membership to the Camera Club were won by: Rev. Dr. Marsh, O Primeau, and E Mitchell. The Y.W.C.A. presented red, green, yellow and white rosettes to the four winners first mentioned.

To the Domestic Science Committee much credit is due for the success of the whole affair and especially to the convener, Mrs. H D Burnett, whose energetic efforts assisted greatly towards the splendid results. The work of Miss Johnson was highly pleasing to the mothers of those who have taken courses in the Domestic Science classes of the past year.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the roots, and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of fair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. McDermid and Jury, and 3 boxes for $1.25.

BIG CROWD ENJOYED EXCELLENT SKATING AT BROCK STREET RINK

The biggest crowd of the season was present at the Brock Street rink last evening and enjoyed a delightful two hour's skating. The cold snap of the night before had enabled Caretaker Thirnbeck to provide a sheet of ice such as he delights in, and the crowd found it much to their liking. The 57th Band was on hand and rendered enjoyable music during the evening. The new rule in regard to smoking in the rink was carefully observed, and the management found little difficulty in enforcing once the patrons understood that they were not expected to smoke anywhere except in the rooms upstairs provided for the purpose.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. CONDON

Young's Point, Dec. 17.—Mr. Joseph Young is confined to the house through illness.

Mr. Andy Wilson is laid up with rheumatism, the past week.

The death of Nora A Kearney, wife of Mr. Wm. Condon, of Saginaw, Mich., occurred in that city on Tuesday, the 8th inst. The deceased was 65 years old, born in Young's Point, and was a sister of Mr. Alex. Kearney and J E Kearney (also Mrs. L G Poebert, of Bridgenorth. She was highly respected and a great favourite with both young and old, who knew her. The remains were to be buried here, but were held in Saginaw until her son, Frank, who was in Seattle at the time, came home; therefore the funeral took place in Saginaw.

A number of our boys are back in the lumber camps at present, therefore we don't expect to have a skating rink or hockey club this winter.

Mr. Geo. Hickey, of Peterborough, and a number of men are busy replanking the steamer Empress. They expect to have her completed in about six weeks.

The sleighing is excellent through the country here at present and a large quantity of wood is being handed to Peterborough and Lakefield.

Furniture Establishment Was Scene Of Exciting Saturday Night Blaze—Fire In Upholstering Room

J. D. Craig's Store Visited by the Fire Fiend—Cotton Took Fire From a Head of a Match—Fire Brigade Did Good Work.

LOSS WILL BE ABOUT $800

The head of a lighted match flying off and lighting in a bale of cotton was the cause of a fire on Saturday night in the upholstering department of J D Craig's furniture establishment at the corner of George and Brock streets that caused considerable excitement, coming as it did shortly after nine o'clock on the night of Christmas Saturday, when the streets were crowded with people. Mr. Craig with several other men was in the room at the time and the proprietor was lighting a match when the head came off and fell into the cotton, which burst into flames instantly and despite every effort spread so rapidly that those present were unable to check it and the fire brigade was called out by telephone.

Chief Howard and his men were on the scene in remarkably short time and found a nice little blaze awaiting them. A pile of tow and excelsior had caught fire from the cotton and the fire was spreading over the room when they arrived. Efforts were made to extinguish the blaze with the chemicals, but one of the Babcocks refused to work properly, and it became necessary to turn the water on. The fire was quickly extinguished by means of one stream and was confined to the upholstering room which is at the rear of the upstairs part of the building.

Mr. Craig estimates his damage at $500 which will be covered by insurance in the Norwich Union. The upholstering room and its contents were badly damaged, several lounges and chairs being burned, while in the room beneath there was considerable damage done by water. Fortunately the blaze did not reach either the upstairs or downstairs warerooms, and the business will not be interfered with in the least as the show rooms and their contents were not damaged.

An immense crowd gathered in the neighbourhood while the brigade was at work.

The Unexpected Death Of A Prominent Local Gentleman

Mr. Alfred Parker, for Years Proprietor of Laundry and Dye Works, Passes Away—Seriously Ill But a Few Hours.

MOST SUCCESSFUL CAREER

The deepest of sympathy has been occasioned in the city, among the friends and acquaintances of Mr. Alfred Parker, who passed away so suddenly yesterday morning, shortly after midnight, at his residence, 394 Park street.

The deceased was down street on two or three occasions on Saturday, and was feeling much better than usual. He was very cheerful and many of his friends were talking with him that evening, so that it was a great shock to them to learn of his demise.

The late Mr. Parker for some time has been in poor health, although it was not at all serious and did not interfere with him getting around. He had suffered one or two slight attack of weakness, but did not realize his condition. On Saturday evening he arrived at his home about 10.30 o'clock, in the best of sprits, but soon afterwards he experienced a sudden illness, and although medical assistance was summoned, he sank gradually, until he passed away at midnight, from heart failure.

He was one of the best known men in the city, and was one of the most highly respected. He entered into business here a quarter of a century ago, when he established the Parker's Laundry and Dye Works, and during his career he met with considerable success. About three years ago he retired from active life, handing the management of the business over to Mr. Robert Beach and Mr. Percey Hetherington. About that time the deceased established his son Robert in the dye business in Hamilton.

The late Alfred Parker was a prominent member of the A. F. & A. M., and also of the Methodist Church, in which he took a leading part, having been on the church board of the George Street Methodist Church and a class leader for some years. He was also a member of the Board of Health for several years. As a man he was honest and upright, a friend to every one and respected and liked by all.

He was born 49 years ago in Manchester, England, and coming to this country settled first in Ottawa.

Surviving him are his wife, four children—Robert, of Hamilton; Harold, Madeline and Ola, at home—two brothers, James and William, of Ottawa, and two sisters, Mrs. Allan, Ottawa, and Mrs. T. Gemmell, Guelph.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock, from his late residence on Park street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. W. G. Henderson and Rev. E. A. Pearsbon will officiate.

New Officers Of St. Peter's T. A. S. Were Elected Yesterday

The semi-annual election of officers of St. Peter's T. A. S was held yesterday afternoon at the regular meeting of the society. The attendance was large and the interest the members are showing in the affairs of the T. A. S. speaks well for its welfare. The officers for the next six months are as follows—

Spiritual Director—Rev Father O'Brien.
President—Mr Nicholas Bibby
1st Vice Pres—Mr John Deanrard
2nd Vice Pres—Mr Jas Duffus
Rec Sec—Mr Jas Picard jr
Fin Sec—Mr A Lahane
Treas—Mr Jos Primeau
Marshal;—Mr Thos McGinty
Ass. Mar—Mr H O'Rourke
Guard—Mr E Flaherty.
Trustees—Messrs. Geo Abearn, P. O'Donnell, W S Merrell, A Sharpe, Chas McDonald.

Mr. Bibby who has been elected to the presidency for the next six months is well acquainted with the society's requirements having served in many other offices.

Clothing Caught In Pulley And Was Torn From Employee's Back

This morning, at the Brinton Carpet Works, a rather bad accident happened to Mr. John Wheeler, an English labourer. He was enlarging a hole through a wall for a shaft, when in some manner his coat caught in a pully, tearing almost every stitch of clothing off his back. Dr. Greer was on the spot almost immediately and reported that no bones were broken, but that he was badly bruised and shaken up. The Dan Spence ambulance was called and he was conveyed to his home on McGill street.

THE WEDDING PRESENTS DISAPPEARED

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fitzgerald Lose $250 Worth of Goods.

A letter received this morning from Mr. Clarence Fitzgerald, formerly of Peterborough, and now of Vancouver, B. C., tells of the theft of some valuables from his residence there, a few days ago. One evening he and Mrs. Fitzgerald went out for a three hour visit, and on their return found that the house had been broken into and that their wedding presents, including silverware, glassware, etc., to the value of about $250, had been stolen.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a son of Mr. G. W. Fitzgerald, London street.

A SPIRITED RUNAWAY ON SATURDAY EVENING

One of Mr. Marvin's Delivery Horses Gets Away—Driver Stays With the Sleigh.

On Saturday afternoon the horse attached to Marvin's delivery sleigh broke a hold back, at the corner of of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, and ran down Charlotte street to George street, up Simcoe to Water and along Water to Brock, where it was stopped. On Simcoe street a number of sleighs leaving the market got rather jarred, but the horse managed to get through without doing any damage to the sleigh behind it, but how many people had the paint rubbed off their sleighs is not known. The driver stayed with the outfit all through and never lost a thing out of the sleigh, which was a marvellous sight to any one watching the way it tried to find both sides of the road at once.

Anthem: "Thee We Adore," by C. Lorenz. Solos by Mrs. Matchett, Miss Kennedy and Mr. Callander.
Hymn 144.
Duet and Chorus: "O, Little Town of Bethlehem." Duet by Mrs. Sargent and Miss Kennedy.
Offertory: Quartette: "Bethlehem Star," by J. B. Wilson; Messrs. Coon, Callander, Succee and Speer.
Hymn 146.

Evening.

Hymn 143.
Anthem: "Calm on the Listening Ear of Night," by Carrie B. Adams. Solo by Mrs. Sargent.
Hymn 145.
Solo: "Emmanuel," by Paul Rodney. Mr. T. Pratt.
Offertory Quartette: "Praise Him," by C. Austin Mills. Mrs. Matchett, Miss Coon, Messrs. Callander and Speer.

Mr. Pratt's solo was an especially interesting feature.

COCOA DEMONSTRATION.

—The free demonstration of Cowan's Cocoa, Chocolates and Icing at White & Gillespie's store, George street, is growing more interesting to the ladies every day. All this week Miss Shepherd, the expert from Toronto, will be in attendance. Call in and have a cup of cocoa and sample the toothsome delicacies on exhibition. Cowan's Icings are also very popular.

Crisp Christmas Gifts

You enter some stores and a feeling creeps over you that unaccountably you find yourself wishing you hadn't entered and you either go away without making your intended purchases or take something that you do not like. You also go into stores that appeal to your fine sense of taste, the atmosphere seems to give off a Crispness that charms you and you go away with a pleased feeling—It's not the store it's the goods and the general feeling of good will displayed by the salespeople.

We will not say that our Toggery Shop is the height of perfection but we claim to aim at it; we do know our Goods are the crisp new kind, the very breath of fashion. They appeal to others, why not you?

POOR LAND AND FOREST.

Prof Zavitz of the Ontario Agricultural College, has directed attention to an important fact as set forth in the following from the Toronto News:—"Prof. Zavitz has done a real service to the community in pointing out that some lands in Norfolk county after a century of tillage were producing only $3.75 per acre. A little while ago some misguided people in New Ontario were bombarding the Government to throw some very poor lands covered with timber open to settlement. Would it not be an immense saving both in money and men to allow these lands to remain producing continuous crops of valuable pine and spruce rather than to allow generation after generation to wear its heart out forcing this non-agricultural soil for the pittance of $3.75 per acre?" This strengthens the contention made by the Examiner in an article in a recent issue calling attention to the wisdom and value of reforestry. In this it was pointed out that, on every farm there were waste spots which could be very profitably and beneficially planted to trees. The conditions mentioned by Prof. Zavitz indicate the desirability of action on the part of the Ontario Government. Land that yields only $3.75 an acre, to force the figure, only cumbers the ground. It could be bought at a moderate price and if planted to white pine would, in time, exercise the normal climatic influence of forest growth, and, besides, yield a valuable crop of timber. The drifting sand stretches of Manvers and Cavan were at one time covered with magnificent growths of pine, worth a hundred times more per acre for the timber product than the land is for crops. The Ontario Government has a full treasury and a little of the surplus might well be devoted to purchasing such lands and covering them with forests. No money spent for any purpose can be more profitably employed than it would be in restoring the waste, desolation, capricious rainfall, and capricious and undesirable climatic conditions generally, resulting from destruction of our forests.

Christmas "shopping" should be made a capital offence. From this till Christmas "buying" should be the only rule.

PARTIZAN AND UNPATRIOTIC

The Mail and Empire carries the partial excusable venom of an election campaign into the discussion of public matters, even into Christmas week. To score a party point it seems willing to sacrifice any conceivable public interest. In a recent issue it has this to say:

It is noteworthy that Mr. Hays, who has been telling of the progress of the Grand Trunk Pacific, deals only with the business end of the road. The Laurier, or "fool" section, he passed without comment. It is also worth remembering that the business end of the line was projected by business men, and not by the Laurier Government, and was supported by all parties.

This refers to the interview of Mr. Charles M. Hays, President of the G. T. P., published in the Nineteenth Century. Compare the comments of the vitriolic organ with what Mr. Hays thinks of the line, as a whole, the government part as well as that under construction by the Grand Trunk Pacific Company. Both are of the same standard, and what applies to one applies to the other. Mr. Hays is to be quoted thus:

"Well," said Mr. Hays, "a number of amiable and glib gentlemen hunting seats in the Dominion Parliament, have been on the stump, and these accusations are but the echoes of the late general election. The Canadian voter has replied to them. The Dominion Government is, as you know, our partner in the enterprise and thus to denounce Ministers for reckless extravagance is, of course, all right and proper from the view-point of an Opposition. But I deprecate the allegation, and I denounce the alligator our expenditures have not been excessive, nor beyond the measure of our obligations to the Government and the community. Bear in mind, please, that railroads are not now built as the earlier trans-Continental roads were built, up hill, down dale, on an unballasted road-bed of mud. Such uneconomic methods were permissible when there were a mere handful of ranchmen and trappers to serve, and when the promoters' objective was, first of all, to earn the land grant on which they issued their bonds. But these methods are ancient history; what we require to-day, and what the travelling public means to have, is a first class road-bed with such low gradients and wide curvatures that our trains will run at very high speeds with perfect safety."

The voice of the Mail and Empire is the voice of the political partisan. It does not seek to set forth the facts as to the Grand Trunk Pacific, but to distort them and to get party gain through discrediting the Government to which it is opposed. The Mail and its party have placed themselves in a position of antagonism to a great scheme necessary to the fuller development and growth of Canada, and to logically maintain the position assumed, facts must be twisted and even the dictum of a man best qualified to judge, must be ignored and misrepresented in the unpatriotic game of partisan advantage. It may suit the book of the Mail and its confreres to call the government section of the G. T. P. the "fool" section. But it is simply beating the air. The Grand Trunk Pacific will live in history and help make history long after the maunderings of the Mail are forgotten prey, in lightless lumber rooms, to the mordant moth.

Even with a third trans-continental railway completed the great need of Canada will be transportation and its complement, population.

A LESSON FROM THE TRENT VALLEY.

The Ottawa Free Press is naturally alive to the conditions which obtain in the Ottawa Valley owing to the lack of rain, which has practically caused the Ottawa to go dry. It quotes as an example of the beneficial conservation of our waters, the statement recently published in the Examiner with comments as follows:

The transformation which has come over the Chaudiere Falls, largely because of the insufficient rainfall this autumn, affords the Peterborough Examiner an opportunity to point out that the condition which has caused much loss to Ottawa's industries this year is due not only to lack of rainfall but also to "waste of rainfall." It says:—

"If the upper reaches of the Ottawa and tributary streams had been put under control and the freshets of spring held in reserve, instead of having been allowed to rush away in wasteful magnificence in the springtime, there would have been an available supply of water for power and other purposes, even till the present and for some time to come."

"And then the Examiner proceeds to point out how Peterborough has overcome and met just such a situation as has existed in Ottawa this year":—

"The watershed of the Otonabee has been subjected to the same rain dearth which has made the Ottawa river an immense arroyo, and paralyzed millions of industrial capital. Yet, though the water in the Otonabee is somewhat below the normal level of this time of the year it is still of sufficient robust volume for all the demands made upon it for industrial and other purposes, and there is sufficient held in reserve in the north to insure a sufficient, if not plentiful, flow till rains or melted snow bring about about a normal equilibrium of precipitation and flow. These happy conditions, compared with Ottawa and other places, are entirely due to the system of retaining dams situated in the northern part of our watershed by which reservoirs are created, permitting of the water being stored and released so as to produce an equable flow throughout the year, instead of being allowed to rush wastefully in sweeping spring freshets. When it is remembered that the conservation of water which is, this year especially, the salvation of Peterborough, has been accomplished by the help of dams built long ago, by or under the Ontario Government, before the water passed under Dominion jurisdiction, largely through the initiative and co-operation of Mr. Stratton when he was a member of the Ontario Government, we can better appreciate the advantages resulting to navigation, industrial enterprises and civic conveniences dependent upon an adequate supply of water. Since the water came under the control of the Dominion Government the old dams, which were, many of them, dilapidated and leaky, have been strengthened, many of them have been replaced by new and substantial permanent structures, with the results of which we are to-day reaping the decided advantage. The unfortunate experience of Ottawa and other places this dry season and the contrastingly happy experience of Peterborough and other points on the Trent waters, not only justify but insistently call for an extension and elaboration of the conservation system in the Trent Valley district, and also its extension to other places. By extensive, if not reckless, removal of nature's reservoirs, the original forests, we have made artificial conservation necessary. The meteorological conditions this year have forced this subject into a position challenging attention. For the past six months or so the Atlantic Ocean has been thirstily drinking up the water supply of the province, with Jupiter Pluvius withholding a supply."

"Thus instead of putting something aside for a rainy day, Peterborough is able to say that it has stored up its rainy days for its time of need. And there is every hope that when the works now in progress on the Ottawa are completed this city will be able to say the same thing."

True statesmanship combines with foresight, the work to make foresight effective.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The whisper goes round the German Kaiser's bailiwick that he is getting into the same class as George III. of England.

All around Hamilton the forests are cut away but the city is still in the backwoods stage—it runs its municipal elections on party lines. Poor Hamilton!

The Montreal Herald calls attention to the fact that the members of the new Dominion Parliament are good looking. A proper pendent to such a statement is the homely old saying "handsome is as handsome does."

The advertising columns of the Examiner are an excellent guide to profitable Christmas buying and should be taken with the suggestion that the buys twice who buys quickly, that is buys to doubly good advantage—in the matter of selection and convenience to the shopper and others.

The Toronto Mail and Empire and the Toronto News use their columns and the Christmas season to sow the seeds of national discord, and keep alive contentious subjects, while the altruistic Toronto Star uses its space to shatter "combines" and exploit Christmas dinner funds for the poor.

We hear with a shudder the report that Hearst, of New York, has bought the Montreal Witness. The decent and staid files of the Witness would shrink and squirm in their covers if such an enormity were perpetrated. Mr. Dougall, of the Witness denies the report emphatically. The Witness, as we know it, would be Hearst in a double sense if such a profanation had been committed.

Mr. John Hoodless, of Hamilton, advocates the placing of a number of females on the Board of Education in that city. We are afraid Mr. Hoodless takes a prejudiced view of the matter. He is blessed with a wife, who has particularly sane ideas on education and on a good many other things, and is, perhaps, charitable enough to think that other women may be equally capable and sensible.

CHEERFULNESS IN THE HOME

Cheerfulness is the keynote of Christmas as it should be spent. If you wish to be a participant in the glad tidings remember that this is a holiday season, a time when everybody is more or less liable to step aside from the beaten track of commonplace, everyday actions.

The home as the centre of the family circle and the place for the celebration of the Christmas festival, must always be a place of sunshine and cheerfulness. There is nothing that detracts from the proper spirit of happiness like a cross look, a harsh word or an unwelcome attitude.

Your husband feels the happiness of the season and becomes, possibly, overexuberant in consequence. If he is generally a normal man who can be relied upon at all times, do not be cross with him—whether his offence consists in falling off the water wagon or spending too much money for presents for his friends.

Children have grown to look upon Christmas with its Santa Claus and its Christmas tree and its beautiful traditions as being especially their own property. They will, in the fulness of their own happiness sometimes overstep the line of prudence. Should they do so remember that it is your duty to be cheerful, even if you must correct them, for unto you is born a King."

The value of cheerfulness is not thoroughly understood by a certain type of woman. She will sigh and moan and rack her brain looking for some reason to find fault with something or somebody. Her life appears like a constant effort to make herself miserable. And she succeeds admirably not only in making herself miserable, but also makes herself old looking, hurts her nervous system and has many other effects that are not conducive to health and sanity. Those who come in contact with this woman feel her disposition and become equally unhappy. 'Tis a case of poor human nature which always accepts the unreal and the cheerless.

THE CHEERFUL WOMAN

A cheerful woman is one of the greatest blessings God can provide. It is a beautiful thing to meet one of these angels anywhere. Recently a so-called captain of industry, who employs thousands of men, got on a street car to go to his office. His mind was preoccupied with deals and a thousand and one things that make life burdensome and the hair prematurely gray. The conductor was possibly more gruff than the average of his kind and he did not want any time wasted. He wished to live up to the company's schedule without doing so cheerfully. A woman in the car attracted the attention of the millionaire she was good to look at, comfortably, but plainly dressed, and well along in years. But, oh, such a smile as adorned her countenance. She looked the whole world in the face with the smile of an optimist. The conductor approached her and gruffly demanded her fare. The woman gave it to him, and said something cheerful about the weather, while he punched the transfer. The financier recognized the woman as the wife of a hard-working day labourer employed by himself, and afterwards assured his brother that he could not help making a contrast between her and his own pampered women folk. On the morning in question his wife had developed a nervous headache, because the water in her bath was not the proper temperature. It need not be said that the man with money envied the poor employee's lot as the husband of a happy and contented woman.

At Christmas tide it behooves every woman to be cheerful. Though your blessings be few you can be grateful for them and happy and cheerful in their enjoyment. Make your cheerfulness in adversity lay its imprint on the hearts of your children so that when they grow up and have young ones of their own about them they may bless you for the lesson you taught and the happiness you made possible to them.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. At all events you will act wisely if you advertise in the EXAMINER.

PARLIAMENT IS OVER IN LONDON

British House Closes To-Day With Little Accomplished.

FIVE BILLS FELL THROUGH

Asquith's Most Important Measures Failed For Various Reasons, and of Ten Big Proposals Only Five Passed—Another Session Is Probable —Liberals Are Not United Under the Present Premier.

London, Dec. 21.—So far as practical work is concerned, the first session of Parliament under the Premiership of Herbert H. Asquith, came to an end Saturday. The two Houses will meet again on Monday, but only to receive the King's assent to bills already passed under, when they will be prorogued until Feb. 16.

Many minor laws were enacted during the year, but of the ten important measures foreshadowed in the King's speech, only five find a place in the statute book. Those are the old-age pension bill, the Irish universities bill, to which assent was given before adjournment for the summer vacation, and measures fixing eight hours as the time miners shall work underground, providing for the purchase of the London docks at $115,000,000, and placing them under a central authority, and a bill for the better protection of children. This last named bill for the better protection of children, prohibits juvenile smoking and aims at preventing minors from visiting saloons.

Of the other measures projected, the licensing bill was rejected by the House of Lords; two education bills were withdrawn because of the failure of the church party and the nonconformists to report a compromise; the bills that aimed at the better housing of the working classes was put off until the next session, while the promised measure for Irish land valuation never saw light and the Irish land purchase bill was dropped.

The session widened the break between the Liberals and the House of Lords. The rejection of the licensing bill, for which the Liberals claimed they had received a mandate at the election of 1906, augmented the bad feeling resulting last year from the rejection or mutilation by the Lords of the education, plural voting and Scottish land valuation bills.

There is still talk of the dissolution of Parliament and an appeal to the country against the action of the Lords, but it is more likely that Premier Asquith will try another session, the main feature of which will be the budget, introducing radical changes in taxation. These changes include the reform of the income tax, a high license for saloons and taxation on land values, which would chiefly affect brewers, land owners and the wealthier classes and which the Liberal leaders believe would prove popular with the masses. One difficulty arises in the fact that the bonds uniting the various factions of the Liberal party are not so close under Mr. Asquith as under Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, and the Liberals would not present such a united front as they did in the last election.

French Cardinal Dead.

Chambery, France, Dec. 21.—Cardinal Victor Lucian Sulpice Lecot, archbishop of Bordeaux, died at an hotel here yesterday from hemorrhage of the brain, while returning from a visit to Rome.

Cardinal Lecot was the leader of the movement among a group of French ecclesiastics to find a basis of settlement in the difference which has arisen between the Government and the church. He was the exponent of Liberalism in the College of Cardinals, and went to Rome to submit to the Pope a plan for the amelioration of the material condition of the French clergy.

Bitten By Snake.

Kissimmee, Fla., Dec. 21.—While hunting thirty miles down the Kissimmee river on Saturday afternoon, H. C. Fountain, a prominent contractor, aroused a big rattlesnake, and in a fight killed the reptile only after it had sunk its fangs in his flesh.

With his hunting-knife he cut away the poisoned flesh, digging out the wound, and when he was found by the two men who were hunting with him, was able to hobble with their aid. He reached his home here yesterday, but died despite all efforts to save him.

Fire In Halifax.

Halifax, Dec. 21.—Fire last night destroyed a large building on Argyle street used as a boarding-house in connection with the Carleton Hotel. The building was formerly occupied as a residence by Sir Charles Tupper, when he was city medical officer of Halifax. The occupants had a miraculous escape, many being rescued with ladders by firemen. No one was seriously hurt.

Suicides In Trunk.

STATUTORY MEETING OF THE OTONABEE COUNCIL

Many Small Accounts to be Paid—Changes in Assessment.

The statutory meeting of the Township Council was held in the Township Treasurer's office, in the City of Peterborough, on Tuesday, December 15th, 1908, at 2 p. m. All the members were present, the reeve, Mr. Brown, presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. O LePlante appeared before the council and produced a plan of survey, showing a sub-division of parts 13, 14 and 15 in township lot 15 in the 11 concession, and requested the council to consent to the registration of the said plan.

Mr. G. Hatton appeared and produced a plan showing the sub-division of southwest quarter of township lot 12 in the 13 concession, and asked the council to consent to the registration of the plan.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn, the township treasurer, presented the financial statement of the township for the year. This was adopted and the clerk was instructed to have it printed and published, according to law.

The following accounts were handed in:

Thomas Brown, refund of dog tax	$ 1 00

On motion of Messrs. May and Dobbin, the accounts as presented were passed and ordered to be paid.

The township treasurer drew the attention of the council to an error on the part of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in a deposit entry, in the township account, whereby the bank would lose the sum of $10.

On motion of Messrs. Howden and Forster, an order was authorized to be issued in favour of the Bank of Commerce the difference in the township account caused by the error.

On motion of Messrs. May and Forster the plan showing the sub-division of south west 1-4 of lot 12 in 14 concession, of the Township of North Monaghan, was approved and the reeve and clerk were authorized to sign the same and attach the corporate seal thereto for the purposes of registration thereof.

On motion of Messrs. Howden and May, the application made by Mr. LaPlante for the consent of the council to the registration of the plan of sub-division of parks 13, 14 and 15, in the 11 concession, was referred to the township solicitor.

Orders were issued in payment of the following county schools monies:

ANOTHER OF PETERBORO'S YOUNG MEN ORDAINED TO PRIESTHOOD AT ST. PETER'S

Rev. Victor Gregory McFadden, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McFadden, Elm Street, Received Sacrament of Holy Orders Yesterday — His Lordship Bishop O'Connor Performed Ceremony.

VERY LARGE CONGREGATION

At St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning another of Peterborough's young men was received into the priesthood of the Catholic Church, and invested with the sacerdotal powers to assist in carrying on the work which was instituted by Jesus Christ.

Victor McFadden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin McFadden, Elm street, was the candidate for the sacrament of Holy Orders, which was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, during Pontifical High Mass, which he celebrated instead of the regular high mass at 10.30 o'clock. The ordination of a young man to the holy office of the priesthood is one of the most important functions of the Catholic Church, and as such, the ceremony is impressive in its solemnity. The fact that the cathedral's capacity was overtaxed was an evidence that the whole congregation were interested in the important step which was taken by the candidate, who is widely known in the city, where he has a host of friends, by whom he is held in highest esteem.

Scholastic Career

Rev. Father McFadden is in his twenty-sixth year, His education was begun at the old Murray Street Separate School, from which he passed his entrance examinations when eleven years old. He attended the Collegiate Institute, securing in succession what was then known as the third, second and first class certificates. Deciding to study for the priesthood he spent one year at St. Michael's College, Toronto. Going from there he spent three years at the Grand Seminary, Montreal, where he won distinction in his advanced studies. He next attended Ottawa College for one year, taking the degree of Bachelor of Arts. During the last two years and a half he has been at St. Michael's College, where he took further studies in Theology, and was also for a time a member of the teaching staff. He was ready to enter the priesthood several years ago, but considered that he was rather young to then assume that office.

The Ceremony

The ordination was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, who was assisted by Rev. Father McColl, Rev. Father O'Brien and Rev. Father Roche, of Toronto. His Lordship celebrated mass, wearing full pontificals, emblematic of the sacred power he confers upon the supplicant for ordination. Having previously received the minor orders and also the sacred orders of sub-deaconship and deaconship after having been duly examined as to his conduct and morals, his knowledge of sacred Scripture, theology, etc., the candidate, arrayed in the vestments of a deacon, was presented to His Lordship, and it having been asserted, that as far as it was possible to judge, he was worthy of the sublime office, His Lordship spoke to the congregation, saying that if any one knew any reason why the candidate should not be promoted to the priesthood to come forward and speak what he knew.

The ceremony was then continued after the Litany of the Saints was sung, His Lordship blessed the candidate thrice, after which the Bishop and attending clergymen performed the ceremony of the imposition of hands. After the recitation of certain prescribed prayers, His Lordship, seated, removed the stole from the candidate's left shoulder, and crossing it over his heart, said:

"Receive thou the yoke of the Lord, for His yoke is easy and His burden light."

The Bishop then invested him with the chasuble, folded on the shoulders, with the following words:

"Receive the sacerdotal vestment by which charity is understood, for God is powerful to increase in thee charity and every perfect work.

The candidate next received the powers to bless and consecrate, to offer sacrifice to God and to forgive sins. Then the Bishop unfolded the chasuble and clothed the candidate entirely with it, saying—

"With the stole of innocence may the Lord clothe thee." After he had promised obedience to the Bishop and his successor, His Lordship gave him the kiss of peace and admonished him in the prescribed form, and after standing and blessing him, the newly ordained priest, kneeling, received a concluding injunction.

The Sermon

The sermon for the occasion was preached by Rev. Father Roach of St. Michael's College, Toronto. His text was from St. Paul to the Corinthians 4-1, "Brethren, let a man so account of us as of the ministers of Christ, and the dispensers of the mysteries of God.' Rev. Father Roach said that the congregation was witnessing the celebration of a sacrament that lies at the foundation of things religious. He asked that they go back with him to the eve when Christ sat with His disciples at the last supper just previous to His delivering Himself to the Jews. At that table He took bread, broke it and gave it to His apostles, saying "Take ye and eat; this is my body" And taking the chalice He said. "Drink ye all of this, for this is my blood of the New Testament, which shall be shed for many unto the remission of sins."

Rev. Father Roach said that the world had always been conscious that there is something better than the life we are now living. The pages of history have been ransacked to find some people that did not have a sacrifice. Invariably sacrifice has entailed the idea of sin. Long ago the sages spoke of a golden age, when there was peace among men. This was followed by another in which there was wrong-doing, combat, and sin, and contemporaneous with sin there was sacrifice.

Sacrifice Needed

The speaker gave a history of religious sacrifices from the earliest ages. Sin was everywhere and man felt impotent in its presence and unable to cope with it. He felt obliged to offer something to God as an atonement for what had been done. There had been sin amongst the very angels and afterwards by it man became a fallen and degenerate race.

Continuing Rev. Father Roach beautifully portrayed the coming of Christ. His life upon the earth and His death and sacrifice on Calvary for the redemption of mankind. It suffered for us as man, but as God that sacrifice was sufficient to appease the wrath of His Father in Heaven.

After Christ had given His command to His apostles at the last supper, they had gone into the world and continued His work and since that time men have done likewise pronouncing the efficacous words which He had ordered.

Some are Chosen

Rev. Father Roach dwelt upon the necessity of having priests. "They are chosen for you" he said, "because we are all sinners and we need a representative of Christ to perform the sacrifice of the mass to forgive sins and to consecrate bread and wine changing it into His body and blood. Christ wanted to be with His people and for that reason we have priests.

All men were redeemed the speaker said, when Christ died for us, and he showed how much worse off would we have been had the Saviour left us no sacraments to commemorate His death and passion. How frequently we are cognizant of the fact that we have sinned and that if death overtook us at that hour we would be lost irretrievably."

Rev. Father Roach concluded by dealing with some of the duties of the priest and congratulated the parish and the family of the candidate that they were giving to God a young man to labour in His cause.

The Bishop's Address

At the conclusion of the mass Bishop O'Connor stated that it was a matter of congratulation that the parish had given another of its young men to labour not for himself but for the people. The priest, he said, is the mediator between God and man applying the fruits of the death of Jesus Christ to the individual soul. His Lordship asked the people to pray for the young priest. He also asked for the prayers of the congregation that more young men be chosen from the parish for the religious life.

After mass the Rev. Father McFadden gave his first blessing to the people, his parents and brother and sister being the first to receive it. Last night he sang vespers displaying a strong musical voice in the parts in which he had to sing. This morning he said his first mass at eight o'clock and many of his friends and relatives assisted at it.

This morning Rev. Father McFadden left for Toronto for St. Michael's College, where he will say mass tomorrow, and give his friends of that institution his first blessing. He will return to the city on Wednesday. It is not known yet what parish Father McFadden will be assigned to by the Bishop, and in the meantime he will be connected with the Cathedral.

Rev. Father Lynch, one of the oldest of Peterborough's priests, was one of the most interested persons who attended the high mass yesterday. It was he, who twenty-six years years ago, baptized Rev. Father McFadden, and has since watched his progress towards the priesthood. Rev. Father Lynch assisted in the ceremony yesterday.

The Examiner's Treat For Jealous People Who Want To Reform

"I am jealous and I really want to reform." That's all you have to say in order to obtain without cost a seventy-five cent seat for the King production of the beautiful emotional drama "East Lynne," which comes to the Grand for a matinee and evening performance on Christmas Day. Sounds easy, doesn't it? and it is just as easy as it sounds. The Examiner has prepared this treat as an holiday event for its readers, and the first thirty people (men, women or children) who come into this office after 2.30 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, greet the person in charge with the above salutation, and produce a copy of the last edition of the Examiner, will receive a ticket entitling the holder to the best seat in the house for either matinee or evening production of "East Lynne." There are absolutely no other requirements except that you must acknowledge that you are jealous and anxious for a reformation which the Examiner desires to bring about by allowing you to see the splendid drama, the keynote of which is jealousy. Remember only the first thirty people will have a chance to obtain free tickets, and that the offer is open after 2.30 p.m. on Wednesday.

DEDICATION OF CHURCH POSTPONED

Opening of the Basement of New Methodist Church in Lakefield.

The dedication of the new Methodist Church in Lakefield has been postponed until January 17, owing to the fact that it has not been finished inside, and no lights have been put in yet. On Friday last speeches in the basement of the church were given by the Rev. S .T. Bartlett, of Toronto, and the Rev. Mr. McGillicuddy, President of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

At five o'clock supper was served and a concert given by local talent afterwards. There was also a bazaar held the money to go to the building fund of the new church.

There were about 500 people present for the concert, and an enjoyable time was spent by all present.

Interesting Essay On Mary Queen of Scots Was Given

Read at Ladies' T. A. S. Literary Meeting by Miss Alice Moloney —Struggle Between England and Scotland.

A MUSICAL PROGRAMME

On Friday evening the regular fortnightly meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. was held, with Miss Mary O'Haron occupying the chair. The feature of the evening's entertainment was an essay on "Mary, Queen of Scots," read in a delightful manner by Miss Alice Moloney. The reading was marked by very choice English and purity of diction, and Miss Moloney's rendering of the essay gave every evidence of a great deal of time and study having been spent on it.

In introducing her subject, Miss Moloney sketched briefly the struggle between England and Scotland, during the reign of Henry VII., the desire of Henry to separate Scotland from France, and unite her to England, the struggle James IV. carried on to prevent this, his marriage with Mary of Lorraine, and finally his defeat by Henry at the Battle of Solway Moss. At this juncture James V. died, and 1542 his daughter, Mary Queen of Scots, was born. Scotland was overjoyed at having an heir to the throne, and the baby girl was crowned Queen of Scotland at Stirling, and a council was appointed to take care of the future administration of her kingdom. Henry VII. now proposed that Mary should wed his son, Edward, but the proposition was not met with any degree of favour by the Scots, and in a fit of fury Henry sent an army across the border, which left fire and destruction in its wake. Scotland once more turned to France for aid and proposed the hand of their young Queen to the Dauphin Francis. France hailed the proposition with delight, and her King at once sent an embassy to bring Mary to France.

The essayist drew a charming picture of Mary's departure, and of her girlhood days in sunny France. In due course Mary and the Dauphin were married, but during these years great changes had taken place in England. Henry VII. had died; his son, Edward, after a weak rule of six years, had also passed away and been succeeded by his half-sister Mary. Mary also had died, and at the time of the marriage of the Dauphin, and Mary, Queen of Scots, Elizabeth was ruling in England, and was experiencing great difficulty in keeping her throne and maintaining peace in her kingdom. A great many of her subjects considered her claim to the English throne invalid, because, they claimed, she was born out of lawful wedlock. This left Mary, Queen of Scots, the legitimate heir to the throne, and this claim was warmly supported by France and by all the Catholic population of England and Scotland. She was proclaimed Queen of England and was made to adopt that title in the official acts which issued from her chancery. Thus by an irresistible power of circumstances, Mary was forced into an apparent attitude of hostility to her cousin, which was forcibly resented by Elizabeth, and which gave rise to a bitter hate that wrought out a fiendish scheme. Mary Stuart was not long Dauphiness of France—she soon became its Queen, and from that moment until her tragic death her life was one continuous suffering. Every student of history is familiar with the story, and every fair minded one loves and admires the character and life history of Mary, Queen of Scots. Miss Moloney dwelt at great length on this phase of the subject, and in doing so explained thoroughly the religious struggles and political conspiracies of that time.

In conclusion, the essayist gave a splendid description of the eighteen long years Mary was Elizabeth's prisoner—the plotting of her friends to liberate her and at last her condemnation to death by Elizabeth's Parliament. "Never in the pomp of her youthful royalty, did she stand before the splendid chivalry of France, or amid the ancient nobles of her own kingdom with such stately dignity, such pride of innocence, as now, in hopelessness and hidden pain, she confronted the ministers of her rival's hatred. But she was already condemned and Mary had to put from the sentence passed. She listened with her usual calm, sweet dignity, and assured them that after such sufferings as hers, death would come as a welcome deliverer."

During the evening the following musical programme was rendered:

Chorus—T. A. S. Glee Club.
Vocal solo—Miss F. Carew.
Instrumental solo — Miss O. Letellier.
God Save the King.

The next meeting of the society will take place on the evening of January 15th, when a paper will be read by Miss Nora Fitzgerald.

GIRLS—AND PLENTY OF THEM

At the Grand Opera House Next Thursday Evening, Dec. 24.

"A Female Drummer" comes to the Grand next Thursday, December 24th, for one performance, bringing with them a well earned reputation, established in the principal eastern cities. A cast of unusual merit is include in this pleasing production for the management offer the English Ladies' Quartette, Helen Vahre, the ever popular Gibson girl, as mannish Hasa Bargain, Stella Luzon, as the model, a chorus of twenty visions of dainty show girls and the metropolitan favourites, the Webster Sisters. Among the masculine element in this noteworthy attraction are a host of the best comedians playing up-to-date musical comedy.

On account of the few days preceding the holiday, Manager Turner has, by special arrangement, contrasted to have this, the biggest and best of theatrical diversions, offered local play-goers at prices lower than the "Female Drummer" has ever before been presented at.

From the good reports that come down the line regarding this combination of good things, one would believe that Capt. Willie Brown and his bevy of military and drummer girls will be on hand to present all who attend with a smile that won't come off next Thursday evening.

COLD STORAGE CO. LOSES

Jury Finds That Fraud Was Practised at Whitby In Obtaining Notes From Farmers.

MANY ARE INTERESTED

Whitby, Dec. 21.—Special. — Considerable interest among farmers has been created by the action before the court here of the Cold Storage Company of Peterborough. V. Harris, the defendant, is a prosperous farmer of Whitby Township, who was being sued to recover the face of a promissory note given to the promoters of the joint stock company some year or so ago.

It seems that this clever promoter secured in Ontario County a large number of notes and much cash for shares in a company that was to locate at Peterborough and handle all farm products on something like the co-operative plan for sales. While several paid cash for their shares, some even to the extent of $400, the majority gave notes, thereby subscribing for two to five $50 shares of stock.

"The scheme was so plausible a one," said John Stevenson of Pickering, "and it was along the very lines that the farmers had been looking for, so that in conjunction with the government's cold storage grants, as we supposed, the proposition was a most taking one." It is thus that many, some say over 300, names were enrolled.

Now it seems that the company had not proceeded with their building operations in Peterborough and had not handled over a dozen hogs from the farmers. Apparently it looked like an unprofitable game from the farmers' standpoint and they objected to paying their notes.

The company had sold many of these notes to a third party in Peterborough, who won his case recently at the Peterborough Sessions. But all amounts less than $200 were being brought befor e the court at the county town, where the verdict was in favour of the farmers, the evidence being quite conclusive of fraud in obtaining the notes.

Charles Mackey of Kinsale, who has been acting as secrtary for the farmers, reports that this verdict gives some redress to those who have not paid their notes. All whose notes are held by the company, or third parties, who know of their fraudulent nature, will likely be guided by this judgment and refuse payment.

Nearly all of the farmers have different stories of the promoters' arguments which induced them to sign. Others who threatened suit against the company early got a return for the notes, so report goes from Brougham.

It is reported that some further action will likely be taken by the farmers.

DELAY EXPERIENCED IN THE MINING CASES

Owing to the Absence of Magistrate Kingsford.

In the absence of Police Magistrate Kingsford from Friday afternoon's Police Court, the cases against the mining men were not gone on with. They were adjourned till Monday.

The Titan Montreal River Mining Company was the first called. Of this company, Mr. J .W .Garvin, of Peterborough, is president; A. P. Poussette, K.C., of Peterborough, is the company's counsel.

The Monarch Mines Company, of which Inspector James L. Hughes is president, was represented by Mr. W. N. Ferguson.

It is the intention of these companies to fight their cases.

"We object to the interpretation of the law put on by the Provincial Secretary's Department," said Mr. Garvin. "We do not intend to plead guilty, and pay in $200 and costs without a fight."

The Aganuico Mines and Development Company was represented by D. H. Martin, a director, and Mr. James E. Day, counsel.—Toronto Star.

Tribute Paid to Their Performance by Colborne Express.

Mr. William J. McQuinn, manager of the McQuinn Family of Entertainers, has arrived after a successful trip embracing part of Prince Edward County. The Colborne Express, of Dec. 10th, in speaking of this family of artists, has the following to say regarding the C. O. F. concert held at Castleton, Ont.:

"The C. O. F. concert on Friday evening was a grand success. The concert was given by the McQuinn Family of Peterborough, and was the cleverest performance given in our Hall. Mr. and Mrs. McQuinn are first class and we hope to have them back again in the near future. The singing of Master McQuinn, the boy comedian, was a big feature to the programme."

JOSEPH KING'S NEW VERSION OF "EAST LYNNE"

"East Lynn" is an old play, but it is one of the best. Joseph King's Company will appear in it at the Grand on Christmas Day, matinee and night, and a fine performance is assured. The story of "East Lynn" is so well known it seems almost superfluous to attempt any outline of attempt any outline of it, but a paragraph or two in that direction may not be amiss.

Lady Isabel is married to Archibald Carlyle and, though in love with her husband, is insanely and unjustly jealous of Barbara Hare, a family friend and life long acquaintance of Archibald. Her jealousy is fanned into hatred by a designing villian, Sir Francis Levison, and she, after several years of married life, is induced to leave her husband through the false representation of Levison. Deserted by the destroyer of her peace, she is left alone to the mercy of the world. Miserable and remorseful, she gains entrance into her former husband's home in the guise of a French governess and is enabled to see and be with her children, although unable to re-establish herself as his wife, for, on her desertion, Archibald had married Barbara Hare. She finds some solace and comfort, however, in the care of her children. The death of her eldest, however, undermines her own health and finding herself at death's door she calls for her former husband, discloses her identity, and with his forgiveness passes into the great Beyond.

THE COMMON APPLE A GREAT SOURCE OF HEALTH

The Juice of the Ordinary Apple Is One of the Best Things in the World For Keeping the Blood Pure.

Few people there are but enjoy a ripe, juicy apple. But how many realize that it is a medicine as well as a treat?

Apple juice has a very marked effect on the kidneys, increasing their power to throw off the waste products of the body, called urea, and thus prevent Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, and similar troubles that come from poisoned blood.

Similarly, other fruits stimulate the action of the liver and bowels—others of the skin. Combined, they keep the blood pure—the body clean and healthy.

To get this effect, however, one must eat a great deal of fruit, or better, eat a little fruit and take "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets in which the juices of ripe fruits, with their medicinal value intensified, are combined with valuable tonics. They act directly on Bowels, Kidneys and Skin and put them in perfect condition — thus ensuring the thorough elimination of all waste matter and poisons from the body. Trial box 25c. Regular size 50c.—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

TWO MINERS MEET DEATH TOGETHER

Third Is Mortally Injured in Explosion Near Cobalt.

BODIES BLOWN TO PIECES

Five Men In Bottom of Shaft at Temagami Gold Reefs Mine Are Caught by Charge That Did Not Go Off and Only Two Escaped With Lives—Inquest Will Be Held—One Man Cannot Live.

Cobalt, Dec. 21.—Through the accidental explosion of a portion of a stick of dynamite, which had remained in a drill after the original discharge without its presence being suspected, two men weer killed outright in the Temagami Gold Reefs mine, and a third so terribly injured that he cannot recover.

The dead are: Michael Doherty, single, aged 21, North Bay; Alfred Rioux, single, aged 22, Sudbury. The injured are: William Brennan, married, aged about 45, Cache Bay; may die; Eli Lalonde, badly cut and bruised, but will recover; — Lavallee, slightly hurt.

Two other miners were at the bottom of the shaft, 75 feet below the surface, at the time, but escaped with their lives.

The explosion occurred several days ago, but information has just reached here. The accident is the most serious that has thus far occurred in Cobalt mining operations.

The remains of Doherty and Rioux have been sent to North Bay. The men were almost literally blown to pieces. The explosion shattered large sections of rock, which were hurled with terrific force upon the miners working in the shaft. One flying fragment struck Brennan on the forehead, inflicting terrible injuries.

When taken to the surface, it was found that a portion of the brain had exuded, but that he was still breathing. He was removed to the hospital at New Liskeard, and latest advices were that he was still living, although the surgeons in attendance pronounced his recovery impossible.

The mining inspector of the district will, it is said, request that an inquest be held at North Buy next Wednesday.

The accident is stated to have been caused by the failure of a stick of dynamite to explode more than partially when the fuse was first lighted, about one-quarter of the explosive remaining in the heel of the hole, unknown to the drillers. In what manner this undischarged section was touched off has not been discovered, but it is thought that one of the men accidentally brought a drill into contact with it.

The detonation was tremendous, stunning the survivors for a moment. There were only five men in the bottom of the shaft, one of them, Lalonde, being foreman. Recovering himself, he began a search for his companions. He found Lavalles, who was less hurt than himself, and they brought Brennan to the surface in the bucket, and afterwards the mutilated bodies of Doherty and Rioux.

The Temagami Gold Reefs mine is located about seven miles from Temagami, and is separated by a small lake from the Fairview mine.

Two Killed.

Phoenix, B.C., Dec. 21.—A fatal accident occurred at the Granby mines last Friday night, by which John A. Anderson and Charles Johnson were killed. They had just completed the charging of 19 holes with dynamite when a premature explosion resulted in some way. Johnson's body was blown beyond recognition.

PEDLAR MURDERED.

Montreal Man Is Killed In G. T. P. Camp in British Columbia.

Plaster Rock, B.C., Dec. 21.—After several weeks of peace the Italians working on the G. T. P. construction broke out again yesterday, and a terrible murder was committed.

Patrick Breen, a pedlar, of Craig street, Montreal, was shot and instantly killed near here about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, by an Italian laborer. Last night the district for miles about was thoroughly searched.

Robbery was the motive of the murder, deceased having in his possession $4,300 and 30 gold watches. The murderer, who was accompanied by another Italian, took to the woods. They failed in their efforts to secure the money, for after rifling the top drawers of the old man's packet, they threw it away. It was found later by a search party with the money locked in the lower drawers.

LAUNDRYMEN KILLED.

Two Winnipeg Chinamen Are Murdered and Shop Looted.

Winnipeg, Dec. 3.—Yat Sun, Chinese laundryman of 214 Jarvis avenue, and his hired man were murdered some time Saturday evening, robbery apparently being the motive, as the store was rifled.

The crime was discovered by a man who called for his washing half an hour before midnight and found the Celestials in a welter of blood, the head of one being almost completely severed.

Last spring almost a similar crime was committed near the overhead bridge, when two Chinese laundrymen were murdered, but in that case the shack was fired in an attempt to destroy traces.

Josie Carr Released.

Kingston, Dec. 21.—The removal of Josie Carr, who stole a child in its go-cart four years ago and was responsible for its death, from the penitentiary was carried out Saturday, but was kept very quiet by the authorities. It was only through the alertness of newspaper men that the fact was made known.

Josie left in company with three sisters from the House of Providence for Daysland, Alta., where a new hospital has been opened, and they will be responsible for her care.

It is believed that with new surroundings and the best of care she will be far better off than behind prison walls. She is in the best of health, and during her term has been a model prisoner.

Montreal "Joint" Raided.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—Three gambling houses were raided, twenty-two men arrested, gambling paraphernalia, valued at nearly $3,000, consisting of roulette wheels, faro and stud poker tables, cards and colored checks, were seized early this morning.

The raid were under the personal direction of Chief Campeau, and the houses visited were on East St. Catherine street and University street. Each man arrested had to furnish a $20-bond for his appearance in court this morning.

This is the biggest raid made in the city for years, and last night the lid is on tight.

Trial of Night Riders.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 21.—When court adjourned Saturday afternoon until Monday, the state had nearly completed its case against the eight alleged night riders now on trial for the murder of Capt. Quentin Rankin. On Monday it will put Frank Fehringer on the stand. He says he was present when the murder was committed and knows the name of every man who was present.

Windsor For County Town.

Windsor, Dec. 21.—As a direct result of the steps that are now being taken by Essex County to centralize the county offices at Sandwich, members of the bar in Windsor have started a counter movement, which, if successful, will entirely undo the work of the county fathers and end in legislation by the Ontario Government to make Windsor, instead of Sandwich, the county town.

The Ottoman Parliament.

Constantinople, Dec. 21.—The Chamber of Deputies met on Saturday and went in to committee for the purpose of examining the mandates of the deputies. Ali Haida Bey, son of Midhat Pasha, author of the constitution, has been appointed a Senator. Said Pasha, ex-grand vizier, has been elected President of the Senate.

Newspaper Suffers by Fire.

St. Albans, Vt., Dec. 21.—The newspaper plant of The St. Alban's Messenger was completely destroyed by fire at a loss of $50,000.

EULOGIES FOR CHRISTABEL

Miss Pankhurst on Release From Holloway Jail on Tuesday Will Be Given Great Demonstration — Writer Calls Girl Orator Spirit of Dawn and Child of Destiny—Will Be Driven to Hotel and Dined.

London, Dec. 21.—When Miss Christabel Pankhurst is released from Holloway jail Tuesday morning on the completion of her sentence there will be a great demonstration by the members of the National Women's Social Political Union, who will assemble outside the jail.

Miss Pankhurst will find an open landau, which will be literally a bower of roses, awaiting her. The carriage will be drawn by four milk-white horses driven by suffragists, the driver, groom and two footmen being members of the union, attired in a uniform consisting of green skirt, a white jersey and a purple cap, the colors of the party. A breakfast will be held at a hotel.

Meanwhile Miss Pankhurst is being made the subject of some remarkable compliments. In the current number of "Votes for Women," the organ of the union, she is addressed as "the child of destiny," "the spirit of the dawn," "the maiden warrior," and compared with young Siegfried The address begins as follows:

"Christabel, Chrisabel as the dawn to the waiting earth upon whose breast have lain all night the chilling mists of tears, so are you dear to the hearts of women."

Mrs. Pethick Lawrence, who is responsible for the apostrophe, concludes with the following:

"Far away upon the fire-girt mountaintop sleeps womanhood, that is both human and divine. She will not awake nor give unto the world her lore of wisdom and of love until you and we have accomplished all that has been decreed."

BOY KILLS SISTER.

Youngster In Mahone Bay, N.S., Played With Loaded Gun.

Mahone Bay, N.S., Dec. 21.—Oberlin, the eight-year-old son of Capt. Benjamin Hamm, shot and killed his 12-year-old sister, Ruby, with a double-barrelled hammerless gun yesterday.

An elder brother had been using it Saturday, and the gun was left down stairs, instead of in its customary place. The young man who had it thought the barrels were empty, but one of them had a cartridge. This forenoon Mrs. Hamm asked Oberlin to take the gun upstairs. She, too, thought it was not loaded. The little fellow first pointed the gun at his sister Lottie and then at his sister Ruby. The mechanism was touched, the bullet striking the little girl below the cheek and lodging in the back of the head. Death was instantaneous.

Britain's Good Will.

Colombo, Ceylon, Dec. 21.—Rear-Admiral Sperry, on board the Connecticut, entertained the governor of Ceylon, Sir Henry Edward McCallum, and a small party at dinner Saturday evening.

Admiral Sperry said in his farewell message that the greatest benefit had been derived from the cruise. He expressed warm appreciation of the unvarying good-will of Great Britain, and declared that there was the happiest prospect of wedding together the English-speaking nations in friendship and common interests.

The American fleet sailed yesterday, and is expected to arrive at Suez on Jan. 5.

Takahira Pleased.

New York, Dec. 21.—Comparing the recent joint declaration by Japan and the United States in regard to their respective policies in the Pacific to "a transaction between trusted friends," Baron Takahira, Japanese ambassador to the United States, in an address last night at the Lotus Club, where he was the guest at a dinner given in his honor, expressed in an unmistakable way his gratification that so strong a bond of union between the two nations had been cemented.

Canadian Northern Spreads Out.

Duluth, Dec. 21.—Official announcement of the new $20,000,000 lumber merger, known as the Virginia & Rainy Lake Co., was made public on Saturday by Edward Hines, president of the corporation. The new company is the amalgamation of the Edward Hines Co., the Weyerhauser interests and the Virginia Lumber Co.

In the amalgamation what is known as the Duluth, Rainy Lake & Winnipeg Railway will become the property of the Canadian Northern Railroad.

Grand Master Resigns.

New York, Dec. 21.—John J. Hannahan, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, will, on Jan. 1 next, sever his official connection with the organization to take the vice-presidency of the American Automatic Stoker Co., with offices in Chicago.

Prayers For King.

Montreal, Dec. 21.—A story of the King's serious illness was generally believed in Montreal last night, and prayers were offered up for His Majesty in the American Presbyterian Church.

C. P. R. Employe Run Over.

Winnipeg, Dec. 21.—William Whyte, a C.P.R. employe, was run over by an engine in the yards on Saturday afternoon, losing an arm. He is lying in the hospital in a critical condition.

Argentine Building Warships.

Buenos Ayres, Dec. 21.—Tenders will be invited immediately by the Argentine Government for the construction of two warships.

TEDDY ARRAIGNED.

London Globe Condemns His Recent Violent Controversies.

London, Dec. 21.—It is impossible to ignore altogether the complete change in the attitude which has taken place in the past year in the English press and among Englishmen at large towards President Roosevelt.

The developments of the past fortnight have been of such a nature that even friendly critics have been led to speak openly on this subject. It would be easy to quote manifold comments from the best exponents of public opinion of rebuke to President Roosevelt for his unrestraint and undignified language.

A single example from a leader in Saturday's Globe, however, will show the trend of English feelings. It says:

"Roosevelt is so great a man in many respects that it is a thousand pities that he cannot contrive to be greater. The office which he still holds is one of the highest to which any human being can aspire, and the enormous power for good which it confers has upon the whole been worthily exercised by its present occupant.

"It is, therefore, with feelings of regret and repulsion that we see the President of the United States descending into the gutters of controversy and endeavoring to outvie the very Bowery in New York in violence and coarseness of his abuse.

"Roosevelt talks of lying, of blackmail and of scurrilous libel. He declares that his Parliament is deeply concerned over the fact that secret service agents are investigating the conduct of its members, and recommends the criminal prosecution of a newspaper which has dared to attack his Government.

"Roosevelt had far better recommend the prosecution of himself for the heinous offence of degrading the Presidential office by mingling in sordid and disgusting disputes. The ginger which, to use his own words, he imparted into Taft's campaign, has evidently entered his own system, and the result is a very melancholy spectacle.

"It was a betrayal alike of the traditions of a great office and of the simplest canons of good taste even to throw himself into the campaign at all, but having done so and having succeeded, he might surely have spent the last few months of his occupancy of the White House in an atmosphere of personal dignity.

"To preserve to the end the manners and language of an angry fishwife is not the way to win the respect of his own country, or of any other."

Pulitzer Off For Panama.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 21.—Jos. Pulitzer, publisher of The New York World, accompanied by a party of friends and several staff writers, arrived off Old Point yesterday on Mr. Pulitzer's yacht Liberty. It is stated that he is on his way to Panama to investigate into the conditions prevailing in the canal zone, and probably to secure evidence in connection with the purchase of the canal property by the Government.

Mr. Pulitzer's trip is of especial interest on account of the attitude of President Roosevelt in demanding that Congress have Mr. Pulitzer and other publishers prosecuted for criminal libel for publishing articles attacking the administration in connection with the canal purchase.

Castro's Visit to Germany.

Berlin, Dec. 21.—Many of the newspapers in their weekly political reviews deal with President Castro's visit in connection with the Venezuelan situation. The Tageblatt says:

"The German Government cannot much longer show favor towards the President unless he gives us assurances that Venezuela will fulfill her international obligations."

A notable fact is that the semi-official Nord Deutsche Allgemaine Zeitung utterly ignores the presence of Castro. Such a course has never before been adopted when the chief of a foreign state was visiting Germany, even although in a private capacity.

Overwork Causes Suicides.

Omaha, Neb. 21.—Wm. R. Kelley, cashier of the Union Pacific Railroad at South Omaha, committed suicide at his home yesterday by sending a bullet through his brain. Kelley's office has been undergoing a periodical checkup by the auditor for the past week, but Union Pacific officials declare that so far as the auditor had gone Kelley's accounts were in perfect condition. Kelley left a letter to his wife, which indicated that overwork had perhaps unbalanced his mind.

Gen. Simon Is President.

Port au Prince, Dec. 21.—Gen. Antoine Simon, the newly-elected President of Hayti, took the oath of office at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the palace, where a special sitting of the legislative bodies was held and in the presence of the foreign diplomats, the officers of the American and Italian warships and the Haytian officials of state.

Orlando Jay Smith Dead.

New York, Dec. 21.—Major Orlando Jay Smith, president and general manager of the American Press Association since 1882, died at his home in Dobbs' Ferry last night. Major Smith has been ill since September, at which time he was operated upon for cancer of the stomach.

Death of Father Breen.

Ottawa, Dec. 21.—Father John F. Breen, assistant priest of Egansville, and a native of Douglas, Ont., died at Water street hospital on Saturday after an attack of appendicitis, where he had undergone an operation.

WHITCROFT'S STARS REACHED MONTREAL TO-DAY---WILL GO IN TRAINING FOR STANLEY CUP GAMES

Manager Whitcroft Tells Examiner That the Team is in Good Shape and Supremely Confident of Winning the Silverware.

BILL CROWLEY IS TRAINER

Fred Whitcroft and his Edmonton Stanley Cup challengers passed through Peterborough last night on the way to Montreal where they next week will do battle with the Wanderers for the famous silverware Speaking to a member of the Examiner staff over the long distance phone from Toronto last evening, Whitty said that the bunch were in good shape and they one and all felt confident of carrying of the cup from the present holders. They will spend this week in solid practising at Montreal and will be in the pink of condition when they are called upon to go up against the Wanderers.

The team is in charge of Fred Whitcroft, who is manager, captain and rover of what out West they claim to be the greatest aggregation of professional hockey stars ever gathered together Whitcroft comes from Peterborough and played on the O H A. team of that city for years before he turned professional. The line-up is as follows—

Goal-Charlie Quinn or Bert Lindsay
Point—Lester Patrick
Cover Point—Dodger Petrie
Manager, captain and rover— Fred Whitcroft
Centre—Joe Hall or Jack Miller
Left Wing—Tom Phillips
Right Wing—Harold McNamara

This will be the team for the cup games in the arena, Montreal, a week from Monday and Wednesday, Dec. 28. After the cup games, win or lose, the team will make a tour of Ontario, playing at all of the pro. towns and cities. It is expected to be the greatest drawing card that ever appeared on the circuit.

Whitcroft, is evidently not taking any chances on an accident to a goal-keeper, as he is bringing two along. Lindsay, is an old Toronto League player, who has been playing in Renfrew for several seasons with great success. He is said to be one of the best goal-keepear in the business. Quinn is a Westerner with a good reputation.

Lester Patrick and Dodger Petrie will make a very fast defense. Both are wonderful rushers and dodgers as well as being strong on defensive work.

The forward line is nothing but a burst of speed. Phillips is a streak of lightning, and is admitted to be one of the best hockey players in the world to-day. Hall is a rough strenuous player, but is not as fast as Miller, who is a Westerner and not the Prantford man as has been reported. Miller is said to be a veritable cyclone. Whitcroft can hold his own with the most of them, and McNamara plays the right boards to perfection

The team, as a whole, has not had much practice, though five of them played together at Strathcona, when they won 22 goals to 0 a week ago last night This exhibition game nearly resulted in the loss of the main mover in the venture. Manager whitcroft being struck from behind by Kent of the Strathconas, and was unconscious for twelve hours. However, he is said to be all right again, though he had a very narrow escape

W. F. CROWLEY,
The well known Peterborough boy who is in Montreal as trainer with the Edmonton Stanley Cup Challengers.

WRESTLING.

"Cyclone" Burns is meeting with considerable success at the Theatre Royal this week, where he is meeting all comers on the mat. Last night Yankee Rogers met the challenger again, and 15 minutes of good fast wrestling was witnessed.

The match of the previous evening, between the challenger and Sam. Anderson, was witnessed by a full house.

"Bob" Wilson, the boxer, who meets Weller, next week, made a good referee.

It is expected that Karhakanoff, the Turk, will go on with Burns to-night. This should prove an exciting match.

RUNNING.

New York, Dec. 19—It was on and off when Alfred Shrubb hit town yesterday. Tom Flanagan, the manager of Longboat, ducked as soon as the fleet footed Briton came to talk business about the race with the Marathon champion. Shrubb came down from Boston in good faith to try to reach an understanding with the Canadian.

He apprized Flanagan of his intentions, but when he arrived Flanagan had beaten it back to the land of snows. Shrubb tried to head off Flanagan with a wire to Albany. Late last night there was no response.

The question of a Marathon race between Shrubb and Longboat rests entirely with the backers of the Indian. Shrubb positively will not agree to race Longboat at his particular style of game unless the Indian gives him battle at Shrubb's distance. Shrubb insists if he is to meet Longboat, the Indian must post a forfeit of $2,000 to meet him later in a race either ten or fifteen miles or both.

WALTER MILLER LEAVES FOR BRANTFORD TO REPORT ON PROFESSIONAL TEAM

Walter Miller, the well known local hockey player, left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train this morning for Brantford, where he will play this season on the professional team of that place. He is in fine shape and should have no trouble in making good with the pros. this season, his experience last year with Brantford has done him a lot of good. He will make a bid of a centre or rover this season, as he feels that he can be of far more service to his team in centre ice than along the boards. Last year he was at left wing and did good work there, but his speed and stick handling should make him more valuable away from the boards.

Taylor and Browne, it is said, will not be with Brantford this season.

EXAMINER A'S BEAT THE POOR HAMS THRICE

The Examiner A Team made a clean sweep of the boards in their ten pin league game at the P.B.C. alleys on Saturday night, and they are now tied with the Iroquois for third place in the league race. Their opponents, Hutch's Hams, are also nearer the goal they are striving hard to attain, and have every hope of ousting the Grays from last place before Santa Claus comes around.

However, while they lost all three to the Exam, the Hams made a gallant fight for it, particularly in the second game, which they lost by a single pin. In the last game they were a little further behind at the finish, but the game was always in doubt, and the winners heaved a great sigh of relief when Chief Adams announced the official score.

Lacheur was high man for the winners with both his team mates very close behind. Hay, of the Hams, had the best score of the evening.

To-night a double header is scheduled, the Lock Works being billed to meet the Bankers, the league leaders, while the B. A. C. will try conclusions with the Midgets.

The scores follow:—

Fire Brigade Demonstrated Their Efficiency At Saturday Night's Fire

Saturday night's fire in Craig's furniture establishment gave the fire brigade the best opportunity they have had yet of demonstrating their efficiency to the people of Peterborough, and they rose to the occasion nobly. An enormous crowd had gathered and went away satisfied with the work of the brigade and Chief Howard. The alarm was responded to in lightning order and the fire was handled with the utmost speed and the greatest regard to prevent loss by either water or fire. The controlling nozzles were able to demonstrate their usefulness and where there would have been tons of water poured into the building with the ordinary nozzle, the amount used was reduced to a minimum. Chief Howard, too, by making use of the tarpaulins which he has recently had added to the equipment, was able to prevent further loss by spreading them over furniture which would otherwise have been badly damaged.

Most of the aldermen were in the crowd and were pleased with the manner in which the blaze was handled, and it was felt that the establishment of a permanent brigade was justified.

Strangers In A Cutter Send In False Alarm From East City

Another false alarm was sent in from box 57, East City, last night at seven o'clock, and, as usual the brigade had a run for nothing. A resident of that neighbourhood ran out of his house and asked the person who had sent in the alarm where the fire was located and he pointed up a hill, but there was not the slightest sign of a conflagration. The stranger jumped in a cutter which was waiting with another stranger, and both drove rapidly away up a hill where they awaited the coming of the brigade. Chief Howard afterwards gained an inkling of their identity and the matter is in the hands of the police.

Child Playing With Matches Started Fire In Bedroom

A child with matches started a fire yesterday morning, which called out the brigade to 328 Charlotte street, the residence of Mr. James Runnett, just east of Reid street. The little five year old boy got some matches downstairs, according to the report, and went up into one of the bed rooms where he lit one and in some manner started a fire. The brigade made a rapid response and the flames were confined to one room, which was rather badly burned.

PETERBORO' TEAMS TO PRACTISE TO-NIGHT

There will be a full practice of the Peterborough intermediate and junior O. H. A. teams at the Brock Street Rink to-night at seven o'clock, and every candidate for the two teams is asked to be out in uniform, as there is not much time left for the teams to get into shape. The juniors have their first O. H. A. game here a week from to-morrow night with the Oshawa team, so that they have little over a week to get into line. Every opportunity for a practice must be taken advantage of in the meantime. There should be a big turnout to-night.

CHURCH SERVICES AND NOTICES

MURRAY STREET CHURCH.

Large congregations were present yesterday at the Murray streeet Baptist church when the Christmas music was given. The subjects were:

Morning—Romans 8; 3.—"God sending His Own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh."

Evening—Luke 15; 3.—"What man of you having an hundred sheep, if he lose one of them doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderness and go after that which is lost."

St. Luke's Church.

The members of St. Luke's church are requested to help in decorating the church and to attend meeting every evening for that purpose.

The Holy Festival of Christmas will be observed by three celebrations of the Holy Sacrament, at 7 a.m., 8 a.m. and at noon. Morning Prayer at 10.30.

The rector appealed yesterday for contributions of Christmas cheer for the poor of the parish.

Generous contributions of money were made yesterday at St. Lukes for the cause of Missions.

Knox Church.

Monday.—Young People's Guild. China and its uplifting forces, by Rev. Dr. R P Mackay.

Tuesday—Boys' Club.

Wednesday—Public service; Teachers' Training Class; Executive meeting Ladies' Aid.

Mark Street Church.

The usual prayer meeting will be held on Tuesday night instead of Wednesday.

On Wednesday night, in the basement, the annual Christmas entertainment by the children will be given.

THE LYNX WAS READY TO JUMP

Shot by Mr. Fred Rentisch on Saturday in a Tree.

While hunting rabbits on Saturday afternoon in the swamp near Hall's Bridge, northwest of the city, Mr. Fred Reuteh, Dalhousie street, suddenly caught sight of a Canadian lynx set on its haunches ready to spring at him. It was in a tree at one side of him and quickly turning, he brought it down with a single shot, sent home with unerring aim.

It was a beautiful specimen of the lynx family, weighing fifty pounds, measuring thirty-eight inches in length and standing twenty-one inches high. The skin is a pretty one, being beautifully marked.

CONFECTIONER'S SLEIGH IN A RUNAWAY

Horse Travels at Rapid Rate Across Hunter Street Bridge After Midnight

Last night about one o'clock as two young men were travelling eastward to their homes across the river, they were somewhat startled upon reaching Foster's Temperance House, at hearing a commotion beyond the Hunter street bridge. They listened a moment or two and the noise became clearer. Presently they observed a horse attached to an overturn-sleigh come tearing along in a runaway. The young men had the advantage of the incline on this side of the bridge and easily succeeded in delaying the progress of the steed. The sleigh belongs to a local confectioner and was somewhat damaged.

LIBRARY PLANS WERE DISCUSSED

Boston Architects Send Sketches to the Property Committee.

A meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon when the public library question was taken up but nothing particular decided upon. The Committee has received sketches and plans from Messrs. McLean & Wright of Boston, architects and the building as designed by that firm has been very favourably commented upon by those who have seen the sketches.

The primitive operations employed in China and Japan are in marked contrast with the cleanly machine method of preparing tea in Ceylon. The purity and cleanliness of "Salada" is absolute. Its delicious flavour will please you. 101

KICKED BY A HORSE ABOUT THE HEAD AND FACE—UNFORTUNATE SMITH YOUTH PASSES AWAY

With blood poisoning from several wounds in his face and head, little Arthur Hodder, aged seven years and six months, was brought from his father's home in Smith Township shortly after midday yesterday to the Nicholls Hospital, suffering from kicks from a horse. So severely had he been injured that a few hours later he passed away. The accident occurred yesterday shortly after midday, as the little fellow was playing with a handsleigh. He worked his way too closely to the heels of a young horse, which had been recently shod. The animal kicked viciously, striking the boy about the face and head. He emerged from the accident in a terribly mangled condition and was shortly afterwards removed to the Nicholls Hospital, where he was attended by three doctors.

It was found upon examination that the face bones had been broken, and that the right eye of the unfortunate youth had been kicked completely out. The base of the brain had also been fractured, and but for this the doctors could possibly have saved his life. Death came about eight o'clock.

Arthur Hodder was the son of Mr. Henry Stephen Hodder, poultry keeper, residing on the Chemong Road, just beyond the city limits. He was a bright youth and friends of the distressed family sympathize with him in their hour of trouble.

Mrs. McGrath's Painful Accident; Fractured Left Arm Last Night

The many friends of Mrs. McGrath, wife of City Assessor T B McGrath, will regret to learn that she was the victim of a most painful accident last evening, which resulted in a bad fracture of her left arm. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock when Mrs. McGrath was on her way up street. On reaching the corner of Simcoe and Aylmer streets at the Y.W.C.A. building she slipped on the icy pavement and fell heavily with her arm thrown beneath her to save herself with the result that her arm was broken just above the wrist. The accident happened only a short distance from her own home and she returned there at once and medical attention was summoned. Mrs. McGrath is doing as well to-day as could be expected under the circumstances.

The 17th Priest From This Parish Ordained By Bishop O'Connor

Rev. Victor McFadden is the seventeenth young man from this parish to have been ordained into the priesthood by his Lordship Bishop O'Connor. During the nineteen years of his charge over this diocese, those young men have been from time to time added to the clergy, the last being Rev. Father Michael O'Leary, who exactly two years ago was ordained priest. His Lordship also administered the Sacrament of Holy Orders to ten other young men who are now in care of parishes throughout the diocese.

JUSTICE BRITTON GIVES JUDGMENT

In the Matter of the West Peterborough Protest Objections.

Examiner Special

Toronto, Dec. 22,

Mr Justice Britton has given judgment in the action to have the petition in the West Peterborough protest set aside on the ground of insufficient service. He decides against the objection on two grounds. First—That it is too early in the proceedings to dismiss the petition. Second—Under a rule of the High Court of Justice there is power to order substituted service at any stage.

This decision is in direct opposition to the specific wording of the Statute which says that substituted service can only be ordered after the time ordered by the Court for personal service has expired. As this time had no elapsed Mr. Stratton's Counsel contended that no order for substituted service could be made, and that the Court has no jurisdiction to make any such order.

Mr. Stratton has given notice of the matter being taken to the Supreme Court.

TICKETS AT EXAMINER OFFICE FOR "EAST LYNNE"

If You are Jealous and Want to Reform You Can Be Cured.

To-morrow, Wednesday afternoon, after 2.30 o'clock, the Examiner will give away thirty 75c. tickets for the East Lynne performance on Christmas Day. The conditions upon which a person may secure a ticket are that he or she must have a copy of the Examiner and must introduce himself or herself with the words, "I am jealous and really want to reform." The first come will be first served.

RAPID TOOL COMPANY WORKING OVERTIME

Orders Coming in Rapidly and Business is Brisker.

That trade is on the upward incline is shown by the activity among the local manufacturers. The Rapid Tool Company's factory is compelled to work overtime to keep up with the many orders which have recently come in. The machines are in operation almost every night until ten o'clock, and shipments within the next few weeks will be heavy.

CROWN HOTEL CHANGES HANDS

Has Been Purchased by Messrs. J. J Cottingham and T. J. Parker.

The Crown Hotel which has been conducted for the past eighteen months by Mr. Frod A Clarke, has changed hands, having been purchased from Mr. Clarke by Messrs. J J Cottingham and T J Parker, of Peterborough. The new proprietors are in charge of the business to-day and an application has been made to the License Commissioners for a transfer of the license from Mr. Clarke to Messrs. Parker and Cottingham. Both the new proprietors are well and favourably known in Peterborough and as they have had long experience in catering to the public in this line, should have no difficulty in making a success of the new enterprise.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Every one who aspires to be the intelligent tenant of the "Christmas Spirit" should read the immortal "Christmas Carol" of Charles Dickens. Here is a pregnant passage from it:

"The Spirit stood by sick beds, and they were cheerful; on foreign lands, and they were close at home; by struggling men, and they were patient in their greater hope. In almshouses, hospital, and jail, in misery's every refuge, he left a blessing; in all his travels, joy."

But it must be remembered that the Christmas Spirit must be carried in human hearts to many of its beneficiaries, and not only in human hearts but in human hands. The Christmas spirit gives. It reaches its ideal and general exposition in the home. In every home where there are children, and in this happy season there are children great or small in every home, as the days draw nigh to the 25th of December, mysterious packages are stealthily brought home and secreted like stolen goods till the eve of the children's saint, who in childhood's heart is immortal. But the true Christmas spirit only sharpens itself by domestic exercise. It is not sent out or taken out in company with loving human hearts and kindly hands into homes where there is want, sickness, sorrow or any other adversity it is a spurious spirit, and the holy manger in Bethlehem never knew it. Selfishness and the Christmas spirit are sundered as the poles of the earth; it demands that we should bring Christmas joys, Christmas greetings, Christmas cheer to others within the sphere of our activities. He that eats his Christmas dinner in solitude without thought for the dinnerless, or the cold or the otherwise afflicted, is keeping a Barmecide feast, hollow and illusive. The subjoined sentiment is as true as if it were inspired writ and not the graceful imagery of Byron:

"All who joy would win,
Must share it; happiness was born a twin."

U. S. PULPWOOD INVESTIGATORS IN CANADA.

The report of the opinions formed by the visit to Canada last month of the three members of the special commission appointed by the United States Congress, last April, to enquire into the pulpwood and paper question will, says the Pulp and Paper Magazine, be waited for with great interest. The members were James R. Mann, of Chicago; W. H. Stafford of Milwaukee, and W. H. Ryan, of Buffalo, accompanied by C. C. Steinbeck, the secretary of the committee. The representatives had a talk with Sir James Whitney and Hon Frank Cochrane, and much of the Department's information regarding Ontario forests was placed at their disposal. In the afternoon Prof. Fernow, Dean of the Faculty of Forestry at the university, was seen, as well as a number of others.

The immediate object of the committee is to find out whether there is a sufficiency of raw material in the United States or on the continent to insure the supply of paper for all time to come; that is, provided proper forestation measures were adopted. They desire to gain first-hand knowledge of Canada's wealth in this regard. With this object in view they conducted personal enquiries in the woods of Northern and Northwestern Ontario. They will thus be able to report as to what they have seen instead of merely what they have heard. They have already made personal investigations in many States of the Union, spending many days in the woods, as well as taking a lot of evidence, so that they will be in a position to speak with some authority when their investigations are concluded. Their opinions will go a long way towards making any new tariff arrangements by the Washington Government affecting the pulp and paper industry.

If at any season, more than another, Christian charity should be at its highest glow, it should be at this season that commemorates the incarnation of Christian charity.

RELIGIOUS TOLERANCE.

The Toronto minister, who publicly denounced Hon. Sidney Fisher, for having called upon the Pope during his visit to Rome, should remember that he is called upon to preach the Gospel—of peace, not of cant and narrow mindedness. The Pope occupies a position of universally respected dignity and an audience with him is a greatly coveted privilege, independently of any religious consideration whatever. A red republican might have an audience with the most absolute and tyrannical of monarchs, without derogation of the levelling principle that republicanism theoretically involves. Paradoxical as it may appear, the narrow mind is not found in the "narrow path." The religion of the Gospel of the Lord of Christmas has a wide outlook, as wide as its sympathies. Our Lord was reproached by the scribes, Pharisees and hypocrites, for eating with publicans and sinners, and His answer to them comes home to their lineal descendants in this generation. The world is wide and the varieties of religious belief and thought, while, differing in minor details, are all one in the great central creed of the Redemption, involving the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. He has no real belief in these, who take advantage of his position to confine human salvation within the restricted circle of his little cult, and pronounces anathema upon all outside its pale. At this holy season there could be no more jarring discord imparted to the Christmas note than the bigotry that condemns simple acts of common and, more, Christian, courtesy, which even a comparatively ordinary and simple preacher like St Paul had the hardihood, in the eye of such bigotry, to especially enjoin. We have to live together. We should live in harmony. We can respect the creed and opinions of others, without derogation of our own or the sacrifice of one conscientious essential. By practising a large Christian tolerance, we not only dignify and sweeten our own belief—but practise the promotion of that harmony which not only hallows all human relations and brightens the joy of human intercourse, but is also essential to the conditions that must go with the highest attainment in material enterprise and national achievement and growth. Religious tolerance is an element in religion, an element in social relations, an element in citizenship, that cannot be spared.

Behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.—David.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Longboat could liquid-ate his extensive "smile" he would coin money in a local option district.

Yesterday was the "shortest" day of the year, according to the calendar, and the man whose wife bought her Christmas presents early feels that the almanac is right.

Edmonton, though only a few years old, has a septic tank system and other appurtenances of a great city. It is now "knocking" Winnipeg over its assurance in proposing a World's Fair.

Ottawa doesn't seem to be a very promising place to try local option. It is probable that it will be controlled next year by Champagne. Alderman Champagne is a candidate for the City Board of Control.

With a splendid new Collegiate Institute, and with six well built and well equipped ward schools, excepting the West Ward School, Peterborough can regard with complacency the appeals to the ratepayers of Brantford to vote for money for a Collegiate Institute for that city.

Winnipeg polled 17,500 votes in the Federal election and only 10,000 in the mayoralty contest. A possible explanation is that the city officials were more observant as to who voted and how often. Duplication of votes might help explain Conservative majorities in the Federal election, in the Western Metropolis.

Business is said to be picking up in the West. That will help Eastern Canada, for, outside of wheat, we produce much that the West wants, and if it has money will buy. The supreme folly that opposes the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, as a means of developing the far West of the country a trifle more than foolishness.

An astronomer has discovered vapor on Mars, from which he argues thus: Where there is vapor there is rainfall; where there is rainfall there is vegetation, where there is vegetation there is life. Therefore Mars is inhabited. An astronomer who can evolve man out of vapor is greater than Darwin, who began with a full-fledged monkey.

Peterborough has in one sense been liberally dealt with. Our beautiful parks with one or two exceptions are gifts, and our excellent General Hospital is a gift with liberal endowment to boot. The City of Brantford considers itself fortunate that in no year has it been called upon to contribute more than $5,000 for the maintenance of the Stratford hospital.

Sir William Macdonald by the help of "My Lady Nicotine" is putting a great swath as a philanthropist. He has endowed colleges and his name has become familiar in our mouth as household—domestic science — words. His latest bentaction is a royal one; he is sending a copy of the Letters of Queen Victoria" to each of a thousand schools in the Province of Quebec. He is credited with believing that "the inspiration and information" contained in that extraordinary work will act like a seed, sown first in the teacher's mind, passed on by the teacher in a form which children can receive."

PRESENTED WITH CHAIRS

Mr. and Mrs. Milburn, Smith, Remembered for Their Work in Connection With Zion Church.

A PLEASANT PROGRAMME

Smith, Dec. 22 (Special)—A very pleasant and successful entertainment was held in Zion Church on December 16th. Standing room was at a premium, for the house was literally packed.

The programme lasted fully 3 hours and consisted of recitations, dialogues, solos, duets, instrumental music and choruses. The manner in which the scholars acquitted themselves spoke well for themselves as well as for those who trained them.

At the close of the entertainment the pastor, Rev. S. Crookshanks, asked Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Milburn to take seats on the platform, where they were presented with two beautiful chairs, while a member of the school read the following address:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Milburn:

We feel that we cannot let this opportunity pass without showing, in small measure, our appreciation of your work among us.

You have ever been energetic, earnest Christian workers, and have formed two of the strong pillars of our Sabbath School. By your Christian example you have been a great help to us, and though we cannot reward you, we know that God will.

As a slight token of our appreciation we would ask you to accept these chairs. In future days, as you sit in these by your own fireside, and "Fond Memory brings the light of other days around you," may one of the brightest and dearest memories be that of the work God gave you to do in Zion Sunday School, and which you both performed so nobly.

And now our earnest prayer is:—

May God be with you through all the years,
Your earthly lives may run
Share all your joys, soothe all your tears,
And, when your journey's done
Bring you at last to that bright shore,
Where ne'er we bid adieu;
Till we meet there to part no more,
We pray "God be with you."

ZION SUNDAY SCHOOL.
Zion, Dec. 16, 1908.

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Milburn thanked the school for their beautiful gift to Mrs. Milburn and himself, and expressed his great pleasure in being permitted to work for God and the benefit of the young in the neighbourhood, hoping that the few good seeds he may have scattered had fallen into good soil, and would bring forth an abundance of good fruit.

$26,400,000

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by laying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held throughout the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

Coal and Wood Dealer

When the bread or cake or pastry comes from the oven light, crisp and appetising, you are wont to say you have had good luck with your baking.

The "good luck" idea is a relic of the time when housekeepers pitted their competency against poor flour.

To-day good baking isn't a matter of good luck in any home where

Royal Household Flour

is intelligently used.

In the hands of competent housewives it never fails because it is the whitest, lightest, purest and best baking flour to be had.

If the goodness of your baking is due to chance, your grocer is giving you the wrong kind of flour. Ask for Ogilvie's Royal Household.

BOARD OF TRADE DOES NOT APPROVE OF SMITH ST. BRIDGE OR THE EXHIBITION BY-LAWS

Measures Were Discussed Last Night at a Largely Attended Meeting—Street Extension By-law Was Favourably Commented Upon.

COST TOO MUCH FOR BRIDGE

Moved by D. HughesCharles, seconded by W H Denham. "That this meeting approves of the by-law for street extension."

"That it approves of the by-law for building a new Smith st. bridge, but that the proposed bridge is too expensive.

"That it would approve of a by-law to purchase a park to be used for exhibition grounds in the south end of the city, but that the proposed grounds are too expensive for such purpose.

"And that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to the council.

Moved by W H Moore seconded by Wm. Langford "That the opinion of this meeting—better advertisement and the fullest information the subject is capable of, should be given in all cases of money by-laws submitted to the rate payers for approval. The meeting feels that this has been neglected in the past."

The above resolutions clearly indicate the nature of the discussion at the special meeting of the Board of Trade held last evening in the City Council Chambers for the purpose of discussing the three by-laws which are to be submitted to the people on January 4th. The interest taken in the measures was evidenced by the fact that there was a large attendance of members and of the citizens generally, that the by-laws were discussed at considerable length by the gathering. With regard to the by-law for the providing of $21500 for street extensions there was an unanimity of feeling. It was felt that as some of the money for this purpose had already been spent and that as the work was necessary there was no other course but to support the by-law.

The general feeling of the meeting seemed to be that $49000 was too big an expenditure for a new bridge at Smith street. It was granted that bridge was absolutely necessary but it was thought that a suitable structure could be erected at a much less expense.

There was also dissatisfaction expressed with the by-law to borrow $30000 for the purchase of the exhibition grounds. Many of the speakers were in favour of purchasing suitable grounds for the fair and park purposes, but they did not approve of the location or of the price and the result was that the meeting refused to endorse the by-law as it will be submitted to the people.

The president, Dr M A Morrison occupied the chair and among those who took part in the discussion were Messrs W H Moore, J H Larmonth, D Hughes-Charles, Wm Langford, R Sheehy, W H Meldrum, R H Leary W H Denham, Robt Fair, Dawson Kennedy, B F Ackerman, and Ald W J Johnston.

Dr. Morrison explained that the object of the meeting was to discuss the by-laws that were to come before the ratepayers on January 4th. He asked Mr W H Moore, Chairman of the City Trust Commissioners to open the discussion.

Mr. Moore's Opinions

Mr Moore said that in public affairs there should be as much open discussion upon the subject as there could be and the Board of Trade were to be commended upon the stand they had adopted in this connection. He did not think that the by-laws to be submitted were sufficiently advertised, they barely followed the law and that was all. The council should have considered it their duty to make it fully open to the people as possible before they submitted the by-laws. What they should have done was to give publicity to the by-laws in all the city papers. To the ordinary person who had not the opportunity of getting at the facts, the information was not sufficient and he would go to the polls unable to judge correctly as to the merits of the by-laws.

Speaking of the by-laws he had not the least hesitation in saying that a bridge was necessary at Smith st. but as to the cost he was not able to say. The engineer had figured out the cost approximately that much. He thought it was the duty of the rate payers to support that particular by-law.

In regard to the by-law for the extensions of streets Mr Moore said the great mistake was that these streets were not extended long ago and another mistake was of not having extended Peterborough south to the river which could have been done by an order in council. The streets in question had to be opened. They were necessary and he thought the council acted in public honesty upon the things that came before them. He for one would support the by-law.

Speaking of the by-law for the purchase of the fair grounds Mr Moore stated that he was not so clear as to its necessity. He thought at one time that the farmers were the people interested but now it seemed to be the idea that town which received the benefit should contribute to the cost. He thought that as the farmers received one-half of the profit the County Council should pay one-half of the cost.

$30,000 was a tidy sum and the cost of $1000 per acre was big when it was considered that the King Edward school grounds had been bought for $500 an acre. He was not sure that 50 acres were necessary for a fair or a place of Peterborough's size. There would be 15 or 20 acres of the land that would not be used for any purpose. To buy land just to have land was not the purpose of the city of Peterborough. He was not going to condemn the proposition outright but thought the farmers should pay their share of the cost.

Mr. Moore passed on to discuss the financial position of the city. On Jan. 1st 1909, the city would owe $1,063,520.32 in public debentures. The available assets were to be deducted from this sum were $600,000 and the financial condition of the city was excellent. He criticised the auditors report in terming the sewers, school buildings, fire hall, sidewalks, etc. as assets.

Mr. Larmonth's Views

Mr J H Larmonth spoke in favour of all the by-laws to a certain extent. The Smith street bridge was probably the most important of the three. The question was whether the citizens should be called upon to expend so much for a bridge, and he thought that in view of the quality and appearance of the bridge which was contemplated the council was making no mistake in asking for $49,000. It would be necessary practically to build two bridges as a wooden one would have to be erected before the cement one could be constructed. A concrete bridge would last a good many years.

He approved of the by-law for the extension of the streets and was entirely in sympathy with the idea of the city assisting the fair. He thought, however, that the city could get suitable grounds for far less than $30,000 and might get a location on the water front where it would be better. If the city could get a site for $15,000 he would be in favour of giving the fair directors $15,000 for new buildings.

Supported the By-laws

Mr P H Leary spoke in favour of all three by-laws. In regard to the by-law to buy the exhibition grounds he remarked that it was not the intention of spending $30,000 purely for exhibition grounds but for recreation grounds. What the directors asked was for the city to give them a place for their permanent buildings and use of the grounds one week in the year, the property could be used for recreation purposes the rest of the time. He strongly supported by-law pointing out that the fair advertised the city and brought many people to the city. It was important that there should be good ground and buildings and in the event of the directors not being able to secure grounds they would be forced to drop out in which case it would be impossible to renew the charter at any future date. The fair he showed had had a surplus of $800 last year.

Mr. D. Hughes Charles

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles said that there was nothing more necessary than a new bridge at Smith street, and he did not approve of the patching principle that had been used in connection with the bridge. He believed that the city, when it was building a bridge should build a good one.

It was important that the streets should be extended, when land could be secured cheaply, and, therefore, he was in favour of that by-law.

Mr. Hughes-Charles thought the exhibition project was too high to be secured for either park or fair purposes. The buildings on the grounds were of no use. He would favour a location on the river front where permanent buildings of cement could be erected and which could be used advantageously, as a park when not being called into service as a fair grounds.

Smith Street Bridge too Expensive

Mr. Wm Langford, after characterizing the proposition to buy the exhibition grounds as absurd, and after endorsing the by-law for the extension of streets, which, he said, would have to be supported, went on to deal with the by-law to provide $49,000 for the erection of the Smith bridge. There was no question of the necessity of a bridge at that point, but he did not think that $49,000 was needed for that purpose. He had looked over the plans of the proposed bridge and remarked that it would be a pretty structure, quite like the London bridge, but he felt that a concrete bridge was unnecessary, and further he did not think that a concrete bridge over a stream like the Otonabee was the proper thing. Mr. Langford read an estimate from Engineer Cooper, of New York, for a steel bridge across the river at Smith street, providing for an eighteen foot roadway with sidewalks on each side and strong enough to carry a street car, if necessary, which would cost $22,000 and which would last for years. He was strongly of the opinion that such a bridge as that was what was needed, instead of an experimental steel structure that would cost over twice as much. He showed the immense saving to the city that would result if the cheaper bridge was decided upon.

Mr. Meldrum's Views

Mr. W. H. Meldrum, speaking in regard to the extension of streets, remarked that it could never be done cheaper than at the present time, but asked if it was necessary. He thought that there would be no need of extending streets if some means were not taken to get more manufacturers here and provide them with facilities. In connection with the Smith street bridge, he was in favour of erecting a bridge. It was a necessity, but he did not feel inclined, after the information that he had received from listening to the other speakers, to support the erection of a bridge to cost $49,000. Similarly with the exhibition grounds proposition, he felt that cheaper grounds could be secured and could not see his way clear to support the by-law.

Mr. R. Sheehy said that it was out of the question to expect the people to vote $30,000 for the purchase of the exhibition grounds. He was not in favour of utilising the present grounds for fair purposes, as the land was too valuable. He asked why the Hilliard farm or some other property could not be utilized for fair purposes. Mr. Sheehy thought the Smith street bridge proposition was too expensive, but was prepared to vote for a reasonable amount for a bridge. However, he could not support the exhibition grounds by-law and would vote against it.

Mr. Dawson Kennedy supported all three by-laws, but more especially the exhibition by-law, in support of which he spoke at some length. He pointed out that a good fair was an asset and an advertisement for the city, which it could ill afford to drop and such would have to be the case if some provision were not made to secure grounds. He considered that the investment was a good one.

Mr. Denham's Opinion

Mr W. H. Denham, in speaking of the exhibition grounds by-law, expressed himself as being in favour of securing grounds further out on the river, where a suitable park could be secured. He felt that the people desired to get away from the city to attend the county fair, andd if such grounds were secured he was sure that the fair could be made a big sucess. If the present grounds were held they would soon be surrounded with residences, and the result would be that they would be holding a county fair in the midst of the city. Mr. B F. Ackerman expressed himself as being unable to vote for the Smith street by-law, because he felt that $49,000 was too big a price to pay for the structure, and his views on the exhibition grounds purchase were similar, inasmuch as he thought that the cost was too great.

Mr. Robt. Fair, speaking in regard to the Smith street bridge, said that the matter was worth considering, whether an expenditure of $49,000 was necessary for a bridge to meet the requirements, and that he was inclined to think that it was too expensive. He favoured the extension of the streets as provided for in the other by-law, and thought it was a step in the right direction. He did not approve of the purchase of the exhibition grounds, although he believed in assisting the exhibition.

Ald. Johnston explained the position of the council in regard to the Smith street bridge. In asking for $49,000 it did not necessarily imply that the amount would be expended, inasmuch as the council had felt that they should secure the consent of the people for the use of $40,000 in case that amount was required. It was considered that a bridge capable of carrying the street railway line across might be constructed, and in that case it would cost $49,000. This concluded the discussion and the above motions were carried without further comment, after which the meeting adjourned.

During the evening a letter was read from His Worship Mayor Rush, expressing his regret at his inability to be present, owing to another engagement of importance.

FIRST COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE A MOST ENJOYABLE FUNCTION

Successful Pupils Receive Diplomas and Prizes — Interesting Addresses Were Given by Prominent Men—The Choristers a New Feature.

ATTENDANCE WAS LARGE

The fair "Co-Eds" of the Collegiate Institute were very much in evidence last night at the first commencement exercses which have ever been held in the city, and which were made possible by the provision of a spacious assembly hall in the new building. The function was a most delightful and while it, in particular, will be an annual affair, the friends of the institution are looking forward to regular meetings during the present season. The students wore the school colours—gray and maroon—and are already manifesting an allegiance and love for their academic home which they will fondly cherish in after years. The young ladies, in becoming attires wore their colours in ribbons, the young men displayed them less prominently.

Mr. H R H Kenner, who arranged the commencement and who for the best interests of the students, has in view other open meetings, performed the duties of chairman in his usual able and entertaining manner. A synopsis of the programme is given as follows:

Chorus, by the P.C.I. choristers, Miss Helen Davies conductor.

Presentation of the Nicholls Scholarships, by Dr. Park of the Normal School staff, Dr. Park being unavoidably absent Mr. Kenner made the presentation.

Presentation of the Inter-Form Relay Prize.

Presentation of writing prize, presented by Mr. J Crane, by Mr. Mowat.

Instrumental duet, by Miss Katie Leary and Miss Stella Shearer.

Presentation of staff cup, by Rev. E A Pearson.

Presentation of Macdonald Cup, by Rev. Father Kelley.

Vocal solo, by Miss Myra White.

Presentation of Senior and Junior championship medals, donated by Mr. A Gibson, and the Senior Cross Country Medal, donated by Mr. J Hampden Burnham, by J Hampden Burnham.

Presentation of Lower School Graduation Diplomas, by W S Robinson.

Violin solo, by Kathleen Wallis.

Presentation of Girls' prizes won at the annual sports.

Presentation of Commercial Diplomas, by D W Dumble.

Presentation Junior Cross Country Medal, by J H Adams.

Valedictory address written by Miss Gladys Crane, read by Miss Lilian Dean.

Chorus by the P.C.I. Choristers.

God Save the King.

A Splendid Record

The records made by the students of the P.C.I. at the departmental examinations last midsummer is one that they may well feel proud of, and which is a credit to the ability and care of the teaching staff. It is given in the following:

Honour Matriculation—Miss Gladys Crane, winner of the Nicholls scholarship, obtained first-class honours in English, French, German and Latin, and second-class honours in History.

Miss Kathleen Wallis, obtained first-class Honours in English, French and German.

Miss Jean Harstone obtained third-class honours in English.

Faculty of Education—Miss Letitia Elliott and Miss Elsie Pollock passed in Part II. Miss Gertrude Yenney, Harold Brown and Stanley Pringle, passed in Part I.

Normal Entrance — The following passed the Normal Entrance examination: A E Rosborough, winner of the Nicholls Scholarship; Jean Kennedy, Agnes Holland, Mary Casey, Clara Adams, Eva Rae, Ethel Huttman, Ethel Garbutt, Vera Flynn, Flossie File, Lulu Bushnell, Sterling Waterman and Michael O'Brien. Twenty-one wrote, thirteen were successful and the first five of the above obtained honours.

Science Matriculation — Stewart Anderson, Walter Blackwell, Bruce Clegg, Donald Denham, and Herbert Johnston. Six wrote, five were successful, and the other has since passed a supplemental examination.

Arts Matriculation — Katheryn Burnett, winner of the Nicholls scholarship; Max Dobbin, Harold McGill, Eileen Coughlin, Annie Edgar, Percy Hooper, Stella Mains, Harold Wallis, Herbert Conroy. Eleven wrote and nine were successful.

Partial Examination—Alberta Udy, Jean Harstone, George Ingham, Ruby Fitzgerald, Harry Balfour, Arthur Rosborough, Funnie King and Agnes Holland.

Nicholls Scholarships—The winners of the three scholarships which were presented by the late Mrs. Nicholls, are: Honour Matriculation and Faculty of Educaton—Miss Gladys Crane.

Normal Entrance — Arthur Rosborough.

Junior Matriculation—Miss Katheryn Burnett.

Athletic Prizes

The prizes won at the annual field day were also presented, as much interest being taken in this part of the programme as in the former part. Above was mentioned who made the presentations and the winners are given as follows:

Winner of Staff Cup and Gibson Medal, senior champion—Harry Hall.

Winner of Macdonald Cup and Gibson Medal, junior champion—Bruce Lees.

Winner of Senior Road Race Medal Harold Lees.

Winner of Junior Road Race Medal —Bruce Lees.

Winner of writing prize—Miss Katie Skinner.

Winner of Inter-Form Relay prize, Form 2B—Ray Scott, W Gibson and G Rankin.

Winner of Girls' prize at annual sports—Needle-threading contest — 1, Phyllis Denne; 2, Elsie Mowat.

Diplomas Presented

During the past year Mr. W S Robinson was instrumental in securing for the pupils of the lower school, diplomas for the standing they obtain in the form below those in which the matriculation and departmental diplomas are secured. Mr. Robinson presented these diplomas to the following successful students:

Girls—Misses Anderson, Curtis, Edwards, Ellis, Gibson, Hinchliffe, Hurley, Leary, Lyle, Moore, Mitchell, McNamara, Read, Smith, Stone and Young—Sixteen.

Boys—Messrs. Adams, Adamson, Campbell, Edmison, Eyres, Fortye, Geale, Garvin, Giles, Hall, Kerr, Kirn, Matthews, Mowat, Moore, McIntyre, Pue, Richardson, Torrance, Wallis, Brown, Corkery, Dean — Twenty-three.

Commercial Diplomas

The diplomas which are presented every year to the successful students who took the commercial course were won by the following this year, who received them from Mr. D W Dumble:

Misses Irena Spicer, Estella Collinson, Ethel Pethick, Emily Horsfield, Mina Waldie.

General Noter

The valedictory address written by Miss Gladys Crane and read by Miss Lillian Dean, was one of the features of the evening. Miss Crane was unable to be present as she is writing on her examinations in Toronto. It was a cleverly written composition, Miss Crane being one of the brightest pupils that has ever attended the P.C.I. As delivered by Miss Dean it was charmingly read and was most entertaining.

The choruses by the class of pupils who have been instructed by Miss Helen Davies were pleasant surprises and considering that choristers have been practising but a short time their numbers were splendidly rendered. This feature is one which with further development will be a decided asset to the musical life of the P.C.I.

The addresses by those who made the presentations were interesting throughout. Mr. Mowat spoke briefly but pointedly on the value of a secondary education. Rev. E A Pearson and Rev. Father Kelly dwelt on the subject of physical development, emphasizing its value in equipping young men and women to enter life more perfect, and referring to its influence on the moral and intellectual sides of our nature.

The addresses by the other speakers were appropriate and with the instrumental and vocal numbers added in no small measure to the evening's enjoyment.

The initial commencement exercises may be entered in the records of the Collegiate Institute as an unqualified success and a high standard has been set for other years.

Six Months In Central Prison For Men Charged With Vagrancy; Had Been Begging From Banks

Six months in Central Prison was the rude jolt that was handed out by Police Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning to Fred. Kane and Jos. Kerr, the two men who were arrested last week on a charge of vagrancy. When asked to plead this morning the men admitted that they had no means of support, and had not been working, although they informed the magistrate that they had been diligently looking for employment.

Kane said that he came from near Hamilton, Ont., and that after looking around Toronto in vain for a job, he had gone to Barrie and other places, looking for work without success.

Will Cahill, of the Bank of Toronto staff; Carol Hayes, of the Bank of Ottawa and a member of the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia, testified to the two men having been in their respective banks, seeking for financial assistance and representing themselves as being out of work.

P. C. Newbali testified that the men had come to the police station for several nights, looking for lodgings, and on two or three occasions they had been under the influence of liquor.

"What is that mark on the palm of your hand?" the magistrate inquired of Kane. "Not the mark of the pick and shovel, anyway."

"I don't work with the pick and shovel," replied the prisoner.

"I thought not," was the magistrate's answer.

Kane started to explain again that they were looking for work, but the magistrate cut him short. "I will find you work and provide for your board while you are doing it," he remarked. "Six months in the Central."

It cost a young man, who had gazed upon the wine when it was red, $5.85 to square himself with the court. He pleaded guilty to being drunk.

Board of Works Recommends The Reconstruction Of Romaine St. Sewer

The most important feature in connection with last night's meeting of the Board of Works, in addition to the reports given in another column, was the recommendation from the Board that the council should commence the reconstruction of the Romaine street sewer as early as possible next year. There were present Ald Phelan, chairman, Ald. Buller, McIntyre, Elliott, Bradburn and Morgan.

A letter was read from the city solicitor regarding the claim of Rev. W. J. Keilty, for an accident to his horse.

Moved by Ald, Elliott, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the Rev. Father Keilty be offered without prejudice $20 in settlement of his claim, and that if he accepts this offer that the city treasurer be authorized to issue a cheque for that amount.—Carried.

A letter was read from Wm. J. Martin, concerning the claim of Wm. Logan, for injury to his business while the Brock street bridge was being rebuilt.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Elliott, it was decided to offer Mr. Logan without prejudice $30 in settlement of his claim.

It was moved by Ald. Elliott, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the chairman be authorized to accept the offer of J. W. Fitzgerald for land to widen Benson street, for $500.—Carried.

A report was read from the city engineer regarding the rebuilding of the Romaine street sewer.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn and Elliott that application be made to the Board of Railway Commissioners for the privilege of constructing a twelve inch sewer under the tracks of the Grand Trunk Railway on Romaine street, the part under the railway to be of cast iron pipe and that we recommend the council to take up the matter of reconstructing this sewer early in 1909.—Carried.

It was moved by Ald. Morgan and Bradburn, that Mrs. M. A. Davidson be permitted to connect No. 563 Park street to the sewer, provided she pays the cost of the work and what she would have to pay for a man sewer on Park street, in accordance with the city engineer's estimate, namely $51.71.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Morgan, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that Mr. Willis Chipman be asked to appoint an engineer to take the levels required by him for the purpose of making his report and that he be informed that the Board would prefer to have him appoint a local engineer to do this work, if he can see his way to do so, and still be responsible for the whole work.—Carried.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in every one's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means a destroyer, or killer of "Herper". Now "Herper" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys, after which the hair grows.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. McDermid and Jury, and 3 boxes for $1.25.

HORSE FELL ILL ON JOURNEY

Unpleasant Experience of Local Gentleman on Sunday.

A gentleman of this city had an unpleasant experience with a horse on Sunday on the Lakefield road. He was driving towards Lakefield and when he got a little way past Nassau the horse took it into its head to go no further so it sat down by the road and refused to get up The gentleman secured the help of a farmer and got the horse up and housed in a stable then telephoned to the city for relief, which came in the shape of a veternary and an extra horse which was immediately hitched to the cutter and the journey to Lakefield was resumed. The horse was found to be suffering from a temperary ailment of a somewhat severe character.

Dear Sir—I noticed in the Toronto Star of a few days ago an article with the heading "Your Rubbers cost more, do you know the reason why?" Now, a great many people believe that the retail boot and shoe dealers are responsible for the prices but the Star points out that they are not the offenders It is not the retailers but the wholesale men who are to blame. The merchants are obliged to pay whatever price the wholesalers may choose to demand. The former seem to be simply selling agents, whose prices are fixed for them by their principals

The meeting finished as usual with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King," by the company.

Generous Citizens Subscribe More Than Amount Required

Mr. F. W. Miller Receives Sum of $106.90 for Family Who Will Leave for England on Thursday —Tickets Have Been Procured.

ASSISTED A GOOD CAUSE

Mr. F W Miller, as is known has has been receiving donations towards a fund to help purchase tickets to send a deserving family back to the Old Country. The father as has been stated before, is troubled with a tubercular ailment, and has been of the opinion that if he were back in England he would be able to throw the disease off. He has been very industrious, working nearly all the time, and those who became interested in the case felt that the generosity of the people would be touched by this case. Their confidence was not misplaced for Mr. Miller reports that he has received $106.90. The tickets have been purchased, costing $102.90, leaving a slight surplus which will likely be given the family as a Christmas gift.

The last contributions were received from the following:

Mrs. Hazlitt	$ 5 00
Mrs. Walsh	3 00
Misses Dickson	4 00
A Friend	10 00
A Friend	1 00
A Friend	1 25
A Friend	2 00
A Friend	2 00
A Friend	1 00
A Friend	5 00
Mr Smithson	5 00

The family leaves on Thursday on the 11.16 a.m. C.P.R. train for Montreal, and will sail on the Empress of Ireland. Mr. Miller while merely receiving the donations was confident that the citizens would make up the full amount, although for a few days the contributions lagged.

Engineer Gives Report On The Proposed New Smith Street Bridge

City Engineer T A S Hay made the following report to the Board of Works Committee last night upon the proposed new bridge at Smith st.—Ald. Phelan, Chairman of the Board of Works

Dear Sir—In May 1905 I submitted a plan to the Board of Works for rebuilding Smith street bridge for a 2-span steel bridge truss of 150 feet each on concrete abutments and piers, at estimate as follows—18 ft. roadway and two walks $37,200 24 ft. roadway and two walks $46,200

I considered it advisable to allow for contingences and placed the cost at $46,000 and $49,000 respectively I now submit plan for reinforced concrete 3-arched span of 100 feet each, the net estimates as follows—For 18 ft. roadway and two walks, $37,500 24 ft roadway and two walks, $46,500; and allowing for contingencies the amounts would be $40,000 and $49,000

If the latest design is adopted I am of the opinion that by leaving out the north sidewalk there would be ample space if necessary, for one street railway track on the north side, still leaving a roadway 18 ft wide which would be sufficient for the traffic carried by that bridge and will save the cost of one sidewalk $225, and allow almost the total capacity of the higher priced bridge

St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, Was Visited By Fire Last Night

The interior of the vestry of St. Mary's Church, Lindsay, of which Ven. Archdeacon Casey is parish priest, was devastated by fire which broke out last night at eleven o'clock and threatened the entire building. The origin of the fire is not known for a certainty, but it is believed that defective wiring may have been the cause. The loss has not been ascertained this morning. Rev. Dr. O'Brien, who was in Lindsay last night, saw the blaze, which did considerable damage to the interior of the vestry. The main part of the church was practically untouched.

GOMEZ TAKES HOLD OF THE REINS

Forms New Venezuelan Government Minus Castro's Friends.

REPUBLIC IN A FERMENT

Country Has Had Fierce Ways of Incendiarism and Rioting, But Strict Censorship of News Kept State of Affairs From Leaking Out—Minister Who Quarrelled With Holland Is Out of Cabinet.

Port of Spain, Dec. 22.—Vice-President J. Vicente Gomez, to whom Gen. Cipriano Castro handed over the Presidency on his departure for Europe, has established a new Government in Venezuela.

He has replaced the old Ministry, the leader of which was Dr. Jose de Jesus Paul, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has been the one figure, outside of Castro himself, in the negotiations that culminated in the ousting of Minister De Reus and the severance of diplomatic relations with Holland, with a new body of men who represent various factions in the state and who have figured prominently in various ways in the political history of the country.

The new Cabinet is composed as follows: Minister of Interior, Linares Alcantara; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Gonzales Guinaud; Minister of Finance, Munoz Tebar; Minister of War, Gen. Regulo Olivares; Minister of Fomena (patronage), Rafael Carabano Obras; Minister of Public Works, Roberto Vargets; Minister of Public Instruction, Dr. Maldonado.

Secret advices received here from Caracas, where the strictest censorship is being observed, indicate that the whole of Venezuela has been in a ferment ever since President Castro sailed and that the crisis was reached a few days ago, when it became necessary for Acting President Gomez to take decisive steps, which he did by eliminating from his Cabinet those who were closely affiliated with the Castro rule and under the Castro domination.

The revolutionary factions, which gained strength with every hour of Castro's absence, played a prominent part in the demonstrations against the absent President, which took the form of rioting and incendiarism. These were temporarily checked by a show of force, and later the revolutionary influence that threatened to sweep the country was overcome in a measure by promises that could not be held long in abeyance.

TRIES TO ROAST BOY.

Drunken Father Makes Terrible Attempt on Child's Life.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 22.—John Perry, formerly living in Moncton, but now of Charlottetown, tried to roast his five-year-old son in a hot oven Sunday night. The boy was too big and although the father jammed him into the oven, he was unable to shut the doors. Then he pulled him out and threw him against the wall.

With his head covered with blood the little fellow made his way to a neighbor's house and told his story. Perry, who was crazed with drink, was arrested yesterday.

Carnegie Says Steel Trust Can Now Stand Alone.

PROTECTION UNNECESSARY

Magnate Testifies Before Congress and Declares That Europe Cannot Now Compete With America In Steel Production—Says America's Ore Supply Will Not Last 40 Years and England's Only Seven.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 22.—That the steel industry of the United States has reached a point where it does not need protection but can stand alone in competition with the world was the feature of the testimony of Andrew Carnegie yesterday before the committee on ways and means of the House of Representatives.

He expressed the opinion that wages would not be reduced if the tariff was lowered or removed entirely. He was utterly opposed to an income tax, believing; as he said, with Mr. Gladstone, that such a tax produced a nation of liars.

Mr. Carnegie interspersed his testimony with humorous remarks. He suggested that Congress should extend a vote of thanks to Mr. Schwab for his work in improving the methods of steel making.

"I never met his equal," said Mr. Carnegie, "and when we were partners we were a great team."

Mr. Carnegie was not willing to deal in figures. He said: "The more figures you get the more you will be befogged. I do not judge by figures given by interested parties." He said at another point in his testimony: "I judge by results."

ANDREW CARNEGIE.

The former steel magnate said that Judge Gary had issued an annual statement showing that the United States Steel Corporation had made a profit of $158,000,000, which, he said, equalled a profit of $15.50 a ton on all steel products.

Mr. Carnegie avoided direct replies to questions as to whether the cost of producing steel at the present time, as given by Judge Gary and Mr. Schwab, was correct.

"Mr. Schwab's estimate of the present cost is based on entirely different ideas than his estimate on the cost in 1899," was all that Mr. Carnegie would say.

Replying to a question, Mr. Carnegie declared that the removal of the duty on steel would not necessarily affect the price, because Europe could not successfully compete with the American product. He said also, that if the figures given by former witnesses were absolutely correct, steel stock would be selling far below par.

Mr. Carnegie spoke of the difficulties he experienced with directors ignorant of the steel business. "I gradually bought them out and got men like Schwab around me, and we made the cheapest steel that has ever been made."

"You have been out of steel some time," said Mr. Payne, "can you tell us where we can get the figures on the present cost of making steel?"

"I don't know whether you can get the figures," was his reply. "If a judge was interested in a cause, you would not respect his decision would you?" he asked, referring to the steel manufacturers who have appeared before the committee.

Mr. Carnegie asserted that at the rate at which iron ores are being extracted the supply would be exhausted in forty years. He based his statement on the best expert opinion he could obtain, he said. He also said that England would be in the same condition in seven years.

Mr. Carnegie insisted in reply to questions that the railways were not paying too much for steel rails. The steel railmakers, he thought, were making a fair profit.

Two Thousand Drivers on Strike.

New York, Dec. 22.—More than two thousand cab drivers and chauffeurs employed by liveries and cab concerns are on strike to-day, according to Edwin Gould, secretary of the Liberty Dawn Association.

Unless the actions of the employers are favorable, said Mr. Gould yesterday, the tie-up of the city's cab service will be practically complete today. Several of the affected companies sent out cabs and motor cars yesterday under police guard.

A MISTAKE IN SPAIN'S EXPENSES

Auditor-General Says Commander's Claims Are Wrong.

COULD NOT PASS ACCOUNTS

When Charged With Including Expenses of Trip to Fort William While Sitting In Montreal Commander Spain Says It Was an Error In Dates — Diaphone Prices Under the Probe.

Ottawa, Dec. 22.—The probing of the Marine Department affairs to-day revealed a few more dark places that will require the light of further evidence to disclose whether or not there has been actual wrong-doing. Commander Spain, whose accounts for traveling expenses were gone into during the sittings of the commission here last June, was again asked to explain some further discrepancies in his accounts, as challenged by the Auditor-General last year. The wreck commissioner had been asked to refund about $900 by the Auditor-General, and his explanation as made before Judge Cassels last June was that this refund was made at the end of the year, when his yearly account was made up, and he found that he had this sum of money unexpended from the total amount advanced to him. Auditor-General Fraser testified that the charges for traveling expenses made last year by Commander Spain were manifestly incorrect, since on the dates for which traveling expenses to Fort William and other points were charged the departmental records showed he was holding court as wreck commissioner in Montreal. The accounts as presented by Commander Spain were initialled as correct by Deputy Minister Gourdeau. The Auditor-General said he had refused to pass the commander's accounts, and, failing further explanation, must continue to withhold payment.

Commander Spain, in giving his version of the matter, said that there must have been a mistake in the dates, and that there had in reality been no overcharge made for his traveling expenses. He had, he said, gone to Fort William last year, and only one entry appeared for expenses on that trip during the year. The date must have been wrongly entered. He will be examined again to-day, after being given an opportunity to look over his accounts and produce the Departmental record as to his out-of-town trips. This record, however, appears to be incomplete and incorrect in several instances.

The charge that exorbitant prices were charged the Government by the Canadian Fog Signal Co. of Toronto for diaphones supplied at a cost of $4,600 each was further gone into, and officials of the company gave evidence to the effect that in view of all the circumstances the price charged was quite justifiable, that the Government got extra good value for the expenditure, that the contract had been obtained in open competition after a careful report by the Department's engineers, and that a net profit of 20 per cent. was not too much to demand on a patented article for which the sale was limited.

Examination of the records of the People's Bank in Quebec during May and June, 1905, and some further evidence of Mr. Van Felsen's gave little help in solving the mystery as to the truth of the charges made by the latter regarding an alleged payment of $3,000 as a rake-off to Mr. J. B. A. Beaudreau of the Marine Department, in connection with the settlement of Holliday Bros'. account.

The rest of the sitting was devoted to an enquiry into the conduct of Departmental business at the Prescott agency, and the evidence adduced was all of a negative character in respect to any revelation of graft by the officials or employes there.

LOCKWORKS SPRANG BIG SURPRISE BY TAKING TWO GAMES FROM LEADERS

The victorious ten pin career of the Bankers was temporarily terminated last night in the league series at the P.B.C. and to the Lock Work's goes the honour of stopping the mad rush of the flying leaders, who up to this engagement had lost but one game since the league opened. Now there are three defeats chalked up against them, and the race has reached a point where any one of five teams may assume the leadership before the opening of the New Year, the Bankers, Pacifics, Iroquois, Exam A and Lock Works being well bunched in the first division with only three or four games separating them.

Of the lot the Pacifics seem to have the best chance of reaching the leaders, as they meet Hutchinson's tail-end team to-night, when the Belmonts and Iroquois will also come together in a double header. The first game is scheduled for 7.45 and the second for 9 p.m.

Luck is one of the most attractive elements in ten pins, and must always be regarded as a factor to be reckoned with. The veriest tyro always has some chance with the expert and the tail-end teams in a league race are always dangerous. They never admit defeat until the last frame is rolled, and to-night the Hams expect to justify this confidence by making the Pacifics go every inch of the way to win. Certainly they will make every effort to surprise their opponents, and improve their own standing in the league.

Last night's scores follow:—

HOCKEY TEAMS HAD GOOD PRACTICE; MANY JUNIORS OUT LAST NIGHT

Over twenty players were out in uniform at the practice of the intermediate and junior O.H.A. teams at Brock street rink last night, and the workout was a lively one. There were too many players on hand to allow any one to play much hockey, but the practice served to unravel the kinks that have collected since last season. One feature of the practice was the number of junior men on the ice and it looks as if the only difficulty in securing a junior O.H.A. team will be in selecting the men from the great mass of material there is available. Among the senior men out last night were Chris Graham, Wallie Parnell, Ray, Dusty, Seymour, Dobson, Ross, Long, Gilman, Derochier and Brogan, while the juniors had out in uniform, Leo Giroux, Cyril Giroux, Pentland, Gorman, Elliott, Fox, Wade, Callaghan, and others. Another practice will be held to-morrow night.

INTERMEDIATE SCHEDULE DRAWN UP; BELLEVILLE HERE FOR FIRST GAME

At a meeting of the clubs of this district held in Port Hope yesterday with Mr. T J Turpin, of Cobourg, in the chair, the schedule for the intermediate series of the O.H.A. was drawn up. The Peterborough Club was represented by G L Galley. The games will be as follows:

Jan. 5—PETERBOROUGH at Cobourg.
Jan. 8—Lindsay at Belleville.
Jan. 12—Cobourg at Lindsay.
Jan. 15—Belleville at PETERBOROUGH.
Jan. 18—Lindsay at Cobourg.
Jan. 18 — PETERBOROUGH at Belleville.
Jan. 22—Cobourg at Belleville.
Jan. 22 — PETERBOROUGH at Lindsay.
Jan. 26—Belleville at Cobourg.
Jan. 26—Lindsay at PETERBOROUGH.
Jan. 29—Belleville at Lindsay.
Jan. 29—Cobourg at PETERBOROUGH.

GAME WITH OSHAWA POSTPONED UNTIL LAST OF DISTRICT SERIES

The local juniors will not open their Junior O H A season here next Tuesday with Oshawa after all. Mr H E Bradley, secretary of the Oshawa Club called up secretary Glover of locals this morning and asked that the game be postponed until Feb 2. The Oshawa Club has not had any ice yet and as they are starting with a new team they have had no opportunity of getting a team together.

The Peterboroughs were in much the same condition as they have had little practice and they were quite agreeable to the change in the schedule as it will give them a little more time to whip their team into line.

The local's first game will be on New Years Day at Whitby and the first home game will be on Monday, Jan 4th with Cobourg.

With a junior and senior City League Merchantile League, and Church League, in addition to Junior and senior O H A teams, Peterborough people will have plenty of hockey during the coming season. Following is a list of the home games of junior and Intermediate O H A teams—

TURF CLUB RACES AT DRIVING PARK ON CHRISTMAS AFTERNOON

On Christmas afternoon one of the chief attractions will be the Turf Club races at the Driving Park. The track is being put in good condition and some fast and interesting events are fully expected. The local turf men are all waiting for the day, and the horses from outside points that are sure to be here should provide an afternoon of good sport. There are two named races for fairly large purses, and these together with the rivalry that exists locally, should result in some fine finishes. The Turf Club has tried to fill in the blank of Christmas afternoon for those who have no other amusement and with fine weather there should be many avail themselves of this fine outdoor sport.

Two pins in three games, was the narrow margin by which the Happy Thoughts bowling team were defeated last night at the Y.M.C.A. by the M.A.S. The scores were:—

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE HAVE UP TWO CUPS

Mr. J. W. Pearce, M.L.A., Hon. President of the Trent Valley Hockey League, has offered a cup to be awarded to the team winning the championship of the League for one year or two years in succession as the Executive of the League may decide. With a trophy of two cups to compete for there should be a very exciting contest in the League this season. Stirling and Madoc will both have very strong teams, but Marmora will also have the strongest team it has ever had and should be able to hold its own.—Marmora Herald.

STRATHCONAS PRACTISE TO-NIGHT

Full Turn Out of City Leaguers Expected at Brock Street Rink This Evening.

The Strathcona City League team, last year's champions, will hold their first practice of the season to-night at Brock street Rink, between 7 and 8 o'clock. The following players are expected to be out in uniform: Wilson, Barber, Dusty, Ray, Long, Dobson, Seymour, Weatherstone and McMillan.

HOCKEY

The Belmont hockey team will practise to-morrow evening from six to seven o'clock on Wednesday night, at the Brock street rink. All desiring to play are requested to be out on time.

A Highly Recommended Prescription For Kidney and Bladder Troubles

IT IS MIXED AT HOME

There are more cases of kidney trouble here now than ever before, while recent reports show that more people succumb each year to some form of kidney disease than any other cause.

When there is sickness, examine the urine. Rheumatism is only a symptom of kidney trouble. It is nothing more or less than excessive uric acid in the blood, which the sluggish, inactive kidneys have failed to sift out, leaving it to decompose and settle about the joints and muscles, causing intense suffering; frequently resulting in deformity; often reaching the heart, when death ensues.

Pains across the back, frequent painful and suppressed urination and other symptoms of weak bladder are not the only signs of kidney trouble; many cases of stomach disease, headache, pain in the heart, inactive liver, etc., are but symptoms; the cause of which can be traced to feeble, clogged kidneys.

A simple test of the urine is to void a small quantity in a bottle or glass and let it stand over night; next morning, if there is a reddish brick-dust sediment, or white fleecy substance present, either consult some reputable physician or take a good vegetable treatment. The following prescription is highly recommended in these cases, and the sufferer can mix it at home: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

Where any of the symptoms enumerated above are present, good results are sure to follow immediately on the use of this simple prescription.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Saving Explained by a Peterboro Citizen Who Knows From Experience

Many Peterborough people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a great amount of suffering and ill health.

The reason so many use Booth's Kidney Pills is their quick relief for all Kidney weakness. Here is what a Peterborough citizen says:—

Mrs. Geo. Hawes of 857 Water street, Peterborough, Ontario, says: "I had suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble and although I had tried many remedies and doctors I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull, bearing-down pain settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I soon found them to benefit me and continued their use. In a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever and without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

Stratton's Open Evenings

For the convenience of those who cannot find it convenient to shop during the day. Gifts to charm the elders, to delight the children; something to please "him" as well as the feminine fancy. It's delightful to shop where the stocks are so full. We are ready to help you make a happy and joyous Christmas. Open evenings. A. H. Stratton & Co.

Ambitious Lillian Russell.

—Some idea of the ambitions of Lillian Russell, now meeting with great success in the racing comedy, "Wildfire," can be gathered by an experience she had in New York during her wonderful run there. A publisher, who is also a personal friend, approached the former prima donna and sought to urge her to give him the rights to her autobiography. "Bless your soul, but you are too early," she replied. "Why, I'm just beginning in twenty years it will be time to talk about autobiographies. All that I have done heretofore was just the primer grade exercises. The real work is beginning, and it feels fine to undertake something actually worth while."

All Saint's Church

—The rector, on behalf of the Women's Guild, wishes to thank those who sent in the Christmas cheer, nearly all of which was distributed at the church on Monday afternoon. He also wishes to express his thanks for several very generous cash contributions sent in for the same purpose. The usual services will be held at 8 and 11 Christmas Day. Every parishioner who can is expected to come to-night to the church to help decorate. A generous supply of greens has been sent in for which thanks are now given.

CHRISTMAS NEAR

We mention a few of the Xmas necessities which we now have in stock. Table Raisins, Pulled Figs, Fresh Figs, Fresh Shelled Nuts, Golden Dates, Grape Fruit, California, Florida and Mexican Oranges, and the very best new Nuts. Also "Seashipt" Oysters. S. A. OKE

Mr. W. J. McBurney, Havelock, was in the city this morning.

Messrs Herb Conroy and Rich Sheehy, Jr., are home from Ottawa College for the holidays.

Miss Edith Clegg has returned from Canajoharie, N. Y., where she has been for the past three years.

Mr Garnet Greer of Queen's University, Kingston, is spending his holidays with his parents, Queen street.

Miss Josie Hawkey, of the Conservatory of Music Peterboro' is visiting her parents Mr and Mrs F. Hawkey, Ellen Street.—Port Hope Guide.

The engagement is announced of Hon. Senator Geo. A. Cox, to Miss Amy Gertrude Sterling, daughter of Mr. Walter Sterling, City Treasurer, Toronto.

Mr Jas. T. Lang was in Lindsay this morning, attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Jos. Maher, mother of Mr Jos. P. Maher, formerly of Peterborough.

Mr and Mrs T Archer of Uxbridge announce the engagement of their only daughter Eva V. Archer to Mr Everett Tisdall of Peterborough. The marriage will take place very quietly at the end of the month.

Mrs. Janet Huyck left to-day for Newburg, Lennox County, where she will for some time to come make her home. Mrs. Huyck's quiet and unostentatious goodness sought little prominence in social life, but her unassuming acts of kindness to her friends and to those to whom she was a friend—the poor and the needy—will for some time to come be much missed in Peterborough.

OBITUARY.

MR. EDWARD CHAMBERS

The death of Mr. Edward Chambers, sr., of this village, which took place at his residence on Bond street west last week, removes one of the oldest and most widely known residents of this community. Deceased had been in poor health for some time, but his condition was not considered serious until a few days before his death, when he suffered a paralytic stroke. Edward Chambers was born in Stromness, Orkney, Scotland, on May 13th, 1833, and came to Canada at the age of 13 years with his parents, who settled in the township of Monaghan. Forty-two years ago he came to Fenelon Falls, and some time later took up a farm in Verulam township, where he lived until eight years ago, when he returned to the village. He is survived by a widow, six sons and two daughters. The sons are Joseph, James, Edward and Frederick, of Fenelon Falls; David, of Bensfort, Monaghan; and Thomas, who lives on the old homestead in Verulam. The daughters are Mrs. John Thompson, of Verulam township, near Dunsford, and Mrs. Robert Brown, of Toronto.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

MRS. JAMES MAHER

The death occurred suddenly on Sunday, in Lindsay, of a well known and respected lady, Mrs. James Maher, mother of Mr. M. J. Maher, of the firm of Lang & Maher, of Peterborough and Lindsay. The late Mrs. Maher, whose maiden name was Curtain, was born in County Limerick, Ireland, in 1833, and came to Canada with her parents when but four years of age. They settled in the township of Brock, where she resided until her marriage with Mr. Maher some forty-two years ago. A couple of years later the young couple removed to Lindsay.

The funeral was held to-day.

MANY DEER MEET DEATH AT HANDS OF HUNTERS

During the hunting season in Ontario for the year 1908, the Canadian Express Company carried 2,248 carcasses of deer with a total weight of 264,308 lbs. The season included a period of fifteen days between November 1st and 15th inclusive, and the figures show an increase of 181 carcasses over the year 1907. All of these shipments were from points on the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk Railway System, the heaviest shipments being made from Burks Falls, Haliburton, Huntsville, Kinmount, Powassan, Scotia Junction, South River and Trout Creek. This number does not give any idea of the number of deer killed during the opening season, and as each hunter is allowed two deer on his license and as from eight to nine thousand hunters were in the district, it is probable that 10,000 to 12,000 deer were killed during the season. This is estimated from the fact that a large number of deer are eaten in the hunters' camp and a great many are transported by the settlers by other means than through the railway.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS AT GORDON'S MEAT MARKET

A Gaily Displayed Shop With Festoons and Embellishments Prettily Arranged.

Special credit is due to Mr. Alex. Gordon, of the Arcade Meat Market, for the handsome Christmas decorations he has displayed in his meat shop. It looks like a revival of the old time enthusiasm which the butchers all displayed at the Christmas season. Each one used to vie with the other as to who would have the best dressed meat displays, and when customers would have their particular cuts ticketed with neatly written cards and ornamented with a pretty rosette or ribbon. Mr. Gordon has spared no expense in festooning his shop and ornamenting his prime exhibits of Christmas beef, lamb, pork, etc. It's worth a visit of inspection. Have a look, and then have a try at the weight of the prize turkey which he, Mr. Gordon, is giving away free on Christmas eve.

CAMERA CLUB HOLD A PLEASANT SESSION

Were Entertained at the Residence of Mr. Allan McCarthy Last Night.

A very enjoyable session of the Peterborough Camera Club was held on Monday night at the residence of Mr. Allan McCarthy, East City, when there was a fairly large attendance of the executive. The prizes won at the recent exhibit were presented by Mr. McCarthy, acting for the president. Some discussion took place in regard to holding an exhibition in the spring and a committee was appointed to look into the matter. A salon for members of the club was also discussed and will likely be gone ahead with. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy most pleasantly entertained the members.

PROGRESS OF CALGARY REMARKABLE

Mr. Fred Weir Home on a Visit—Tells of Western Conditions.

Among the Peterborough boys who have gone out west few have been more successful in business than Mr. Fred Weir, who is now home on a visit. For some years he was manager of a large soap manufacturing concern in Calgary which has recently amalgamated with another company.

Mr. Weir states that business in the Canadian West never appeared brighter. The money market has loosened up and although there is not much movement in real estate, money is plentiful. Especially is this the case among the farmers who last season had splendid crops particularly in the vicinity of Calgary. The western people are very optimistic as to the future of their country and from appearances at present they have every reason to be so.

Calgary, Mr. Weir says, is rapidly growing and is now universally considered one of the brightest and busiest of the western towns and cities. Many Peterborough people are located there and in the surrounding territory and with very few exceptions they are making splendid progress.

PLEASANT POST NUPTIAL PRESENTATION

Mr. Lewis Wood, Cavan, Handsome Rocker by Number of Friends.

Millbrook, Dec. 23 (Special)—On the evening of the 15th inst., Mr and Mrs. Lewis Wood were taken by surprise by a number of Mr. Wood's old companions, who met to present him with a handsome Mission Rocker. The presentation was made by Mr. Henry Ball and the following address read by Mr. Ed. Fallis:—

To Mr. Lewis Wood:

Dear Friend,—A number of your friends and neighbours have thought it their duty and a pleasant duty at that, to call on you this evening to extend to you and Mrs. Wood their congratulations and good wishes on the occasion of your marriage. We have been friends together in the days gone by, and we hope to still remain as attached to each other. We meet at your home on this occasion to ask you to accept this rocker as a small token of our esteem and regard, and hope that it may be a quiet resting place for you when your day's labours are done, and always be a reminder to you of your friends amongst the boys.

With best wishes for a long and happy life to Mrs. Wood and yourself,

We remain,

YOUR OLD CHUMS.

Cavan, Dec. 16, 1908.

Mr. Wood made a suitable reply, expressing his appreciation of their good wishes toward him, although he said, words alone could not nearly express his thanks for this token of their good wishes. Mr. Wood's hearty wish is that their lives may be long, so that, as in the past, many pleasant evenings may be spent together.

LETTER FROM A FORTY-NINER

Here's a simple, interesting and sincere letter from a rugged pioneer of '49, who braved the dangers and hardships of the overland trail to California. It should appeal to all catarrh victims.

Santa Rosa, Cal., May 5, 1908

Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—I was afflicted with catarrh and tried a number of remedies but received no relief. I purchased an outfit of Hyomei, and before I had used the bottle I noticed a marked relief. I used it for a month or so and thought I was cured, and stopped using it for a year or so. Thought I was getting catarrh again, and started using it again. I use it every morning, and keep myself clear of catarrh. I consider it the best catarrh medicine that is used. I have often recommended it to my friends. I am 81 years old. I came to California in 1849 and of course am not as vigorous as I was 58 years ago. My address is 841 4th Street. Yours truly, W. Mock."

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed by Wm. Madill not only for catarrh, but for grip, coughs, colds, bronchitis and croup. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00; extra bottles of Hyomei afterwards needed, cost but 50c

THE JANUARY NUMBER OF ROD AND GUN READY

The New Year number of Rod and Gun appears as bright and interesting as ever. The long and varied list of contents of the January issue of this magazine, which is published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock, Ont., is in keeping with the position taken and so thoroughly well maintained by this leading Canadian publication of outdoor life. Exploring and pioneering stories are intermingled with hunting and fishing yarns of the best, all redolent of the woods and of the actual and far above, from the sportsman's view point, the average of such contributions. In addition there are many short but interesting papers on various phases of life in the open, all of the deepest interest to the ever increasing army of such devotees.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS AT GORDON'S MEAT MARKET

A Gaily Displayed Shop With Festoons and Embellishments Prettily Arranged.

SSpecial credit is due to Mr. Alex. Gordon of the Arcade Meat Market, for the handsome Christmas decorations he has displayed in his meat shop. It looks like a revival of the old time enthusiasm which the butchers all displayed at the Christmas season. Each one used to vie with the other as to who would have the best dressed meat displays, and when customers would have their particular cuts ticketed with neatly written cards and ornamented with a pretty rosette or ribbon. Mr. Gordon has spared no expense in festooning his shop and ornamenting his prime exhibits of Christmas beef, lamb, pork, etc. It's worth a visit of inspection. Have a look, and then have a try at the weight of the prize turkey which he, Mr. Gordon, is giving away free on Christmas eve.

CAMERA CLUB HOLD A PLEASANT SESSION

Were Entertained at the Residence of Mr. Allan McCarthy Last Night.

A very enjoyable session of the Peterborough Camera Club was held on Monday night at the residence of Mr. Allan McCarthy, East City, when there was a fairly large attendance of the executive. The prizes won at the recent exhibit were presented by Mr. McCarthy, acting for the president. Some discussion took place in regard to holding an exhibition in the spring and a committee was appointed to look into the matter. A salon for members of the club was also discussed and will likely be gone ahead with. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy most pleasantly entertained the members.

"THE NIGGER IN THE WOOD-PILE"

Thousands of people go through life feeling more or less miserable without ever knowing the reason. They suffer from headaches, indigestion, pains in the back, and at the slightest chill get rheumatism or neuralgia.

They try to cure these separate outbreaks, never suspecting that the root of the whole trouble is the failure of the bowels to move regularly, and in many cases the sluggish action of kidneys and skin. The result, of course, is that the whole system gets clogged with impurities, which soon turn to poison, and show their presence in various ways.

"Fruit-a-tives"—or fruit juice tablets—promptly stir up the sluggish liver, regulate the bowels, and stimulate the kidneys and skin to do their work properly. Thus they cure all these troubles by removing the cause, and make it possible to really enjoy life. 50c a box—6 boxes for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BRITAIN'S COAL OUTPUT.

More Than a Quarter of Million Tons Mined in United Kingdom In 1907.

It would seem, judging from last year's output from the mines and quarries of the United Kingdom, that there is little ground for the fear, sometimes expressed, that the coal resources of the country are giving out. Nearly 268,000,000 tons of coal were raised to the surface during 1907—the highest total hitherto recorded—showing an increase of close upon 17,000,000 tons on the output of the previous year. The total value of this coal amounted to the stupendous figure of $607,500,000.

It will probably surprise many readers to learn that a quarter of the output of coal in the United Kingdom is exported to foreign countries. France, for instance, during 1907 bought 10,750,000 tons from us, Germany 10,000,000, Italy 8,250,000, Netherlands and Sweden over 3,000,000 each, while Russia, Spain, Denmark, Egypt, and even the Argentine Republic purchased over 2,000,000 tons each from us. Even after supplying these demands, there was sufficient coal left for home consumption to allow for four tons for every person in the United Kingdom.

Coal represents about 82 per cent. of the minerals raised, and other minerals, such as clay and shale, limestone, salt, sandstone, and slate, were valued at over $40,000,000. Such are the values of products from the bowels of the earth.

BUTLER'S MARRIAGE.

Husband of Woman Who Painted "Roll Call" a Famous Soldier.

Sir William Butler, the distinguished soldier, who recently entered the ranks of the septuagenarians almost at the same time that he celebrated the jubilee of his entrance into the army, had his first taste of warfare in the Ashanti Campaign of the 'seventies, after eleven years of what he has so aptly termed "rusting routine." Sir William, who was a captain at the time, was mentioned on several occasions in the despatches of Lord Wolseley, and from that time onward, until the last Boer War, there was scarcely a campaign of importance that the British army was engaged in in which he did not play a prominent part. It was after the Ashanti Campaign and shortly before the Zulu War of '79 that Sir William married Miss Elizabeth Thompson, the well-known painter of "The Roll Call" and other famous pictures. The story goes that Sir William—he was then, of course, Capt. Butler—was lying ill at Haslar Hospital, when his friends almost bored him beyond endurance with descriptions of the famous picture which was the talk of London. Sceptical regarding the picture's merits, which he thought had been exaggerated, he went to London, saw it, and was conquered. Shortly after he met Miss Thompson, and they were married a few weeks later.

Value of Special Knowledge.

The remarkable botanical knowledge of Sir George Birdwood, one of the most erudite men in the Indian service, once enabled him to perform almost unconsciously a neat bit of detective work.

He was in Bombay when he was asked to investigate the case of a young nobleman who, in applying to the governor for an appointment, represented that he was just out from England, and his letters of introduction had been lost on the voyage.

A few days after Birdwood had undertaken the investigation he met the young nobleman at dinner at the governor's house. The table decorations of orchids suggested a conversational opening, and Birdwood's praise drew from the young nobleman sitting opposite:

"You should see the Amherstia nobilis in its native woods, sir."

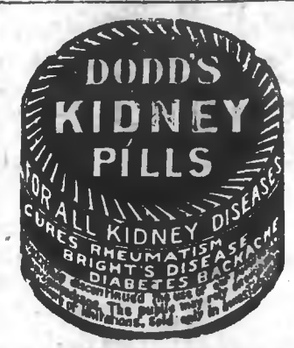
It was a fatal remark. "You come from Rangoon, then," instantly exclaimed Birdwood.

The pale face, the silence that followed the remark, the request of the young man that he might leave the table, all prepared the governor and the company for the subsequent discovery that the young man had absconded from Rangoon with public funds.

If Albani Were a Man.

The famous prima donna, who is announced to appear on the variety stage at a salary of $2,500 a week, unlike Mme. Melba—who has lately been expressing approval of the Suffragette movement—has a great opinion of the superiority of the sterner sex. "I am old-fashioned enough," she confessed a short time ago, "to still revere 'man' as of the superior sex. But how odd they are too! I suppose if I were a man I should be odd too; but how funny are some men, what real children, how lovable with all their big-heartedness, with all their experience of the world how trustful still, and—when a woman is concerned—how often too easily taken in!" And after thus qualifying her statement as to the superiority of man, Mme. Albani further confesses that if she were a man she would strive to see the world, and profit by all the good there is in every other country, in order to help to improve her own. She is devoted to England and to the English, as well as to her own native Canadian land. And "if I were a boy," to again quote her own words, "I am sure I should long to do something for and be something in my own country."

When a man likes to see how near the edge he can walk without falling over, there is only one thing that will cure him—falling over.—Atchison Globe.



An Awkward Player.

In 1608 King James published his famous "Book of Sports" and, thinking to render the Presbyterian form of worship less rigid, ordered that certain of the sports therein commended should be played in the several churchyards every Sunday at the close of divine service. John Ross, a minister of Blairgowrie, adopted a novel method of withstanding the royal ordinance. He was a strong, athletic man and seemed much interested in the recreations enjoined by the monarch. Football was selected by the parishioners of Blairgowrie from the list of "Sunday games." When the services of the church were completed Mr. Ross appeared among his people in the churchyard and joined them in their sport. None of the assemblage kicked more eagerly at the football than did the reverend incumbent. But constant misfortune seemed to attend him. Every kick missed the ball and fell heavily on the ankles of those who stood near. Apologies were promptly tendered and, of course, received, though every Sunday many of the parishioners returned home halting. Finally it was agreed that on account of the minister's awkwardness the games should be abandoned. Thus the ingenious divine gained his end and prevented compliance with the obnoxious order.

Where Greek Met Greek.

The marble clock in the dining room had just announced in mellow tones the hour of 3 a. m., when the wife of the plumber nudged him and whispered nervously:

"Horace, there's a burglar in the house!"

"There is, hey?" answered the husband, now thoroughly awake. "I'll see about him."

With cunning stealth he got out of bed and tiptoed out of the room. For ten minutes no sound broke the awful stillness. Then the house shook with a crash. There was a century of silence. Then a chair fell, the front door slammed and a heavy bundle thumped down the front stairs and into the street.

The terrified wife fainted, to be brought back to consciousness by the voice of her husband.

"It's all right, dear. I threw him out," he chuckled as he turned on the light. "But the scoundrel had only $4.30 in his clothes."—Judge.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Scalp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was thirty years old when he met a damsel of thirteen, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address." "I do not know where," she replied, with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer, "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

Whittier's Applause.

In his declining years the poet Whittier was extremely absentminded. He attended a church meeting where there were a large number of persons. As his presence was known, it was deemed fitting by one of the speakers to quote the poet's lines;

I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond his love and care.

Great applause greeted the quotation, and Whittier was noticed to join in the handclapping. "I suppose I must have had my mind on something else. I had no recollection of having written the verse," he said apologetically when his attention was called to the authorship.—Boston Post.

Legal Fiction.

Says Sir Henry Maine in his "Ancient Law:" "A legal fiction is the assumption which conceals or affects to conceal the fact that a rule of law has undergone alteration, its letter remaining unchanged while its operation has been modified. The fact is that the law has been changed; the fiction is that it remains what it always was."

THE QUEEREST COLONY

SOUTH GEORGIA MOST UNIQUE OF BRITAIN'S POSSESSIONS.

Tiny Community of British Subjects In Antarctic Regions Number One Hundred, of Whom Nearly All Are Men—Nova Scotian Skipper Pays Profitable Visit to the Ice-Bound Whale-Fishers.

The barquentine Stranger, of Lunenburg, N.S., came into port the other day carrying in her signal locker a house flag with a red ground and a white whale in the centre. This is the flag of the Argentine Fishing Co. It was a flag obtained on a trip to a British colony situated as far south as men live.

In the South Atlantic, just outside the Antarctic Circle, 1,700 miles to the southeast of Buenos Ayres, lies the island of South Georgia. It is 800 miles east southeast of the Falklands, contains about 1,100 square miles, and is a British crown colony belonging to the Falklands.

Capt. A. P. Strumm, a well built, fine-looking man, told how he happened to go to South Georgia on a voyage strewn with icebergs and field ice, fogs and whales, and succeeded in getting away with the charter safely and clearing $5,500 for his owners in two months. The Stranger, with nearly the last of her load of lumber from Bridgewater, N.S., out of her, lay at the Boca, Buenos Ayres, waiting for a cargo of hay or ballast to come north again.

His ship broker told Capt. Strumm that the Compania Argentina wanted to charter for South Georgia, and inside of an hour and a half the charter was the Stranger's, while three Norwegian barques, afraid of the ice, lay idle in the Platte. The barquentine took aboard 100 tons of coal as ballast, 840 empty barrels and a nine-ton boiler for the strangest and most distant whaling station. There ice and whales were found as plenty as stones in a Connecticut pasture.

Arrived at the island, the Nova Scotian found a colony of sixty men ashore and forty men afloat, manning a fleet of three small steamers engaged in whaling. The governor of South Georgia is Capt. C. A. Larsen, who was the commander of Dr. Otto Nordenskjold's exploring ship, the Antarctic, which was lost in 1902. In Capt. Larsen, whose commercial instinct has been aroused by the unlimited possibilities of profit in the whale industry in the near Antarctic seas during his adventures, Capt Strumm found a most fascinating host. It was by Capt. Larsen's persuasion that the Argentine Fishing Co. was organized.

There is only one woman on the island, the wife of Capt. Larsen's brother, with the exception of a few weeks in each year when the captain's wife comes to pay a visit. Mrs. Larsen has in her home a piano, an organ and a graphophone, besides books and plenty of fancy work. Nopotism among the employes prevails, and so far as Capt. Strumm could learn most of the men on the island and steamers are related in some way. In addition to his monthly wage every man receives a bonus of half a cent on every cask of oil.

Whales, whales! It is nothing but whales in these waters. There are narwhales, or unicorn whales; right whales and humpbacks, and while the Stranger lay in the bay one blue whale was taken that measured ninety-five feet. The oil is sent to Buenos Ayres, whence it is transshipped to Europe and to some extent to the United States. The plant on South Georgia has been established three years. It turns out 200 barrels a day. Whalebone from the right whale brings about $7,500 a ton, and from the narwhal $3,200. The product for this year will be 20,000 barrels. It sells for $20 a barrel.

The steamers are built in Norway and have three hawse pipes on each side for towing the whales to the island. Next year a floating station, consisting of a large steamer equipped with plenty of boats and a trying-out plant, will be run in connection with the land station. While Capt. Strumm was there a steamer came in, towing two right whales. "Here's your freight," said Capt. Larsen to Capt. Strumm. "Those two whales are worth just $5,500."

Right whales are the most rare. There are so many "nars" and humpbacks that only one steamer is sent after these, while the other two steamers go to the north end to shoot right whales, whose whalebone is always worth the cleaning. No steamer is allowed to bring in more than six whales at once. If a captain brings in more he is reprimanded. Sixteen right whales were shot the first year, twenty-six the second and seventy-eight the last year. Whale meat, if pickled in order to take out the taste of the oil, can hardly be distinguished from beef.

The Norwegians talked of annexing South Georgia, but this made the Argentines jealous, and Great Britain settled the question by sending a warship the first year and planting the British flag on a snow-covered mountain 2,800 feet high. The British Government made Capt. Larsen resident governor, with strict orders not to allow the seals, sea lions, sea leopards, sea elephants or other animals of their kind to be wantonly killed. A seal may be killed only for food.

The mean temperature of South Georgia is about 34 degrees, and on the whole island there is not enough grass to cover the deck of the Stranger. The wind blows at the rate of nearly seventy miles an hour.

Advance In the Price of Whisky.

London distillers of grain spirits gave notice recently of an advance of two pence per gallon in the price of whisky. The reason given for the advance is the great increase in the cost of production, owing to the higher prices of raw materials.

Few things are impossible in themselves. It is not so much means as perseverance that is wanting to bring them to a successful issue.—Rochefoucauld.

Astronomy.

If there were any money to be made in astronomy everybody would be studying it. About all we can see is figures, and these are so big that they stagger the understanding. Every child in the United States knows how to find the north star (Old Polaris) from the pointers of the dipper, but no child can appreciate the statement that this star is distant from the earth 210,000,000,000,000 miles—two hundred and ten trillions! The Twentieth Century Limited, traveling at one mile a minute, would have to run without stopping for 479,000,000 years in order to traverse this distance. If light really travels 187,500 miles a second, a ray from the north star would be thirty-six years in reaching the earth.—New York Press.

Would Not Pay Charges.

He was an impecunious nobleman with air castles in sunny France. After much deliberation he sent the following note to the pretty heiress:

And the heiress penned the following:

Dear Count—Express yourself any way you wish except C. O. D., as you are not worth the charges.

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicine and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

Which Stocking?

"Seems to me," complaineth Lillie,
"That when Santa comes a-knocking,
All our Christmas things to fill, he Might just bring me a big stocking.

"Mine's so teenie that, my landy!
It would never hold a dollie,
To say nothing of the candy,
Nuts and toys and sprig of holly."

And so Mamma, to appease her,
Says that she'll just hang her own up,
And perhaps St. Nick—the teaser—
Won't discover it's a grownup

Yet, in Mamma's estimation
(Mothers sometimes are such sillies!)
All big stockings in creation
Are not worth that one of Lillie's.

THE HUNT CLUB AT MR. J. J. LUNDY'S BIRTHDAY DINNER

Last night, at his residence, Burnham street, east city, Mr. J. J. Lundy entertained a party of gentlemen at dinner, to celebrate his birthday. The party was composed of about fifteen members of the Ketchecum Hunt Club. A delightful evening was spent in the enjoyment of Mr. Lundy's generous hospitality, and renewing the story of many happy days in the happy hunting grounds of the club. The enthusiasm with which Mr. Lundy's health was honoured, and the fervor of the wished for many happy returns showed how high a place he holds in the esteem and even affection of his fellow members of the Ketchecum Hunt Club. And to these wishes will be joined the hosts of his friends in Peterborough, city and county.

DUKES WORTH MILLIONS.

Westminster and Bedford Have Nearly £9,000,000 Between Them.

Speculation was rife a few days ago concerning the identity of the two millionaires who are credited in the Statistical Abstract of the United Kingdom with possessing between them the enormous sum of £8,619,000. These two fortunate persons are probably the Dukes of Westminster and Bedford.

The Duke of Bedford, who is known among his intimates by the nickname of "Hatband," owns the larger portion of Bloomsbury and the whole of Covent Garden, including the market, which is reputed to bring him £50,000 a year. The Duke and Duchess of Bedford care little for society, and the only occasions on which they appear are at rare intervals in the Bedford box at Covent Garden Opera, and at Prince's Skating Rink in Knightsbridge. At Woburn Abbey, their principal palatial residence, there are private zoological gardens. The Duchess of Bedford is a Fellow of the Zoological Society. The earl is greatly taken up with all the varied interests of his property, and is the author of a book on "The Management of a Great Estate."

It is doubtful whether the Duke of Westminster realizes exactly what he is worth. He is probably the most wealthy territorial magnate in the kingdom, counting amongst his properties the valuable Grosvenor estate, which is situated in the heart of the West-end.

The Grosvenor family represents one of the few remaining sets in London society that may be described as strictly exclusive. They live in a world of their own. Outsiders for them do not exist, nor will they willingly tolerate the presence of anyone who by birth and breeding does not belong to the privileged elect. This exclusiveness is probably the result of the successful marriages made by the Grosvenor girls into exalted families.

An idea of the duke's colossal wealth can be gained by an inspection of his splendid town mansion, which is a treasure-house filled with objects of priceless value. Many people are content with a clock which costs a sovereign or two, but that which tells his Grace of Westminster the hour possesses a pendulum which in itself is worth £48,000, for it is set with forty-eight flawless diamonds, each valued at £1,000. The Duke of Westminster is a popular sportsman, and is known amongst his particular friends as "Bend Or," a nickname conferred on him to commemorate the famous racehorse of that name own by his grandfather, the late duke. Socialists and others may forgive him his great wealth when it is stated that fancy foods have no favor in the Westminster household. Simple dishes are always provided, such as mutton cutlets, milk puddings, fruit tarts, and so on. Much of his vast wealth is derived from groundrents. He grows rich because he can't help it.

Australia's New Ship.

Sydney is legitimately jubilant over the construction of the Endeavor, the ship designed for fishery investigation in the service of the Commonwealth Government. Her beat will include no fewer than eight thousand miles of coast line. She has been constructed in the New South Wales Government dockyard, and her completion is a notable event in the history of Australian shipbuilding. New South Wales is the fortunate possessor of excellent iron deposits, and is well supplied with the necessary facilities for the construction of ships. The Endeavor must be a good and stout craft if she is prepared to encounter the occasionally very rough weather off the Australian coasts, more especially in the Bight. The expense saved in taking ships out from Great Britain is expected to cover any increased cost of local construction, and the opinion has been expressed by a competent critic that in the near future it may even prove cheaper to build torpedo-destroyers "down under" for the requirements of Australia than to send them out from England.

Wanted His "Swag" Back.

Sir Edward Clarke, K.C., whom the King included in the list of birthday honors by appointing him a Privy Councillor, tells an amusing story of one of his early cases. He defended a young prisoner who had been found in illegal possession of a number of silver spoons and forks. When the man's term of imprisonment had expired, the barrister was astonished one day to see him walk into his chambers. "You didn't expect to see me again, did you?" said the man. "You see, it's like this. When they caught me I had a lot of the silver plate on me, but they took it away. Now I was thinking that, as you got me off so lightly, you could make the police give me back my swag." It is an interesting fact, by the way, that Sir Edward, who began life as an assistant in his father's jewellery shop in the city, only made £100 during the first three years at the Bar. In recent years his annual income is reported to have been about £30,000.

A Practical Joke.

He was a wag and was passing a large draper's shop in Manchester. There, drawn up, were three or four vehicles, and among them was a closed brougham with the driver fast asleep on the box. Evidently the mistress was inside the shop. Without a word the wag stole quickly up and, opening the carriage door, carefully slammed it to. In an instant the coachman straightened himself up and gazed up the street as if he had never seen anything more interesting to look at in his life. Then he stole a look over his shoulder and saw the wag standing, hat in hand, apparently conversing with some one inside the carriage.

"Thank you, yes. Good morning," said the practical joker and bowed himself graciously away from the door, turning as he did so to look at the coachman and say, "Home!"

"Yes, sir! Tch! Get up!" And away went the brougham home.

Where that home was, who the mistress of the carriage was or what she did or said when she came out of the shop or what the coachman did or said when he stopped at the door of "home" and found the carriage empty—all that only the coachman and the lady know. —London Tit-Bits.

A Beggar in a Basket.

Perhaps the most curious use to which Mexicans put their baskets is to hold gamecocks. Sometimes the cock's basket is woven for the purpose; oftener it is made from a sombrero, the wide, high crowned, straw hat of the country, into which the bird is put, a hole cut in the crown to give him air and the brim carefully tied down that he may not escape. The bullfight has been called the national sport of Mexico, but cockfighting is much more universal, for the humblest peasant may have his gamecock, which he keeps in a carefully made cage in his patio, watches with pride and tends with care.

One of the strangest uses to which a basket has probably ever been put was the daily appearance in the streets of a young man carrying in a huge bushel basket on his shoulders his great-grandmother, of unknown age, who held out a skinny hand to the passer-by for the centavo which was almost unfailingly given. Surely a trust in Providence could go no further.—Eleanor Hope Johnson in Outing Magazine.

Dreams of the Blind.

In my dreams I have sensations, odors, tastes and ideas which I do not remember to have had in reality. Perhaps they are the glimpses which my mind catches through the veil of sleep of my earliest babyhood. I have heard "the trampling of many waters." Sometimes a wonderful light visits me in sleep. Such a flash and glory as it is! I gaze and gaze until it vanishes. I smell and taste much as in my waking hours, but the sense of touch plays a less important part. In sleep I almost never grope. No one guides me. Even in a crowded street I am self sufficient, and I enjoy an independence quite foreign to my physical life. Now I seldom spell on my fingers, and it is still rarer for others to spell into my hand. My mind acts independent of my physical organs. I am delighted to be thus endowed, if only in sleep, for then my soul dons its winged sandals and joyfully joins the throng of happy beings who dwell beyond the reaches of bodily sense.—Helen Keller in Century.

The Cheerful Undertaker.

A most amusing thing occurred one evening upon our arrival at a small town in New Zealand. We found awaiting us at the station the local carriage and pair, with the local undertaker as footman. He was garbed in his usual funereal suit of black, but he had substituted a white tie in order to relieve the situation somewhat, and, evidently with a desire to dispel any morbid impressions he might otherwise have created, he commenced to whistle a selection of the most cheerful tunes he knew, while he held the door open for us and helped us into the carriage.—Clara Butt in Musical Home Journal.

Cooking With Sunlight.

Sun cooking—roasting and boiling by sunlight instead of coal or gas—has been going on for 300 years. There are sun stoves that roast a sirloin or boil a soup to perfection. They are only used, however, by scientists. A sun stove consists mainly of a mirror—a spherical mirror on a joint. There is also a reflector. The place for pot or plate is so situated that the mirror's rays can be focused on it accurately. A German, Baron Tchernhausen, was the first sun cook. He began in 1687 to boil water, and in 1688 he had very good success at baking eggs. Sir John Herschel and Buffon are other famous names associated with sun cooking. In California various sun cooks have boiled a gallon of water in twenty minutes, roasted meat in two hours and poached eggs in fifteen minutes—quite as good time as the ordinary fire makes. An odd thing about meat roasted by sun rays is that it has an unpleasant taste. This is avoided by the insertion of a plate of yellow glass between meat and mirror. In all solar stoves the sheet of yellow glass figures.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Queer English Laws.

"No statute law of England ever can be obsolete," a legal journal says. "Once enacted, it continues in binding force until repealed."

If such be really the case, there ought to be some lively times ahead for several classes of the community. For instance, what will builders have to say to the act which penalizes any person who erects a house without attaching to it at least four acres of land? This was one of "good Queen Bess'" laws, and it has most certainly never been repealed.

By another unrepealed statute, which dates back to the first year of King James I., it is enacted that not more than a penny may be charged for a quart of the best old ale nor more than a halfpenny for a like quantity of small beer. The penalty for each infraction of the act is 20 shillings, so that if it were rigidly enforced it would not need, apparently, a licensing bill to ruin the brewers. Then, again, a Catholic owning a horse is still legally obliged to sell it for £5 to anybody who chooses to offer that sum for it.—London Graphic.

The First Mourning Paper.

The oldest known letter written on black edged note paper as a sign of mourning appears to be one dated Jan. 5, 1683. In Addison's comedy of "The Drummer," 1715, reference is made to the fashion in the words, "My lady's mourning paper that is blacked at the edges." A few years later Allan Ramsay, who died in 1758, speaks in one of his poems of "the sable bordered sheet" as a messenger of sorrow. Mann, writing from Italy to Horace Walpole in 1745, says that it was universally used in Florence at that time. The superior elegance of this Italian note paper, with its narrow margin of black, explains its ready acceptance in this country, where it superseded the quarto sheet with a black border sometimes a quarter of an inch wide. In this way it probably gave an impetus to the fashion. But it is a mistake to suppose, as some have done, that the fashion was introduced from Italy.—London Answers.

Caught Alive.

A New Yorker, a big game hunter of many years' experience, was lion shooting in Uganda. He had excellent luck. Nearly every day he posed in a complacent attitude beside a freshly killed lion, and his photographer snapped him for the magazines.

One afternoon the photographer, who was taking a nap in the hut, was awakened by a loud noise. He rose and looked out. Sprinting toward him from the jungle, hat gone and coattails flying, came his chief, and, with terrible roars and growls, a huge lion bounded at his heels.

The photographer gazed spellbound at the strange and exciting picture. His chief, perceiving him, shouted:

"Quick, quick! Open the door, George! I'm bringing him home alive!"—Washington Star.

ROBERT DI BARNARDO

DANCING FROM THE PHYSICAL CULTURE POINT OF VIEW

A PAGE FOR MISSES

The Waltz Develops Grace and Suppleness

To Strengthen the Ankles

A Quick Step for Acquiring Balance

IF dancing exercises will do all that instructors in this graceful art claim for them then future débutantes will be strong and sure of ankle, supple and possessed of far more than the average amount of grace, for society mothers are laying great stress on the accomplishment of dancing, quite as much for the sake of the strength and physical balance that result from the practice of the gentle art as for the pleasure young girls derive from going to dancing classes and parties. Dance and grow strong might well be the motto of the schoolgirl. Children are being taught literally to waltz and two-step down the road to health and happiness, and when they have become fairly proficient in these fundamental steps they are promoted to the more intricate and interesting manœuvres of fancy dances.

Certain classes pay particular attention to exercises and steps which strengthen weak ankles. "It is astonishing how many young girls are handicapped having ankles that turn and twist at the least unusual exertion," said a dancing teacher in whose classes are found hundreds of little girls who come to him after school for an hour or two of graceful physical culture lessons. "It is easy to correct this fault when the pupils begin taking lessons early, but after they have matured we can work less rapidly and with less success—that is, results do not show with all the speed we could wish.

"FIRST we teach the ordinary dancing steps. Nearly all children now learn to dance when quite young, but there are many classes which meet one or two afternoons a week merely for the purpose of learning how to dance the waltz, two step and other fashionable figures, neglecting to some extent the physical culture benefits to be derived from the movements. At least this feature is not made as much of as it should be, either in individual cases or in classes. There is a great deal of good in dancing this way, and so is there an immense amount of benefit to be gained from practising the popular 'folk dances,' but even the simplest steps, when done in the correct manner, are excellent for physical development. There is nothing like a hop and a skip to brace up weak ankles and to give poise to the body. In fact, you cannot do these simple steps day after day without achieving both results. Grace and rhythm will follow, but first of all we insist upon girls mastering this fundamental step of physical culture dancing."

There are scores of women to-day who walk badly and strain their ankles simply because they did not learn how to poise themselves when they were children. A few are born with a weakness of the ankles and these can be helped wonderfully by resorting to dancing steps for exercise and strengthening. It must be admitted that the present generation of women has improved vastly in carriage and walk, but the low shoe and high heel fashion necessitates a greater strengthening of the ankles in order to avoid strains and ungraceful movements. The low shoe demands much of the wearer and not all girls and women are equal to the demand.

"THE Spanish dance has in it all the movements that make for grace and strength. It is one of the first of the fancy steps I teach," continued the instructor, "and it is a sure test of a pupil's control, poise and endurance. The movements are quick and varied enough to exercise practically all the muscles of the body, while the bending and the toe movements are particularly adapted to the needs of those afflicted with weak ankles."

Exercising the ankles does not mean enlarging them. On the contrary, well regulated exercises develop their strength without in the least increasing their size. The movement really helps to counteract any thickening tendencies which may be the direct result of wearing low shoes. Physicians declare that too much cannot be said against this fad among women, a fad which is being taken up by schoolgirls who love to imitate the fashions of their elders where possible and who are dooming themselves to many future ills all on account of wearing summer styles of shoes in winter, when it is as important to protect the ankles from the cold as it is to wrap up the throat. Not only do pumps find their way into the schoolgirls' winter outfit, but the thinnest meshed hosiery is there, a combination of wearing apparel which physicians are most emphatic in condemning. Keep your ankles warm, they say, and your circulation, your health and your disposition will be perfect, and, notwithstanding this simple method of attaining health and happiness, we see the pump and the cobwebbike stocking flaunting themselves on the street even when the sidewalks are covered with snow and sleet.

MUCH can be said for and against the wearing of high heels by girls. There are physicians in good standing, physicians who specialize on the treatment of the foot and its ills, who maintain that the high French heel is better adapted to the modern foot than the low, common sense one is. They claim that the arch of the foot requires the support provided by a shoe which has a French or Cuban heel, and that the only way, or at least one of the best ways, to avoid broken arches and flat feet is to wear shoes with this essential brace for the arch.

THEN there are physicians who take an entirely opposite view of the flat-footed tendencies, and who declare that the American girl's feet need the most careful study and dressing, and that above all her shoes, at least those she wears during the daytime, should be made with flat or moderately low heels, never with French ones. The followers of this belief say that girls should wear heelless slippers in the house, and that the most healthful poise as well as the most graceful one comes from knowing how to stand in flat shoes. They also prescribe plenty of exercising of the feet in either a bare condition or with soft slippers on. The arch will grow strong enough to support itself after this treatment, so they claim, and there will be no future fear of its breaking or the ankle showing weak tendencies.

Dancing teachers are divided in the same way as to the merits of the high heeled slipper or the heelless one. In some schools the instructor has the girls wear perfectly flat soles which have a stiffening in them like that used for regular toe dancing slippers, and then the ankles are supported by winding ribbons, about an inch in width being recommended, as it does not cut through the flesh and braces the ankle. When girls once learn to dance in these shoes they find it easy to do the steps, easier, perhaps, than when wearing French heels, although the body is given an entirely different balance.

THERE is still another theory about supporting weak ankles and giving the body the correct balance, and that is that the heel is placed in the wrong position, that it should be nearer the centre of the foot than it is, that it should come almost directly under the arch, and that in this case walking on any height of heel would be not only comfortable and easy, but that the body would then assume its proper balance.

Where ankles are extremely unstable physicians recommend special braces and specially constructed shoes. It is always a good plan for a growing girl to have her arches examined by one of these specialists before learning to dance or take violent exercises with her feet, for then she will know which to avoid in the way of steps and movements, and which to practice for the purpose of gaining strength. While the dancing teacher can get a general idea of individual needs he cannot take the time during class work to give special attention to any one pupil, and for this reason he has to make many of his dancing exercises rather general in their effect. Knowing the recommendation of the physician, however, he could do wonders in corrective work. It is thus that dancing classes supplement medical treatment where such is necessary, and always they assist toward the acquiring of strength and grace, which mean, in the end, beauty and charm.

BEAUTY HINTS FOR YOUNG GIRLS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"CULTIVATE the habit of frequently consulting your mirror," advised the April Grandmother in all seriousness. 'If you seek its counsel in the true spirit of meekness, humility and self-abasement it will reflect your faults of manner as well as of dress. And it will do this quite as frankly as any kinswoman, whose rebukes are only too liable to be flavored with the aloes of exaggeration.

"Even at the risk of being wrongfully accused of undue vanity, girls should take advantage of an opportunity to glance into a mirror whenever they are in a room with several intimate friends so that if they are unconsciously talking too emphatically they may observe the unbecomingly set expression of their lips and realise the necessity of preventing themselves from forming that obnoxious habit of expressing an opinion on every imaginable subject which makes so many women deservedly unpopular. These casual glances into a mirror will also prevent a girl from contracting the head tossing habit. This is usually the distinguishing mark of the self-assertive and underbred, but it is also one which too many inexperienced school girls mistake for an expression of independence of spirit.

"Be sure to study your face in a mirror whenever you are angry, sad or glad. It will tell you precisely how repellent is the feminine face when the brows are frowning and the lips drawn downward and how charming when the eyes shine and the mouth curves like a Cupid's. The knowledge that she is prettiest when laughing has helped many a girl to make a [illegible] of imagined grievances, and it has made all her friends happier to observe how cheerfully [illegible] care to limbo.

"A clear, truthful mirror will prevent a goody-goody girl from cultivating that [illegible] of countenance which is the outward reflection of the consciousness of being superhumanly virtuous—and an unconscious bore. It will do this just as frankly as it will reflect the look in your eyes when you have secretly done something of which you are heartily ashamed.

"Scales make mistakes about the weight, but the mirror never does. When you are getting too fat the mirror will promptly announce the fact, just as it will frankly state that you are losing flesh and becoming haggard for lack of exercise, from overstudy or from indigestion.

"The girl who wishes to cultivate or to retain a clearly defined chin should daily scrutinize her face in a three sided mirror. An overplump jaw lends a coarse expression to the facial outline and adds several years to the apparent age—a condition which will be a distinct disadvantage to a débutante whose face is not backed by an independent fortune. The same friendly threefold looking glass will also notify a girl that she is acquiring the sharp facial outline which is popularly supposed to accompany a sarcastic tongue.

"Make a point of scanning your figure in a full length mirror whenever you are prepared to go out of doors and take heed when it assures you that your hat brim is too broad, your hair roughened or your skirt uneven.

Attractive Furnishings for the Boudoir.

Attractive Sofa Cushions.

INNUMERABLE sofa pillows of various sizes and shapes go far toward making a college girl's room attractive, as they may not only be piled upon couches and window seats but tied to chair seats and backs.

Denim, nun's cloth, domestic, Russian and antique English crashes make the most serviceable pillow tops, and any of them may readily be stamped with patterns for outlining or embroidering. Many of the crash pillow tops come all ready stained in two shades of brown, green, blue or red, or in combinations of those colors, frequently stamped in attractive designs to be worked with harmonizing mercerized floss or in rope embroidery.

Disk patterns are the favorite of the moment. The circles are from a nickel to fifty cent piece dimensions, usually worked in darning stitch in one or two colors, or in iridescent effect, the same tints being repeated in the cushion bordering.

Cotton novelty fabrics, such as are used for children's frocks, make attractive looking as well as practical tops for pillows likely to receive hard service. Among these materials are the cheviots and percales, printed in dots of various sizes and in figures and stripes of dark, light and medium tones, as well as in Roman bars, blocks, diamond and disk patterns. For plain colored cushion tops the satin finished mercerized poplins in all the fashionable shades are excellent.

Jacquard woven cottons and silks make up into the daintiest of delicately tinted pillow tops, to be embroidered, outlined or initialled with silk floss. The Japonika silks, which imitate moire veiling, rough pongee, tussahs, mirror stripes and marcelline effects most cleverly, are similarly treated, while the two toned checks and striped Egyptian tissues and Japanese silks are in themselves so ornamental that they do not require further decoration.

Startling color liberties may safely be taken with silk pillow tops. Even alternate stripes of yellow and pink may be used if Egyptian embroidery of gold and silver thread, black velvet ribbon or Oriental bands be placed between them.

Satin finished broadcloths in wistaria, London smoke, taupe, pale dull blue, amethyst, soft light green, cloudy violet, mode and tan make up into attractive winter pillow tops if their edges be finished with heavy gold tinsel or silk cord age. Many of these cloth covered cushions are of oblong shape, open at both ends and laced together with cords run through embroidered eyelets. In some instances they are laced on all four sides, the cording parting over brilliantly colored interlinings.

Dainty Coat Hangers.

COVERED coat hangers are a matter of economy as well as of daintiness, as not only are the sharp wooden edges liable to chafe satin linings, but their rusty hook bases sometimes leave unsightly lines upon collars.

Hangers for ordinary street coats are cotton padded and covered smoothly with black satin, while those intended to support riding jackets have hunters' pink tops and those for motor coats have coverins of clan plaid taffetas.

Boudoir coat hangers are thickly wadded and covered with liberty satin shirred at both upper and lower edges to form a narrow frill. At each end are placed rosettes of baby ribbon, from which depend two narrow streamers finished with wide ribbon bow tassels. The hook is similarly covered and its stem is trimmed with baby ribbon fringe.

Padded evening cloak hangers are almost straight bars covered with deeply plaited soft satin and trimmed at the sides with a box plaited [illegible] ch ribbon frill. At each end are ribbon loop rosettes, from which depend streamers, terminating with bows. The matching hood hanger is of baby coat size, covered with wadding and twisted wide ribbon. Attached to the under side of its [illegible]der bar is an oblong soft cushion covered with a shirred satin case having frilled ends faced deeply with a contrasting shade of satin and inclosing a cluster of ribbon flower petals, from which extend short streamers, finished with flower rosettes.

Boxes for Picture Cards.

WITH the present craze for picture postals and the large number of them that most girls collect, it has become an important question how to keep them in a convenient way for showing them. Of course the ordinary way is the postal card album, and when one wants to keep a special record of a pleasant trip this is perhaps the best way. But the albums are rather bulky, and sometimes one wants to keep postals that have been sent by travelling friends and have no connection with one another.

A particularly convenient and compact way to take care of these is to have a pretty box on one's table, just deep enough for the postals to stand on edge. Any box of the right size can be used, but the best are divided into compartments so that part of the cards can be taken out without having the others fall over. In these divided boxes the cards can also be arranged according to some system, which will make it easy to take out just the ones that are wanted.

In this way a very large number of postals can be kept in a small space and the owner can enjoy them herself and also let her friends share the pleasure. And the box itself may be a most charming ornament for the table, for there are many kinds of beautiful boxes made, carved or inlaid wood, brass, silver or carved ivory ones.

Wall Pin Holders.

WALL pin holders made of half yard strips of four inch wide satin ribbon are lined with broadcloth and weighted with four-inch lead oblongs. The upper end of the ribbon is gathered under a huge butterfly bow, from which depend two-inch wide ribbon streamers of even length, terminating with satin wound rings through which safety pins may be thrust. A third and shorter streamer terminates with a small circular toilet pin cushion. At the back of the butterfly bow is a substantial hanger, and as this little affair may readily be rolled and tucked away in any corner of a bag it is an ideal travelling convenience.

Some Novel Favors.

FAVORS are of infinite variety. For girls' luncheons there are all sorts of attractive bonbon boxes, including brown silk witch hats stuck through with brooms and papier maché dogs of every fashionable breed—the squat dachshund, the aggressive Bostoc bull, the trim, aristocratic little papillon, the shaggy Scotch terrier, the languid Pomeranian and the alert looking pointer.

Satin slippers are fitted with inside bags to hold bonbons, bridal bells when lifted disclose candy filled boxes, miniature bridal coaches have ribbon hinged doors which swing back to reveal comfits, and dolls in full bridal attire stand on the lids of boxes decorated in imitation of a wedding cake.

Crêpe paper topings are employed to cover all sizes and shapes of bonbon favor boxes. One box looks like a wicker basket filled with vegetables, and another representing a jardinière decorated with poinsettia, honeysuckle sprays, tiny azalias, poppies, button chrysanthemums, cherry blossoms, natural smilax or ferns is set upon a round or oblong red, tan, white or green crêpe paper rope mat.

Crêpe paper canoes have bow and stern decorated with autumn foliage, and stiff paper centre bonbon boxes and miniature lanterns in mission brown cardboard have colored tissue paper panels concealing candy candles.

Social Amenities for The School Girl.

UNTIL a girl is presented to society little is expected from her in the matter of formal calls, yet she does a certain amount of calling among her own set, and has her own cards for that purpose.

If she is still a schoolgirl her card is engraved with her full name and without a prefix. After she is out, of course, her cards bear the customary "Miss" before her name, and she assumes it, too, in any case after she has left school. Unless she has entered society, however, her card must not read simply "Miss Blank," for until she has made her bow to the world etiquette requires her to use her full name, and her card should read, for instance, "Miss Belinda Beal Blank." When there are sisters in a family it is the privilege of the elder, on leaving school, to have "Miss Blank" on her cards. The younger sister uses her full name, with the prefix "Miss" on her cards until the older girl marries.

When young girls go to parties given by their chums they should always call on their hostess within a week after the entertainment, and they should ask for and leave a card for the mother as well as their girl friend. The mother comes down to see the caller or not, at her discretion, but she should always receive the compliment of being asked for. Sometimes girls go to parties at houses where the mothers are known to one another only by name, and in this case, when the girl goes later to make her party call, it is most gracious of her mother to send her own card to the other mother, and thus express appreciation of the hospitality to the daughter.

When girls are visiting in a house they must never invite any one to call without first asking permission of the hostess. One of Madame Grundy's inexorable rules is that guests shall not take the initiative. If you are visiting in a strange city and constantly meeting at other houses new persons whom you like, consult your hostess about them and see if they are on her visiting list or are persons whom she wishes to place there. If you stop to think you will see for yourself that it would be most awkward if you were to happen to invite to her house some one whose acquaintance she did not care to cultivate, and you must not put her in that position.

Usually when a girl goes to visit her hostess gives a tea for her at once, and in this way summons all her friends to meet her. Such a tea is the accepted way of calling on a stranger, and these calls should be returned within the week. Young men, of course, rarely have the leisure to attend such teas, and so are not often invited. It is the custom to ask them to call on a visitor informally on Sunday afternoons. Evening calling is obsolete, which is rather a pity, for it was a sociable fashion and a pleasant way of becoming better acquainted.

Folding Umbrellas.

COLLEGE girls who dislike to be baggage encumbered will thoroughly appreciate the new folding umbrella which will go cornerwise into the popular sixteen-inch travelling bag. When raised, the umbrella is of the conventional twenty-six inch diameter, while it measures only seventeen and one-half inches in length when folded. To make it collapse it is only necessary to unscrew a steel shank at the centre of the umbrella, where it is so fitted with double joints that the handle will fold back against the ferrule tip. As each of the eight ribs which compose the frame is hinged at the point where it connects with the spreader, one-half of the rib, with its section of silk covering attached, folds backward upon itself so that the eight tips encircle the ferrule to its extreme point.

LEMIEUX RETURNED TO AMERICA

The Postmaster-General Reaches New York on Way Home.

PROPHESIES CHEAP CABLES

He Says That a Proposal, Probably For Division of Messages Into Classes at Lower Rate, Will Be Made to Existing Lines and If It Is Not Accepted Publicly-Owned Cable Will Be Laid.

New York, Dec. 23.—That not only cheaper, but very much cheaper, rates for cablegrams across the Atlantic are near at hand, was the confident assertion of Rodolphe Lemieux, the Postmaster-General of Canada, yesterday afternoon on the eve of his departure for Canada after a day spent in this city following his arrival from Europe Monday night.

"The reform has been accomplished on the Pacific," declared Mr. Lemieux, "and it will soon come about on the Atlantic."

Mr. Lemieux said the movement had recommended itself to influential interests in the United States also, but he declined to be questioned as to whether or not the United States Government had been or would be approached by Canada or Great Britain in the matter.

If the cable companies would make the reductions that would satisfy the Governments, according to Mr. Lemieux, then there would be no new cable laid across the Atlantic, and he believed that that was what was likely to happen. In any event, he added he had received such assurances in London that he felt almost certain that the day of very much cheaper cabling between Europe and America was not distant.

Mr. Lemieux said the demand on the Atlantic cable companies, which was expected to come to a conclusion this spring, was not for an ordinary rate of two pence, namely, four cents a word, as he said was erroneously supposed in many quarters. It had been proposed, instead, that messages be divided into several classes, such as urgent, semi-urgent and deferred, for instance, and charged for accordingly, but in any event the rate to be considerably lower than the prevailing shilling or 25 cent rate. Mr. Henniker Heaton, known in England as the father of penny postages, who has taken an active part in the movement for lower cable rates, wanted an even lower charge, namely a penny or two cents a word, he said. If a state-owned cable is to be laid, it is the belief of Mr. Lemieux that it would eventually admit of a charge of five cents a word.

Boy's Long Trip.

Toronto, Dec. 23.—Rex Colville, five years old, arrived at the Union station from Winnipeg, last night, having made the journey alone.

His father got off the train a few minutes before it started, and not getting back in time, missed it and came down on the next train.

Rex had to wait in the station for three hours as the second section of the Winnipeg train was late.

An elderly couple took care of the boy on the train and Policeman Reburn, on duty at the station, fed him. Depot Master Mitchell received a telegram from the boy's father and helped console the little fellow.

Unfair Rates.

Washington, Dec. 23.—Forty-two flour milling concerns filed a complaint against the Great Northern Railway Co., and 27 other interstate carriers, alleging that the rates—all rail and rail and water—from Minneapolis to the Atlantic seaboard on flour are excessive, unreasonable and discriminatory, in that it costs them more to ship their flour from Minnesota points to the Atlantic seaboard than it costs Buffalo millers to ship spring wheat from Duluth points to Buffalo and the ground flour from Buffalo to Atlantic seaboard points.

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL.

The Daily Routine and Diet of the Patients.

As the work done by the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is largely of an educative character so that the patient after being treated will know how to continue the treatment until a cure has been effected, it will doubtless be of interest to many to learn what the routine of the hospital is.

Dr. Kendall, the physician in chief, has condensed his method to three words, Doctor, Diet and Discipline. Of these the chief is Discipline.

As the great curative remedy for consumption is unlimited fresh air, the patients sleep in wards with their windows open, or in shacks that are practically as open to the air as all out of doors.

The first step in the daily routine at the Free Hospital begins at 5.30 a.m., when the night watchman closes the windows, turns on the heat and attends to the fires in the shacks. This is so that the patients may be able to dress in warmth and comfort.

7.00 A.M.—At this hour the rising bell is rung and all patients are expected to bestir themselves at once. As part of their treatment, they sponge their chests with cold water and then dress for breakfast.

8.00 A.M.—Breakfast bell. Patients assemble in the dining room. The food provided is simple and wholesome, consisting of fruit, a cereal, cream and sugar, meat and eggs, chops, bacon, etc., bread and butter, and unlimited milk. Twenty-five minutes is spent at breakfast.

8.30 A.M.—The patients dress for out doors. At this time of the year they wear fur coats, and when reclining on the cots on the verandah tuck themselves in Klondike bags made of brown duck which may be laced up to the neck, though many of the patients only lace them to the waist so that their arms may be free. From 9 o'clock to 12 o'clock everyone must stay in the open air. At 10 o'clock a light lunch—hot milk or hot cocoa, is served.

12.00 A.M.—Wash for dinner.

12.30 P.M.—Dinner is served with soup, a joint, an entree, at least two vegetables, pie or pudding, and once more unlimited milk. After dinner the patients dress for out doors, where they must remain until 6 o'clock.

4.00 P.M.—A lunch of hot milk or hot cocoa and sometimes of raw eggs when especially ordered. At this hour exercise is taken which always consists of walking, beginning with perhaps three or four minutes a day at first, increasing at the rate of one minute per day until the patient is strong enough to take extended walks. At this point it is of interest to note that all the exercises and amusements of the patients are prescribed by the medical staff. Although such amusements as rifle shooting, croquet, music, reading, card playing, etc., are permitted, no patient is allowed to indulge without permission from the medical staff. This is to avoid the evil effects of excitement.

6.00 P.M.—Tea is served of meat, potatoes, bread and butter, fruit, tea and coffee, and plenty of milk. After the meal the patients are expected to rest if possible out of doors, if not, in well ventilated rooms.

8.00 P.M.—A light lunch of hot milk or hot cocoa is served. General intercourse among the patients is then allowed until 9 o'clock when the electric light are flashed three times as a signal and all must retire to their rooms.

9.30 P. M.—All lights are put out, and orderlies open the windows for the night.

There is no reason why afflicted persons where ever they may be should not receive this simple form of treatment. Fresh air is to be had practically everywhere. If sufferers will only keep in the open, warmly clothed, eat plenty of wholesome food, avoid excitement, and give themselves up entirely to rest, they can do much to help themselves.

To help support this free and educative charity the trustees of the Muskoka Hospital have issued Christmas stamps retailing at one cent each, the proceeds from which will go to the care of patients at the institution.

How to Enter the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Applications for admission to the Free Hospital for Consumptives at Gravenhurst should be made through the Head Office, 347 King St. West, Toronto. All information will be furnished by the Secretary, and the necessary forms to be filled out forwarded promptly.

It is worth while to emphasize this matter. Confusion and disappointment sometimes arise because patients themselves, and in other cases medical men, throughout the Dominion, send their patients direct to the Hospital at Gravenhurst without having first obtained any particulars as to the method of admission.

Applicants will arrive sometimes in a very advanced stage of consumption, where at the Gravenhurst institutions only those in the earlier stages of the disease are admitted. For this reason a medical examination—blank forms furnished by the Secretary—must be sent to the Head Office. It has happened at times, too, that patients will come on to Gravenhurst, traveling often a long distance, only to find on arrival that there are no vacant beds and they must either remain in the town of Gravenhurst or return to their home until accommodation is provided.

All these difficulties are avoided if those concerned will write the Head Office, Toronto, where a special record is kept of every applicant, the particulars of application, and where it is always known what vacant beds exist.

FLASHLIGHT REVEALS BRIBE.

Crooked Pittsburg Alderman Photographed in Act of Taking Money.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 23.—A flashlight photograph of a member of the council in the act of accepting money from a decoy "promoter," it is said, will be one of the strongest features of the evidence to be presented to-day, when seven members of the council and two former bank officials are to be given a preliminary hearing on charges of bribery, corrupt solicitation and other illegal acts brought by the Voters' League.

This picture, it is said, was taken in a private room in a down-town hotel Monday night, immediately before the councilman was arrested.

Besides the councilman, the flashlight photograph is said to show an agent of the Huffing Detective Agency of Scranton, Pa., which worked up the cases. This man is reported to have posed as a member of a firm anxious to sell wooden paving blocks to the city and to have become very intimate with the councilman. With other detectives concealed within hearing distance the councilman is alleged to have been induced to tell of the negotiations to secure the passage of the legislation, to name the other members who were to share in the bribe and to say that the members were tired of promises and wanted to see his real money.

Taking $100 and $500 bills from a large roll of bills, and just as the councilman reached for his allotment, the flash was ignited. The councilman, it is said, broke down and wept, and when he accused his companion of trapping him there was no denial. Then the officer appeared and made the arrest.

HANGING OR WHIPPING.

Witness Against Night Riders, Given a Choice, Prefers Latter.

Union City, Tenn., Dec. 23.—The eight defendants in the night riders trial were brought into court yesterday handcuffed in pairs with a detail of two soldiers for each pair. The soldiers with rifles halted at the court room door, and other soldiers armed with revolvers met the prisoners at the threshold and escorted them to the bar.

Judge Shaw was the first witness. He said the riders forced him to give them oil to pour on the fish docks when they were burned and later whipped him when he tried to go before the grand jury.

They gave him his choice of a switching or hanging. He told them he was not anxious to endorse either, but that if he had to make a choice he would prefer the whipping.

Martin Leonard, another farmer near Reelfot Lake, was visited by the riders and was given five days to move under penalty of being hanged. His home was burned.

City Wants Legislation to Save Coin.

Kingston, Dec. 23.—The City Council Monday evening passed a resolution asking the Ontario Government to change the law whereby Kingston's magistrate requires to be given a salary of $2,000 a year and cease the practice of law.

The lawyers of Kingston are all agreeable to Police Magistrate Farrell being allowed to continue as at present to receive a salary of $1,400 from the city and continue his law practice.

War on Social Clubs.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 23.—The liquor department is busy conducting an unostentatious law effective campaign on social clubs in this city where liquor is dispensed to members, although so quietly that the general public is not aware of the movement.

Hotelmen are credited with the temperance movement, as the clubs infringe on their prerogatives.

WILL PAY FOR ITSELF.

Extra Low Grades Secured, Says Hays, Justify G.T.P. Expenditure.

Montreal, Dec. 23.—General Manager Hays of the Grand Trunk, who returned from London yesterday, says he called particular attention while abroad to the fact that the grades of the Grand Trunk Pacific lines are exceptionally low.

Over 2,000 tons can be put into Prince Rupert behind a single engine, while the nearest to this that can be done by any transcontinental line in North America is 572 tons, which is accomplished by some of the United States railways.

It is in getting these low grades and the huge benefits resulting from them that the "generous expenditures" which opponents make so much talk about are being made, declared Mr. Hays. When it is realized that the easy grades mean a hauling capacity per engine vastly greater than that of any other transcontinental road, Mr. Hays thinks the expenditure is fully justified.

Wrote While Children Starved.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 23.—In a little cottage in Pasadena, the rooms of which are bare of furniture, but heaped with books and typewritten manuscripts one child is dead and physicians are fighting for the lives of two others, who are critically ill from starvation.

The father of the babes, Warren Edward Brokaw, admits that while he and his wife busied themselves in writing books the children went hungry.

Brokaw was once editor of The Single Tax Courier of St. Louis, and was an intimate associate of Henry George. He says that he got down to his last dregs of poverty in an attempt to work out a theory of balanced land tenure.

Fire In New York Theatre.

New York, Dec. 23.—Fire broke out in the Herald Square Theatre at Broadway and Thirty-Fifth street just after the audience left the theatre last night.

The fire was under control within a half hour, comparatively little damage having been done to the building.

Some time after the fire was practically out, the theatre gallery fell and a moment later 35 feet of the roof on the Broadway end of the building came down. The loss is estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000. Lee Shuber and Lew Fields are the lessees of the theatre.

Forty-Five Stables Crippled.

New York, Dec. 23.—Strike leaders yesterday ordered out 1,000 men still at work in 15 stables. This means that 2,600 men will be on strike and 45 stables badly crippled or idle.

Disorders broke out last night, when stone-throwing at cabs in operation were reported to the police.

Suicides In Cell.

North Bay, Dec. 23.—Heteaphore Boileau, aged 25, with a wife and two children in Matheson, committed suicide in the police station last night by hanging, tearing a blanket into strips for the purpose. Boileau had been drinking for several days.

Windsor's City Engineer.

Windsor, Dec. 23.—Edward Brian, son of M. A. Brian of the plumbing firm of Pennington & Brian, has been appointed city engineer, to succeed George Hanes, who has accepted a position in Vancouver.

Sues Fowler For Share.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 23.—A. B. Pugsley of Sussex, cousin of Hon. Dr. Pugsley, is suing George W. Fowler, ex-M.P., for one-thirtieth share of the profits in the famous Fowler-Pope-Lounsey land deal.

ARE MAKING GOOD

Peterborough Families That Went West Last Winter Had a Successful Summer—Speak Highly of the Country and Climate.

MR. R. HOLLAND ON VISIT

Mr. Richard Holland, formerly a resident of Sherbrooke street west, but who left for Alberta towards the end of last winter, has been visiting his Peterborough friends here during the last few days. He has settled with his family, including two sons, Messrs. Fred and Bert Holland, and together they have nearly one thousand acres of good land near Didsberry, Alta. Their first summer has been a profitable one and as their acres become entirely under cultivation, they will have a splendid farm. The family is enjoying excellent health, Mr. Holland himself looking exceedingly well.

The various members of the family are so delighted with the country and the climate, that they would be averse to returning east to live. Mr. John Cuncannon, who went to Alberta at the same time, has met with similar success and is settled with his family.

CHRISTMAS FOWL WAS SCARCE AND PRICE WAS HIGH

A local live stock dealer who has recently attended the Montreal market states that scarcity of Christmas fowl and especially turkeys was a noticeable feature of the trade in the St. Lawrence town. The demand was so heavy that tons of birds could have been disposed of during the last few days. The price in consequence was much above the average.

Band will be at Brock Street Rink on Christmas afternoon.

THE EXAMINER IS A WELCOME WEEKLY VISITOR

In renewing their subscription to the Weekly Examiner, Dixon Bros., general merchants, of Maple Creek, Sask., and formerly of Peterborough, have written:

"The Examiner is at all times a welcome visitor in our home. It continues to be a clean, newsy, up-to-date paper, and worthy of our patronage. General business in this western country is again quite satisfactory. The large crops of grain and heavy shipments of live stock has brought about these results, and should without doubt materially assist a manufacturing city like Peterborough."

LOCAL HORSES WIN PRIZES AT LINDSAY FAIR

At the Lindsay Winter Fair yesterday, Mr. R. H. Leary's handsome team took first prize. They were shown against all comers in the team and pole class and won easily. Mr. A. Jas. Storey captured first in the best single outfit and second in the single roadster class.

A CAPITAL CHRISTMAS REMEMBRANCE.

If you wish to send any of your out of town friends a pleasing Christmas remembrance, mail a copy of the special Board of Trade, Review of the Examiner, just issued. The Mysterious Suicide Of Mr. John T. Fay, Husband Of The Famous Thought Reader

A special despatch from Oakland, Cal., to the New York Morning Telegraph, of Monday, tells of the suicide of John T. Fay, whom Peterborough citizens will remember having been here about two and a half years ago. He and Annie Eva Fay occupied the Grand for a week and their mysterious performances collected crowded houses every night. The Telegraph says in its despatch from Oakland: "No reason has yet developed for the suicide here last night of John T. Fay, husband and manager of Miss Eva Fay, known on the stage as a "wonder worker" and 'thought reader," and whose act has been one of the most noted in vaudeville.

The Fays completed Sunday their engagement at a theatre in this city and were ready to take a train to Denver, where they were next booked. Their baggage had been checked and Fay had eaten dinner with his wife. Leaving her at the table he excused himself, went to his room and shot himself. He died soon after.

The Fays were well known to patrons of vaudeville theatres in the United States, through their so-called mystic, or mind-reading act. John T. Fay was a tall, lean man, who wore a Vandyke beard. His wife, Eva, is a woman of rather striking appearance, with a wealth of hair which is said to have been very useful to her in the act which she gave.

Christmas Cakes And Plum Puddings From Old Country

There are a few families in the city that will be able to dispense with considerable of the cooking which is otherwise necessary to provide a bountiful board for the Christmas dinner, and in fact the whole season. A man was seen coming out of the customs office to-day with two packages under his arms. They had come from over the broad Atlantic, from Old England where plum pudding and Christmas cake is made as it should be. In one of the parcels a substantial pudding was securely tied and a cake was contained in the other. They had come through the Customs Office duty free, and it was learned that quite a number are received by Peterborough people every year.

Unity Of Effort An Essential Factor To Intelligent Growth

At a meeting of the Ellicott Club in Buffalo a few days ago, Mr. Ryerson Ritchie, Boston, well known in Peterborough, gave the principal address on unity of effort among citizens to boost their city. During his address he stated that new industries were more valuable than conventions to a city. The Buffalo Courier reporting the meeting credits Mr. Ritchie with saying:

"Organization is an essential factor to intelligent growth. What the city needs is an organization that is the city's brain, an organization that shall grasp the situation as a whole and develop it in every particular. A municipal combination, a patriotic federation, a citizen's trust; there is no influence as potent nor as practical in the building of the modern metropolis as an association of public-spirited men. As in private, so in public, combination must take the place of the individual. Cities have competitors and rivals. If you intend to pass your rivals and competitors get together—be a united corporation, a city with a mind.

Jackson Park Slide Opens To-night; Some Improvements Have Been Made

It will be welcome news to the athletically inclined young people of the city who delight in an abundance of exercise in the open air that the street railway toboggan slide at Jackson Park will open for the season this evening. A number of men have been at work upon the chutes and they are in splendid condition for to-nights opening. The weather conditions are splendid and no doubt a big crowd will take advantage of the opportunity to have the first slide of the season. The Radial Railway company will provide a good car service and patrons will find every convenience for enjoyment available.

Jackson Park always has been a favourite as a winter resort and promises to be more popular than ever this season; and realizing this the Radial Railway company have made some improvements that will be appreciated. The long room in the music building used formerly as a box ball alley has been converted into checking room and there will be a capable man in charge of this department so that the patrons will be able to place their superfluous wrappings in safety. A restaurant will also be conducted at the park where hot drinks may be secured. The rink will open on Christmas morning and the band will be present in the afternoon of the holiday. The ice is in excellent condition and the Park promises to be a popular attraction on Christmas Day.

Last Chance For Christmas Turkeys Came This Morning

Judging from the amount of fowl that has been sold on the market for Christmas, the alleged hard times that the pessimistic speak of are not as prevalent as they would have us believe. Turkeys and geese were carried in all directions from the rendezvous of the farmers and the price generally paid was a fair one. There was also a large quantity of beef sold this morning. The attendance on the market was large and not a small number of farmers were in the city. Butter and eggs were offered at the price that was asked last Saturday.

Foreman Was Presented With Clock As A Christmas Gift

A pleasant affair took place in the Peterborough Light and Power Company's office last night after work, when Mr. Herbert Fife was presented with a handsome clock, as a Christmas present from the linemen of whom he is foreman. Mr. Jas. Grigdale made the presentation which although informal, conveyed the best wishes of the men and the compliments of the season. Mr. Fife was taken entirely by surprise, but in a few words thanked the men for their kindness and in turn expressed the hope that they would all enjoy a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Old Man Falls On Slippery Sidewalk, Breaking His Leg

Last night Mr Michael Murphy of 304 Lewis street, met with a very painful accident. He was returning home on Charlotte street, when he slipped and fell in front of Parkers' Dye Works, breaking his leg. Mr. Murphy was wearing a pair of new shoes without rubbers and the sidewalk was very slippery just there, and this accounts for the fall. He was picked up by two of the employees of the laundry and taken home in one of their rigs and Dr Young was called to attend him. This morning he was removed to St Joseph's Hospital in the Dan Spence Ambulance.

WORKING IN THE WOODS

Fred Simpson will turn pro. Fred was in the city to-day from Hiawatha and such was the information he imparted to the Examiner. He expects to-night to have a letter from Tim O'Rourke, the right hand man of Tom Flanagan offering to match him with Dorando and Hays at Madison Square Gardens if possible. The Mississauga is now engaged int he lumbering operations at Cambellton in Otonabee and is feeling in the finest of condition. He gets plenty of fresh air and wholesome exercise and is training a little at present.

"I'm going to make them all go year," remarked Fred, "you see me climb to the top of the ladder"

Street Railway Toboggan Slide opens for the season to-night.

A PRESENTATION TO MEMBER OF THE BELMONT CLUB

Prior to his departure for Toronto Mr. Norman Brown, familiarly known to his numerous young friends as "Buster," was made the recipient of a handsome gift accompanied by an address from the members of the Belmont Club. Mr. Brown was on the staff of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, and joined the Belmont Club at the time of its inception.

To be strong you must have good appetite good digestion and good assimilation. Miller's Compound Iron Pills bring all these. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist, Peterborough.

GROCER MEETS WITH ACCIDENT IN ELEVATOR

Mr. Absolom Peters, grocer, at the corner of Townsend and Aylmer streets, met with a painful accident the other day. While ordering some goods at one of the wholesale grocery establishments he accidentally fell down the elevator, sustaining some severe injuries, his head being badly cut.

Eight Children At The Shelter Await Arrival Of Good Old Santa Claus

In almost every Peterborough home great preparations are being made for Christmas Day, and thousands of happy children are waiting anxiously for that wonderful mythical creature, Santa Claus. These children will not be disappointed, for fond parents are making sure that the benevolent gentleman will call. There are at least eight children in Peterborough, however, who will not have an opportunity of observing the characteristics of Santa Claus, unless the people of Peterborough find a way of inducing Father Christmas to open his bundle for them. In the Children's Aid Society's Shelter there are at present eight children who will find Christmas a dull one unless something is done for them. It is proposed to have a Christmas tree for the little ones on Christmas night, but so far there is nothing to put on the tree and the society is making an appeal to the people of Peterborough to see that they are not disappointed. They ask for toys, fruit, books, candy, anything that will please a juvenile taste, and it is hoped that there will be enough of those articles forthcoming to ensure a merry holiday time for the parentless little one who, like children everywhere, are expecting Santa Claus. Persons who have any contributions to offer are asked to send them to the Shelter as soon as possible, or notify the society by calling up 103L. Think of your own little ones and then see if you cannot do something for those who have no parents to look after them.

Was A Starter At Local Races; Kills Girl, Shoots Himself

Detroit, Dec. 23—In full view of several girls, inmates of the place Frank Smith, aged 39 years, trotting horse judge and race track follower, shot his mistress, Mary Kuzasky a handsome girl of 22 through the heart in a Macomb street resort at 10 o'clock last night and then shot a bullet through his own brain from the effects of which he will probably die before morning.

Smith, who resides at 951 Michigan street, Buffalo, came to Detroit yesterday with the avowed intention of compelling the woman to return to Buffalo with him or killing her in case she refused. Witnesses of the tragedy are confusing in their statements but it seems clear that Smith exhausted every argument with the woman before resorting to violence.

The whole affair was over in less than a minute. The woman died instantly No arrests were made.

Smith was well known among Peterborough turfmen having been a starter at more than one of the meets of the local club. Not only was he capable in this respect, but he was a prominent writer in the "Horse World" of Buffalo.

Two Accidents Happen On Charlotte Street This Afternoon

Two accidents occurred this afternoon on Charlotte street. Near Aylmer street a man was leading a horse along when in some manner, a small boy on a sleigh got under its hoofs, with the result that his head was cut severely. At the George street crossing an elderly man and woman, driving in a cutter, were struck by a street car and the lady thrown out. She was uninjured.

Some Treacherous Ice Yet To Be Found On Rice Lake

A 'bus load, representing Harwood, Rice Lake, in charge of Capt. Chas. Calcutt, of the steamer Beaver, arrived in the City this morning bent on buying Christmas presents for their families. Capt. Calcutt states that the ice on Rice Lake is treacherous, and liable to spring up at any time. The ice was bad on the way up, and a sharp lookout will be kept on the trip down.

Mr. F. J. Farthing Thanks The Public For Many Kindnesses

Mr. F. W. Miller has received the following letter from Mr. F. J. Farthing, for whom the recent subscription was taken up, and who leaves to-morrow for the old country:

Dear Sir,—Allow me to thank the generous and open-hearted friends who so readily contributed to the fund raised on my behalf; also to the local press for the assistance which they rendered, and yourself for the interest you have taken. I fully appreciate every effort made on my behalf and deeply regret that my health forces me to leave the city, where I have met with so much kindness.

Yours thankfully,
FRED J FARTHING.

P. S.—Received from Mr. Miller tickets costing $102.90 and $10 in cash.

FRED J. FARTHING.

This extra amount is explained by the fact that Mr. Miller further received contributions yesterday amounting to $6.00.

XMAS MAIL ON FRIDAY

One Delivery in the Morning—General Delivery Open From Twelve to One O'clock—Mail is Heavy.

THE POSTMEN REMEMBERED

Postmaster Rogers' staff are beginning to feel the stress of the Christmas season, the mail piling up heavier every day. It has hardly reached the maximum yet, but in a day or so the high tide of the rush should be experienced. The post man generally have boxes or sleighs to handle the extra parcels and packages, and they themselves know what happiness they are bringing to most of the homes of this city.

On Christmas Day there will be one delivery in the morning, between 7.30 and 8 o'clock. The general delivery will be open from 12 to 1 o'clock, and the lobby will be open all day. The post men are coming in for little remembrances from their friends along their routes.

HOTELS VACATED BY HOME GOING "COM." TRAVELLERS

This is home week for drummers or commercial travellers as they are more familiar known. They are missed from the leading hotels where they are generally found in large numbers. They are not all off the road as there are a few stragglers finishing up before the holiday, but for the most part the hotels are deserted by the wandering travellers who will enjoy the opportunity of a holiday at home.

All Barber Shops will be closed Friday. H. GAINEY, Secy, Union 2d—121

A "TIP" TO NEW-COMERS.

At this season of universal goodwill it is worth while to try to help one's fellow men. So many new comers to Canada make shipwreck of their chances of success that the following letter from an Englishman who came to Canada two or three years ago, but who has made a success of his venture, despite the financial depression, writes to the press: "When I came out I took a tour around the country, studied the ways and methods that were in vogue here, and did not, to everyone I met, say that I was an Englishman, and that we did things this way and that way, and had got this and that in England. I simply sat tight, kept my eyes open and mouth shut, and was open to be taught. Several times I thought I did not get a fair shake but every disappointment only made me the stronger for the next effort." This is the spirit which, allied to willingness to work, will bring to every new comer a success, comfort and competence from which he is absolutely barred by conditions in the old land.

In Canada the man who lacks the will to work and the wisdom to take the bitter with the sweet will always see success at a distance.

BRITISH INFLUENCE.

Great Britain is only a pin point on the map, yet it smashes the scientific theory of the superior attractive force of large bodies. Small as it is it is the world's centre of gravity. It is the centre of civilization, of civil liberty, and religious enlightenment, and also the centre of financial strength. Its money is invested in every part of the world. Under free trade it has become wealthy, and it is estimated that the amount of British money invested abroad reaches the great total of fourteen thousand millions of dollars. All this comes about from there having been a Christmas day. With all its faults Britain has been for centuries the centre and radiating point of the light of Christian civilization. Her fidelity to the principles underlying Christianity may well be regarded as an explanation of the manner in which the Divine favour has been vouchsafed in her mission of spreading broadcast, by fleet and flag, the regenerating influences that have so greatly helped to make this old world as good as it it.

Whatever jaundiced pessimists may say, the good and true, is a predominant factor in the economy of the world.

TYPHOID WORSE THAN SMALLPOX.

That typhoid is a greater cause for alarm than smallpox was the expression of Dr. Hodgetts, provincial health officer, in handing out a tabulation of the deaths in Ontario for the month of October.

There were 123 deaths from typhoid reported in the province, as against 50 in the corresponding month last year.

"It is evident that people are prepared to drink water flavoured with sewage rather than take adequate precautions for the protection of their water supply," he said. "The public go wild over a scare of smallpox, yet there was an average of four deaths a day from typhoid and not a single death from smallpox, though 50 cases were reported."

Returns from 718 division registrars show an increase in smallpox, scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid over the corresponding month last year. The 50 cases of smallpox were in the counties of Elgin, Bruce, Frontenac, Grey, Simcoe, Waterloo, York and Peterborough.

Fifteen municipalities were visited with the disease, and Dr. Hodgetts says these municipalities are losing money through the loss of trade to their merchants on account of laxity in employing the only real safeguard, "vaccination." He admitted that anti-vaccination was gaining ground, and he deplored this. In his opinion the city of Kingston had been subjected to a loss of $50,000 in the last few weeks on this account.

While scarlet fever returns show an increase of over 100 cases over October, 1907, there was only one death more. Of the 318 cases of diphtheria, 44 deaths occurred. The total deaths from all causes were 2328, making a death rate of 13.8 per cent. in 1000, representing a population of 2,012,000.

MORE POWER.

The Stratford Beacon says the Niagara power by-law, if adopted, will lay a heavy burden on that city for 30 years and it doubts whether a single manufacturer would take power at the cheapest price at which the municipality could afford to sell it. It adds that "the fact is that the power project is a huge speculation. It may turn out all right, and it may not. In the municipalities irrevocably committed to it, citizens may well hope for its success, and help it along from self-interest, if nothing else."

Exact figures of the average price at which western municipalities will be able to secure and supply power, under the Hydro-Electric Commission arrangement are not available, but the presumptive fact that Toronto will not be able to furnish electric power at less than $32 per horse power, makes it probable that the average price at all points—other cities and towns—will not be less than something between $25 and $30. If this be the case the places supplied by the Commission, will not, to any serious extent, come into competition with Peterborough in the matter of price, which is about $15 per horse power. In this respect Peterborough is still in a position to offer inducements to manufacturers desiring location with the advantages of cheap power. But this point seems to have struck some of our thinking citizens. With any considerable increase of damand, our capacity for supply will be overtaken. This should induce serious consideration, for it is to be assumed that our authorities, the city council and the Board of Trade, will not abandon efforts to add to the number of our manufacturing establishments. The possibility of the time coming—and the sooner the better—when we cannot supply the power for additional industries, should be an incentive to look for the provision of another source of supply. A prominent citizen holds strong views in this matter. He advocates the acquirement by the city, or in the interests of the city, of the power available at Burleigh Falls, which, under existing conditions, he estimates at between 2,000 and 2,500 horse power, which could be largely increased by raising the dam, as is said to be in contemplation.

This potential energy is, under present conditions, going to waste; but its development and possession by Peterborough, or its being made available for Peterborough's use at reasonable figures, would place the city in the running on equal terms with any place in Ontario, in the race for new industries, even in the event of the available power in the city being in use or pre-empted. The matter seems important enough to receive the earnest consideration of the city authorities.

The spirit of the motto, "in time of peace prepare for war," has a significance beyond military matters.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Examiner is in receipt of the Christmas number of the "Canadian Scotsman," a journal devoted to the interests of Scottish life in Canada. It has the characteristic holiday features, and also brief reports of how St. Andrew's day was observed in Canada, beginning with Halifax and ending with Vancouver; but Peterborough is not represented in these records, probably for the simple reason that St. Andrew's day was allowed to pass here without formal recognition. But doubtless the hearts of the local Scots were stirred to a livelier pulse by the return of the national day. Display of sentiment is not essential to strong and healthy feelings. As Burns says:

Nae treasures nor pleasures
Could make us happy lang;
The heart's aye, the part aye
That makes right or wrang.

New York affords an exemplification of the failure of public ownership and operation. It was disclosed in the investigation the other day that the city lost on its municipal ferry from 39th street to Staten Island a trifle of $1,026,272 in 1907, and that one ferry house under way will cost over $2,000,000 beyond the estimate. The departmental auditor testified that "the balance was decidedly in favour of private operation compared with municipal ownership in the matter of expenditures." The Examiner has always contended that efficient administration of public utilities is the only true test of the relative merits of public and private ownership and operation. Given the application of the same business principles which insure the success of private enterprises and public ownership and operation have much to commend them.

The Bishop of London in his recent speech in the House of Lords on the Licensing Bill paid Canada a compliment for its sobriety. He said, according to "Canada," that "all Canadians were horrified at the amount of the old country's drink bill, which worked out at an average of no less than 7s. 3d. per family a week. The Bishop went on to say that, in proportion to population, Canada drank only one-fourth of what the mother country did, and Canada is growing more temperate every day." Doubtless drink has much to do with poverty and suffering in the old land, and doubtless the drink habit brought into Canada by many of our new arrivals, largely accounts for the failure of some of them to make good in Canada. A man or a family that practises the drink habit would not be happy or successful in the Garden of Eden.

ACTING PRESIDENT GOMEZ BREAKS PLOT

New Venezuelan Ruler Pluckily Arrests Castro's Assassins.

REORGANIZATION HAS BEGUN

Government of Republic Is Being Renovated and International Difficulties Will Be Patched Up—Castro's Letter of Credit Stopped—Plotters Against Gomez's Life Are Safely Put In Prison.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 21, via Willemstad, Curacoa, Dec. 23.—The downfall of President Castro in Venezuela was completed Saturday last with the frustration of a desperate plot to assassinate Juan Vincente Gomez, the acting President of the republic.

A prominent lawyer has filed an accusation in the High Federal Court charging President Castro with complicity in the attempted assassination and proposing his impeachment.

There was a meeting Friday night of the plotters in the residence of Barbinas Guzman, who was Secretary-General in the last Castro Cabinet, and who was placed in charge of President Castro's personal business in Venezuela when the President left for Germany.

The conspirators decided upon a coup d'etat. They determined to assassinate Acting President Gomez, Jose De Jesus Paul, the Foreign Minister; Gen. Leopoldo Baptiste and other prominent men; seize the administration of the country and with the army terrorize and overcome the population.

Torres-Cardenas, who was at one time Minister of the Interior under President Castro and later his personal secretary, was the active leader of the conspiracy. He was entrusted with the carrying out of the plot. He had as lieutenants the commanders of three battalions.

In spite of the precautions taken an intimation of what was on foot reached the ears of Acting President Gomez. As soon as he had satisfied himself of the truth of the reports he took immediate steps to frustrate the attempt.

Early Saturday morning he went alone on foot to the barracks in Caracas, where a mutinous regiment under the command of President Castro's brother was quartered. With unexampled courage he entered the building and placed the brother of the President under arrest. The cool nerve of Gomez made it possible for him to carry out this dangerous manoeuvre successfully.

He then went to the "yellow house," the executive mansion, where he had a brief interview with Torres Cardenas. The chief of the conspirators maintained a defiant attitude and denied the existence of any plot. Gomez would not be deceived by such assurances. He seized Torres-Cardenas by the shoulders, and, shaking him roughly, said: "I have discovered your plot to assassinate me. You are my prisoner."

Torres-Cardenas tried to use his revolver on the acting President, but Gomez was too quick for him. He pinioned the man's arms and called the guard. Torres-Cardenas was seized and disarmed and hurried away to jail.

These two arrests, made single-handed by Gomez, broke the back of the plot.

The public rallied to the support of the new President, and are well pleased with the new state of affairs. Venezuela's international disputes will be immediately settled.

The Bank of Venezuela has cabled its correspondent at Berlin and Paris cancelling the unlimited letter of credit given to President Castro.

There is to be a general reorganization of the Government. The fall of President Castro leaves no obstacle in the way of settling the various international questions confronting the republic.

The new Administration has revoked the decree prohibiting the transhipment at Willemstad of goods destined for Venezuelan points. This measure has been the principal difficulty in the strained relations between Holland and Venezuela, and revocation is regarded by well-informed persons as meaning practically the settlement of the dispute between the two Governments.

Testimony Manufactured.

Fushing, N.Y., Dec. 23.—Lawyers for Thornton Jenkins Hains assert to-day that every effort will be put forth to shatter that part of Mrs. Helene E. Annis' testimony that the defendant beckoned his brother and the two men went to the float where Capt. Hains shot and killed William E. Annis as he was making a landing with his boat.

This evidence Hains' counsel declare was suggested to Mrs. Annis in order that her testimony might bring the defendant within the meaning of the statute that there must be some overt act to show that he induced or procured his brother to commit the crime.

The Queen to Gen. Booth.

London, Dec. 23.—Queen Alexandra's well known interest in the Salvation Army was emphasized in a telegram to Gen. William Booth, commander-in-chief of that body, who was on Friday operated upon for a cataract, saying:

"I have felt so much for you and hope the operation may be successful. I trust you are getting on towards complete recovery and that the sight you need so much will soon be entirely restored."

Gen. Booth's physicians believe he will recover his sight.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of, Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held throughout the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

Wilkins Says This Is Why Chief Malone Shot Him.

CONFESSES TO BURGLARY

Wounded Constable at Simcoe Admits Theft of Furs and Declares That He and Malone Were Partners In Depredations Committed In That Town—Regularly Occurring Crimes Are Now Stopped.

Simcoe, Dec. 23.—Constable Wilkins, who is lying in the local sanitarium with four revolver bullets in his body, has confessed to having stolen between $200 and $300 worth of furs from the store of S. M. Sovereen, and he says that Chief Malone, who is locked up in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to murder him, also had a hand in the robbery.

This admission, if true, may go far towards confirming the wounded constable's explanation of a motive for the attempt made upon his life, namely, that Malone wanted to get rid of him because he "knew too much."

When he was owning up to the fur robbery, Wilkins said he was willing to go ahead and explain a whole lot of depredations that have occurred in this town within the past year, but those to whom he was talking would not permit him to speak further, advising that he keep his information until Malone's hearing comes off.

Wilkins' confession was made to S. M. Sovereen, dry goods merchant, and his son, Arthur, who visited the sick man to enquire how two fur coats and a quantity of women's furs, which had been stolen from the store, came to be found hidden away in his house.

The search of Wilkins' house was made Monday. Malone's trial was adjourned yesterday until Tuesday at 10 o'clock. It is altogether improbable that the physicians attending Wilkins' will pronounce him recovered sufficiently by that time to give evidence. In the latter event the hearing will be again traversed.

Malone still protests his innocence of the attempt upon his colleague's life, and declares his acquittal is certain.

Wilkins' desire to "tell more," if encouraged would doubtless have thrown considerable light upon many criminal mysteries that had been puzzling the Simcoe people for months prior to the shooting affray.

Unaccountable robberies, burglaries, thefts and fires occurred frequently and almost regularly, all of which stopped suddenly when the police force was in jail or in bed.

It also appears that the music store of Martin Bros. was burglarized some time ago and twenty piano draperies stolen. Ten of these were found on the verandah of Mr. L. Y. Atkinson's house last week, and Mr. Martin, learning of Mr. Sovereen's find, proceeded to Wilkins' home, where he found the remaining ten draperies.

P. C. Wilkins, learning that the stolen goods had been discovered, sent for Mr. Sovereen Monday night and confessed to him that he had entered his store at the suggestion of and accompanied by Chief Malone, and that the chief had insisted on his taking the coat while the chief appropriated the other articles. He explained that the door was left unbolted, but Mr. Sovereen is of the opinion that a skeleton key was used. Wilkins also stated that it was Malone who forced him to take the piano draperies out of Martin's store on a Saturday night, and that they divided the twenty between them.

Wilkins states that he did not assist at the burglary of Madden Bros.' store, where the till was broken into and about $150 stolen, but he knows that this was Malone's doing. The theft of about $1,500 worth of furs from the store of the H. S. Falls Co. was not, in his opinion, the work of the chief. The theft of about $160 in cash and checks from the E. H. Jackson Co. he also disclaims any knowledge of, but states that he will not clear the chief of that act.

It is also stated that the return of the stolen goods was the outcome of the investigations of a private detective engaged by the defence. Detective Miller is still in town investigating the case on behalf of the crown.

Falls From Engine.

Cornwall, Dec. 23.—William Hargrave of Brockville, a fireman on an eastbound Grand Trunk freight train, fell off his locomotive on the Black river bridge, west of Lancaster, Monday night, and was picked up with a fractured skull and a broken leg. He died yesterday in the Cornwall General Hospital.

How Hargrave fell off is a mystery that will never be solved. His comrade, the engineer, did not miss him for several miles. He reported his disappearance, and section men sent out from Lancaster with a hand car found Hargrave on the bridge, which was the scene of a similar accident a couple of years ago.

Kin Lansdowne.

Liverpool, Dec. 23.—David Lloyd-George, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, addressing a meeting Monday night, from which women were rigorously excluded, to prevent suffragette disturbances, denounced the veto of the Liberal bills by the House of Lords and predicted that the country would "shatter the throne of King Lansdowne," who had usurped the sovereignty that "no king had claimed since Charles the First."

With regard to old age pensions, the Chancellor said he would find the money needed "without taxing anybody's bread or interfering with any productive industry."

Death Ends Festivities.

Windsor, Dec. 23.—Christmas cheer and juvenile enjoyment gave way yesterday to sorrow and gloom at Dougall avenue school, when the announcement was made that Miss Mary Rumball, a member of the teaching staff, had died suddenly.

All the school decorations were torn down, and the Christmas exercises postponed and schools throughout the city closed as soon as Miss Rumball's death became known. Deceased was for 16 years a member of the teaching staff in this city.

Lauder's Effects Ruined.

Buffalo, Dec. 23.—While a truckload of Harry Lauder's stage effects was being loaded into a baggage car at the Exchange street station last night, a yard engine backed a string of cars down upon it. The truck was overturned and $5,000 worth of stage property converted into splinters.

A Few Bottles of Peruna Restored Me to Health.

Mrs. John Henderson, 2 Overdale Ave., Montreal, Can., writes:

"I was much distressed with neuralgia and was so run down that life was not worth living. I tried a great many remedies, but all to no effect.

"I met a friend of mine, and told her of my ailment. She advised me to try her remedy, Peruna.

"Although I had no faith in Peruna, I took her advice, and am pleased to state that the neuralgia has entirely left me, and have gained so in health that I feel just like my old self again.

"I am enjoying the best of health.

RUNNING ATHLETICS HOCKEY

BURNS WILL BE A 5-4 FAVOURITE IN SATURDAY'S HEAVYWEIGHT BATTLE

New York, Dec. 22 — Advices from the scene of the coming Johnson-Burns fight are to the effect that Burns is the favourite at 5 to 4, with much money wagered both ways.

Hugh McIntosh, the promoter of the mill, in a statement received from him gives these details concerning the battle:—

"The fight will take place at 11 a.m., December 26. The early hour is fixed to enable patrons to get to Randwick afterwards to see the running of the Summer Cup, one of the biggest of Australian horse races.

"The prices of admission range from $5 to $50, and already a considerable number of the best young sporting bloods have paid $50 for seats. The success of the fight, financially, is already assured, and the crowd is expected to be a record breaker."

It has been figured out that there is about fifteen hours difference in time between this country and Sydney, Australia, and that when Burns and Johnson enter the ring at Sydney at 11 o'clock of the morning of December 26 it will be about 8 o'clock in the evening of December 25 here. The fight will not go to a finish after all, as Burns has insisted upon a twenty-round limit. The men will meet in a twenty-four foot ring in a new arena which has been erected at an outlay of $20,000. The fight will be photographed, and the men will battle for the heavyweight championship of the world.

Burns will receive $30,000, win, lose, or draw; a film of the fight, worth $1,750, and two tickets to London, valued at $1,250, his total share being about $33,000.

Johnson will get $5,000 for his end of the mill, three round trip tickets to England, worth $2,000, and $500 for the picture privileges.

It is evident, therefore, that both Burns and Johnson intend to return to England before coming back to America.

Sam Fitzpatrick, Johnson's manager, cabled to a friend here the other day that the big negro, barring accidents, would win by a knockout inside of fifteen rounds.

SHRUBB AND LONGBOAT WILL MEET IN NEW YORK NEXT MONTH, AFTER ALL

Toronto, Dec. 22—The chances are that Tom Flanagan will this afternoon do what he said yesterday he would do—sign Tom Longboat and Alfred Shrubb to run the marathon distance indoors at Madison Square Garden.

P. T. Powers, the Madison Square Garden impressario arrived to-day hot foot from New York to shake Tom C Flanagan's determination not to let the Indian run Shrubb indoors. Flanagan was firm until Powers insisted that he had given his word after the Dorando race that he would let the Indian meet Shrubb and that on that understanding he had involved himself to the extent of $2000.

This took the wind out of Flanagan's sails, and he finally consented to run Shrubb the distance if Shrubb would in return sign to meet the Indian in the Marathon distance out doors here in the spring.

So the matter stands now, but the chances are the agreement will be signed this afternoon. The Shrubb date may be Jan. 8th or 9th but Flanagan is holding out for a longer date to give the Indian a chance to rest up between the Dorando race at Buffalo, which by the way will be 15 miles, but will not be run on New Year's Day. The chances are that it will be run on Jan. 2nd.

On an indoor track Shrubb may beat the Indian with his clever headwork. Out doors the Indian should win on his merits.

SOME INFORMATION CONCERNING THE TWO PRINCIPALS IN THE BIG FIGHT

Tommy Burns, or Noah Brusso, as his name really is, was born June 17, 1881, at Hanover, Ontario. He is 5 feet 7 inches in height, and stockily built. Burns began fighting in 1900, and in his numerous battles has lost but three, one to Mike Schreck, in ten rounds; one to Jack Sullivan, in twenty rounds, and one to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, in six rounds.

Jack Johnson hails from Galveston, Texas, where he was born in March, 1878. He is big and rangy, and as quick as the proverbial cat in his movements. He is considered to be the shrewdest boxer since the days of James J Corbet, and his hitting power is said to be great. Johnson stands 6 feet 2 inches. He, therefore, will tower over the Canadian, and, in addition, will have an advantage in reach. Burns, however, always was a "mixer," and will fight close, playing for body and wind in order to offset the handicaps of height and reach that Johnson possesses over him. Johnson began his ring career in 1901, and has lost but two battles—one to Marvin Hart in twenty rounds, and the other to Joe Jeanette at Philadelphia on a foul. The most notable man he ever met was "Bob" Fitzsimmons, whom he smothered in two rounds at Philadelphia. This, however, was in 1907 when Fitzsimmons was but a shadow of his stormer self.

HAMS SURPRISED PACIFICS LAST NIGHT; BELMONTS PROTESTED THEIR GAME

Plenty of excitement was afforded the spectators at the ten pin league series last night at the P.B.C., the outstanding features of the double header being the establishment of a new record for three games by Billy Wareham; a protest entered by the Belmonts and the capture of a game by the Hams, who unexpectedly took the first of the series from the Pacifics, and thus prevented the latter from tying with the Bankers for first place in the League standing.

The dispute in the Belmont-Iroquois contest arose in the third game when the judge called a foul on Pollard on the last frame. The alleged foul cost Pollard seven pins, and as it subsequently turned out it also gave the Iroquois the game by six pins. Had the penalty not been inflicted the Belmonts would have won by a single pin. The Belmonts base their protest on the ground that the official was not regularly appointed, and the matter will be threshed out before the Executive Committee.

The Belmonts appeared to be back in form again, especially Wareham, who piled up a grand total of 562 pins in three games, thus breaking the league record, also held by himself, by ten pins. The first and second games were won by the Belmonts, but the play was close and exciting all the way, and the games were usually decided on the last frames. In the third game, as noted above, the Iroquois were six up at the finish.

In the game between the Hams and Pacifics, the latter had an off night, and easily succumbed to the tail enders in the opening game. They took the second and third, however, by a big margin, and are now, only a game behind the Bankers.

The scores follow:—

CURLING ACTIVITY IN THE NEW RINK

The Familiar Sounds Can be Heard Issuing From Interior of the Building.

The cries of "Sweep! Sweep!" can be heard issuing from inside the walls of the new curling rink these cold nights, which speaks for itself that curling is in full swing. At present there are only four rinks marked out, but the other three will soon be in shape for the "stone twirlers."

TIM O'ROURKE TO TAKE UP SIMPSON

Says Local Indian Can Beat Hayes or Dorando Without Trouble.

Tim O'Rourke is out with another Indian wonder, which he is willing to match against Dorando or Hayes, and would put up a nice little side bet, too, on him. With a little training, Tim thinks, this dark horse could make the two Marathoners sit up and take notice.

"Who is he?" Tim was asked.

"I don't care who knows," he answered. "It's Fred Sampson, the Peterborough Indian."—Toronto News.

HOCKEY

The Strathcona City League team had their first practice of the season at Brock street Rink last night, when ten men were out in uniform and had a lively practice. The Straths had Wilson, Dusty, Ray, Long, Dobson, Weatherstone, Seymour, McMillan, Curtis, and Parnell out on the ice and the practice was a good one.

The Belmonts will practise this evening at Brock street Rink between 6 and 7 o'clock. Every member of the team is asked to be out in uniform.

The Strathconas have signed Clarence Wilson, goal keeper; Chas. A. Barber, point; Ben Dusty, cover point; Charlie Ray, rover; Herb Long, centre; Len Dobson, centre and wing; Herb McMillan, right wing, and Pete Weatherstone, left wing of last year's champion team, and Jack Seymour, right wing of the Strathcona's championship team of the year before. The High Commissioners have their City League line-up practically complete now, and are awaiting the opening of the championship series. The Straths will endeavour to open the season with an out of town game.

Peterborough's junior O.H.A. team will open the series with an O.H.A. game at Whitby on January 1st, and the team has not much time in which to get into shape. There is plenty of material and no difficulty should be experienced in putting a strong team on the ice. Among the men available are Len Giroux of the Rough Riders, for goal, Wade and Faux, and Harry Munro of the Chieftains, for defence, Cyril Giroux of the Rough Riders, Ken Pentland, last year with the High Lifes, Charlie Ray of the Strathconas, Ken Crane of the Chieftains, Gorman, Hillier Bros., Conroy, Geale, Milloy, Kenneally, Clancy, and a host of other good juniors for the forward line.

* * * *

Ontario people would welcome a victory for the Edmonton hockey club in the coming Stanley Cup series, it only because the majority of the challengers are former O.H.A. players. Eastern hockey critics have for many years maintained that in the O.H.A. grade of hockey was not fast enough for the brand played in the Eastern League and they have lost no opportunity of holding the Ontario body up to ridicule. If the Western team carry off the honours it would serve to show that O.H.A. hockey is just as fast as is played anywhere. With the exception of Lester Patrick, Pitre and McNamara, all the Edmonton team have played in the O. H.A. Whitcrott was with Peterborough, Lindsay with a Toronto team, Hugh Ross with Smith's Falls, Steve Vair with Barrie, Jack Miller with Norwood, Tom Phillips with the Toronto Marlboros and Harold Deeton with Galt.

* * * *

Whitcrolt, at the invitation of some of the members of the Montreal club, took part in the practice of the winged wheel players last night, and showed a pretty vigorous style of hockey. He and most of the players would like to get out for two practices a day for the rest of the week, but only one hour can be given them at the Arena.—Montreal Star.

* * * *

There will be a practice of the intermediate and junior O.H.A. teams at the Brock street rink to-night, between 7 and 8 o'clock, when every member of each team is expected to be out in uniform. Neither team has much time in which to get into shape as the junior series open next week, and the intermediates on the Tuesday following New Years. There will be another practice on Christmas morning when another big turnout is looked for.

* * * *

The Otonabee Hockey Club have arranged for the Park street Rink every Wednesday night from 7 to 8 o'clock, and will practise this evening at that hour. All the members are requested to be out, ready for the game.

Sporting Comment

With Mahmout the Turk wrestler beating all the American grapplers; with Alfred Shrubb, of England, cleaning up all Uncle Sam's runners in the east; with Freddie Welsh and Jem Driscoll the English pugilists, showing the American mit artists a few things at slam-banging; with Dorando of Italy, and Tom Longboat, the Canadian runner, giving Johnie Hayes the ha-ha, and Tommy Burns, the Canadian, still champion heavyweight of the world, it looks as though Uncle Sam's athletic aspirations are being handed a rude jolt.

Progress Made During Past Year By The County Council In The Construction Of Bridges

A Review Shows the Year to be a Record One—Where Repairs Were Made.

THE CURRENT DEFICIT

A review of the year's progress in the county; 1908, in so far as bridge building is concerned, shows it to be amongst the record years.

It is generally conceded that permanent structures suitable to carry the heavy machinery that is used at the present time for threshing, and municipal purposes, must either be assumed and built by the county or else the matter of financing the same becomes too burdensome to the local municipality and also creates a possibility of an insufficient structure.

Regarding the above, the County Council during the year 1908, assumed three bridges in the back townships and rebuilt them, and rebuilt three more formerly assumed in the more frontier municipalities.

In the township of Chandos a bridge is now being constructed, (the only one of the six not completed,) some 80 feet long with suitable stone piers and stone approaches with guard rail. The timber is heavy cedar with flooring six inches thick.

In the township of Cavendish the bridge known as Black Lake Creek Bridge, was rebuilt, being some 80 feet in length with solid stone piers and stone approaches with proper guard rail. Timbers heavy cedar, six inch floor.

In the township of Harvey, the bridge known as Deer Bay Creek Bridge was rebuilt, being some 80 feet long, with stone piers and stone approaches, with proper guard rail, built of cedar, six inch flooring and heavy timbers in piers, stringers, etc.

In the township of Otonabee a steel bridge was erected 80 feet long upon solid concrete abutments with solid stone approaches with suitable guard rail.

In the township of Belmont a steel bridge was erected 32 feet long, (a narrow place over the river being selected, thereby making a jog in the road, and saving the county about $4,000,) upon quarry stone abutments, with cement mortar, with stone approaches and proper guard rail.

In the municipality of Norwood, a steel bridge with a driveway of 16 feet, the same as the other steel bridges, with an additional 5 foot walk for pedestrians, upon concrete abutments with stone approaches and sidewalk approach, and proper guard rail.

In all of the above bridge building the bridge proper was shortened as much as possible to save expense of building and future maintenance.

The floating bridges, namely, Pigeon Creek, Chemong and Gannon's Bridges all suffered to some extent when the ice was going down in the lakes last spring, particularly Gannon's, it being carried away in pieces, leaving the connections at each shore.

It was replaced as speedily as possible, at considerable expense, traffic being suspended for a very short time.

Lakefield and Burleigh Bridges were completely overhauled, repainted, refloored and generally renewed which necessitated the expenditure of considerable money.

Canal Bridge in Dummer received some repairs, that, as an unavoidable result, cost some money.

The House of Refuge, recently established by the County Council, in response to an Act of Parliament, making it compulsory, has, for two years, been receiving from the municipalities of the county, inmates of the character for which it was intended. 1907 being the initial year, with regard to establishing, was looked upon as an expensive one from a current standpoint, from the fact that the cost of maintenance per week for each inmate exceeded $2.50, and the object of the Board of Management has been attained this year in lowering the cost per week per inmate to, it is estimated, considerably below $2.00. It is recognized by all that as time rolls on and progression prevails, extension must be provided for, and our county buildings being old with no basement makes the heating of building somewhat hard on the halls and corridors and offices from the fact that stoves, pipes and the carrying of wood to the same, by the parties employed, is very wearing, and as a result repairs have to be made. The past year has been unprecedented in this line, and unavoidable expenses had to be met throughout the buildings.

The steps and approaches to the buildings as well as the old wooden sidewalk in front of the buildings, from the fact that they were past repair, were all rebuilt with concrete at considerable expense, but of such a character that in future the maintenance will be very easily met.

The council is to be congratulated upon the fact that in starting the year with a small current deficit of $549.00 and levying the same rate as the four years proceeding 1907, it looks forward to the close of the year with no addition to the current deficit in so far as 1908 is concerned, or at most, a very trifling one.

CONCLUSION OF THE REPLY

Ex-Mayor Writes on the Sale of City Debentures During Past Two Years.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—To avoid trespassing on your space I cut short my last letter in reply to the Mayor, and dealt only with the large deficit on current account. Unfortunately a rush of other matters has prevented me writing a reply to his answer re the sale of debentures until to-day, but I would like now to correct some more "misleading" statements in the Mayor's defence.

Mr. Rush admits that the sale made this year of debentures was extravagant and costly, but seeks to throw the blame on the Council of 1907 for their failure to sell these debentures. What are the facts? When the Council of 1907 took office, they found $53,000 of debentures nearly ready for sale for sewers and sidewalks of the two preceding years, all computed at 4 per cent, and no sale possible at that rate. We made an arrangement with the Commissioners of the City Trust to take up those for the sewers, and had to raise the rate to 4 1-2 per cent. in order to sell those for sidewalks. At no time during the year could we have sold our debentures at less than 4 1-2 per cent. and rather than sell at that rate — 12 1-2 per cent. higher than the rate at which we had been selling for years—the Mayor, the Finance Committee and the whole Council of 1907 agreed to hold back the sale, and, if necessary, pay the Bank an increased rate for temporary loans. Mayor Rush knows, or ought to know, these facts, and he has no right to misrepresent the facts to throw blame on his predecessor.

How does the action of the present Mayor compare? Instead of trying to save the money of the present and future taxpayers, he sells an unprecedented quantity of debentures at the worst possible time. Instead of trying to satisfy the Bank by a partial sale, he sells $190,000 of debentures to cover an overdraft of $138,000 when he took office. To get down to exact figures. It would have been cheaper for the City to have paid the Bank 16 per cent., and sold the debentures at the rates now prevailing, than to have made such a sale as Mayor Rush made this year. If the rate goes down to 4 per cent, before Spring, as seems probable, the City would have been better off paying 22 per cent. for one year. It is publicly said that there are $3,000,000 on deposit in the banks of this city. Does anyone mean to say that an offer from the City to pay 6 per cent. for one year loans in small amounts, would not have been jumped at by people getting 3 per cent. in the banks to an amount far in excess of the $200,000 required by the City? All that was needed was a little grit and foresight in the Mayor's chair, and the City will pay $1,500 a year for the next thirty years for the lack of these qualities at a critical time.

One other remark. The Mayor would like to hide behind the responsibility of the Finance Committee. The Mayor knows that almost the same men composed that Committee last year, and that I did nothing in regard to the finances except with their approval, but when I was being attacked in the last elections, and when he was permitting himself to be the instrument of an attack which he knew to be false, did he say one word about the responsibility of the Finance Committee instead of the Mayor? Does the Mayor consider it an honourable course to win an election under false colours and then squirm when the same test is applied to him.

I charge that both in the sale of debentures and in the spending of this year's funds the present Mayor's management has been the most reckless and most extravagant that this City has known in a generation and as I said before I am prepared to stand by this charge at any public meeting.

Yours faithfully,
R. F. McWILLIAMS.

PROCEEDS GO TO SICK CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Concert at Auburn Public School—Presentation to Departing Teacher.

A splendid concert was given in Auburn public school on Friday evening last by the pupils and ex-pupils. The chair was ably filled by Mr R. Lees, Inspector of County Schools. The programme was a lengthy one and consisted of recitations, dialogues and songs. The children took their parts with much skill and showed that they had received careful training. The only outside talent was Miss Josie Calendar, who sang in her usual charming style; Mr C S McKay who gave several selections on the bagpipes, and Mr J. Allen who favoured the audience with two Irish readings. Both gentlemen were in their national costumes. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of three prizes for general efficiency, to Walter Jones, Clyde Brown and Johnny Leahy. At the close of the entertainment the scholars presented their teacher Miss Mann who is leaving with an address and a beautiful salad bowl, as a token of their esteem. The proceeds amounted to nearly ten dollars and is to be sent to the sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.

MANY EVERGREENS FOR CHRISTMAS

Small Boys are Making Money During Holiday by Selling Them.

There are more Christmas trees coming into the city this year than have ever been noticed before. The reason can only be surmised and it is believed that the tree habit is becoming more widespread with every year. Last Saturday and during this week the boys are on holidays and have the time to go to the woods where they cut down the little evergreens which make the best trees for Christmas use.

MURRAY STREET ANNUAL CONCERT

A Successful Event—Assistance to Those in Need.

The annual tea and entertainment held by the Murray Street Baptist Sunday School last evening was as successful as it always is. The school room was so crowded that standing room was at a premium. The various numbers on the programme were excellently rendered in all cases, and were much enjoyed by the audience. Much credit is due Messrs Wilfrid G. Shiner and George Martin for their excellent stage arrangements.

Some years ago this Sunday School decided to change the character of their Christmas festival, to conform with the truth that "it is more blessed to give than to receive," and from that time the members of the school have, at these entertainments, been giving rather than getting. Last evening the gifts, amounting to about fifty dollars, were for distribution by the pastor to those who are in need.

The programme was :

Moved by Messrs. Howden and May that the accounts for putting in culverts, etc., on the Gravel road, be referred to Councillor Forster for certification before payment thereof. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. May and Forster that the amounts for work done on the Gravel Road at the watering trough be paid for from the Commutation of Statute Labour in R. Div. No. 1. Carried. On motion the remaining amounts were passed as read.

Moved by Messrs. Forster and Howden, that the Reeve, Councillors Dobbin and May, and the Clerk be appointed a committee to investigate the demands made by the Township of Cavan in connection with the payment for the Long Swamp Drain. This was carried.

Moved by Messrs. Dobbin and Howden that the Clerk be instructed to render to the Township of Cavan, an account of work done by North Monaghan upon the Boundary road, and to make a demand from the Township of Cavan for half the cost thereof. Carried.

Council then adjourned until December 26th next.

SOME DAIRY NOTES OF INTEREST

The dairymen of Leeds county re-elected Mr. J. R. Dargavel, M.L.A., of Elgin, Ont., by acclamation, as the director of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association for their district, at the dairy meeting held at Gananoque on Friday of last week. This will be good news for all who know what valuable work Mr. Dargavel has done for the association.

Senator D. Derbyshire, Brockville, Ont., stated at the district dairy meeting at Belleville, last week, that the reports that are being received from Liverpool, London, Glasgow, Bristol and other British centers, show that the Canadian cheese that has gone forward this year has been of exceptionally good quality. The British people are evincing their approval of it.

Dairy Instructor T. E. Whattam, of Picton, while speaking at the dairy meeting at Belleville, Ont., last week, expressed the view that those patrons of cheese factories who were convicted this year of watering their milk, and fined from $8 to $20, should have been fined more heavily. He held that if the practice of watering milk is to be stamped out, heavier fines must be imposed than have been imposed this year.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. At all events you will act wisely if you advertise in the EXAMINER.

A Favourite Old Drama

—One of the most complete and effective presentations of "East Lynne" which has ever been sent on tour, will be given at the Grand, Christmas Day, matinee and night, by Joseph King's New York company. The company, scenic equipment and accessories are all up to the standard required for an artistic presentation of the favourite old drama. The engagement is for one night only, and seats can be secured at these special prices. Plan is now open.

An Interesting Human Story

—The remarkable prosperity and wonderful longevity attained by "East Lynne" can be explained only by the fact that the story the play unfolds is intensely human. Although numberless dramas have been written in imitation of this excellent play, not one of them reaches the depths of feeling or sounds the note of human appeal as truly as does this dramatic picture of the joys and sorrows of the beautiful, unfortunate, Lady Isabel. To adequately portray the varying emotions of this complex character is a task, requiring not only the charm of youthful beauty, but a marked degree of histrionic ability as well. The engagement at the Grand is for Christmas Day, matinee and night.

THE KING'S TACT.

Story Which Gives Some Idea of Why England's Ruler Is Loved.

It is well known that by his tact and sunny disposition King Edward has endeared himself not only to his own subjects in England, but to the people of many other lands. One of the attendants of a foreign court describes a recent visit of the British monarch and the impression he made. The teller of the story is an old lady who has lived at the court since her youth.

"The King come. He smiled, he beamed, he was like the sun. He made us all feel that we were beautiful and wonderful, and yet there was no flattery. We all fell in love with him from the moment he kissed our Queen's hand.

"He not only said nice things, but he did nice things. He thought of everybody and we never felt that his charming speeches and attentions come from the idea, 'It is the tactful thing to do.' No, it all came from his heart.

"One evening there was a great function at the palace. We had been standing for nearly two hours. Our own Queen is most kind and considerate in these matters, but the visit of the English King was such an honor, such a success, that it made her quite forgetful. She forgot to sit down herself or to give the order to us poor ladies in attendance. I am getting old, and King Edward saw my distress. He was walking about, talking to everybody. Suddenly he stopped in front of me and said:

"'Duchess, you must sit down. I see you are worn out by standing so long. Sit down, if only for a few moments. I will stand in front of you so that no one shall see.'

"The dear, kind man was as good as his word. By and by he went up to our Queen. What he said I don't know, but she sat down and gave the signal with her fan, which means that we ladies can also sit.

"I say that a man, whether he is king or a peasant, who thinks of the little things can take care of the big things, too."

TRAVELING RISKS IN INDIA.

Problem of Protecting English From Native Thugs Is a Serious One.

The many instances of assaults and robberies to which passengers on Indian railways have been subjected, culminating in the murder of a lady in a first-class carriage some weeks since, are engaging the attention of a special conference of railway authorities sitting in Simla. They hope to devise methods for the better protection of life and property. The difficulties in the way of any practical action are considerable. The conditions of travel in India are such that passengers demand and receive greater privileges in the apportionment of space and the supply of conveniences than can be afforded in western countries. Such luxuries, however conducive to comfort, indubitably give opportunity to robbers. Where they can be sure of finding compartments occupied only by single travelers their nefarious plans as much assisted. When, as frequently occurs on a long journey, a portion of the route lies in the territories of independent native states, the escape of criminals with their plunder is also facilitated. It is possible that some sacrifices will have to be made by travelers in the interests of the public safety.

Lloyd-George Anecdote.

Mr. Lloyd-George, when paying his first visit to Carnarvon Castle since his appointment to the Constableship, had to satisfy the somewhat incredulous caretaker as to his identity. Mrs. Lloyd-George and he arrived there with a small party, and the new Constable himself knocked at the massive door which guards the main entrance.

The caretaker took them for a party of sightseers, and demanded from Mr. Lloyd-George the usual fee of 4d. for admission, which would have been promptly paid had not some of Mr. Lloyd-George's friends informed her [illegible] was issuing the Chief Constable to pay for entering his own stronghold. After scanning him carefully the good lady satisfied herself that, though he had changed since she had last seen him at close quarters, he was indeed Mr. Lloyd-George.

The incident greatly amused the Constable, who, after cordially shaking the caretaker by the hand, made a brief tour of inspection.

A Fish In Mosaic.

Amongst the fishes of Sarawak, in Northern Borneo, interest has of late centered round an undiscovered Lung-fish, which is always expected to be met with in accordance with the prophecy, of an eminent ichthyologist. The prophecy is based on the fact of a remarkable coincidence of distribution of the Lung-fishes and a group of fish known as the osteoglossidae. The two groups are found together in tropical Africa, tropical America, and tropical Australia, whilst in Borneo and Sumatra only the osteoglossum [illegible] silu, is a fine fresh-water fish covered with large scales composed of pieces like mosaic. It was taken on the Rejang by His Highness the Rajah Muda. It is not improbable that the Bornean lung-fish will yet appear, a likely locality being the Rejang delta particularly in lake districts.

A clerk in a Liverpool office was sitting at his desk during a recent thunderstorm, when what he describes as a ball of flame struck the pen in his hand, producing a startling report. Curiously enough, the pen was not damaged, nor did the clerk himself suffer any injury.

General's Ill Fortune.

When Major-General Irving Grantham was summoned at the City of London Court recently for non-payment of a tailor's bill it was stated that he had commuted his pension and lost the money, and that his wife earned the money that kept the [illegible]

A PRIEST FOR FIFTY YEARS

Rev. Father J. Archambault of Montreal Ordained Half a Century Ago.

Examiner Special

Montreal, Dec. 24— On Christmas Day the Rev Father J Archambault, one of the oldest priests in the archdiocese of Montreal, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood and also his fifty-second anniversary as a member of the third order of St Francis. The Rev. Father is in his seventy-fifth year and is still active. For the past ten years he has been attached to the Asile St. Cunegonde, corner of Atwater avenue and Albert street, as assistant chaplain and for the past four years he has officiated at the children's mass at St. Anne church on Sundays. He was born at St. Lin, Que., on January 8, 1833 and was ordained to the priesthood by Cardinal Morlet at Paris. He was for many years a member of the Sulpician Order.

For six years he laboured in the United States, first in the Diocese of Duluth and afterwards as first pastor of St. Francis Xavier, of Lambert, Minn. In spite of his advanced age, Father Archambault is a very hard worker. He rises each morning at 4 o'clock and says his mass at five. He is a great temperance worker, very abstemious in his habits and devotes a large portion of his time to the work of caring for the poor and infirm. He is the oldest member of the third order of St. Francis, not only in Montreal but it is understood also in Canada. The golden jubilee celebration will be held in the Chapel of the Asile St. Cunegonde where a large number of his fellow priests and also his friends will be present and many will participate.

CHRISTMAS DAY RACES AT WINNIPEG TO-MORROW

Considerable Interest Displayed in the Events.

Examiner Special.

Winnipeg, Man. Dec. 24th—Winnipeg is to have Christmas Day races. Arrangements have been made by the Winnipeg Ice Racing Association for a Christmas day meet. There has been considerable interest displayed in the event and it is likely that a big crowd will be attracted tomorrow. The races are to be open and the secretary has received a large number of entres. The track is in the best of shape and some fast races are anticipated.

OLD COUNTRY CHRISTMAS FEATURE

Genuine English Carol Singers in Hamilton This Evening.

Examiner Special

Hamilton, Dec. 24th—This evening Hamilton is to have the unique privilege of listening to genuine English carol singers. This feature of the old country Christmas season is altogether new in Canada and it is likely that the band that will carol forth the Christmas songs of the old land will be the first ever heard in a Canadian city. It is due to the enterprise of Miss Jeannette Lewis, who is prominent in local musical circles, that Hamiltonians are to have this privilege. She organized a band of sixty singers and for several weeks past has been busy rehearsing them. The undertaking is of a charitable nature, being intended to raise funds for the Children's Hospital.

This evening the singers will divide into six street choirs. They will start out at seven o'clock and will parade the main streets of the city singing carols. In the wee sma' hours they will take in the residential section of the city. Each choir is to be followed by a small boy bearing a contribution box labelled "Friend of the Children's Hospital" and all the money collected will go to that fund.

TWO MORE ELDERS FOR KNOX CHURCH

Will be Elected by Ballot at the Services Next Sunday.

The congregation of Knox church will select by ballot two new elders at the services next Sunday. This has been found necessary to meet the growing demands of the congregation. At present there are six elders as follows: Messrs. J F Morrison, Jonathan Smyth, Richard Chiles, R Clifford, J W Bennett and W T Carruthers. The ballots for the two additional will be handed in at the services next Sunday.

TRAGIC STORY OF MURDER AND SUICIDE TOLD IN BRIEF LETTER

Too Poor to Marry So They Died Together—Man Kills Girl and Then Himself.

REMARKABLE FEATURES

London, Dec. 24.—Special.—Herbert C. Roberts, aged 32, and Elsie Hitchcock, hospital nurse, 23, arrived at Brighton last week. On Thursday they were found lying dead in their room at the Curzon Hotel. The woman was shot through the heart and head, the man through the head. Around about the woman's head white and red flowers were arranged in the shape of a corpse. On a black bordered card displayed on the mantelpiece, so it would catch the eye of anyone entering the room, were written the words:

"To the memory of the best and bravest woman who ever was born. The only way."

Various arrangements in the room indicated that the couple had decided to die together, and that the woman assisted the man in making preparations for death.

The most remarkable features of their story are detailed in the series of documents read at the inquest. A letter from Roberts to Elsie Hitchcock's sister is as follows:

"I met your dear sister Elsie some three months ago, and love her as no man ever could or has. Having left my firm of business after many years, and being unable to obtain other employment such as would make a home for me and my dear one, and being unable to part, we have decided to die together. She, poor child, makes the most terrible and awful sacrifice any woman could make in coming with me. She comes because she knows I want her—because she feels that she cannot live without me—and to try to come for me in coming."

Miss Hitchcock has also written a note as follows: "What we are going to do has been mutually agreed upon. It is my own wish that my dear husband take me with him. May God forgive us both."

Another document was a letter addressed to the coroner's jury, saying: "Sorry to take up your time; but to help you in making up your minds. The verdict is the wilful murder of Miss Elsie Hitchcock, with her consent and wish, and then the deliberate suicide of H. C. Roberts."

JES' 'FORE CHRISTMAS

Father calls me William, Sister calls me Will,
Mother calls me Willie — but the fellers call me Bill!
Mighty glad I ain't a girl — ruther be a boy
Without them sashes, curls an' things that's worn by Fauntleroy!
Love to chawnk green apples an' go swimmin' in the Lake—
Hate to take the castor ile they give fer belly-ache!
Most all the time the hull year roun' there ain't no flies on me,
But jes' 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Got a yaller dog named Sport—sic 'im on the cat!
Fust thing she knows she doesn't know where she is at!
Got a clipper-sled, an' when us boys go out to slide
'Long comes the grocery cart an' we all hook a ride!
But sometimes, when the grocery man is worrited and cross,
He reaches at me with his whip, and larrups up his hoss!
And then I laff and holler: "Oh, you never teched me!"
But jes' 'fore Christmas I'm as good as I kin be!

Gran'ma says she hopes when I get to be a man,
I'll be a missionerer like her oldest brother Dan,
Ez wuz et up by the cannibuls that lives in Ceylon's Isle,
Where every prospeck pleases an' only man is vile!
But gran'ma she had never been to see a Wild West show,
Or read the life uv Daniel Boone, or else I guess she'd know
That Buffalo Bill an' cowboys is good enough fer me—
Excep' jes' 'fore Christmas, when I'm good as I kin be!

Then ol' Sport he hangs around, so solium like an' still—
His eyes they seem a-sayin': "What's er matter, little Bill?"
The cat she sneaks down off her perch, a-wonderin' what's become
Uv them two enemies uv hern that used to make things hum!
But I am so perlite and slick, so earnestlike to bis,
That mother rez to father: "How improved our Willie is!"
But father, havin' been a boy hisself, suspicions me,
When jes' 'fore Christmas I'm good as I kin be!

For Christmas with its lots and lots uv candies, cakes an' toys,
Wuz made, they say, fer proper kids, and not fer naughty boys!
So wash yer face, and brush yer hair, and mind yer p's and q's,
And don't bust out yer pantaloons, an' don't wear out yer shoes;
Say 'yessum to the ladies, an' 'yess ir to the men,
An' when they's company don't pass yer plate fer pie again;
But, thinkin' of the things you'd like to see upon that tree,
Jes' 'fore Christmas be as good as you kin be—EUGENE FIELD.

A COBALT MINER HOME FOR CHRISTMAS TELLS OF TRIPLE TRAGEDY IN COLUMBUS MINE

Party Were Descending When Something Went Wrong With Cable—Fell to the Bottom and Were Killed.

MEN HAD BEEN BLASTING

Mr. Harry Lockington, son of Mr. Wm. Lockington, Auburn, is home from Cobalt where he has been operating a mine. He tells of a triple tragedy which occurred there yesterday morning resulting in the loss of three lives in the Columbus Mine. The dead are, William Hamilton, Ottawa; Fred Nelly, of West Temple, P.Q., and Edward Nation, of St. Pierce. The accident seems to have been caused by the cable slipping from its wheel as the men were descending the shaft in the bucket.

The three men had been carrying out blasting operations, and at midnight came on deck for dinner, but forgot to turn on the air. Hamilton went down again, and attended to this, and then returned to the top. About 2 o'clock this morning the three were sent down again in the bucket, and up till the time of an investigation the rest is a matter of surmise. It is supposed, however, that when they were about seventy-five feet down the cable slipped off the wheel. The engineer stopped immediately and steps were at once taken to see how matters stood. Mr. Shovell, the captain, was hastily called and descended by the rope ladder. At the depth of seventy-five feet he came across the bucket, which was empty, and rang for it to be raised. More men having arrived the party proceeded to the bottom, a depth of 240 feet. Hamilton was not dead when found, but the other two men had breathed their last. Five minutes afterwards Hamilton expired.

FIRST TRAIN OVER THE BATTLE RIVER BRIDGE

The Rubicon of the G. T. P. Has Been Crossed.

Winnipeg, Dec. 24 — The rubicon of the Grand Trunk Pacific was crossed last week when the first engine rolled over the immense Battle River Bridge, which has been in course of construction during the entire season. The bridge is nearly three thousand feet long, and is very high, so that the construction has been slow, on account of high winds interfering with the handling of aerial steel work. On the west side of the bridge the grading has been practically completed to Edmonton for a long time. Steel is now being laid towards that city, and the work will be prosecuted as fast as the weather will permit. There are still nearly 125 miles of track to be laid before Edmonton is reached, and the shortest railway line from Winnipeg to the Alberta capital will be complete.

VERY FAIR HOLIDAY TRADE

According to Reports From All Over the Dominion—Authentic News Collected.

Examiner Special

Montreal, Dec. 24.—There has been a fair holiday trade done here during the week though it has scarcely been up to the expectations of retailers. As usual a large amount of shopping was left to the last few hours and the result has been that returns have proved to be better than were expected at the early part of the week. The stores have been very busy and the amount of trading that has been done has been up to the normal though it cannot be said that there has been any exceptional amount of business transacted. This, however, is only the experience of other cities, and Montreal is not suffering more severely than are the cities of the west. It may be that expectations have been keyed too high and that it was to be hoped that the Christmas trade would be equal to that of the years of the greatest prosperity. But this was scarcely to be anticipated, for although the year has been one of better monetary conditions, at any rate towards the latter end, there is yet much to be recovered, and much ground to be regained, before the benefit of the recent harvest will be felt. Dealers and merchants are, however, in accord in saying that there is a better feeling and a stronger tone to business, and it is an undoubted fact that there is more money in circulation than there has been for some time past. One reason for this may be that during the last few months the trade of the Dominion has been almost entirely confined to the home markets. There has been little or no expansion of trade and the merchants of Canada have contented themselves with finding a market for their goods within the borders of their own country. Reports from all parts of the Dominion now show that there is every probability of the next few months proving to be more fruitful to business men. Leading industries are beginning to show that they are making gradual progress. There are at present no labour troubles, and there is certainly a more restful feeling existing between the two unnatural antagonists—employers and employees.

All Barber Shops will be closed Friday, H. GAINEY, Secy, Union 2d—121

May be Sent to the Children's Aid Society Shelter for Little Ones.

The appeal made in yesterday's papers for something to make a little brighter the Christmas of the eight children in the Children's Aid Society's Shelter, has brought forth satisfactory results and the good people of Peterborough have responded to the call, as they generally do. However, there is still room for some more gifts, and it is not too late for them to be sent to the Shelter. Remember anything that will please your own children will please these unfortunate little ones, who are anxiously waiting for Santa Claus' coming to-morrow night. They need not be new; old picture books and old toys will answer the purpose equally as well as new ones and you will not miss them.

Band will be at Brock Street Rink on Christmas Afternoon. 2d—121

NATIONAL VALUE OF THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

Macbeth complained that the time was "that when the brains were out a man would die, and there an end." This suggests, especially at this season, that when our enmities are fought out, the enmity or the strife of the moment should die, "and there an end." This is necessarily a world of strife of a certain kind. All men have their legitimate ambitions, and and all have a right to strive for their attainment. The struggle implies hostility, not as to persons and individualities, but as to representatives of the cause championed, or the object of the strife.

If all our differences were to be used as foundations for eternal personal enmities, the world, and life in the world, would be impossible. But, fortunately, as the rule is, common sense and common wisdom, come to the rescue. If success or failure is accepted in the right spirit, friendly personal relations and, even, personal friendships, sundered for the moment, resume their place. Even athletes in their contests, shake hands in token of friendly rivalry before they begin a bout; and, no matter how fierce the struggle, the enmity—the professional enmity—ends with the event. In our courts of law we see lawyers on opposing sides fight with a bitterness that seems to argue undying hostility; but, the case over we find them in the barristers' room, hob-a-nobbing like brothers, and, perhaps, smoking the pipe of peace together. They were representatives of causes involving antagonistic interests, and they as lawyers as strongly felt it their duty to fight their best as they strongly felt it their duty a professional communists and members of society to resume their friendly relations. In both the United States and Canada, at election times we of the opposing parties comport ourselves as sworn enemies. We do our best, or our worst, to win, and after the battle, winners and losers lay aside their partizan weapons and again take our places alongside each other in the ranks of a common citizenship and fight shoulder to shoulder for the advancement of the common interests of our common country. There are exceptions to the adoption of this attitude, in all the arenas of human rivalry—men who are the pet reproach of the true "sport," base losers—who mistake spite for spirit, who cherish chagrin and forget that in any contentious cause, both sides cannot win, and that it is possible to show as great magnanimity in defeat as modest triumph in success.

In all the walks of life, in all the realms of human activity, in professional life, in business rivalry, in national, provincial and municipal politic, divergency of opinion and opposing interests enlist their champions and beget perpetual struggle. This does not, happily, necessarily involve personal antagonisms, nor contraindicate, nor prevent co-operation in the discharge of those common duties of citizenship, in which enter no divided interest and no divergence of opinion, except, possibly as to the better way to do what all desire to have done.

If any residue of personal antipathetic feeling survives the daily struggles incident to modern political, industrial or economic condition of society, the Christmas-tide—when the spirit of peace on earth and good will towards men should reign, unrivalled—is the time of all times, to lay aside the petty enmities that the petty rivalries of life engender. Thereby only, can we as men claim our place in the Christmas-created human brotherhood, and in a material sense, worthily claim a place in the harmonious citizenship, which is the highest condition of the highest as well as most substantial national progress. The Christmas spirit, integral and essential in the fibre of our national ambitions and activities, is the indispensable element in the advance to true national greatness.

(Ian with "National Value, etc.)

The Christmas-tide is the most fitting season to bury the hatchet of human enmity.

APPOINTMENT OF MUNICIPAL AUDITORS.

A correspondent calls attention to an evil in connection with the appointment of auditors in rural municipalities. The general practice, this correspondent says, is to appoint two local men, ratepayers of the municipality, and very frequently these are wholly without qualification for the work. What our correspondent urges is that none but chartered accountants be employed in this service.

That many of those selected for the purpose of auditing municipal accounts are incompetent will be generally admitted. It would seem, however, to be going rather too far to suggest that appointments in future be limited to the extent suggested. This would mean the creation of another trust or guild and would involve in many cases a payment for service rendered quite out of proportion to the value of service performed. There are few communities in which two local men sufficiently expert in accounts to do the work in a satisfactory manner, and at reasonable cost, cannot be found. What seems to be required is that the duty involved in selecting auditors shall be taken more seriously and that in all cases men are appointed who not only have the necessary knowledge, but are possessed as well by a sufficient sense of the responsibility attaching to the office they are appointed to fill.—Weekly Sun.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS.

The Examiner of to-day comes to its readers on the eve of the supreme Christian festival, which will to-morrow be celebrated in every land where the "glad tidings" have been taken. In the matter of the observance of Christmas, the manner, but not the rejoicing spirit, changes. In olden days it was a

"Very merry, dancing, drinking, Laughing, quaffing and unthinking," time, almost wholly given over to

"Sport that wrinkled care derides,
And laughter holding both its sides."

In our days, while the festal features of the occasion still adhere, we enter, we hope, more earnestly into its deeper meaning on the divine side and into the spirit of good will effecting human relations. Christmas is a time for retrospection and introspection, for remembering and forgetting—being mindful of the claims of our fellow men and forgetful of their faults. In our observance of the day there is space for rejoicing and merriment, but no place for malice nor uncharitableness. The readjustment of the discordant relations between the Divine and the human, involved in the redemption which had its visible beginning in the holy and homely idyl of the Bethlehem manger, is only one side. The readjustment of the relations between the children of men was, from the earthly point of view, vastly more revolutionary. The old stern law, the Hebraic lex talionis, gave way to the gentle law of love. Through the kinship with the Elder Brother all men became brethren. Thenceforth, no man could live to himself. Child hood exalted, womanhood ennobled, and manhood magnified, took on the potentialities of the divine life lived by the Lord of the Christmas. Christ has coined the word charity, and it became the divine currency of Christianity. Before Christ came, the world never had an hospital, for man never before generally recognized his true relationship to his fellow. If we would keep our Christmas worthily we must meet the claims it has established—claims to our practice of its blessed burden, peace and good will. While we may rejoice and be glad, because it is meet and right so to do, we cannot rejoice and be glad alone. We are our brother's keeper. If no thought of others, less happy than we in their estate, enters into our Christmas rejoicing, we have no true share in the divine Unselfishness which became incarnate nearly two thousand years ago. We must love our fellow men with the hand as well as the heart, we must love him in deed, and in the right spirit. We must hold him in regard and memory because he is a brother whom the Elder Brother loves; not because he is wealthy or great, or of high estate and able to give gifts—just because he is our brother man. Christmas kept in this spirit will be the true festival. Then we shall see no hunger within our ken, unfed, no want, within means or opportunity, unfilled. The man who shuts up his sympathy and kindness within himself and his, is no Christian, for the Christ, is sick, and in prison, and he visits him not, hungry, and he feeds him not, naked, and he clothes him not. Remember, how the Babe of Bethlehem went about doing good, cheering the sorrowful, healing the sick, feeding the hungry. Go thou, and do likewise, and then we, and all we help, will have in the highest, holiest sense, what The Examiner wishes to its readers, and all the world, a

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Heap on the wood, the wind is chill,
But let it whistle as it will,
We'll keep our Christmas merry still.
—Scott.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"The mute acquiescence of the governed," as Lord Curzon describes the attitude of Eastern Asiatic races, has been of late perceptibly disturbed. A British writer calls attention to the fact that the most striking feature in contemporary history is the demand now being made by many Oriental people to be admitted to the guild of self-governing nations. Russia, Turkey, Persia, India, Egypt and China show signs of adopting members of Parliament and Parliaments on the models of the original, the British.

According to the report of the Department of the Interior, the native Indian population of Canada is 110,295, a decrease from the figures of last year of 140. The deaths were greater than the births by forty, the emigrations to the United States accounting for 100 of the decrease. The chief cause of death is consumption, and this disease is largely due to so many of the Indians adopting civilized residences instead of the previous open air life. While the past year indicates a decrease of the Indian population there has been an increase—the total numbers on the whole at the time of discovery of this continent amounted to only 20,000.

COBALT GENIUS EVOLVES UNIQUE BILL OF FARE

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCERT IN OTONABEE

Large Number Attend Annual Event in Connection With Cold Springs School

The annual concert and Christmas tree, in connection with Coldsprings Union Sunday School of Otonabee, was held last night, and it proved a success in every way. The hall was well filled, the programme was an excellent one and the unloading of the Christmas tree at the conclusion delighted the hearts of the children and the grown folk as well. Decorations suitable to the season made the interior of the building much brighter. Miss Bennett, superintendent of the Sunday School, occupied the chair and presented the following programme:

Opening chorus—Merry Christmas Bells—by the children.
Welcome, Welcome Everybody—Ten little girls.
Recitation—Mary Tully.
Exercise—God With Us—Five little girls and four boys.
Dialogue—"Taking the Census."
Action song—While the Christmas Stars Are Shining—the children.
Solo—Miss Oxboro.
Christmas carol—By young ladies.
Dialogue—"Mrs. Spooper's Surprise Party."
Wisdom Treasures — Six young ladies.
Selection—The Tall Top Hat—By the young men.
Dialogue—"Miss Dexter's Personal."
Chorus—Kriss Kringle — By children.
God Save the King.

We wish all our customers and friends A Merry Xmas and Many Prosperous New Years.

NOW AND THEN a merchant gets it into his head that "one advertising medium is as good as another." He then proceeds to buy his advertising in a way to discredit his business judgment.

People will be pretty sure to infer that a merchant who buys his advertising unwisely will buy his store-stocks unwisely—and of course this may not always be true. But it is always a good plan to show the same discrimination in buying advertising space that you show in buying the stocks which you are advertising. At all events you will act wisely if you advertise in the EXAMINER.

Burglar Kills Student.

New York, Dec. 24.—Van Dwight Sheldon, aged 19, in the school of engineering at New York University, lost his life in a battle with a burglar in the cellar of the home of Dean Snow of the school of engineering yesterday. The murderer escaped after a long chase across the snow-covered campus.

Young Sheldon, a cousin of Dean Snow, made his home at the dean's residence. He had gone to the cellar when he heard a movement behind the coal bin and went over to investigate. As he did so a man jumped out and struck the young man in the face. "Let me alone and don't make a sound or I'll kill you," he said, but Sheldon grappled with his assailant and began to call for help. The man, shaking him off whipped out a revolver and fired.

Parisian Sage has an immense sale and here are the reasons:

It is safe and harmless.

It cures dandruff in two weeks by killing the dandruff germ.

It stops falling hair.

It promptly stops itching of the scalp.

It makes the hair soft and luxuriant.

It gives life and beauty to the hair.

It is not sticky or greasy.

It is the daintiest perfumed hair tonic made.

It is the best, the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made.

Fight shy of the druggist who offers you a substitute; he is unworthy of your confidence.

NEARLY HALF A BILLION.

Last Crop Report For Year Shows Good Yield In Canada.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—An important statement regarding the quantities and values of field crops and the condition of live stock in Canada was given out yesterday from the Census and Statistics Office.

An area of 27,505,683 acres of field crops has yielded a harvest which computed at average local market prices, has a value of $432,533,000.

Fall wheat, with a yield of 24.40 bushels per acre, shows a value of $21.10, and spring wheat, with 16 bushels, shows $12.84.

The total value of the wheat harvest in the northwest provinces is $72,434,000, and in the rest of the Dominion $18,804,000.

The value of all field crops in Prince Edward Island is $9,406,000; Nova Scotia, $20,063,000; New Brunswick, $18,042,000; Quebec, $80,896,000; Ontario, $185,308,000; Manitoba, $68,680,000; Saskatchewan, $37,614,000, and Alberta, $14,592,000. Figures for British Columbia are not available. Average value of field crops for the Dominion in the year is $15.72 per acre.

"I can truthfully say that I believe that, but for the use of your Emulsion I would long since have been in my grave. I was past work—could not walk up-hill without coughing very hard."

THIS, and much more was written by Mr. G. W. Howerton, Clark's Gap, W. Va. We would like to send you a full copy of his letter, or you might write him direct. His case was really marvelous, but is only one of the many proofs that is the most strengthening and re-vitalizing preparation in the world. Even in that most stubborn of all diseases (consumption) it does wonders, and in less serious troubles, such as anemia, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, or loss of flesh from any cause the effect is much quicker.

Do not delay. Get a bottle of SCOTT'S EMULSION—be sure it's SCOTT'S and try it.

Let us send you Mr. Howerton's letter and some literature on Consumption. Just send us a Post Card and mention this paper.

CHRISTMAS TREE AT PARK ST. CHURCH

Enjoyable Time Spent Last Night—Encouraging Reports Presented—Splendid Programme Was Rendered.

MANY PRESENTATIONS MADE

A very successful concert and Christmas tree was held last night by the Park street Baptist Sunday School.

A tree most artistically decorated by the teachers, made a happy attraction for the little folks, and their joy flamed in its fullness, when Santa Claus made his appearance with the presents and candies. The school is in a very flourishing condition, as the reports of the Treasurer and Secretary revealed.

Miss Maggie Mann, who for twenty years has been the energetic and consecrated superintendent of the school, was the recipient of a beautiful piece of silver ware from the teachers and officers, by whom she is held in the highest esteem.

The pastor was also presented with a gold-headed umbrella from the members of his Bible Class.

The following programme was rendered:

Opening Hymn, by School, "When He Cometh."
Prayer—Pastor Rev. W C Riddiford.
Chorus—Primary Class.
Recitation, "Santa Claus' Secret"—Eva Booth.
Duet—Wilton Panter, Percy Hill.
Recitation, "Guilty or not Guilty"—Ada Barrie.
Dialogue, "Stealing Apples" —Boys of Mr. Eakins' class.
Snow-Flake Drill—Primary Class.
Song—John Dawson.
Recitation — "Her Exercise"—Pearl Pogue.
Recitation, "Ode to Santa Claus"—Jennie Peters.
Song—Master Ridgrige.
Chorus—Mrs. Wright's Class.
Recitation—Mr. Roy Jackson.
Song, "The School Master" — Mr. Dawson.
Recitation, "Just Ask Dad"—Roxie Castle.
"Waiting for Santa Claus,' by four little girls.
Recitation—Lily Tranter.

The flavour, fragrance, purity and deliciousness of "Salada" Tea commend it to the favour of every lover of good tea. Every year has but served to demonstrate more emphatically its superiority. 102

HOW SPRINGVILLE IS GROWING

Fine New Store Recently Opened and Blacksmith Shop Assured.

The little suburb of Peterborough known as Springville, is far from lying inert or lapsing into a decadence that ends in oblivion. Strides—rapid for Springville—are being made and one of the advances has been the opening of a new grocery store by Mr. Reynolds. It is well stocked for Christmas and it is the intention of the proprietor to carry only the best quality in every line.

In a short time a blacksmith shop will be opened and when the black smoke from the smithy, curls through the undisturbed air that hangs over the hamlet, the imagination will call up, may be, visions of future greatness.

A CAPITAL CHRISTMAS REMEMBRANCE.

If you wish to send any of your out of town friends a pleasing Christmas remembrance, mail a copy of the special Board of Trade, Review of the Examiner, just issued. THE FIRST CHRISTMAS.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flocks by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them: and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you. Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will toward men.

IDENTITY OF WALTER G. CAUSES LEGAL ACTION

Case Arising Out of Speed Events at Fall Fair Before Judge Weller.

The horsemen of Peterborough are interested in the civil case which was heard yesterday before His Honour Judge Weller. The owner of Holland Boy and manager of Hazel Belle, are suing the Peterborough Agricultural Society for money which was paid to Mr. Hodgins, Orillia, manager of Walter G., the horse that was protested by them under the suspicion that he was Little Hector, or in any event that the horse was not the one claimed to be. Hazel Bell and Holland Boy started with the Orillia horse on the first day of the races at the Peterborough Fair last fall in the 2.20 class, and owing to the fact that the Walter G. was protested, first and second money, respectively is claimed for them.

Dr. Johnston, president of the Peterborough Turf Club, and chairman of the speed committee for the exhibition directorate, and Mr. Martin Connors, the starter at the races, testified at the hearing of the suit yesterday that they notified Secretary Hall, of the Agricultural Society, that Walter G. was under protest, and instructed him not to pay Hodgins any money pending the outcome of the protest. It is alleged that Mr. Hall, acting under instruction of President Leary, of the Agricultural Society, paid the money over to Hodgins.

The Peterborough Turf Club was given authority to settle the protest by the National Trotting Association, under whose rules the races were conducted. The track at the fair grounds is an association track.

The protest was decided against Hodgins and in view of this the above mentioned parties decided to sue for the money, which they claim is legally theirs.

Mr George W. Hatton appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. F. D. Kerr for defendants, and Mr. Tudhope, of Orillia, for Mr. Hodgins.

The hearing began yesterday morning, and was continued in the afternoon. His Honour adjourned the case until after the Christmas holidays.

THE JANUARY NUMBER OF BUSY MAN'S

"The Millionaire of Cobalt," the Feature —Some Timely Selections.

The issue of Busy Man's Magazine for January even surpasses the high standard which has been set in recent issues. Its pages are crammed with interesting articles, ably illustrated. The premier position is given to "The Millionaires of Cobalt." This article tells in a bright racy style, about the Canadians who have made great fortunes in the richest silver mining camp in the world, who they are, and the various callings they pursued before striking it rich. Men and Events in the Public Eye is an intensely interesting department. It is the policy of the magazine to reproduce the most timely and brightest appearing in the world's periodicals. It is carrying out this policy admirably. Every selection in the January number is timely, and serves to show the care exercised by this competent editorial staff in ransacking the world's periodicals. Articles of special interest are "The Real Owners of America," "The Social Responsibilities of Empire," "Sending Christmas Money Over the Seas," "Northcliffe and Munsey," "The Men Who Built the St. Clair Tunnel," "Canada's Non-English Newspapers," "A Novel Organization in Germany."

FAMOUS BREAD LINE OF NEW YORK

The Devoting of Time, Money and Labour to the Cause of Charity—The Difference in Men.

THE SPARK OF MANHOOD

The Christian Science Monitor in a recent issue has the following comment on the "Bread Line" which might be read with a good deal of interest by Peterborough citizens:

New York's famous "bread line"—the nightly gathering of men who receive each a cup of coffee and a roll without cost or question—makes a strong appeal to the sentiment, but others than Terence V Powderly, United States commissioner of immigration, have questioned its utility on the same grounds that he does.

Mr. Powderly, who has joined the "bread line" himself and learned first hand the character of the men who compose it, speaks with authority when he says that in the main they are "slovenly, indolent, shiftless and ambitionless." To feed such men by charity, he says, is to feed at the same time the flame that burns up manhood. Mr. Powderly's idea is that they should be placed on a farm owned by the state and taught how to feed themselves.

To question the methods of those who are devoting time, money and labour to the noble cause of charity is not to impugn their motives. It is, however, a fact that there is a cause for poverty, and that this cause is not material but mental. Eliminate laziness, self-satisfaction and stubbornness, and nine-tenths of the poverty would go with them.

Here is a case in point: Forty years ago two boys started side by side as apprentices in the gold beater's trade. To-day one of these boys is the owner of a large establishment which sells gold leaf all over the world. The second is in the employ of the first and is still beating gold just as he did forty years ago.

What made the difference between the two? Not their material environment, for they started alike—each with an equal chance. The difference was solely in the mentalities of the two men. The one who went ahead was ambitious, energetic, persevering, courageous, ready any time to sacrifice the pleasure of the moment for some future good. The other man was industrious, faithful, a good workman, but he had that strain of indolence which is satisfied with a well-enough present.

It is safe to say that every man who joins the "bread line" is there not because of "hard luck," not because of somebody else's doings, not because he never had a chance, but because of certain mental characteristics which have kept him from turning what might be bad into what is good, which have made him think himself the sufferer for others' faults, which have blinded him to opportunities when they did come to him.

It is evident that it is not by putting bread in his stomach and thus making it easy for him to indulge these mental deficiencies that the man will be taken out of the "bread line" and made a self-supporting citizen. The remedy for a mental condition must be mental.

Mr. Powderly says that he believes that "under the most degraded exterior there lies dormant the spark of manhood." We agree with him, and we know, too, that every man, no matter how low he may have fallen, can be saved by loving and wise ministration. By the light of this spark of manhood he can be led to find that his true self is already one with the Mind which is intelligent and good; and he will find at the same time self-respect and the incentive for energetic endeavour.

FORBEAR WITH THE POSTMAN

Christmas Rush Brings Heavy Duties and Missives May be Late,

When a Peterborough lady receives an invitation from a friend to attend a party at Christmas these days, and that letter has been delayed for a day or for a few hours, and the lady becomes highly indignant at the way things are being done and goes in person to the post office to "make things warm" for the "lazy clerks," or may be writes direct to the department at Ottawa, exposing as she thinks, the glaring incompetency of the officials at the general post office, she does not stop to realize just what "Christmas rush" means. Nor does she think of the inevitable delays and running about that would have ensued had that box from the uncle's folks in Padusky been sent by express instead of by mail. The indignant lady thinks only of the fact that that parcel (or letter, or what not) was delayed—actually delayed—until the Christmas tree was all over.

Taking into consideration all the labours that are added to the post office staff at this season, it is a great pity, when my lady misses a letter for a few hours, or that box of cigars for hubby comes a little late, a little of the Christian good feeling and forbearance, which is supposed to be rife at this season of the year, cannot be shown towards the post office officials during the Christmas rush.

FIRST NIGHT A SUCCESS AT JACKSON PARK

Large Crowd Take Advantage of Opening Evening at the Toboggan Slide.

A fairly large crowd took advantage of the opening evening at the Jackson Park slide last evening. Everything is in first class shape. Mr. Swanston having been working for about two weeks on the three slides that are open this year. The rink, which will be ready on Christmas day, has more square feet of ice than the Brock street rink, and there are over 500 lights used in illuminating the ice and slide. A cloak room and restaurant will be opened in connection with these amusements, at the large building, in a short time. There are forty tobaggans to be had at the slide.

HASTINGS VILLAGE NEWS INTERESTING LOCAL EVENTS

(From an occasional correspondent.)

Hastings, Dec. 22.—The approaching municipal nominations are creating a good deal of quiet discussion among the villagers. It looks very much as though there might be quite a change in the composition of the council for 1909. The inequality of the assessments in the village is the main topic, and it is likely to be a leading issue in the election for reeve and councillors. Mr. Thos. Howard will again be nominated for reeve, and possibly Mr. Learmouth will ask for the further confidence of the electors. If so, a hot time is expected, as the contest last year between these two gentlemen resulted in Mr. Howard being defeated by only two votes.

The storekeepers have all been doing a satisfactory business this season and the Christmas trade is quite up to the usual mark. McClelman's, jewelry, English's drygoods, Howard's grocery, and Wilcox & Lambert's stores show their stocks to good advantage, and make first-rate displays in their different lines.

A rather serious accident occurred on Tuesday to Mr. Henry Johnston. It appears that he was walking near the post office in company with Mr. Chas. Fisher when he fell eavily on the frosty walk. His friend immediately came to his assistance and endeavoured to litt him up by the arm, which caused Mr. Johnston great pain. He was brought to the Spellman House and Drs. Warde and Edmison called in, when it was found that a bad dislocation of the shoulder had occurred. After considerable difficulty the doctors succeeded in resetting the shoulder, and Mr. Johnston was put in bed with the consolation that he would require to rest for three weeks before he could be permitted to be around again. Apparently this sentence of a protracted rest weighed heavily upon Mr. Johnston's mind; for, after a brief mental struggle with himself he rose from his bed, dressed himself, went down to the dining room and enjoyed a good supper, afterwards walking across the village to the hall where an organ recital was being held and took it all in. Needless to say, the doctors were astonished at their patient's remarkable actions, and wonder was expressed at the vitality and pluck of a gentleman of Mr. Johnston's years.

Master Willie Spellman who has been attending St. Michaels' College Toronto, is home for the Christmas season.

Hastings Court C O F is having its membership increased. Mr J A Harpenny, the organizer has been here this week and has been instrumental in adding quite a number of new applicants

The comforts of the travelling public are still being looked after by Mr A B Spellman, the popular proprietor of the Spellman House. Improvements in the interior of the house are noticeable and the business is increasing. Mr. Forney Spellman, the wine clerk, is a capable assistant.

DECORATIONS CONCLUDED AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Interesting Programme Being Arranged For New Year's Day

The reception hall and parlours of the Y.M.C.A. have been very artistically decorated for the holiday season. Evergreens, bunting and mottoes were used and they give the place a very cheerful and inviting appearance. Christmas will be a quiet day at the Y., but on New Year's there will be a celebration and also a big basket-ball game. Fuller particulars will be given later.

On Christmas Eve the bells were rung;
On Christmas Eve, the mass was sung;
The hall was decked with holly green,
Forth to the wood did merry men go,
To gather in the mistletoe.
A Christmas gambol oft would cheer
The poor man's heart through half the year.

IS YOUR COAT DUSTY?

You Probaly Have the White Scab of Dandruff On it.

If your coat or shoulders have a white dust upon it, the chances are that it is from dandruff. The only way to permanently cure dandruff is to remove the cause, which is a germ. Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ. Every toilet table should have such a hair-dressing that contains also the destroyer of the dandruff and hair falling germ. It stops all irritation, keeps the scalp sweet and wholesome. Remember that something claimed to be just as good will not do the work of genuine Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. The Adventures Of Two Boys Who Undertook To Pile Cord Of Wood

An Examiner reporter lent an ear to a story told by a citizen who is well known in up-town circles. It seems that his eldest son, a boy of nine or ten, with a companion was offered the job of carrying in and piling a cord of split wood. Money was mentioned to them, but no exact amount. The boys did their work after four o'clock and going in received the handsome sum of ONE CENT. They were so dismayed, that for the instant they just stood there gazing at the insignificant copper. Then they walked back to the woodshed and started to pull down their work of the previous hour. They had about two cents' worth left when their "foreman" came out and at sight of what had been done, he took the money away from the youngsters and told them that if they wanted to get it again, they would have to repile it, and even threatened to call in a policeman. Whatever really happened, the boys went through the same work again and were given back the two cents. They arrived at their homes after seven o'clock, after being taught one of the first lessons that life's experience teaches.

How The Theatre Tickets Were Secured By "Jealous" Persons

"I am jealous and I really want to reform." Holding a copy of the latest issue of the Examiner in one hand, at the same time repeating the above "prescription," an elderly gentleman—married, too—secured the first free ticket for the production of "East Lynne" to-morrow.

It was a surprise. It was hardly expected that such "honest," "straightforward," evidences or repentence would be manifested by the citizens, but they were. Really, they came in, meek of mien, but determined that the green-eyed monster should never again find lodgment in the crevices of the reasoning portion of their cerebellum.

There were young girls, too, who were assuredly years from wedding-ring time and yet with a smile and blush they acknowledged their jealousy. Of whom, it may be asked. Only those acquainted with the vagaries of a girl's mind could qualify to answer that question, and then it would be as many sided as a school debate.

However, the girls obtained the tickets and to-morrow will occupy good seats. There were scarcely any married women. How beautiful! Judging from their non-appearance would it be safe to say that there is not a woman in the whole city who distrusts her husband or any of her married friends? Well, really!

Two Subjects Omitted From Matriculation Examinations

Grammar and Arithmetic will not in future be included in the list of subjects to be taken by students at matriculation examinations for the Ontario universities. The decision was arrived at yesterday at a conference held at the University, Toronto at which all the Provincial universities, with the exception of the Western, London, were represented. President R A. Falconer presided, and the delegates about thirty in number included Principal Hutton Chancellor Burwash, Chancellor McKay, and Principal Gordon. The chief object of the conference was the fixing of the subjects for the matriculation examinations, and as stated already it was decided to omit two of what may be described as elementary subjects. It was the opinion of the majority of the delegates that it should be presumed under the educational system of the Province, that students presenting themselves for matriculation should be so grounded in arithmetic and grammar as to render further tests in those subjects unnecessary.

The question of a further raising of the standard of matriculation was also under consideration. Generally the desirability of action along this line had been conceded by university men, and in connection with it the views of the instructors throughout the Province had been sought. As a result of these inquiries a number of opinions were submitted to the Council, but the views expressed as to the subjects in which the test should be made more severe were so diversified that it was decided to refer the whole matter to the various faculties for further consideration. The questions, however, will again be taken up at the inter-university conference which is to be held after Easter.

YEAR'S IMPRISONMENT FOR GOMPERS

Mitchell Given Nine Months and Morrison Six in Buck's Case.

FREE PENDING AN APPEAL

Officers of American Federation Are Sentenced to Jail Terms For Disobeying Famous Injunction Restraining Them From Calling Bucks' Stove Works Unfair to Labor—Allowed Out on Bail.

Washington, Dec. 24.—The famous contempt case of the Buck Stove and Range Co. against President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, was decided yesterday by Justice Wright of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, adversely to the federation officials.

Gompers was sentenced to twelve months imprisonment, Mitchell to nine months and Morrison to six months.

Pending an appeal to the United States Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, all three defendants were released on bail, the amount being fixed as follows: Gompers, $5,000; Mitchell $4,000, and Morrison $3,000.

A local surety company furnished the bonds.

The Bucks Company's prosecution of the officials of the federation began in August, 1907. The original action was a test case, wherein it was sought to enjoin the labor unions from using the "Unfair" and "We don't patronize" lists in their fight against firms and individuals.

Justice Gould of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, issued an injunction which later was made permanent, forbidding the publication of the company's name in these lists. President Gompers in an editorial in The Federationist of January last, made known his intention not to obey the court's order, contending that the injunction issued was a derogation of the rights of labor and an abuse of the injunctive power of the courts. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison subsequently were cited for contempt.

Judge Wright's decision recites the conditions anteceding the injunction and refers to the fact that for 25 years the Bucks' plant has operated as a 10-hour shop, and always has maintained an open shop. He also spoke of the numerical strength of the American Federation of Labor, with its 2,000,000 members, and, of its repeated endorsement of the boycott of the Bucks' Stove and Range Co. through The American Federationist, the federation's official organ; speeches by the defendants, letters, circulars, etc.

The court referred to the use of the "we don't patronize" list and "unfair" list of the labor organizations, and said that members of labor unions were forced and coerced into supporting it "whether individually willing or unwilling, approving or disapproving" by various methods. The court read extracts from numbers of resolutions of labor organizations bearing on the Bucks' case as tending to show the methods of influencing members of unions "and these methods," the court remarked, seem to the known as "persuasion."

The customers of the stove company, the court said, had been intimidated, browbeaten and coerced out of their business relations with their customers "by direct interference with and boycott of their (the customers) trade relations with their own customers and the public generally."

Unjust Decision.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 24.—First Vice-President James Duncan of the American Federation of Labor said last night: "I am of the opinion that the pardoning power of the President could be used right away in causing the release of President Gompers. If President Gompers is compelled to spend the year's term in jail, he will conduct the affairs of the federation from the jail in which he is confined. I think the decision is the most unjust that I have ever heard."

Ryan Dropping Out.

New York, Dec. 24.—Thomas F. Ryan, admittedly one of the greatest powers of the financial world, announced yesterday that yielding to the advise of his physicians he had resigned from the directorate of 34 different corporations. CATHOLIC CHURCH BURNS.

Fine Structure at Coteau du Lac a Heap of Ruins.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—At 10.30 last night fire broke out in the parish church of Coteau du Lac, forty miles west of Montreal on the main line of the G.T.R., and at midnight the structure valued at $60,000 was a mass of smouldering ruins.

There was no fire-fighting appliance in the little village of 300 people, and the inhabitants were obliged to stand by after rescuing some of the valuables.

Help was summoned from Montreal and was being prepared to leave on a special train when word came that the fire had burned itself out. The church was fifty years old. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A convent fifty feet away was saved from a similar fate by the absence of wind. The inmates, over 300 nuns and pupils, sought refuge in the presbytery and other houses of the village until all danger was over.

Suits to Recover Bonds.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Action has been taken in the Superior Court against several prominent Quebec men who were formerly connected with the Great Northern Construction Co. concern, formed expressly, according to the complaint of the liquidator, John Hide of Montreal, for the purpose of building a line of railway for the Great Northern Railway from a point upon the lower Laurentian Railway in the Province of Quebec to Hawkesbury, Ont.

Among the names mentioned by the liquidator are Vesey Boswell, J. T. Ross, Cyril Eeasier, V. Chateauvert, G. Lemoine and J. G. Scott. It is also understood that action will be taken against Hon. John Sharples and the estates of the late Hon. R. R. Robell, Hon. P. Garneau, Hon. E. J. Price and others.

The first of these actions is against Vesey Boswell of Quebec to recover bonds of the Great Northern Railway to the amount of $15,000 par value or $17,000 cash and costs.

Council Too Big.

Montreal, Dec. 24.—Mayor Payette is as ardently in favor as ever he was of reducing the City Council by one-half and knowing that the Council itself will not act in this matter he expressed the hope that a private bill would be presented to the Legislature for a charter amendment to reduce the aldermanic representation to one per ward.

That the present Council is too unwieldy was proved by the delays in the lighting question, which had brought the city to its present helpless position. Asked what action he would take as chief magistrate if the power company did not light the lamps after Dec. 31 next, the mayor said he would not over-step his powers, and his powers, unfortunately were nil.

Fire Evicts a Thousand.

New York, Dec. 24.—More than a thousand persons were made homeless and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed in a fire which burned out a block of apartment houses between Second and Third avenues and Forty-Fourth and Forty-Fifth streets, Brooklyn, yesterday. Twenty persons, overcome by smoke, were rescued by firemen.

The great Bush terminal docks were saved by a fire boat, which kept the flames from sweeping over Second avenue.

A policeman, clasping in his arms the tiny form of a little boy, was carried fainting from a hallway by his comrades. Women and children, dazed with fright, knelt in the icy street and prayed hysterically.

Death List Large.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The extraordinary number of 124 fatal accidents have been reported for the month of November to the Labor Department.

No fewer than 56 lives were lost on railways or railway construction.

The railway fatalities occurred in the following provinces: Ontario 30, Manitoba 8, Quebec 7, British Columbia 4, Saskatchewan 3, Alberta 2, New Brunswick 1, and Nova Scotia 1.

The worst accident was near Dryden, Ont., where a dynamite explosion caused the death of seven construction hands.

Toronto Girl Elopes.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 24.—Miss Marguerite Caving, a pretty young woman, eloped to Worcester yesterday with Charles E. Barnes, a man twice her age. They were married late yesterday afternoon by Rev. Vincent E. Tomlinson at his home here.

At the City Hall, where the license was secured, it was said the young woman was a nurse. According to the wedding permit she lives on Carlton street, Toronto. The middle-aged groom gave his address as 361 Ninth street, Brooklyn, N.Y.

Labor Market Better.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The Labor Gazette states that apart from seasonable causes the general tone of the labor market during November was more satisfactory than during October and considerably more satisfactory than during the same period of 1907.

The wages of unskilled labor were generally lower. The cost of the necessaries of life are generally on the increase.

Boy Guilty of Murder.

Toledo, Dec. 24.—Harvey Hasel, a 17-year-old boy, on trial for the killing of his mother, was last night found guilty of murder in the second degree. He was accused of beating his mother to death with a hammer.

ENDING OF PROBE INTO MARINE MATTERS

Report Will Be Presented to Parliament During Session.

FYLES HAVE BEEN JUGGLED

Investigation Shows That While No Documents Have Been Taken From Official Records of Department Some Have Been Added—Spain Again Goes on the Stand to Explain Irregularities.

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—The investigation before Mr. Justice Cassels into the general charges of "lack of conscience," extravagance and carelessness in the expenditure of public money, preferred against the staff of the Civil Service Commissioners last spring, was concluded yesterday afternoon, after an exhaustive and thorough inquiry, covering practically all the agencies of the Department, and lasting since May last, with the exception of a period of summer vacation. The report of the commission will be presented to Parliament early in the coming session.

Proceedings at yesterday's final sittings of the commission were devoted in the main to supplementary evidence in explanation of a number of transactions previously probed. At the morning sitting it was developed that some fyles of the Department had been gone over by the officials during the progress of the present inquiry; and while no letters were shown to have been abstracted, it appears that new documents have been added. It was also shown that Mr. J. B. Fraser, Commissioner of Lights, now under suspesion, while certifying to prices paid for marine supplies at Prescott as being "fair and just," was himself getting some things at a discount of 33 per cent. from the prices paid by the Department.

At the afternoon session Commander Spain was again given an opportunity to explain discrepancies in his accounts for traveling expenses last year, but was unable to add anything to his previous incomplete explanation.

Mr. W. W. Stumbles of the Marine Purchasing Branch, was examined as to the destruction of fyles. Mr. Watson said he heard that fyles of the Department had been taken to a storeroom in the basement, that J. F. Fraser, Col. Gourdeau, and W. W. Stumbles had gone into that room and the fyles had never come out, the presumption being that they had been destroyed.

Mr. Stumbles declared he had not been in the room in question for three years, knew of no fyles being taken there, and had never heard of Mr. Fraser or Col. Gourdeau destroying any.

J. E. McCleneghan who had charge of the fyles, said he had not given J. F. Fraser any fyle after that official had been suspended. He had heard a rumor that fyles had been taken from the Commissioner of Lights Branch to the basement storeroom where J. F. Fraser had access to them. He had not heard of any fyle being destroyed. He had heard of a fyle which was with Mr. Fraser for a long time. When the Minister finally got it back, there had been additions to it of documents which had never gone through the records branch. There did not seem to be anything taken away. This was about the time of the suspension of Mr. Fraser. There might have been a dozen or more fyles to which additions had been made.

Percy White, clerk in the Commissioner of Lights office, said that after J. F. Fraser had been suspended he had gone into the office and obtained the fyles which the Civil Service Commission had used. White took them to the storeroom in the basement and spent a day and a half with Fraser going over the fyle, and checking it with the commissioners' report. He knew of no mutilation of or additions to the fyles.

Questioned by his counsel, Senator tention to a copy of a letter which asked Agent Gregory if the Holliday boat was worth $200 a day. Tuesday this letter was attributed to Col. Gourdean and commented upon because he knew when it was written that the increased amount was to be paid.

The letter copy book showed that this letter was written by Mr. Magee Belcourt, Col. Gourdeau stated that Mr. J. F. Fraser was given access to the fyles for a time, by direction of the Minister of Marine, who wished to have the report of the Civil Service Commission checked for accuracy. He said that he was in error when on Saturday he had said the agreement to increase the payment for Holliday's boat, the King Edward, from $125 to $200 a day was made on June 18, 1904. Senator Belcourt called after Col. Gourdeau, who was absent in British Columbia at the time. He said that the Minister had given the order to increase the price of the King Edward from $125 to $200 a day.

In Grip of Frost.

Plattsburg, N.Y., Dec. 24.—Upper New York State and particularly the Adirondacks region is in the grip of one of the most severe cold spells it has ever experienced so early in the winter. The mercury at Lake Placid registered 22 degrees below zero yesterday, while at Upper Chateaugau Lake it stood at 19 below and at other near-by points from 12 to 18 below.

Up state farmers whose wells have been dry for months, and who have been depending on the streams for their winter water supply, are suffering greatly owing to the freezing of the brooks. Farmers at Ellenburg have been forced to drive five miles to Lower Chateaugau Lake for water.

For Eighteen Years Believed Dead.

Guelph, Dec. 24.—Wm. Morgan, for 18 years supposed dead, is in the city, much to the surprise of those who knew him then. In July, 1891, a report appeared in the papers of the death of Morgan, corporal of the Northwest Mounted Police, at Fort MacLeod, Alberta, who had previously left for England, and, had, after leaving New York, been found dead in his berth. It was another man, however, it seems.

A PITTSBURG SCANDAL UNEARTHED

Wholesale Sensations Are Revealed in Graft Prosecutions.

SIXTY CROOKED COUNCILLORS

Corruption Exposure Promises to Be Worse Than That of San Francisco —City Fathers Could Be Bought For $5 to $100, Declares Detective After Laying Traps—Two Bank Officials Are Arrested.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 24.—Pittsburg was shaken from end to end yesterday by thunderbolts of sensational testimony in connection with the newly disclosed municipal legislative scandal.

The troubles of San Francisco are popularly declared to be tame in comparison.

Futhermore, it is stated, the developments yesterday were mere preliminaries to subsequent steps against additional councilmen and business men.

The testimony offered in court yesterday intimated strongly that over three score councilmen are "easy to reach" and the "reaching" necessitated only small sums ranging from $100 to $5, and out of a mass of testimony came an apparent disclosure that a majority of the council body had been "reached." In the passage of one ordinance alone it was testified that 60 councilmen had divided $45,000.

Sensations followed one another in rapid succession yesterday during the hearing of the seven councilmen and two former bank officers arrested on charges of bribery, corrupt solicitation and conspiracy last Monday night.

W. W. Ramsay and A. A. Vilsack, former president and cashier of the German National Bank, were first called for a hearing yesterday. It was testified that they had been approached by Councilman John Klein, one of the accused, who stated the bank would be made a depository for the city's funds "if the German National Bank would do as other banks have done." The witness further declared that after several conferences the bankers placed $17,000 on a table in a room of the bank, and that Councilman Klein and a companion entered the room and a short time later left the bank. The bankers then visited the room and the money was gone.

At the request of the directors both of the bank officials resigned last Saturday. They were held in bonds of $14,000 each.

The seven councilmen, President Brand and members Klein, Soffel, Wasson, Melaney and Ferguson of common council, and Atkinson of the select council, were then called for hearing.

The principal witnesses was Robert Wilson, a private detective and superintendent of the municipal league of Scranton, Pa., who is employed by the Voters' League of Pittsburg, which brings the complaint against the nine defendants.

Mr. Wilson's testimony was sensational. Aided by an assistant, it was told that Wilson engaged a room in a local hotel, cut holes in the door and walls of an adjoining room. Then a series of meetings were arranged with councilmen. His assistant, Herbert Jones, posed as a business man desiring certain ordinances passed, and during his conference with the councilmen, Wilson and a stenographer were stationed in the next room making a full record of transactions.

During these conferences, Councilman Klein had a great deal to say regarding how complete councils were controlled by the accused men, the detective said. It was also testified that Klein and Brand each accepted $500 from Jones in payment for securing the passage of an ordinance.

Councilman Klein, Mr. Wilson testified, said that the councilmen had different prices. Some councilmen Klein told him wanted $100, some $75, some $25, and some $5. According to Councilman Klein, Wilson related the $5 council were known as "hoodlums."

It was also possible to secure some councilmanic votes on some measures in return for a suit of clothes or for street car tickets.

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by laying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

SOME TALK UPON THE LONGBOAT - SHRUBB COMING NEW YORK RACE

Speaking of Tom Flanagan and the Shrubb-Longboat race a Toronto man, interviewed by the Star says:

"Call him a good manager?" one man said. "Why, he is as erratic as the Indian himself. The idea of a man in the frenzy of victory making a crack to Pat Powers about running Shrubb or anyone else, and then letting the New Yorker come along here and jolly him into putting it into black and white. Would Pat Powers do it if he were in Tom Flanagan's shoes? Not much! He would simply say 'Pshaw! that was idle talk; I won't run my man.'"

Tom Flanagan knows the Indian hasn't a chance in a dozen against such a tactician as Shrubb on a 10-lap track. Why does he run him against this dangerous man, when he could be meandering around getting the easy money? What will he get for this Shrubb race? Say it is $5,000, and he takes that $5,000 plus a beating. That settles Mr. Indian as a drawing card. Just now he is a wonder, and could take a whirl at a dozen men, getting from $500 to $2,000 a race, and not hurt himself. Then he could come back Shrubb in the spring, outdoors, beat him, and get his $5,000. He could follow this up with races at 10 and 15 miles and get from $1,500 to $2,000 apiece on them, and even if he lost both, could keep right on going. If he loses now to Shrubb, how many people are wise enough in this running game to figure out that indoors isn't the redskin's race or condition? Not more than half, and to this uninformed half a defeat is a defeat, and they won't want to see him meet Shrubb again. Tom Flanagan don't want to get the welled head because Longboat beat Dorando. The Italian is a no-account, and he knows it. If the Indian had been staked against a half-decent runner that night, a man who would have carried him a good 15 miles, he might not be to-day the world's champion. Give him credit, though, he won, and won handsomely, but at the same time a real wise guy wouldn't let Shrubb, an experienced indoor runner, and a man with more racing brains in a minute than Longboat has in a month, get the Onondaga where he has something in him. As sure as there are squares on a turtle's back Shrubb will lap him early and stick in behind him and worry his heart out. The only question is, will Shrubb last the distance? Well, if it was on the road, and Shrubb had to make his own race out in front to maintain his early lead, and with the big Indian lumbering along on the back trail, I would say no, but with little Alfie indoors, where he is at home, and with a pacemaker to glue to, his chances of sticking the entire route are improved 75 per cent. Little bursts of speed from Longboat won't worry this speedy chap from the old land, and it devolves into a question of how long and how courageously the Indian will fight a forlorn hope like that. The Indian is afraid of Shrubb right now, or I miss my guess, and a race like I have outlined will beat him—make a monkey of him. Of course, I may be wrong. I will admit I don't figure the Indian to beat Dorando in the condition the Indian was in and I admit I was away out but if the true inside of that race were known I guess Dorando was feeling the effects of the climate. He ran like the good Canuck boys did in England—a dopey, listless race—and, only his courage took him as far as it did. There is one thing I will say, and that is that there will be no question in my mind as to whether a Shrubb-Longboat race is on the level. I have followed racing pretty closely, and I never had any idea but what the Indian always ran to win, while Shrubb's honesty does not admit of the slightest questioning."

All of which is pretty shrewd talk, and shows how a big section of the public stands on the matter of this Shrubb-Longboat clash indoors.

TURF CLUB RACES AT DRIVING PARK TO-MORROW AFTERNOON

The Turf Club men are almost confident that they are going to have excellent weather for their matinee to-to-morrow afternoon. Everything points that way, and with a good track the events are sure to be fast and exciting. Those who are interested in the game will have the opportunity of spending the afternoon at the race track.

The following are the horses that are named for the two events:

Class B.—1-2 mile heats, 3 in 5.—Black Prince, Baby Miller, Herkland, Teddy Keswick, Mac Brino, Harry Mack, Black Cloud, Lady Black, Lulu Chimes, Queen Hourbon, Guy Wilkes, Miss Keswick, Bay Prince, Farmer Boy, Lou Keswick, Brown Gyp, Jim Dandy.

Class A—Mile heats, 3 in 5.—Harry Direct, Lady Gothard, Holland Boy, Billy C, Black Prince, Patterson, Muriel Wilkes, Grey Guy, Queen's Baron, Harry K Adolph.

There is also a matched race between Prince Hal, Queen's Baron and Bourbon Brooks. This is the result of a friendly rivalry between the owners of these animals.

CANADIAN CURLERS ARE PREPARING FOR THEIR TRIP

The representatives of the Ontario Curling Association on the team of Canadians to visit Scotland met yesterday afternoon at the National Club.

The following were present: Lieut.-Col. Mackenzie, Sarnia; R. L. Patterson, Toronto; Randolph Macdonald, Toronto; T. J. Hamilton, Fergus; Alex. Logan, Parry Sound; Simpson Rennie, Toronto; J. H. Neelands, Barrie; R. M. Waddell, Peterboro; R. S. Strath, Toronto; D. W. Lennox, Churchill; the other member of the team telegraphed that he was unavoidably detained, but would be satisfied with any arrangements that the team would make. David Carlyle, the president of the association and J. A. Macfadden were also present.

Assemble in Toronto

Several matters of detail were discussed by the team, and it was decided that the team assemble in Toronto on Wednesday, January 6th, arrange their rinks and have a friendly game with the Executive of the association during the afternoon at the Granite Rink, dine at the Granite Club in the evening, and leave for Montreal that evening, spending January 7th in Montreal, and leaving there January 8th for Halifax, sailing from there January 9th by the Empress of Ireland.

Team are Entertained

The team, together with the following past presidents and executive, were entertained to dinner by the president, David Carlyle: J. D. Flavelle, Lindsay; Rev. Dr. Burns, Brampton; Dr. Russell, Hamilton; A. R. Goldie, Galt; J. A. Macfadden, secretary-treasurer, Toronto; C. Turnbull, Galt; W. C. Matthews, Toronto; J. W. Corcoran, Toronto; Jas. Hedley, Toronto; W. D. McIntosh, Toronto; Geo. Anderson, Toronto.

Letters of Regret

Letters were received from Messrs. A. F. McLaren, Stratford, and T. O. Robson, St. Mary's, and W. T. Toner, Collingwood, past presidents, and from Rev. Dr. Wallace, Messrs. C. W. Cartwright, Hamilton, and T. H. Brunton, Newmarket, members of the Executive Committee, expressing regret at their absence, and wishing the team a successful and enjoyable trip.

Fatherly Advice Given

A very enjoyable evening was spent together, the members of the team becoming better acquainted with one another and receiving fatherly advice from Past Presidents Flavelle, Drs. Burns and Russell, and other members of the Executive, which was kindly received by the members of the team, and fittingly replied to by them.—Toronto News.

GOTCH'S STEER MUST HAVE BEEN SICK

Frank Gotch was once being interviewed by a reporter who bombarded him with all manner of questions. From interrogations concerning his family affairs the intruder branched off to minute questions concerning Gotch's methods of training; and here the latter saw a chance to score off his unwelcome guest by pitching him a fairy tale.

With as much gravity as he could command he explained to the man that when he wanted to get specially fit his custom was to go to the nearest farm and wrestle with a two-year-old steer. When he could throw the animal down he knew he was in perfect condition and felt satisfied with himself.

The reporter went happily away and Gotch chuckled hugely at the way he had sold him.

But the morning after Beell had beaten him Gotch concluded that the reporter was not quite so gullible as he had imagined, after all; for at the top of the column describing the match appeared the following headline in glaring capitals:

"Gotch's steer must have been sick!"

"BATTLING" NELSON WAS TURNED DOWN

"Battling" Nelson, a few days ago registered at the St. Regis, a Fifth Ave. Hotel in New York, signing his name in full—Oscar Matthew Nelson. The clerk recognising him hesitatingly said, "Awfully sorry, and all that sort of thing, but the house is full and we will have to ask you to bear with us and, er-er, try somewhere else. If I might make a suggestion—why not go over to our neighbour, the Gotham, across the street."

Though physically strong, Mr. Nelson is a law-abiding citizen, and he therefore contented himself with manifesting his displeasure verbally. The manifestation was apparently at least as strong as the displeasure itself.

But he knew there wasn't a hotel in Broadway that wouldn't welcome him and his fat roll with open arms, and thither he therefore hied himself with all the dignity of which he is master.

The Oriental Hotel has made arrangements for a complete bulletin service in connection with the Tommy Burns—Jack Johnston championship bout in Australia and on Saturday all those interested may hear the news by rounds at the Oriental Hotel to-morrow night. Owing to the difference in time between Canada and Australia it is possible to get the news on Christmas night of the fight which does not take place until the 26th. Great interest is being taken in the bout in Peterborough and the enterprise of the management of the Oriental and no doubt will be appreciated.

Stanley Ketchel, champion middleweight, is on his way home to Michigan from California to purchase a home for his family, who live near Grand Rapids.

"I may never fight again," said Ketchel. "One thing is certain, and that is I will not make the middleweight limit any more. The work is too tough. If Burns beats Jack Johnson in Australia I may do business with him, and even if he makes a good showing I will fight him if he cares to take me on. I can go up to 180 pounds, but the thing of getting down to the middleweight limit again is past me. I do not have to fight any more. I have enough money to quit the game, and I'm not going to take any chances on hurting my health training to low weights."

Sand Christmas Afternoon at Street Railway Rink.

HOCKEY

The following players are asked to turn out to the West End's first practice Christmas night, from 7 to 8, at the Brock street rink. A. Rose, D. Hillier, C. Dobson, N. Moore, McNern, H. Barrett, W. Short, E. King, B. Halpin, Barclay, S. Wade, E. Fox, E. Reid F. Dunnett and any others wishing to get a place on the team.

* * *

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild hockey team will practice to-morrow morning from 9 to 10 o'clock, on Knox Church rink. All the players are requested to be out. Hereafter they will practice every Monday evening from 7 to 8 o'clock on the same rink.

* * * *

The Peterborough Hockey Club had a good practice at the Brock street rink last night, when a good bunch of senior and junior candidates were out. A number of the men are fast rounding into shape and they will be in good condition when the O. H. A. season opens. There will be a practice to-morrow morning at ten o'clock of the old players only, and the juniors and new candidates are not expected to be on hand to-morrow.

WRESTLING.

Brockville, Dec. 24. — Special. — Brockvillians to the number of over 200 witnessed an interesting wrestling match at the Grand Opera House last night between Cyclone Burns, the English champion, and Hassan Abdallah. The men each weighed about 185 pounds, and Burns, being the most muscular and skillful, easily disposed of the Turk in two straight falls at catch-as-catch-can. The time was 23 minutes and 9 seconds. The Englishman threw his antagonist to the mat on both occasions with a bar nelson hold. Abdallah put up a good defence fight up to the time of the first fall, but after that he weakened perceptibly.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Bert Adams, bowling in the Toronto League on Tuesday night, broke the record for the league by rolling up the astonishing total of 713 pins. His scores for the three games were 235, 240 and 236. The record for the local league is 562, held by Bill Wareham, and for the alleys 554, held by Bert Lillie, whose score included a 252 game. McIlroy has rolled 645, getting games of 223, 222 and 200, and Joe Hay has put on 641 for three games.

Some Bowling Proverbs

There's many a slip between the foul line and the pins.

A spare in time often saves the game.

A ball from the corner is worth two down the centre.

It's a short game that has no splits.

You can't miss your spare and make it.

It's better to spare than to blow.

It's better to have spared and lost than never to have spared at all.

He whose hook-ball runs away may live to bowl another day.

One man's strike is another man's split.

He who fails to follow up has lost.

CURLING.

At a meeting of the executive of the Lindsay Curling Club held Monday evening it was decided to send five rinks to Peterborough bonspiel, to be held here on Jan. 12th. The rinks will be skipped by L. V. O'Connor, J. D. Flavelle, G. E. Lattle, T. Gage and J. M. Knowlson.

SHRUBB ARRANGES RACE IN NEW YORK

Will Take on Middle Distance Men in Relay Race.

New York, Dec. 23.—Instead of a Marathon race for amateurs at Madison Square Garden on January 9, the date originally set for the professional contest between Alfred Shrubb the English champion, and Tom Longboat, the Indian runner, since postponed to January 26, indications now point to a race between Shrubb and a relay of three of the best middle-distance men in the country as the chief event in an athletic meet at the Garden on the earlier January date. Shrubb, who was in the city for the purpose of ratifying the change in the date of the Marathon, to-day signed an agreement to run twelve miles against three men hereafter to be picked, to run four miles each. A five-mile professional handicap is expected to fill out the programme for the evening. Shrubb will make his headquarters in New York after New Year's, and train for both this Garden races here.

CARL W. COOK STOCK COMPANY

At the Grand Theatre Week Dec. 28—High Class Specialties.

The management of the Grand has secured the Carl W Cook Stock Company for the week of Dec. 28, one of the best equipped repertoire Companies on the road.

Their endeavour is to offer the best to their patrons. With this end in view they have secured some unusually clever specialties and not only one or two, but a whole repertoire of up-to-date successes in the play world. Among them Miss Edyth La Nora, the dainty Dresden Doll. The Marvellous Vade, Magician extraordinary, Geo. F Cotter, the funny little fellow, Joe Vitts, baritone soloist, Earl Hawk, the Kid from the Country. Their opening bill will be "Nature's Nobleman," the play is a gem of its kind, a deep heart's interest surrounded by lots of real wholesome comedy that is really funny, the kind you remember and laugh about after you get home.

Being a society drama, the ladies of the Company have a chance to wear some very handsome gowns, which fact always appeals to the lady patrons of the audience.

Remember all next week, change of bill every night.

THE LAND OF CHRISTMAS CAKE

In the land of Christmas cake, where the spicy odours reign,
Pungent savours, sweetest flavours, and the old child dream again;
Pantry mysteries, kitchen histories, and the dear old life of grace—
Bring me back the dewy spirit of the old, old happy place;
Cutting citron, grating nutmeg, sifting spices, mixing dough,
In the land of Christmas cake in the days of long ago;
Sing with light heart home from school dear—
Ah, the icing, how it shines
On the fruit cake in the pantry
Where white rose with frost entwines.
—From Sir Walter Scott's "Marmion."

ACTIVE BUYING IN THE PRECIOUS METALS

Price of Silver Promises to Advance After Beginning of the Year.

A despatch from New York to Chicago says the principal gold and silver consuming interests represented among the makers and workers of watches, jewelry and silver and gold wares in the Maiden Lane district report that the volume of trade for the last quarter of this year will be within 25 per cent. of the trade done in the closing quarter of the last year of the boom period. The president of the world's largest watch case works says: "This year's consumption of gold and silver by manufacturers in this country will be not less than $60,000,000. Prospects for the consumption of gold and silver next year are excellent. There will be active buying of the precious metals in January and February. Silver is bound to go higher."

Band will be at Brock Street Rink on Christmas afternoon.

Breaking Of The Driving Belt Injures Workingman's Face

At the Quaker Oats Company's factory this morning a rather severe accident happened to Mr. John Curtis, Bolivar street. It was understood, that one of the large driving belts was in need of repair but it was thought it would last over the day It was temporarily spliced to make it stronger. However, this morning the belt broke hitting Mr Curtis in the face and knocking him over on the cement floor. Dr. Eastwood was summoned and on examination found that he was suffering from an ugly wound at the back of his head and he will in all probability lose the sight of one eye. The Dan Spence ambulance removed him to Nicholls Hospital.

IT LOOKS LIKE A BIG NIGHT, TO-NIGHT

The World Simbolized Best, Permeated With That Spirit Which Reaches Its Fruition To-morrow.

This morning a George street merchant stated that the Christmas buying period has extended over the past week or ten days and he did not expect as great a rush this evening as in former years. The preachments of the press, the headlines in advertisements and the special inducements have done their work better than was expected. However, it would not be Christmas eve without a jolly, cheerful crowd on the streets and when Santa Claus piles high his gifts in his sleigh to-night the clerks will be as busy as the chorus in a Cohan musical comedy.

CATHEDRAL SERVICES TO-MORROW

Christmas Day Important in Church Calendar.

Christmas is one of the most important feast days celebrated in the Catholic Church. The masses to-morrow begin at 5.30 a.m., with a high mass followed immediately by a low mass. The next is at 8 o'clock; children's mass at 9.15, and last mass at 10.30, which His Lordship Bishop O'Connor will sing. It will be a Pontifical High Mass during which His Lordship will give the Papal Benediction.

STREET RAILWAY RINK OPENS TO-MORROW

Band Will be in Attendance at Jackson Park in the Afternoon.

The street railway rink at Jackson Park will open for the season to-morrow morning, and no doubt the park will be a big drawing card in the way of Christmas attractions. The ice is in good condition and everything is ready for what promises to be a most successful opening. A section of the 57th Band will be on hand in the afternoon, and will provide a choice programme for the occasion. The weather conditions promise to be ideal for outdoor pastimes, as the probabilities are that it will not be very cold. The slide is in good condition and will be in full swing to-morrow.

HENS DISAPPEARING IN SOUTH END

Somebody is "Making a Noise Like a Coon" in a Certain Backyard.

A citizen residing on Aylmer street near its southern extremity states that there are some persons who are acquiring the very bad habit of robbing hen houses and his in particular, has been suffering of late. If the hens continue to disappear he intends to give the matter over to the police and make it hot for certain individuals, whom he has good reason to believe are the guilty parties.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE POLICE COURT

At police court this morning Mr and Mrs Jacob Firman were charged with being the keepers of a disorderly house at the corner of King and George streets. They were arraigned on the charge a few days ago and pleaded not guilty. Mr Gordon was present to look after their interests this morning and considerable evidence was heard in regard to the house and its people.

Several people testified that as far as they knew the general reputation of the house was bad, while P C Newhall and Mcnarry gave evidence to the effect that they had watched the house closely and told of some of the suspicious things that they had observed in connection with the case.

It was nearly two o'clock this afternoon before the evidence in the case was concluded, and after hearing it all the magistrate reserved judgment for one week.

The case of William Rattray, charged with stealing $963.12 from Martin Connors, was commenced at three o'clock this afternoon.

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. B.

Richard Hooker was born at Heavitree, near Exeter, in Devonshire, in 1553, the same year that witnessed the birth of Spenser; and owing, first, to the kindness of his uncle, and afterwards to that of Bishop Jewell, he was provided with a university education. His career at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, was a distinguished one, for he proved himself so facile in the acquisition of Oriental languages, that in his twenty-sixth year he was appointed a lecturer in Hebrew at the university. There he had for his pupils Edwin Sandys, son of the Archbishop of York, and George Cranmer, grandnephew of the Archbishop of Canterbury. After two years' labours as a lecturer at the university he took holy orders, and was appointed to preach at St. Paul's Cross.

Hooker's Unfortunate Marriage

This appointment led, in one sense, to the undoing of Hooker. Fate led him to board with a certain Mrs. Churchman, whose house was the accustomed lodging place of certain of the clergy, and he there fell a victim to the artifices of his landlady by taking her advice and marrying her daughter, Joan. It is not often that men complacently allow others to choose for them their partners for weal and woe, but Hooker, unfortunately for his peace of mind, did so, and found, all too late, that his wife was a shrew, fitted to occupy a place by the side of those two ornamental celebrities, the spouses of Socrates and Milton.

Solomon remarks in the Proverbs, that "a continual dropping in a very rainy day and a contentious woman are alike." Hooker's wife had neither wealth nor beauty to recommend her to favour; her nagging tongue was her strongest asset, and Hooker's domestic life seems to have been passed amid the raging of a perpetual tempest.

The first year of his married life was spent as rector of the parish of Drayton-Beauchamp in Buckinghamshire. Here he received a visit from his two old pupils. They found him with the Odes of Horace in his hands, tending the sheep in the field, whilst his servant was away at dinner, and when they returned to the house, he "was called to rock the cradle." The friends were evidently not agreeably impressed with their visit, for the narrative goes on to say that "they stayed but till the next morning," and greatly grieving at his condition, "left him to the company of his wife Joan."

Master of the Temple

Hooker was not destined to remain long at Drayton Beauchamp, for the following year, owing to the solicitation of Sandys, the Archbishop of York obtained for him the mastership of the Temple. For this appointment he had a rival in the shape of Walter Travers, who was a Presbyterian, and an evening lecturer in the same church. As the views of these two preachers were diametrically opposed to each other, it may well be supposed that matters were not altogether as harmonious as they might have been, especially as Travers always attempted in the evening service a refutation of what Hooker had said in the morning, and the latter invariably combatted the views of Travers on the following Sunday. Partisanship rose so high in the parish that Archbishop Whitgift at last forbade Travers to preach.

Hooker, tired of this sort of theological battling, and anxious to obtain a country parsonage, had petitioned Whitgift for removal to some place where, to use his own words, "I may keep myself in peace and privacy and behold God's blessing spring out of my mother earth, and eat my own bread without oppositions."

In accordance with his wish he was presented in 1591 to the rectory of Boscombe, near Salisbury, and there he composed the first four books of the Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity. These were not published till 1593 or 1594. In the following year he was appointed rector of Bishopsbourne, near Canterbury, and there, in 1597, he completed his fifth book. His original intention had been to publish eight books, but he only lived to finish the sixth, which has, unfortunately, been lost. Hooker died in November, 1600, from the effects of a bad cold, contracted in journeying from London to Gravesend.

Hooker's Great Work

The Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity was directed in great measure against the Presbyterians, not in a bearish way, but more in the form of a soft answer against their attacks on the Episcopacy. The lapse of 300 years has rendered his work valuable, more for its philosophical than its theological reasoning, for Hooker's fundamental standpoint is the absolute necessity of law. Law, "whose seat as he beautifully expressed it, is the bosom of God, whose voice the harmony of the world."

Hooker, apart from the majestic flow of his language and the dignity of his style, has a distinct claim on our gratitude, for many of the ideas which he promulgated in his work have been incorporated in the grand fabric of the British constitution.

Hooker on Church Music

The following short extract from his work on Church Music bears so well on certain other curious matters relating to the effect of harmony, as that I append it. Touching musical harmony, whether by instrument or by voice, it being but of high or low in sounds a due proportionable disposition, such notwithstanding, is the force thereof and so pleasing effects it hath in that very part of man which is most divine, that some have been thereby induced to think that the soul itself by nature is, or hath in it harmony. a thing which delighteth all ages and becometh all states; a thing as seasonable in grief as in joy." "In harmony the very image and character even of virtue and vice is perceived, the mind delighted with their resemblances and brought by having them often iterated into a love of the things themselves. For which cause there is nothing more contagious and prevalent than some kinds of harmony; than some nothing more strong and potent unto good".

Music has indeed in all ages exercised a wonderful power over mankind and indeed over all creation. In the days of King Saul, we find David chosen to play his harp before the sick monarch in order to charm away his melancholy. Were we to allow ourselves to believe all that the ancients tell us we would find that Aesculapius healed diseased with soothing songs; that Theophrastus, the long-lived pupil of Plato and of Aristotle considered music good for the hip gout; and that Cato considered it beneficial when limbs were out of joint. We all know what Shakespeare has said about music and Congreve also has written that "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast,
To soften rocks or bend a knotted oak."

King Saul was not the only monarch on whom music has been tried as a cure for the dissipation of the megrims for a certain King of Spain was charmed back to health by the magical voice of singer named Farinelli.

It is on record that an officer confined in the Bastille, by playing on his lute collected around him great numbers of mice and spiders. It is unpleasant to record that being of a practical and unsentimental turn of mind, the musican noticing the astonishing result of his music, obtained possession of a cat, placed it in a cage and let loose after he had charmed his diminutive audience from their holes.

In the islands of Madeira, lizards which were used by the natives for food, used to be caught by the attraction of music. Serpents and birds we know are captivated by it.

We may well believe that music enters into the very soul for it is the soother of sorrow, the lightener of burdens, the joy of young and old alike. Dryden has said—"What passion cannot music raise or quell?" And we may well ask the same question when we find certain well-loved airs capable of dissolving an assemblage in tears or of heartening men to deeds of unexampled heroism.

The Swiss melody of Ranz des Vaches, the Scotchman's Gook o' the North and The Campbells are Coming", the Frenchman's Marseillaise, the Englishman's The Girl I left Behind Me, the Irishman's Erin-go-Bragh, have all been incentives to deeds of wonderful valour."

Tea grown at an elevation of 6,000 feet and upwards, where soil and climate combine to give that delightful fragrance and delicious flavour as used in "Salada." Its purity and strength make it much more economical to use than other teas. 103

MILLBROOK MAN TELLS A REMARKABLE STORY

Of a Prayer Meeting Held in Early Days in New Hampshire.

Samuel Russell, of Millbrook, Ont., has written the following to the Lethbridge Herald for publication:

Let me tell you a remarkable story I heard Mrs. H. L. Hastings, wife of the late editor of the Boston Christian, relate one morning as we were about to engage in family worship. Opening upon a certain hymn in "Songs of Pilgrimage," there was brought to her mind a strange incident which occurred in the days of her girlhood away up among the hills of New Hampshire.

When she was but 16 years of age she and her sister, who was a couple of years her senior, were asked by a neighbour and his wife, to take charge of a meeting, which they were about to have convened at their own house. After considerable hesitation, Mrs. H. and her sister finally gave their consent to do what they could toward leading the meeting in prospect. It was a very Godless neighbourhood by which they were surrounded, but few people making any profession of religion at all. The meeting was to be held on a Sunday. It was in the depth of winter. When the time of the meeting had arrived, and the two young girls had entered their neighbour's house, they found it filled with about an equal number of thoughtless young men and women who had come together apparently for the express purpose of having a good time at their expense; for as soon as they made their appearance in their midst many of them began to snicker and laugh, while others perhaps a little more modest, held their hands before their face.

One can well imagine how embarrassed and how very trying it must have been for two so young and inexperienced to undertake the charge of such a gathering. When Mrs. H. arose to give out a hymn (the one mentioned above) she noticed in the audience a young man whom she had never seen before. His countenance was fair and very beautiful. When the hymn had been given out a tune was struck which only Mrs. H. and the young stranger knew, and they sang the hymn through together. At the close of the singing they all knelt, and this unknown person engaged in prayer. His words and manner of utterance produced a strange and very marked effect upon all present. "Oh," said Mrs. H., "I never, never, heard such a prayer. He seemed to pray straight up into Heaven." When the prayer was ended and they arose from their knees every face was bathed in tears. A mysterious and irresistible power accompanied the prayer which brought conviction of sin to those thoughtless young people, and led them to realize their need of a Saviour. But strange to say, the young man was no longer to be seen in their midst.

After a moment's surprise the old gentleman of the house who had called the meeting together asked one of the young men what had become of the stranger who sang and prayed. In reply the young man said: "I watched him while he was praying, and when I looked again he was gone."

"What makes it seem all the more perplexing," said Mrs. H., "was that every door was closed, every window was double sashed, and the snow was so deep that it was piled half way up the windows, and there was no possible chance of anyone leaving without being observed."

"The event," continued Mrs. H., "became talked of all over the neighbourhood, the meetings from that strange beginning were continued and the greatest revival ever known in that part of the world was the result."

The writer was well acquainted with both Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hastings, having been employed in their publishing house for several months. Their publications have gone to all parts of the Christian world, and even to heathendom. Mrs. Hastings is herself the author of a book of over 300 pages entitled "Pebbles from the Path of a Pilgrim," which contains many marvellous answers to prayer, and which has had an immense circulation."

COAL SHIPMENTS FROM GLACE BAY

Total Figures Show Increase Over the Past Season.

Examiner Special

Glace Bay, N. S., December 26. — Figures showing the total coal shipments from the Glace Bay shipping pier have just been compiled. The total shipments for the year 1908 amount to 11,835 tons, which is a big increase over last year's shipments. These shipments were all made in sailing vessels, no steamers having loaded there. The heaviest month was June, when the shipments were [illegible] tons against 1625 tons for the same month 1907.

The total shipments in 1907 were [illegible] tons, making an increase this year of 3505 tons.

HAPPY RESULTS OBTAINED

By the use of the new Scalp Antiseptic

It wouldn't take long to number the hairs in the heads of some people, the reason being they haven't many to number. In most instances however, the fault is their own. A germ at the root soon plays havoc with the most luxuriant growth and causes it to fade and fall out. A remedy for this has recently been discovered, called Newbro's Herpicide, that acts by destroying the germ that does the damage, besides removing all impurities from the scalp. In addition it permits new life and vigour to enter the scalp, and happy results are sure to be obtained from its use.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes 50c and $1. McDermid and Jury, and 3 boxes for $2.25.

THE DOCTORS SAID "THERE MUST BE AN OPERATION"

"Fruit-a-tives" Saved Mrs. McCready Untold Suffering and Almost Certain Death.

"Publish this for humanity's sake," writes Mr. C. McCready, of Putnam, Ont., in his letter to the owners of "Fruit-a-tives." Physicians said that only an operation could save his wife's life. But again "Fruit-a-tives" proved its wonderful powers. The doctors were wrong—Mrs. McCready is to-day well and strong—and "Fruit-a-tives" have made friends of every one for miles around Putnam.

"Dear Sirs,—My wife suffered for over a year from Indigestion and Bowel trouble. Several doctors treated her for this trouble and advised her that only an operation would save her life, as they stated it was a tumor that was causing the trouble. The operation was to cost $200.00 and, while she was debating in her own mind about being operated on, she was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives," which I procured for her from our local merchant. From the first box she improved, and after having taken four boxes she is completely cured and is now as well as ever.

I decided then that "Fruit-a-tives" was the most wonderful remedy in the world and it certainly saved my wife's life. She still takes one tablet every night, we also give them to the children with excellent results, and they have to thank "Fruit-a-tives" for the fact that their mother is now with them, they fully expected she would be in her grave. Publish this for humanity's sake."

(Sgd.) C. McCready.

For Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Biliousness—for all troubles due to defective action of Bowels, Kidneys and Skin, "Fruit-a-tives" is a certain cure. These tablets are made of fruit juices and tonics, are pleasant to take and quick to act. Trial size, 25c—regular size, 50c a box or 6 for $2.50.

At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

ANTHONY HOPE

Author of "The Prisoner of Zenda"

Copyright, 1903, Anthony Hope Hawkins

The reverie bore breaking. It had been none too pleasant. In it sad memories disputed place with present difficulties. Some third or so remained of Lady Meg's hundred pound note. Necessity had forced the use of the money at any cost to pride. When all was gone Sophy would have to depend on what is so often a last and so often a vain refuge—the teaching of French. It was the only subject which she could claim to teach. Verily, it was a poor prospect. It was better to look at the officers and the ladies than to think of it—aye, better than to think of Casimir and of what lay in the past. With her strong will she strove to steel herself alike against recollection and against apprehension.

The cafe was nearly deserted. The hour was too early for the citizens, and Sophy's own chocolate had been merely an excuse to sit down. Yet presently a young officer in a hussar uniform stopped his horse opposite the door and, giving over the reins to an orderly who attended him, nimbly dismounted. Tall and fair, with a pleasant, open face, he wore his finery with a dashing air and caressed a delicate upturned mustache as he glanced around, choosing his seat. The next moment he advanced toward Sophy. Giving her a polite salute, he indicated a little table next to hers.

"Mademoiselle permits?" he asked. "She has, I fear, forgotten, but I have the honor to be an acquaintance of hers."

"I remember," smiled Sophy. "Captain Markart? We met at Mme. Zerkovitch's."

"Oh, that's pleasant of you!" he cried. "I hate being clean forgotten. But I fear you remember me only because I sang so badly!"

"I remember best that you said you wanted to go and help France, but your general wouldn't let you."

"Ah, I know why you remember that—you especially! Forgive me. Our friend Marie Zerkovitch told me." He turned away for a moment to give an order to the waiter.

"What's going on today?" asked Sophy. "Where's everybody going?"

"Why, you are a stranger, mademoiselle!" he laughed. "It's the king's name day, and we all go and congratulate him."

"Is that it? Are you going?"

"Certainly. In attendance of my general—General Stenovics. My lodgings are near here, his house at the other end of the boulevard, so he gave me leave to meet him here. I thought I would come early and fortify myself a little for the ordeal. To mademoiselle's good health!" He looked at her with openly admiring eyes, to which tribute Sophy accorded a lazy, unembarrassed smile. She leaned her chin in her hand, turning her right cheek toward him. Sophy was never disdainful, never neglectful. Her pose now was good.

"What sort of a man is the king?" she asked.

"The king is most emphatically a very good sort of fellow—a very good old fellow. I only wish his son was like him! The prince is a Tartar. Has he gone by yet?"

"I don't think so. I suppose he'd have an escort, wouldn't he? I don't know him by sight yet. Does everybody call the king a good fellow?"

"Some people are so extremely righteous!" pleaded Markart ruefully. "And, anyhow, he has reformed now."

"Because he's old?"

"Fifty-nine. Is that so very old? No; I rather attribute it (you're discreet, I hope? I'm putting my fortunes in your hands) to Mme. la Comtesse."

"The Countess Ellenburg? Marie has told me something about her."

"Ah! Mme. Zerkovitch is a friend of hers?"

"Not intimate, I think. And is the countess oppressively respectable, Captain Markart?"

"Women in her position always are," said the captain, with an affected sigh. His round, chubby face was wrinkled with merriment. "You see, a morganatic marriage isn't such a well established institution here as in some other countries. Oh, it's legal enough no doubt if it's agreed to on that basis, but the Stefanovitches have in the past often made nonroyal marriages—with their own subjects generally. Well, there was nobody else for them to marry! Alexis got promotion in his first marriage—an Italian Bourbon, which is always respectable if not very brilliant. That gave us a position, and it couldn't be thrown away. So the second marriage had to be morganatic. Only—well, women are ambitious, and she has a young son who bears the king's name, a boy twelve years old."

He looked reflectively at his polished boots. Sophy sat in thoughtful silence. A jingle of swords and the clatter of hoofs roused them. A troop of soldiers rode by. Their uniform was the same smart tunic of light blue, with black facings, as adorned Captain Markart's shapely person.

"Ah, here's the prince!" said Markart, rising briskly to his feet. Sophy followed his example, though more in curiosity than in respect.

The young man at the head of the troop returned Markart's salute, but was apparently unconscious of the individual from whom it proceeded. He rode by without turning his head or giving a glance in the direction of the cafe terrace. Sophy saw a refined profile, with a straight nose, rather short and a pale cheek. There was little trace of the Bourbon side of the pedigree.

"He's on his promotion, too," continued the loquacious and irreverent captain as he resumed his seat. "They want a big fish for him—something German, with a resounding name. Poor fellow!"

"Well, it's his duty," said Sophy.

"Somebody who'll keep the countess in order, eh?" smiled Markart, twirling his mustache. "That's about the size of it, I expect, though naturally the general doesn't show me his hand. I only tell you common gossip."

"I think you hardly do yourself justice. You've been very interesting, Captain Markart."

"I tell you what," he said, with an engaging candor, "I believe that somehow the general makes me chatter just to the extent he wants me to and then stops me. I don't know how he does it. It's quite unconscious on my part. I seem to say just what I like!"

They laughed together over this puzzle. "You mean General Stenovics?" asked Sophy.

"Yes, General Stenovics. Ah, here he is!" He sprang up again and made a low bow to Sophy. "Au revoir, made moiselle. A thousand thanks!"

He saluted her and hurried to the side of the pavement. General Stenovics rode up, with two orderlies behind him. Saluting again, Markart mounted his horse. The general brought his to a stand and waited the necessary moment or two with a good humored smile. His eyes wandered from the young officer to the presumable cause of his lack of vigilance. Sophy felt the glance rest on her face. In her turn she saw a stout, stumpy figure clad in a rather ugly dark green uniform, and a heavy, olive tinted face adorned with a black mustache and a stubbly gray beard. General Stenovics, president of the council of ministers, was not an imposing personage to the outward view. But Sophy returned the regard of his prominent pale blue eyes, which sorted oddly with the complexion of his face, with vivid attention. The general rode on, Markart following, but turning in his saddle to salute once more and to wave his hand in friendly farewell.

General Stenovics.

For the first time since her arrival in Slavna Sophy was conscious of a stir of excitement. Life had been dull and heavy. The mind had enjoyed little food save the diet of sad memories. To day she seemed to be brought into sight of living interests again. They were far off, but they were there. Markart's talk had made a link between them and her. She sat on for a long while, watching the junction of the streams and the broad current which flowed onward past the palace on its long journey to the sea. Then she rose with a sigh. The time drew near for a French lesson. Marie Zerkovitch had already got her two pupils.

This day Sophy began the diary. The first entry is dated that afternoon. Her prescience—or presentiment—was not at fault. From today events moved fast, and she was strangely caught up in the revolutions of the wheel.

Chapter Eleven

It was the evening of the king's name day. There was a banquet at the palace, and the lights in its windows twinkled in sympathetic response to the illuminations which blazed on the public buildings and principal residences of Slavna. Everywhere feasting and revelry filled the night. The restaurant of the Hotel de Paris was crowded, every seat on its terrace occupied. The old inn of the Golden Lion, opposite the barracks in the square of St. Michael, a favorite resort of the officers of the garrison, did a trade no less good. Humbler hostelries were full of private soldiers and the streets themselves of revelers, male and female, military and civil, honest and dishonest, drunk and sober. Slavna had given itself up to a frolic, for, first, a fete is a fete, no matter what its origin; second, King Alexis was the most popular man in his dominions, though he never did a decent day's work for them; last, there is often no better way to show how much you hate one man than by making a disproportionate fuss about another. It was well understood that by thus honoring King Alexis, its monarch, by thus vociferously and untiringly wishing him the longest of reigns, Slavna was giving a stinging back hander to Prince Sergius, its titular prince and commandant. You would see the difference when the prince's day come round! When General Stenovics pointed to the lights gleaming across the Krath from the palace windows and congratulated his royal highness on the splendid popularity of the reigning house the prince's smile may well have been ironical.

"I shall go and see all this merriment for myself at close quarters presently, general," he said. "I think the commandant had best return to the city tonight as early as the king will allow."

"An admirable devotion to duty, sir," answered the general gravely and without any effort to dissuade the zealous prince.

But even in this city there was one spot of gloom, one place where sullen rancor had not been ousted by malicious merriment. The first company of his majesty's guards was confined to its barracks in the square of St. Michael by order of the commandant of Slavna. This by reason of high military misdemeanors—slackness when on duty, and rioting and drunkenness when on leave. Nor were the officers any better than the men.

Captain Mistitch rapped out a vicious oath.

"May I go and see them and cheer them up a bit, sir, instead of coming with you to the palace?" asked good natured Markart of General Stenovics.

"If his royal highness gives you leave, certainly," agreed the general.

The commandant liked Markart. "Yes—and tell them what fools they are," he said, with a smile.

Markart found the imprisoned officers at wine after their dinner. The men had resigned themselves to fate and gone to bed. Markart delivered his message with his usual urbane simplicity. Lieutenant Rastatz giggled uneasily. He had a high falsetto laugh. Lieutenant Sterkoff frowned peevishly. Captain Mistitch rapped out a vicious oath and brought his great fist down on the table. "The evening isn't finished yet," he said. "But for this cursed fellow I should have been dining with Vera at the Hotel de Paris tonight!"

Whereupon condolences were offered to their captain by his subalterns, who, in fact, held him in no small degree of fear. He was a huge fellow, six feet three and broad as a door. A great bruiser and a duelist of fame. His nickname was Hercules. His florid face was flushed now with hot anger, and he drank his wine in big gulps.

"How long are we to stand it?" he growled. "Are we schoolgirls?"

"Come, come, it's only for one evening," pleaded Markart. "One quiet evening won't hurt even Captain Hercules!"

The subalterns backed him with a laugh, but Mistitch would have none of it. He sat glowering and drinking still, not to be soothed and decidedly dangerous. From across the square came the sound of music and singing from the Golden Lion. Again Mistitch banged the table.

"Listen there!" he said. "That's pleasant hearing while we're shut up like rats in a trap and all Slavna laughing at us!"

Markart shrugged his shoulders and smoked in silence. To argue with the man was to court a quarrel. He began to repent of his well meant visit. Mistitch drained his glass.

"But some of us have a bit of spirit left, and so Master Sergius shall see," he went on. He put out a great hand on either side and caught Sterkoff and Rastatz by their wrists. "We're the fellows to show him!" he cried.

Sterkoff seemed no bad choice for such an enterprise—a wiry, active fellow, with a determined, if disagreeable, face and a nasty squint in his right eye. But Rastatz, with his slim figure, weak mouth and high laugh, promised no great help. Yet in him fear of Mistitch might overcome all other fear.

"Yes, we three 'll show him! And now"—he rose to his feet, dragging the pair up with him—"for a song and a bottle at the Golden Lion!"

Rastatz gasped. Even Sterkoff started. Markart laughed. It could be nothing more than a mad joke. Cashiering was the least punishment which would await the act.

"Yes, we three together!" He released them for a moment and caught up his sword and cap. Then he seized Rastatz's wrist again and squeezed it savagely. "Come out of your trap with me, you rat!" he growled in savage amusement at the young man's frightened face.

Sterkoff gained courage. "I'm with you, Hercules!" he cried. "I'm for tonight—the devil take tomorrow morning!"

"You're all drunk," said Markart in despairing resignation.

"We'll be drunker before the night's out," snarled Mistitch, "and if I meet that fellow when I'm drunk, God help him!" He laughed loudly. "Then there might be a chance for young Alexis, after all!"

The words alarmed Markart. Young Count Alexis was the king's son by Countess Ellenburg. A chance for young Alexis!

"For heaven's sake, go to bed!" he implored.

Mistitch turned to him. "I don't want to quarrel with anybody in Slavna tonight unless I meet one man. But you can't stop me, Markart, and you'll only do mischief by trying. Now, my boys!"

"Come out of your trap with me, you rat!"

They were with him. Sterkoff with a gleam in his squinting eye, Rastatz with a forced, uneasy giggle and shaking knees. Mistitch clapped them on the back.

"Another bottle apiece and we'll all be heroes," he cried. "Markart, you go home to your mamma!"

Though given in no friendly way, this advice was wise beneath its metaphor. But Markart did not at once obey it. He had no more authority than power to interfere. Mistitch was his senior officer, and he had no special orders to act, but he followed the three in a fascinated interest and with the hope that a very brief proof of his freedom would content the captain. Out from the barracks the three marched. The sentry at the gate presented arms, but tried to bar their progress. With a guffaw and a mighty push Mistitch sent him sprawling. "The commandant wants us, you fool!" he cried—and the three were in the square.

"What the devil will come of this business?" thought Markart as he followed them over the little bridge which spanned the canal and thence to the door of the Golden Lion. Behind them still, he passed the seats on the pavement and entered the great saloon. As Mistitch and his companions came in three-fourths of the company sprang to their feet and returned the salute of the newcomers. So strongly military in composition was the company—officers on one side of a six feet high glass screen which cut the room in two, sergeants and their inferiors on the other. A moment's silence succeeded the salute. Then a young officer cried, "The king has interfered?" It did not occur to anybody that the commandant might have changed his mind and reversed his decree. For good or evil, they knew him too well to think of that.

"The king interfered?" Mistitch echoed in his sonorous, rolling, thick voice. "No. We've interfered ourselves and walked out! Does any one object?"

He glared a challenge around. There were officers present of superior rank. They drank their beer or wine discreetly. The juniors broke into a ringing cheer. It was taken up and echoed back from behind the glass screen, to which a hundred faces were in an instant glued, over which here and there the head of some soldier more than common tall suddenly projected.

"A table here!" cried Mistitch. "And champagne! Quick! Sit down, my boys!"

A strange silence followed the impulsive cheers. Men were thinking. Cheers first, thoughts afterward, was the order in Slavna as in many other cities. Now they recognized the nature of this thing, the fateful change from sullen obedience to open defiance. Was it only a drunken frolic—or, besides that, was it a summons to each man to choose his side? Choosing his side might well mean staking his life. Mistitch rose from his chair, glass in hand.

"Long life to the king!" he shouted. "That's loyal, isn't it? Aye, immortal life!"

The cheers broke out again, mingled with laughter. A voice cried, "Hard on his heir, Captain Hercules!"

"Aye!" Mistitch roared back. "Hard as he is on us, my friend!"

Another burst of cheering, and again that conscience smitten silence.

Markart had found a seat near the door and a good way from the redoubtable Mistitch and his companions. He looked at his watch. It was nearly 10. In half an hour General Stenovics would be leaving the palace, and it was meet that he should know of all this as soon as possible. Markart made up his mind that he would slip away soon, but still the interest of the scene, the fascination of this prelude—such it seemed to him—held his steps bound.

Suddenly a young man of aristocratic appearance rose from a table at the end of the room, where he had been seated in company with a pretty and smartly dressed girl. A graceful gesture excused him to his fair companion, and he threaded his way deftly between the jostling tables to where Mistitch sat. He wore court dress and a decoration.

"Well, who follows me?" he cried.

Markart recognized in the young man Baron von Hollbrandt, junior secretary of the German legation in Slavna.

Hollbrandt bowed to Mistitch, with whom he was acquainted, then bent over the giant's burly back and whispered in his ear:

"Take a friend's advice, captain," he said. "I've been at the palace, and I know the prince had permission to withdraw at half past 9. He was to return to Slavna then to duty. Come, go back. You've had your spree."

"By the Lord, I'm obliged to you!" cried Mistitch. "Lads, we're obliged to Baron von Hollbrandt! Could you tell me the street he means to come by? Because"—he rose to his feet again—"we'll go and meet him!"

AFTER TREATMENT

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your New Method Treatment for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the New Method Treatment for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. My boy, three years old, is sound and healthy. I certainly can recommend your treatment with all my heart. You can refer any person to me privately, but you can use this testimonial as you wish." W. COULD SHE SAY MORE?

"I owe my life to PSYCHINE, what better testimony could I possibly give," says Mrs. Wm. Wilson, of Essex, Ont., on August 31, 1908.

This was in response to an inquiry from the Dr. T. A. Slocum, Ltd., as to whether the remarkable testimonial given by Mrs. Wilson, on May 27, 1904, still held good. At that time she said, "Some twelve years ago I was taken ill with a severe cold on my lungs. Night after night I was compelled to sit up all night to relieve myself of the pain in my lungs. For two years I doctored continually with three different doctors, but received no help whatever. A friend advised me to try your medicine, and I did so. Within two months from taking PSYCHINE I gained 30 pounds, and my health rapidly grew better and in a short time I was quite well. To-day I am a strong woman and owe my life to Dr. T. A. Slocum's medicine."

A CYCLONE OF FLAME

Fires in Bamboo Forests Are the Fiercest Known.

SWEEP ON A MILE A MINUTE.

Like the Roar, the Roll and the Rattle of a Great Battle Is the Noise of the Exploding Stalks That Sometimes Shoot High Into the Air.

When the forests are afire, when the smoke makes dusk at noon and reddens the harvest moon a thousand miles away, there is the measure of a conflagration. When the prairies burn, as they used to before farms had crept in upon the endless miles of grass, there was a fire which ran like mad and left behind it a blackened trail of death. If one could combine the speed of the prairie fire with the tumult of the blazing forest, that would be a fire indeed.

Such a combination is effected when the bamboo groves catch fire. The bamboo is but a grass, a grass with the height of a tree, swaying stems reaching 100, even 150, feet in air.

In Cambodia, where the bamboo groves along the rivers cover the space of forests, it is no unusual thing for fires to break out and sweep all before them for many miles. If the summer has been dry the bamboo turns sear and inflammable as any grass.

All that is needed is a spark; then ruin runs red. It is not necessary to rely upon the carelessness of the woodsman to start the blaze. The bamboo can kindle itself.

Let two swaying stalks of dry bamboo be set in motion by the breeze, let one rub across the other long enough, and the friction will set the spark, and the long dry leaves will feed the flame. It is known that many fires of the bamboo forests thus originate. Perhaps it was from observing such a sight that primitive man learned the Promethean secret. That theory has been advanced.

As soon as a flame in the bamboos has crept to the level of the tossing tips it spreads like wildfire. The wind carries a sheet of flame along the grove at tremendous speed. Some observers say that such fires have been seen to move forward at the rate of more than a mile a minute. Seen from below, it looks as if she sky had burst into an instant flash of flame.

From such a burst of fire there could be no escape. Fortunately it passes high overhead at the tops of the bamboos. It serves as a warning to the traveler who may be making his way along some one of the water courses by which the forest is intersected. The bamboo itself is almost an obstacle to travel of any sort. It is well nigh impossible to force a way through it except by the slow and toilsome labor of hewing out a path.

The fire in the great trunks moves more slowly, and if warning be taken it may be possible to sink one's boat and throw up wet herbage and clay against the bank of the stream to provide shelter until the furnace blast has blown by. Such a fire in the bamboo has not only the speed of the prairie fire on its sweep overhead, but it has the same volume of fuel as is found in any forest fire. It combines the two types.

Bamboo forest fires have another quality which is all their own. They bang and rattle with thunderous crashes, as of artillery fire, without cessation.

The stalks of these tree bamboos are frequently more than a foot in diameter. Near the ground the joints are close together; in the younger growth the nodes may be several feet apart. But, long or short as they may be, each joint of the sun dried bamboo is a tightly sealed chamber filled with air. The partitions between the cavities are singularly tough; the outside rind of the stalks is almost pure flint.

When the blast of the flame sweeps onward the air in the stalks upon which it is driven is suddenly heated to a very high temperature. The residuum of moisture which may be in the stems is immediately transformed into steam and at once subjected to superheating, thus becoming a violent explosive. As the hot breath of the flame becomes hotter these joints burst with loud cannon discharges.

Sometimes the force of the explosion near the roots is so great as to shoot the stalk like a javelin high into the air, where it flashes into torchlike flame and is carried by the wind to spread wider disaster. The bursting of the smaller joints is like the roll and rattle of rifles and machine guns. The effect is that of a battle hotly contested.

AN INGENIOUS SWINDLER.

The Daring Scheme That Was Worked by a German Doctor.

Near a small village in one of the lake states lived a western millionaire in seclusion with his little daughter and a few servants. The child was afflicted with a rare cerebro spinal complaint, a most unpleasant manifestation of which was a frequent hiccough, and eminent physicians, both in America and Europe, had pronounced the case organic and incurable.

Later there came to live in the village a widow with a little girl affected similar to the millionaire's daughter. This child was a delicate, flower faced creature, wistful from the isolation that must have been her sad lot, and the peculiar bark-like hiccough which she made at once attracted the millionaire's attention, and, being a big hearted if rather ignorant man, he gave the mother employment about his home and showered the afflicted child with presents.

Perhaps four months after the widow's advent an eccentric German doctor settled in the village, and, his services being sought by the widow, he gave her child treatment, with the result that it was completely cured.

The millionaire immediately sought to place his own daughter under the German's care, but the latter flatly refused to take the case. He was a Socialist of a violent type and would have nothing to do with a man whose wealth exceeded the sum that he had fixed upon as the lawful limit of material possession.

Finally, however, after the father had patiently borne the grossest insults the German agreed to give the afflicted child treatment on condition that the other would first deed over a large tract of land in Texas for a Socialist colony and pay him for his fee a sum little short of $50,000. This the millionaire did, but as soon as the doctor had cashed the check he disappeared with the widow and her child, and the wealthy man realized that, blinded by paternal love, he had been made the victim of an ingenious swindle.

The flower faced girl of the widow had been taught to simulate a disease, and the German was no doubt her father. He was subsequently located in Buenos Aires, but he injured man, not wishing his daughter's affliction published broadcast, dropped the prosecution.—Don Mark Lemon in Bohemian Magazine.

EXECUTING MAZEPPA.

Peter the Great's Odd Way of Punishing a Deserter.

Peter the Great, czar of Russia, punished a traitor on a notable occasion in a way that the numerous victims of the present czar's wrath might well wish were still in vogue.

Mazeppa, chieftain of the Cossacks, had deserted to the king of Sweden, with whom Peter was at war. Mazeppa was at once tried by court martial and found guilty of high treason. Sentence of death was passed upon him.

Mazeppa, however, was safely in the camp of the Swedish king, but this fact was not permitted to stand in the way of the carrying ont of every part of the sentence. A wooden effigy of Mazeppa was made, and the punishments were inflicted upon the Cossack chieftain's substitute.

The effigy was first dressed in Mazeppa's uniform, and upon its breast were pinned all of the medals, ribbons and other decorations that the real culprit had worn.

While the commanding general and a squadron of cavalry stood near an officer advanced to the wooden man and read the sentence. Then another officer wrenched off the effigy's patent of knighthood and his other decorations, tore them up and trampled upon them. This done, he struck the wooden gentleman a powerful blow in the pit of the stomach, knocking him over. Next a hangman appeared. While the soldiers shouted he threw a noose over the imitation Mazeppa's head and dragged the effigy to a nearby gallows, where it was "hanged by the neck until it was dead."

An Aquatic Outfielder.

One day a ship was lying at anchor at Boca Grande when the crew observed a dolphin chasing a flying fish, both coming directly toward the ship. On nearing the vessel the flier arose in the air and passed over the bow just abaft the foremast. As it did so the dolphin went under the ship and, coming up on the other side, sprang from the water and caught the flying fish on "the fly" just as it was curving gracefully down in its descent to the water.—Punta Gorda Herald.

Missing Opportunities.

"I have no patience with a man who makes the same mistake twice," said Armes, rather severely, in speaking of an unfortunate friend.

"Neither have I," agreed his wife, "when there are so many other mistakes to make."

Less Scotch Whisky.

The outpost of the 150 distilleries in Scotland last year amounted to 22,196,000 proof gallons of whisky, a decrease of 2,043,000 gallons as compared with the previous year, and of 12,972,000 gallons as compared with 1898-9, the year of the record output.

DYNAMITE IN THE MAKING.

Workmen Who Are Encircled by Death In Gallons and Tons.

So thoroughly deceptive is dynamite in the making that you are apt to be disappointed on viewing the surface of things. You could more readily fancy thunderbolts leaping and crashing from tender blue skies than that the most fearful forces in creation are hidden under such a peaceful exterior. Nitroglycerin, a cupful of which would distribute you over square miles of landscape, is diligently mixing around you in hundreds and thousands of gallons.

It is making itself in big iron retorts, cascading down leaden gutters and merrily tumbling in minute Niagaras into immense vats, where the deliquescent yellow peril pursues its journey powderward. Out of one receptacle it fares furiously through special lead coils, driven only by cooling blasts of air, and is drawn off like draft ale and piped on to the next perfecting stage. Gaze with the nitroglycerin expert into one of those big caldrons. The interior is brilliantly illuminated by electricity, the only illuminating agency permitted in or about the danger houses.

Around you are other houses at uniform distances apart and connected by a series of narrow gauge tracks wherein workmen are railroading nitroglycerin from here and pulp cotton from there to be compounded into dynamite and blasting gelatin. Greatest care is taken in rolling the product from house to house. As soon as a loaded cart is ready to pass out of the nitroglycerin house, for instance, a semaphore signals from an adjoining station, to which the consignment is carefully hurried.

Around you are long storehouses packed with pulp in tons of innocent whiteness. Presently this pulp will assume a tan color under the nitrating process, and then, suddenly becoming carbonite, red cross, hercules, judson and giant powder, forcite or what you order, it develops the quasi virtues of dynamite—dynamite or blasting gelatin in which more natural forces are condensed to the cubic inch than exist anywhere else in creation. Death, curbed and sleeping, encircles you in gallons and tons. Annihilation threatens at every turn in the form of potential pulverising forces. But the man and the mercury are there also, alert, responsive, reliable.

LIBRARY SLOW POKES.

Time Killing Methods of Officials in Continental Europe.

"Americans who grumble about having to wait a long time for books when applying to a public library," said a Boston literary woman, "should try to work or study in a foreign library, particularly in Germany.

"The typical continental librarian takes no account of time. The reader, worker or student must turn in his or her application for books at least a day in advance. The men who search for the books applied for are aged, tottering creatures who have been shuffling around the dusty piles of books for years, and the word hurry is not in their vocabulary.

"The most priceless books and manuscripts are kept in places which are perfect fire traps, and disorder predominates in every department. When you speak about the impossible methods employed the librarians tell you that they are too poor to introduce any modern indexes or catalogues. This is to some extent so, but as a matter of fact they would not change if they had all the money in the world at their disposal.

"They do not wish to encourage the common people to use books. The learned are among the aristocracy, and the spread of the knowledge which is hidden in those wonderful literary museums is far from the purpose of the men at the head of Europe's libraries.

"There may be some delay in our libraries, but our people in the lower walks of life are certainly ahead of the common people of the old world in the matter of getting books when they want them, and generally free of charge."

The Town to Be Born In.

In the German town of Klingenberg, near Aschaffenberg, Bavaria, in addition to having no rates to pay for the upkeep of the town, those actually born in the parish receive from the municipality a sum of £12 15s. a year. This sum, if invested regularly at, say, 3 per cent, would entitle the owner to receive about £1,500 at the age of sixty—a very handsome old age pension. Were it not necessary that the inhabitants should prove birth in the parish before becoming entitled to this payment the popularity of Klingenberg as a place of residence would doubtless be enormous.—Westminster Gazette.

For Bargain Day.

"She's no lady!"

"Why, I always thought her most refined."

"On the surface, yes. But what do you think of a woman who wears her little boy's football shoes to the bargain sales and spikes every one who gets in her way?"

After Him.

"It's hard to lose your friends," remarked the man who was down and out.

"Hard?" snorted the man who was on the high tide of prosperity. "It's impossible."

The Prompter.

"I suppose that inspiration prompts many of your jokes."

"A few," admitted the press humorist. "Desperation, however, prompts the most."

Practical.

"Darling, I mean to prove my love for you not by words, but by deeds."

"Oh, George did you bring the deeds with you?"

Stella's Dignity.

"Glenn paid me a dandy compliment last night, mother—one that will please you, too," said Stella Harding. "He was talking about the girls in this block and how disgusted the boys were getting with them. He said the trouble with the girls round here was that they had positively no personal dignity, and he never seemed to take into account that I lived in the block myself. But he made up afterward for forgetting. He said not much, he guessed, he didn't mean me; that I was noted for my dignity with all the fellows, and he'd often heard them speak of it. What do you say to that?"

Mrs. Harding was listening with motherly satisfaction. "How did it happen to occur to him that you might be applying it to yourself?" she asked.

"I put it to him straight. I just waited until he stopped for breath, and then I said, 'Well, jiminy, Glenn, is this a slam?'"

"Stella, what a speech! There's no dignity about that!"

"Oh, toot, mamma!" was the laughing response, made without the slightest intention of disrespect. "That's just the way we all talk. Things like that don't count on dignity one way or the other—not in our bunch. It's how you act, don't you know?"—Youth's Companion.

Foxes' Scalps and Salvation.

Some years ago at a session of the legislature of Kentucky an effort to repeal the law offering a bounty on foxes' scalps was made, but was defeated by the appeal of a member from a mountainous and sparsely settled region. "Do the gentlemen want to deprive my constituents and me of the benefits of hearing the gospel preached?" he demanded, with indignation in his tone and overspreading his rugged countenance. "We are all Methodists up my way, and our preachers won't come without we can give 'em chickens, I know. We can't raise chickens unless the foxes are killed by somebody, that's sure, and there ain't anybody that can afford to spend their time hunting foxes and get nothing to pay for it. So, gentlemen, if you repeal this law you'll be depriving my constituents of the benefit of hearing the gospel preached; that's the way it looks to me!" The law was not repealed at that session.—Argonaut.

Engaged as a "Star Turn."

An amusing confusion of identity happened to Sir Henry Bellingham while a guest of the Bishop of Peterborough and Lady Mary Carr Glyn a short time ago. He was mystified by receiving a telegram which read, "Have engaged you as star turn at ——Hippodrome, acrobatic and juggling combined." At first Sir Henry thought some harmless lunatic was playing a joke upon him, until inquiries solved the mystery. The telegram was intended for a music-hall artiste named Bellonini, performing, not at the Bishop's palace, but at the Palace of Varieties in that city.

True Detective Stories

THE MAN WHO CALLED AT NIGHT

BY A. L. DRUMMOND, FORMER CHIEF OF THE U. S SECRET SERVICE.

(Copyright, 1909, by A. L. Drummond and A. L. Benson.)

ON October 18, 1877, I was Chief of the Philadelphia District of the United States Secret Service. On the evening of that day I was reading in my home, No. 731 Wood street, when the doorbell rang. The servant who answered the bell would not let the caller in. She came back and told me a very ugly looking man was standing on the porch. I went out to investigate and found—an old friend. In his time he had been one of the worst criminals in Philadelphia. He still associated with criminals, but not for the purpose of joining them in any of their undertakings. His business was to learn the secrets of his crooked friends and sell the information to the government. And I bought what he had to sell just as the government in time of war will compensate a traitor for revealing facts regarding the plans of the enemy.

I brought the man into the parlor and asked him what he came to tell me.

"Oh, not much," he said. "Maybe you will not care anything about it—it's not in your line. But the gang are going out to-night to do a job somewhere in Jersey. I don't know exactly where. They've found a deaf old farmer, who is supposed to have quite a lot of money in his house, and they intend to roast his feet until he gives up. Who is going along? Oh, Oscar Coogan, Cooper Wiltsey, Austin Keene, Dick King and a man named Chapman who lives over in Camden."

I think I had better stop right here and tell about that band. It was one of four that in the late seventies made their headquarters in Philadelphia. Combined, they conducted an extensive business in crime. They made more counterfeit money than was produced in any other city in the United States. They also did burglaries, hold-ups, tie-ups, assaults and an occasional murder. A tie-up consisted of taking an aged farmer unawares, lashing his hands behind his back and his feet together and putting the soles of his bare feet against a hot stove. In those days there was less confidence in banks than there is now, and the popular criminal method of bringing forth hidden treasure was to roast the feet of the owner.

The members of the bands differed as much in appearance and ability as the crimes did in character. Some of the men would pass anywhere they were not known as well-to-do citizens. Austin W. Keene and his brother Lawrence, for instance, had inherited a good deal of property. They owned a brick block in the business district of Philadelphia until gambling got it away from them, and even after they took to crime they always wore good clothes and looked prosperous.

Others were plain roughs. If they were drinking and a stranger entered who looked as if he had at least two dollars he was invited to take a drink. While his head was tipped back to drain the glass his host would knock him out with the ice pitcher and search his pockets. On nights when there was nothing else to do they amused themselves with cock fights and dog fights. Occasionally dog fighting would seem too tame and one of the outfit would yield to the importunities of his friends and the allurement of a small purse by going down into the pit to fight one of the dogs. A big bulldog once nearly killed his human antagonist. The animal was known to be so vicious that all rules were suspended and the man was permitted to kick as well as to strike, but the dog caught him by the throat and had to be beaten off with a club.

I do not know, however, that I can give any adequate idea of what may be called the "toughness" of some of this crowd without telling a story about an event in which I was concerned that occurred one evening. Dick Brunnassi, an Italian Secret Service man, had seen a thief snatch a girl's watch and had turned the thief over to the police. The girl's father came to my office and wanted to give Dick $25. Brunnassi politely declined the gift, explaining that it would be against the law to accept it and that he would have to perjure himself the next pay day if he did. When Brunnassi went home the following night he found two tons of coal in his cellar, and we were on the way to the home of Dick's persistent friend to tell him to remove the coal when the event of which I shall speak took place.

Just before we reached the man's house we saw a crowd of roughs around Keesey's saloon, at Eleventh and Ellsworth streets, which was the hang-out of one of the bands. The man was not at home, and we had taken up a position outside to wait for him to return, when we saw two of the ugliest of the band start toward us, one following the other. Dick and I both knew they were coming to make trouble. During the four years I was in Philadelphia I was the means of putting 126 of these fellows into the penitentiary, and at that time I had convicted so many that threats had been freely made against my life. Dick was a cool, dependable fellow, however, and I felt we were a match for any two of them.

"Stand on the outside of the sidewalk, Dick," I said, "and when they are within ten feet of us turn sharply and face them until they have passed. I will do the same."

"If they make da trouble," said Dick, "you killa da front man; I killa da back one."

"All right," said I. "Here they come."

The two roughs were swinging along as if they meant to bump into us and start a fight. One of them was the brother-in-law of Lawrence Keene, whom I had sent to the penitentiary for counterfeiting. Dick and I had our revolvers in our side pockets, our fingers on the triggers so we could shoot right through the cloth without drawing our weapons. When the front one came within ten feet of us we both turned with military precision and faced them.

I suspect this trick was all that saved our lives—or possibly theirs—as Lawrence Keene told me afterward that the two men had set out to "do me up." Our quick turn, however, evidently gave them a scare, as they walked on less menacingly, and when they returned to Keesey's saloon the rest of the band gave them the laugh.

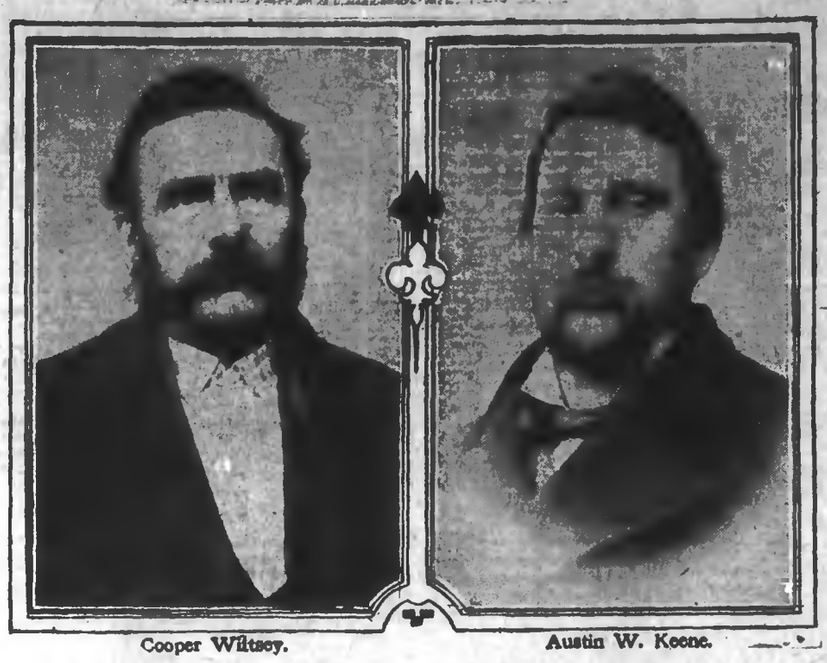
Five men of this kind started out on the night of October 18, 1877, to roast the deaf old farmer's feet. Their intended victim proved to be Joseph Potts, who lived near Mount Holly, New Jersey. They reached his house about midnight, got their tools out of the bags and began work. Somebody tried to raise the windows with a jimmy, but the old man had placed a stick over each sash, which wouldn't bend or break. Then Oscar Coogan started to bore holes through the front door near the lock. By boring the holes close together he made an opening through which he could put his hand. He was reaching through the hole, trying to turn the key in the lock, when a charge of shot tore through the door that almost took off his right arm.

Potts was not so deaf as they had believed him to be. He had heard Coogan boring away at the door, seized his double barrelled shotgun, hastened from his bedroom to the sitting room and fired in the dark at the noise. A moment later he opened the window and let go with the other barrel, this time putting a few shots under the skin of Austin Keene, though not seriously wounding him. The band fled in confusion. The farmer's feet were not roasted. His hoarded wealth, if he had any, was not molested.

All these facts came out in the newspapers the next afternoon. The newspaper accounts, however, contained nothing to show the identity of those who had attempted the robbery. But before the evening newspapers were off the press—in fact, early in the morning—I had gone to the office of Kennard Jones, Chief of Police of Philadelphia, and had given him the names of the five men who, my informant told me, were going out to do the job. Chief Jones put men around their accustomed haunts and within a few hours had arrested Coogan, Keene, King and Chapman. Wiltsey was not found. Coogan's arm was shattered and Keene had shot wounds on his body. All protested their innocence.

The men were indicted and placed on trial at Mount Holly. The prosecution had finished its case and the defence had begun when, one day, Chief Jones came to my office.

"Do you know William Carroll, of Wilmington, Delaware?" he asked.



Cooper Wiltsey. Austin W. Keene.

TWO OF A FAMOUS BAND OF CRIMINALS WITH HEADQUARTERS IN PHILADELPHIA WHICH MADE MORE COUNTERFEIT MONEY THAN WAS PRODUCED IN ANY OTHER CITY IN THE UNITED STATES.

"Yes," I replied. "I know who he is. I know he is a counterfeiter and that he runs a low saloon that is the resort of counterfeiters and other criminals."

"Well, Carroll," continued the Chief, "has just sworn that on the night of the attempted robbery at Potts' house Austin Keene was in his saloon in Wilmington all the evening. They are trying to set up an alibi for him. Carroll has so intimidated two Wilmington detectives who know he is lying that they dare not testify to the truth. Will you go to Mount Holly and tell what you know about Carroll's reputation?"

"I will if my chief will permit me to. More than that, I will ask him to let me go."

I wired to Chief Brookes in Washington the same day, and before night had permission to make the trip.

The next day I was put on the stand by the prosecution.

"Do you know William Carroll's reputation for truth and veracity?" I was asked.

"I do."

"What is it?"

"Very bad."

"Would you believe him under oath?"

"I would not."

"Do you know what his business is?"

"I know he runs a tough saloon that is frequented by criminals and that he is a counterfeiter."

The State's Attorney said he had no more questions to ask, and I was turned over to Keene's lawyer for cross-examination. Keene's attorney was "Bud" Deacon, of Mount Holly, whom I had never seen before, but with whom I afterward became well acquainted.

"Well," said Mr. Deacon, "you seem to know so much about Mr. Carroll, perhaps you can tell the Court and jury how you know his reputation for truth and veracity is so bad."

"I can," I said. "In this particular case I know it is bad because on the night he swore that Keene was in his saloon in Wilmington all the evening I saw him in Philadelphia."

"Where did you see him?"

"I saw him in Keesey's saloon at the corner of Eleventh and Ellsworth streets."

"How did you happen to be in Keesey's saloon?"

"I went there with a man whom I had employed to try to buy counterfeit money from Keene—and he bought some."

Deacon dropped like a hot potato. My testimony for the prosecution had hurt his client little in comparison with what he himself had brought out upon cross-examination. We often laughed about it in after years.

"Why," said he, "I had no intimation of what was coming. Keene had told me he had never seen you."

Coogan, Keene and Chapman were convicted and sentenced to ten years each in the Trenton Penitentiary. Cooper Wiltsey, another of the band that went to the Potts farm house, was still at large.

Wiltsey's time came the next year. He was a character. A big, powerful man, he had about as wicked eyes as I ever saw in any human being. Men generally hated him. Such women as he met almost invariably liked him. He was fifty years old, but the sprinkling of gray in his hair did not handicap him. Always there was some woman to be found who would swear that Cooper Wiltsey was all right.

I knew he was all wrong, but I couldn't prove it. I knew he was a counterfeiter, because men whom I had convicted of passing counterfeit had told me they got their start from him. But the counterfeiter was not more elusive than he. Every time I put my hand out to grab him I found that he had just gone.

Still I kept an eye out for him, and the year after his midnight visit to the Potts farmhouse I got word that he was living in a back room of a house in the business district of Philadelphia. Chief Brookes, whose home was in Philadelphia, happened to be in town when I was ready to make the raid, and he came with us.

It was a frosty winter's night. Wiltsey was supposed to be occupying a room on the second floor. I stationed one man at the foot of the stairs and two others under the windows of the suspected room. Though every other window in the vicinity was closed, these were open, as the bright light inside showed. That was a promising indication. Great heat is required to melt the metal that counterfeiters use, and when they are at work the air about them is like that of a furnace. The counterfeiters themselves, at such times, wear only undershirts, trousers and slippers.

Leaving the Chief with the man at the foot of the stairs, I went up to the room and knocked at the door. There was no response nor was there a sound inside. I knocked again, at the same time calling out, "Open this door, in the name of the law, or I will knock it down." Still there was no response. I stepped back three paces, took a running jump at the door, striking it with my shoulder, and knocked it in.

As I burst into the room my eye quickly caught two figures—that of a woman standing as if she were cast in bronze and that of Wiltsey leaping at me with a fifteen inch stiletto-like carving knife clasped in his hand. I levelled my revolver at his head and told him to stop or I would kill him. He stopped. As I covered him with my gun, I presume twenty seconds elapsed before I spoke again. Then I called to the man I had left down stairs to come up. As I called, Wiltsey's eyes shifted from me to the head of the stairs.

And then I did what the Chief and the others said was a very foolish thing. I dropped my revolver on the floor and grabbed the wrist in which he held the knife. It was all done in a twinkling, without thought on my part, and for a few seconds we struggled, he trying to reverse the direction of the knife and cut the fingers with which I clutched his wrist. But in less time than it takes to tell it the Chief and the other man who had stood at the foot of the stairs bounded into the room. The detective who accompanied the Chief thrust a revolver in Wiltsey's face with a command to drop the knife or have his head blown off the next instant. Wiltsey released his hold on the knife and it fell to the floor. I picked it up and threw it behind a bureau.

"Why didn't you shoot him?" said Chief Brookes. "Never risk your life like that again."

The woman was Sarah Page. We bundled her and Wiltsey off to jail and then went back to clean out the room. Wiltsey's specialty was the making of three dollars and we had caught them in the midst of their day's work. His method was to buy tin and antimony, melt them up, run the metal into a mould and then, with an electric battery, put a thin plating of silver over the composition. A silver dollar contained enough silver to plate five hundred dollars and, as tin was comparatively cheap, Wiltsey made a good profit even though he sold his product at twenty-five or thirty cents on the dollar.

I think we found a bushel of counterfeit dollars strewn about the room and perhaps another bushel of melting pots, moulds, metal, batteries and so forth. Wiltsey was convicted and given a long term—ten years, if I remember correctly. The woman was acquitted.

The last of the series of events that began with the ringing of my doorbell the time the servant would not let my caller in occurred a year or two later. William Carroll had never forgiven me for the testimony I gave about him the time he was trying to fix up an alibi for Austin Keene in the Potts case. I had met Carroll on the street once afterward and he had taken off his hat to me, but those who knew him better than I did advised me always to keep my eyes on him when he was around. I never saw him again, however, and my attention was next directed to him when a friend in Wilmington wrote me that he was dead. He had gone into a saloon next door to his own, fired at the bar-keeper, missed him, and the barkeeper had put a bullet through his brain. He died with his boots on.

WHAT HAPPENED TO DRAKE

A Story.

BY F. W. EDDY.

WITH ample fixed income, current affairs prosperous, a happy income and freedom from outside entanglement there was no reason why Sidney Drake should vanish. No one could imagine why he had done so.

Hence when worry began it affected not only the immediate family, but also the inner hundred in which he moved, the clubs he frequented, business associates to whom he was an asset and minor circles of acquaintances who ordinarily kept in touch with him. Beyond telephone range the telegraph raked the land for tidings of him. Mrs. Drake avoided only the police in her search, for publicity would have been too humiliating, and through all her distresses she held to the faith that all would come right in the end.

Drake's office sign is non-committal as to his occupation. When he talks of business his friends understand that he refers to properties that he manages. There is enough truth in that to pass review. He might have lived quietly and moved well on a genteel inheritance, represented in properties that he took to manage, but he aspired to hold his own in expensive company, to give his wife a place as a social leader and to run with the best. With that motive he accepted in his early married life the confidential agency for a product popularly known as Three C's—Choice Cumberland Club—a function which enabled him to gratify his social desires at no sacrifice of prestige.

He had the knack of obtaining orders without soliciting them—by mere suggestion or advice as an apparently disinterested party. His methods, therefore, were far superior to those of a self-confessed wine agent. It was that diplomatic manipulation of trade which rated him high with his principals, and his convivial qualities kept him in brisk demand among his clients. So, more often than not, this business of presenting the merits of Three C's called him out at night. Until now it had never interfered with his returning home.

At three o'clock that morning, when Drake came out of the café where he and some friends had been proving the superior attractions of the Three C's, he decided that he must have a fresh mackerel for breakfast. Therefore, he headed for Fulton Market to get it.

It is not often that the fish dealers there have a customer in a top hat, patent leathers and broadcloth at three in the morning while they are dressing their stands. They entered into vociferous competition for the honor and pleasure of supplying this interesting customer with as large a fish as he could carry.

Instead of moving homeward with his prize, Drake turned into South street, sauntered up to Peck slip and crossed over to the water front. The air lured him on with just enough motion to cool him gratefully after stuffy hours uptown. He thought the river must look pretty under the moonlight. In order the better to watch its dancing sheen he stepped on a sloop that lay at the pier. Such jewelled treasure had never before enthralled him. The mass of moving color was beautiful beyond his dreams. He felt himself transported to a realm of perfect peace and content.

"Skipper, come and see this fine catch."

"What's that, got a haul already?"

"Yes, sure enough haul; don't look like a mermaid exactly, but I guess it's part human."

Drake caught the drift of this exchange, but it seemed to him to fit naturally into the enchanting scene until he felt himself lifted by the shoulders and a gruff but kindly voice said:—"Ahoy, steady now; did you come here for a picnic, young man, or what's your business?"

Drake rubbed open his wondering eyes. The wand of magic had indeed shifted the scene. Something pushed suddenly from him the moon tipped river, the sheen of moving color, the luring night breeze, and projected in its place the glare of daylight and the grimed faces of a ship's crew; and the sky matched the gray of the sea, over which the ship was bumping with sails double reefed. The night had been real; was he now dreaming?

"You don't look like a seafaring man," the gruff voice went on; "and if you think you're a passenger, we ain't allowed to carry passengers."

Drake surveyed his questioner and then himself. He was forward of the forecastle hatch and had been lifted from a heap of seine nets on which to all appearances he had lain. His silk hat now reposed there, as did the fish bought at Fulton Market, still neatly packed. The expanse of shirt bosom showed signs of having served as a sleeping jacket and his broadcloth needed the iron. Spray had flecked with whitish spots like incipient mildew his patent leathers. The ensemble was too tangible to mistake it for a dream.

"I must have made a blunder," he said. "Where am I, please?"

"Well, you're outside the three mile limit. In fact, you're on the Lucy Ann, of Gloucester, bound for porgies off Cape May. Now, what are you going to do about it?"

"What do you want me to do about it?"

"We can't stand for a passenger or put you ashore. You had better turn to and work your way, I reckon."

"That suits me, but—you must show me. I am green at this business."

"You'll learn soon enough, and some day maybe you'll be glad to have it to fall back on. Now come to the cabin and I'll rig you out."

In the outfit which the skipper gave him Drake joined the men on deck. A shift of wind enabled them to let out the reefs, and under a full spread of canvas the Lucy Ann fairly flew ahead.

Drake had crossed the ocean often enough to know it, and in craft of his own in lesser waters he had felt himself a tolerable sailor, but this was a new sensation. The Lucy Ann seemed to him as much a part of the sea as the birds on its surface or the fish beneath. The crew, who had come round from Glouster on the sloop, were a wholesome sort and let him help with the tackle and about the deck as if they were glad to have him on board.

"WHERE AM I?"

"Shipmate," said the skipper early the next morning, "I suppose you know the sailor's Eleventh Commandment:—'Six days shalt thou labor and do all thy work, and on the seventh scrub down the rigging and holystone the deck.' We let you off the watch last night, so get busy."

Drake put in the Sunday according to the gospel of the sea, and a pair of chafed legs and bruised knuckles and blistered palms convinced him that he was earning his passage. That night the Lucy Ann lay-to under furled sails at the fishing grounds three hundred miles off Cape May.

At four o'clock next morning all hands turned out. They lowered two yawls, piled them with seine nets and rowed off to lay the nets, eight men at the oars in each boat. Then they came back for dories and set out their pickets to keep the nets in order. The breakfast horn blew at eight. No one had to be called twice. Then there was another stretch of picketing and net hauling until the noon meal. The same work had to be done in the afternoon. By dusk, when the last haul had been made, the day's catch was reckoned at two hundred bushels of porgies.

This did not finish the day. There remained the work of cleaning the catch and packing it down in ice. With all hands bustling to their capacity, it was eleven o'clock before they finished. Drake's face smarted with sunburn, his hands were red and swollen and the lines had dug deep into his blistered palms. He made no complaint. Everybody got the same treatment, the same hours, the same labor, and everybody took his medicine man fashion. The skipper fed his crew well. That kind of work demanded it. But fagged out as he was, when Drake got to his bunk at eleven that night he found time before he went to sleep to wonder if the folks at home were worried, and to wish himself back.

The second day passed as had the first at the fishing grounds—up at four o'clock, breakfast at eight, keeping the nets properly laid and hauling them in on occasion, and that night the catch again measured two hundred bushels. At meals Drake was carried back to the ravenous hunger of his youth in outing days, when everything tasted good, and he wanted the plate piled high and often. He could feel the return of youth, also, in the surging of his blood, and, lame as they were, his muscles quickened with the lust of action.

Good luck had saved him from a boodlum crew, recruited along the city wharves, and had cast him among messmates from the far North, where sailors know only the sea and share its heartiness. He learned to address them by their first names, and from Skipper Jack down they all called him Sid and took him into fellowship from the beginning.

Captivated by the trim and businesslike behavior of the Lucy Ann when he first observed her at sea, he had grown really fond of her with ripening acquaintance. So it was with a tinge of regret that he found the Lucy Ann, just one week after departure from port, tying up again at Peck slip. Drake sought the skipper.

"You have been mighty good to me," he said, "and I don't remember when I felt as well as I do now. I know I must have been a lot of trouble to you. How much will make it right?"

"Cut that short, Sid," came the skipper's reply. "We were all glad to have you along even if you weren't invited. You may be a gentleman, but you held your end up. I wish we had you for regular company. As to how much will make it right, I am sorry I can't allow you wages, for the list was full when you joined us; but we had a quick trip and good catch and you are in on the division of extra profits. I figure your share is $4.50."

As unexpectedly as the sea had swallowed him it yielded him up. Mrs. Drake had quite decided that she must ask the police to put out their drag nets when Drake appeared before her. The sight made her speechless, for her astonished gaze fell, not on her well groomed husband of other days, but on his presentment in an oil smeared sweater and ill used boots and trousers, his countenance like a pumpkin and his hands rough and calloused and furrowed. A bit of well roped tarpaulin encased the evening attire in which she had last seen him. Unfolding another bundle, he exposed a mess of porgies.

"Caught them myself," he said, "and can guarantee them fresh."

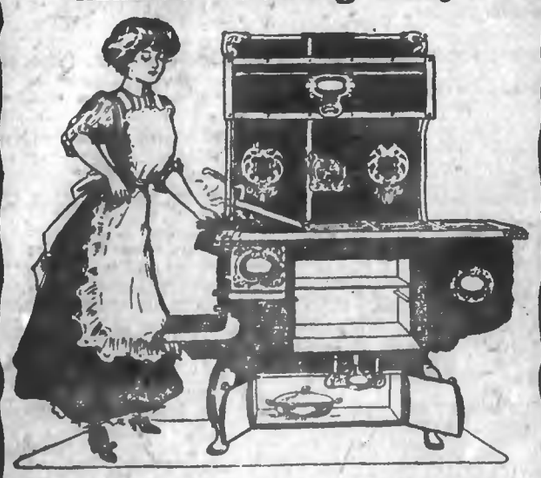
"Sidney! What"——

"Some other time, my dear. I've had the experience of my life. It has made a new man of me. And I think it has taught me to quit being my own best customer."

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND SLEEP.

SCHOOL children sleep on an average about three hours less a day than they ought. This conclusion, drawn from investigation of 6,000 cases in England, has just been reported to the Child Study Society. Probably inquiry in this country would elicit similar information. In London, not only do the children get insufficient sleep, but what they have is unsatisfactory. Bad ventilation, noise and late work are responsible in most instances. In certain cases where children were observed to fall asleep over their lessons it was found that they had been forced by their parents to drive milk wagons before school, starting as early as half-past five o'clock. Children need more sleep than adults, and to deprive them of it in this way is worse than starving them. Deterioration of the race will surely result.

This Lift Key Plate Makes Broiling Easy



It is much more convenient to do your broiling by lifting this key plate than to lift the cover or do your broiling through the broiler door. You have much more room and get directly over the coal.

The new low closet in this year's "Peerless Peninsular" is a convenience that will commend itself immediately to all house-keepers. The steel drop oven door was first applied to the "Peerless Peninsular"—the range that is always first in efficiency and convenience.

The Adjustable Damper—Thermometer in Oven—Daylight Oven—Removable Grate Bars, etc., are only a few of the other features that you should ask your dealer about.

The "Peerless Peninsular" has all the space saving advantages of a Steel Range and at the same time is cast-iron, the best material for any stove.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

December 27, 1908.

Review—Read Prov. iv.

Golden Text—Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life. Prov. iv:23.

A profitable review of the last twelve lessons may be had from the plan which follows. Read each lesson for the term, and then repeat the golden texts, and answer one question from each lesson as follows:

October 4—David brings the Ark to Jerusalem. II Sam. 6.

Golden Text.—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving, and into his courts with praise. Psalm 100:4.

Verses 1-4.—If a man is highly educated, successful and popular, but neglects the house of God, and personal religion, what does he gain or lose as a result? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

October 11—God's promise to David.—1 Chron. xvii.

Golden Text—There hath not failed one word of all his good promise.—I Kings, viii:56.

Verses 7-8—Is a blacksmith, or machinist, or farmer, or daily labourer, just as dear to the heart of God as one who is rich and in an exalted position?

Oct. 18—David's kindness to Jonathan's son. II Sam. ix.

Golden Text—Be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another. Eph. iv:32.

Verses 11-13—Should the State make provision to keep the aged and all who are not able to support themselves?

October 25—The Joy of Forgiveness. Ps. 32.

Golden Text—Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Psalm 32:1.

Verses 3-4. Compare two men, one who hushes the voice of God in his soul; and another who listens to that voice and obeys, and say what, if any, effect, the habits of these men will have upon the length of their lives.

Nov. 1—Absalom rebels against David.—II Sam. xv.

Golden Text—Honour thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land that the Lord thy God giveth thee. Ex. xx:12.

Verse 23—May we expect to win in any battle if our hearts are filled with fear?

Nov. 8—David grieves for Absalom.—II Sam. xviii.

Golden Text—A foolish son is a grief to his father. Prov. xvii:25.

Verse 33—What can you say, for or against the pathetic grief of this heartbroken father, at the death of his worse than worthless son?

Nov. 15—The Lord our Shepherd—Psalm 23.

Golden Text—The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want. Psalm 23:1.

Verse 1—Does scientific research and our fuller knowledge of the vast network of worlds in the universe tend to weaken or strengthen our faith in God's individual love and care for each person?

Nov. 22—Solomon annointed King. Kings 1:1-2:12.

Golden Text—Know that the God of thy Father, and serve him with a perfect heart and with a willing mind. I Chron. xxviii:9.

Verse 6—Are unusual good looks, and ability generally, a help or a hindrance to character?

Nov. 29—World's Temperance Sunday.—Isaiah xxviii:1-13.

Golden Text—I keep under my body and bring it into subjection. I Cor, ix:27.

Verse 2—Is it possible for a nation of drinkers to permanently prosper?

Dec. 6—Solomon chooses Wisdom—I Kings iii:4-15.

Golden Text—The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Prov. ix:10.

Verse 13—Will every true Christian have all the riches and honour that are good for him?

Dec. 13—Solomon dedicates the Temple. I Kings viii.

Golden Text.—I was glad when they said unto me let us go into the house of the Lord. Psalm 122:1.

Verses 1-11—What is the chief institution of a nation, and what is the chief duty of a man?

Dec. 20.—Solomon's downfall. I Kings xi:4-13.

Golden Text—Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Ex. xx:3.

Verses 6-9—Hundreds of strong brainy men are serving long terms in penitentiaries; what proportion of them would be there if they had been true to the Christian's God?

Lesson for Sunday, Jan. 3, 1909—The ascension of our Lord. Acts 11-14.

YOUR BREAKFAST BY ELECTRICITY

The Modern Breakfast is Cooked on the Dining Room Table Without Long Waits for Slow Fires—Latest in Breakfast Utensils.

GENERAL ELECTRICAL NEWS

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 24th—(Electric News Service)—Thanks to the science of electricity, the trouble and delay of getting breakfast has been reduced to a minimum. No longer does the man of the house tread nervously about the dining room while the good wife patiently shakes the kitchen range and endeavours to hurry the sluggish fire so her "lord and master" can have his breakfast before going to work. And then just as the reluctant teakettle begins to boil his last car comes round the corner and he slams the front door and hurries breakfastless to work.

Breakfast these days, in a modern home, is merely a matter of pushing the butter. Snap a switch and the invisible current boils the water in the teakettle. Another switch turned and the coffee percolator begins to sputter, and in a few minutes the cereal is cooking and the eggs are being boiled, poached, steamed or fried. The toast can be made as needed on the breakfast table, and, for that matter, all of the electrical devices can be used right on the table without needless heat or danger.

The very latest of the breakfast utensils is the electric toaster. This device is inexpensive and most efficient. The bread to be toasted is placed in a vertical position on either side of the heating element. By this method the bread is not burned as it is on horizontal toasters. It only takes about thirr minutes to prepare two nice browned slices from the time the current is turned on. The base of the new radiant toaster is made of porcelain through which projects the terminals of the heating element. To this base is attached a neat wire frame or cage for holding the slices to be toasted on either side of the heating unit. The heating element consists of four zig-zag coils of special resistance wire suspended vertically. The four heating coils being connected in multiple all danger of short-circuiting the device with a fork is eliminated.

On account of the heavy vibrations of the ground due to factory work, it is necessary to conduct much of the finer test work at the General Electric Company's plants on Sundays and holidays when the great plants are idle. So sensitive are many of the testing instruments that shafts of the most substantial materials are placed deep in the ground and supported by shock arresters to insure the absolute steadiness of the top surface.

The first electric ferryboat in Germany has just been launched at Duisburg. It has twin screws, which are propelled by two electric motors of 60 horse-power capacity. The boat can carry 645 passengers, besides horses, automobiles and vehicles.

The latest household electrical device is a machine which scrubs, sandpaper, waxes or polishes any kind of a floor. The device takes current from the light fixture and will clean corners as readily as the centre of the floor.

A movement is on foot to introduce trackless trolley lines in Ireland. The first probably will be from Donnybrook to Bray.

BOTH PHONES 50

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

Sold at the same prices EVERYWHERE

It is Mr. Edison's desire that a Phonograph should not only be cheap enough for everyone to own one, but also that everyone should enjoy the same advantage in purchasing it.

Wherever you buy an Edison Phonograph you buy it at the same price. The purchaser in the small country town has the same advantage as those who live in large cities.

Not only is the Edison Phonograph uniform in price, but it is also uniform in quality. Everyone that leaves our factory is good, has been carefully tested, will play perfectly, and will furnish unbounded enjoyment.

Edison Amberol Records

There are two kinds of Records for the Edison Phonograph—the old two-minute Records of the past, which are still made and which still afford much enjoyment, and the new Amberol Records, which play more than twice as long and are better.

The new Records can be played on any Edison Phonograph by means of an attachment which you can get for a small sum of your dealer. If you buy a new Phonograph, you can buy it with the attachment so as to play both kinds of Records, and thus have the widest possible range of music and entertainment for your instrument.

Big Budget Of Hastings News; Interesting Items In Connection With Life Of The Busy Village

Examiner Special

Hastings, Dec. 23.—Miss Moore, of Castleton, has returned to her home after having spent a pleasant holiday with friends in town.

Rev. and Mrs. Barrett spent a few days in Castleton last week.

The sacrament of the Lord's supper was observed in the Presbyterian Church here last Sunday morning, Rev. D A Thomson officiating.

Mr. J Anderson, of Winnipeg, is visiting his mother, Mrs. A Anderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beavis, of Lakefield, attended the funeral of Mrs. Frank Parker, of Asphodel on Monday, 14th Dec.

We are pleased to see Miss Annie Jamieson around again after her recent illness from la grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. J Stewart entertained a few of their friends at their home on Wednesday evening last. A very enjoyable evening was spent and the young people went home sounding the praises of their host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. J O'Donohue's many friends sympathise with them in the loss of their infant son, which occurred after a short illness.

The committee in charge of the Christmas entertainment in connection with the Methodist Sunday School, have secured the services of "Little Annie Christie," the child elocutionist, of Peterborough, to assist in the programme.

We are glad to be able to report that Mrs. T Gilchrist is much improved in health and we hope soon to see her enjoying her wonted vigour.

Mr. Geo. Oliver, of this vicinity, has purchased a very fine colt from an Asphodel farmer for which he paid a handsome sum.

This town presents quite a lively appearance just now, the citizens are all intent on Christmas shopping, while our local business men are all on the alert as to who shall do the most extensive holiday trade.

The sympathy of the whole community is extended to the widow and children of the late Mr. John Francis, who was formerly a resident of Asphodel and was well known in the village, being a prominent member of the Hastings lodge of Oddfellows and an ex-councillor to the township.

Mrs. Valleau spent Monday with friends in Norwood.

It is rumoured that Dr. Wilson will be a candidate for the reeveship for 1909.

Mr. Thos. Dickey, of Toronto, is visiting friends in Hastings and vicinity.

Mrs .W Fowlds spent Tuesday in Norwood.

Mr. Wm. Way, who recently disposed of his farm stock, etc., has moved to town.

Reeve Learmouth was in Cobourg last week attending the final meeting of the County Council.

Mr. and Mrs. J Bowar and children of Vancouver, have been guests of their uncle, Mr John Preston, of Asphodel.

Miss K Graham was in Norwood on Tuesday.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Geo. Hormel is suffering from an attack of tonsilitis.

Mrs .Thos .Weir and children, at C. O.R. Junction, are spending a holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mr. P. Kimhirst.

Mr. B Gibson has been suffering from an attack of la grippe.

Mrs. E Valleau has returned after a pleasant visit with friends in Codrington.

The Misses Sutherland are guests at the home of their sister, Mrs. F W Fowlds.

Mrs. J Monnett, of Niagara, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. A Scriver.

The many friends of Mrs. H Wilson are pleased to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness.

Mr. R Dickey and family, of Regina, are on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Matthew Dickey.

To all appearances we are likely to have the skating rink in good order in a short time, as Mr. J Coughlan is levelling and otherwise getting things in order.

Good hardwood is being brought into town and can be purchased at $5 per cord. This is an improvement on this time last year.

At the annual meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League, which was held at Havelock on Friday evening, the 4th inst., Mr. J Coughlan of Hastings, was placed on the Executive Committee. It was decided that each district arrange their own schedule. District No. I will meet at Hastings with Mr. Pearce as convener.

A number of the farmers from this locality attended the auction sale of Mr. W Howson, of Norwood, last week.

A new pipe-organ has been placed in the English Church and is now ready for use at the church services.

Miss Fife of Peterborough, the gifted pianist, who rendered such choice music at the concert under the auspices of the Presbyterian church here, on Friday evening last, is a niece of Mr. Duncan Tucker, of town.

Lakefield, Dec. 23—Mrs Thomas Darcy and Mrs W H Darcy of Burleigh Falls left on Friday last to visit friends in Toronto, Rochester and New York.

Mrs G Evans Atwood and children of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs C Atwood at Ashelworth on Monday last.

Mr Wm Smith who for the past several weeks has been lying seriously ill with typhoid fever has now passed the crisis and is on a fair way to recovery.

Miss Traill returned home from Peterborough on Friday last.

Miss Ethel Cox of Winnipeg is at present in the village visiting her parents Mr and Mrs Cox.

On Thursday last while Mr William Leggott was working on an electric light pole on Regent street a wire broke and he fell to the ground a distance of about 30 feet. Medical aid was immediately summoned and it was found that though his shoulders were badly sprained no bones were broken. The escape from serious injury was a miraculous one Mr Leggott falling directly on his back. It will be sometime before he will be able to resume his work.

Mr E Singer was in Peterborough on Monday on business.

Miss Penny left on Friday last for Peterborough where she will be the guest of Mrs Palmer for a few days before going to Toronto for the winter.

Rev Beverly Smith, M.A., rector of the Toronto Junction Anglican church addressed a large meeting in the Town Hall on Monday evening on the question of social and moral reform.

Miss Mellade teacher in one of the junior rooms in the public school was obliged to return to her home at Omemee last week having contracted the fashionable malady mumps so prevalent just now in the village.

Mrs William Cawthard has returned after spending the past month at Rodney, Ont.

Mr. John McGrath, who for the past four years has been superintendent for the Tate-Lillierap Lumber Company, has purchased the site of the old White saw mill and is now building a new mill which will have a capacity of 15,000 feet daily. Mr. McGrath expects the mill will be ready for operation by the beginning of the new year.

A Very Strange Jumble Of Human Contradictions And Qualities In Queer Old China

Brave as the Bravest Yet Subject to a Few Savage Interlopers—More Honest Than Most White Men.

ORTHODOX IN SOME WAYS

Many strange things have occurred in China recently to attract the attention of the Western world. A promise of a constitution, to become operative in about ten years, was made about a month ago, but the effort seems to have been too great for the sensibilities of the sensible old woman who has been the real ruler of China for many years, as she died within the past week and the legal ruler, the Emperor, died so near the same hour and day that it will not be impossible for their subjects ot believe that the young man and the old lady followed and watched each other on the way to the sort of haven the Chinese believe in as they watched and followed each other even since the Emperor became old enough to sit up and take notice.

Speaking of heaven should remind us that the Emperor of China, no matter how young, inexperienced or feeble-minded he may be, is to his subjects the Son of Heaven and is in frequent and familiar conversation with Deity. To disbelieve this is the rankest treason; Chinamen may rebel against the government, kill government soldiers and officials yet be forgiven if they have political influence which can be turned to account or have money enough to buy a substitute who is willing to be beheaded or tortured in their stead, but if they express a doubt of the divinity of the Emperor their only hope is in disappearing before they can be caught.

Yet of the several hundred million of people who inhabit China, there is only about one in forty who does not hate "The Son of Heaven" as stoutly as a tramp hates work. For the Emperor is not a real Chinaman, but a Mantchu and his own entire race has never numbered ten million people. There had not been a Chinaman on the imperial throne in two hundred and fifty years—not since the day when a band of warlike Mantchus swept down from the North, while disorder in Pekin made a surprise easy, and took possession of the government. Since that day a Chinaman of ancient lineage and pure blood has seldom been allowed to take any part of the general government or provincial control unless he chanced to be so much cleverer than the ruling class that some use could be made of him; even in such case he was so closely spied upon and guarded that he was practically a prisoner. Otherwise his lot was not hard for any man of position in government affairs has been expected to squeeze a comfortable livelihood from everybody and anybody under his authority. The late Li Hung Chang, who became very influential and wealthy, was of pure Chinese blood but he only saved his money and his head by maintaining so large an army of his own that the government was afraid to disturb him. Until her war with Japan, and her disgraceful defeat, taught China something about her military deficiencies there was not a day in twenty years on which Li Hung Chang could not have taken possession of the capital with his own forces, deposed the Emperor and put himself on the throne. But the old man was too sensible to indulge in such foolery; so far as a man's life consisted in the abundance of his possessions and in not having any one to interfere with him or them, Li saw that he was better off than his own emperor or any other.

Li's was not the only great army aside from the government's own troops, although it was by far the best. Provincial governors have their own armies and those whose territory is on the sea-coasts have their own navies, if they wish. Then forces are not like the militia and "naval reserves" of our own states in being subject to the national call in certain contingencies. Pekin must use either persuasion or pelf if it expects to get service from the provincial troops; in fact, it seldom cares to use them, for there is no love lost between provinces nor is there enough national spirit in China to agree on anything except a general hatred of foreigners. The Provincial governors are supposed to be appointed by the throne, as usually they are, but should the Emperor wish to remove a governor from office he would be at his wit's end to devise a better method than to hire an assassin. Fortunately the causes for removal are few—so few that they may be boiled down to a single one—too little money sent to Pekin. There is no general system of taxation in the land, the governor, before taking office, has been told how much money he should send to Pekin each year, and the sum is never more than can be squeezed out of the people ,with enough more to satisfy all the needs and longings of the governor himself. All officials are supposed to be "squeezers"—no other English word so fully describes them, although the operations incident to getting the money are much more like a hold-up than a squeeze. New methods of doing official business have been imported from Europe and the United States and some of them have been sampled, but in so gingerly a manner that it can not be said that they promise to be popular.

All the ways thus far described are peculiar to the ruling class—the Mantchus. The better Chinamen proper, corresponding to our own business class, are said to be the honestest people on earth. Such a statement is hard to be believed by Americans, whose knowledge of the race is based on Pacific coast yarns about "the heathen Chinee" and newspaper tales of the depravity of settlements of Chinese laundrymen in our larger cities. These laundrymen by the way, are almost all from the "wharf-rat" portion of the single city of Canton, in which almost a third of the population, or quite a million people, live or boats of all kinds that pack closely together along the riverside, their inhabitants getting what living they can by boatmen's work and fishing. To judge all Chinamen by them is as unfair as it would be to set up the American longshoreman or English "Navvy" as the mental and moral standard of the nation.

To return to the Chinese business class, the good qualities attributed to them must be there, for they are mentioned by all classes of travellers and tourists who have come in close business contact with the men themselves. Pious missionaries, profane shipmasters, professional buyers for large European and American firms, private travellers who did not leave either their eyes or their manners at home, salesmen for foreign goods are at substantial agreement about Chinese business morality.

The same may be said regarding the local governments of towns, small cities and other places too small or poor to have a formal ruler imposed upon them. Any traveller, even a hated foreigner, who is subjected to loss or annoyance while passing through a town can be sure of getting redress and financial damages at once; he does not even have to summon his own witnesses, for the mayor, or whoever occupies a corresponding position, knows how to get at any one who has seen the occurrence. Honesty may not be the only motive that leads to justice in such cases for if the complaint were disregarded and the complainant were obliged to go "higher up" for satisfaction, the authorites higher up would pay the claim for the joy of taking it out of the community at fault, at the same time taking from five to ten times as much more, partly as punishment but principally for Mr. Higher Up's private pocket.

Heathen Chinee are said to be, they are extremely orthodox in one particular:—they believe in hell as a place of punishment for the wicked and impenitent. But they have some entirely original ideas on the subject, and one of them is that any sinner, no matter how vile, can buy his way out of hell if he has enough money or if his friends will put up the cash for him; it may be remarked truthfully, in this connection, that family feeling is very strong among the Chinese and that they will spend more cash for the dead than for the living, if they are sure of where it is going and who is to do the dickering. It is common belief that the already mentioned Li Hung Chang, who in spite of his great abilities had a few things to answer for when he died, went straight to hell but was detained only a few minutes, and in a comfortable ante-room with fans of all sizes at hand and iced drinks at the side, for he had carried a very large-sized "wad" with him and was able to make a settlement on the spot. This beleif in the efficacy of money has its good points, for no one ever sees or hears of a spendthrift China; he may have vices and indulgences but he contents himself with such as are of bargain counter grade so that he may be sure of money to pay his way out of hell and also in the presence of his favorite gods.

Because they are ruled by a mere handful of outsiders, the Chinese are accounted a cowardly race, but a lot of splendid English and American fighters, of whom the immortal Gordon was one, have insisted that there is no better fighting stock in the world. The Chinese peasant is strong, hardy, fearless, tireless and has so much trouble in getting enough to eat and wear that he will cheerfully fight and die like a hero for any one who will assure him that he shall not go hungry or cold. If ever China becomes a national unity, under Chinese leaders, and is badgered into a fight with some foreign nation—well, "The Yellow Peril" is already a perennial scare in the military circles of the European nations and will appear more frequently in the future, for China's army, or armies, no longer carry bows and arrows and wear masks to frighten their enemies; they have thousands of Japanese instructors and hundreds of thousands of new-model rifles and millions of rounds of ammunition.

But we have mentioned only a few of the queer things that may be said about China. A nation that has attended strictly to its own affairs for four thousand years, and was better civilized at the time they began than Englishmen were when Julius Cæsar landed, can't help being original. And you know the old saying—"Be orginal and you'll be queer."

GARGOYLE.

WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD

Mi-o-na Has Reached a Gold Standard, Says Harry Ellis of Fergus, For Stomach Trouble.

Harry Ellis, of Fergus, Ont., says: "I believe that Mi-o-na for the cure of stomach trouble is worth its weight in gold. It cured me from a stomach difficulty that seemed to puzzle all other prescriptions and remedies. I was unable to eat, the food would ferment and form gas and make a serious pressure on my heart. There were terrible pains in the pit of my stomach. I became weak, drowsy, discouraged and later I got nervous and could not sleep or rest. This disease makes one feel like not wanting to see any human being and produces melancoly and forebodings. I was told to try Mi-o-na, and (weight) I commenced on the first box I had hardly any faith in it, but the first two days' treatment made the pain in my stomach cease, and to make a long story short, the upshot of my using Mi-o-na was that it cured me wholly, and I now can eat what I like and when I am hungry. I am an ardent advocate of the use of Mi-o-na."

Wm. Madill sells Mi-o-na Tablets, the dyspepsia remedy that is making such surprising cures throughout Canada, for 50 cents a box, guaranteed them to

RATTRAY ASKED SEVERAL LOCAL MEN TO GO SOUTH WITH HIM; EVIDENCE HEARD IN THEFT CASE

Mr. Connors Testified to Placing of Money in Cash Drawers and to its Disappearance Next Morning —Case Enlarged for One Week.

RATTRAY HAD NO COUNSEL

The preliminary hearing in the case of William Rattray, who is charged with stealing $203.15 from Martin Connors, proprietor of the City Hotel, in September, was commenced before Magistrate Dumble on Thursday afternoon in the presence of a very large crowd of interested spectators. Rattray declined to elect and pleaded not guilty.

Martin Connors was the first witness. He told of drawing out $1,000 from the Bank of Ottawa on the day before the robbery for the purpose of cashing Canadian General Electric Company's pay checks. This money had been put in a drawer beneath the cash register in the bar. During the evening $203.85 had been paid out and the balance was in the drawer when the proprietor locked up the bar, shortly after 11 o'clock that night. Next morning he was called by his bartender who had found the window of the bar down. Witness had hurried down stairs and on opening the drawer which was not locked, had found the money gone with the exception of $80 in silver and 2 ten dollar bills. There were marks on the window as if a knife had been used and marks on the sill. Witness had seen the defendant who formerly worked for him around the hotel, the day before. He had had his dinner and supper there and had had no tussle. Witness told of a conversation which he had had with the prisoner after his arrest, in which he had promised to do his best to get Rattray off if he would return the money.

Fred Miller testified to having seen Rattray the day before the robbery. Prisoner had asked him to go south with him and witness had declined. There had been no explanation of how they were to go south, but after hearing of the robbery witness had surmised that it was Rattray because of what he had said to him.

Jas. O'Toole gave evidence to the effect that he had seen Rattray near the corner of Charlotte and George streets between 11 and 12 o'clock on the night before the robbery. The prisoner asked him to go south with him, but he had refused the offer. Rattray had said something about not wanting to go empty handed or broke. Witness admitted that he had told someone afterwards that if he had known that the prisoner was going to rob Martin Connors he would have told him, as he knew that Mr. Connors was a good friend to the prisoner.

Edward Donaghue also gave evidence in regard to seeing Rattray on the night before the robbery at the corner of Charlotte and George streets. He had had no conversation with him except that he had given Rattray a cigarette paper when asked for one.

Herb Landry was the next witness but his evidence which was to the effect that he had seen Rattray in town the day before the robbery was unimportant.

At this point the case was adjourned for one week at the request of Crown Attorney Wood, who was prosecuting. Rattray was not represented by counsel and did not cross examine the witnesses.

The case will be resumed next Tuesday morning, and the prisoner will spend the interim in gaol.

A PRESENTATION IN UXBRIDGE TO LOCAL NORMAL TEACHER

In the report of a High School concert in Uxbridge, given in the Uxbridge Times of December 24th, appears the following:

During the intermission, Dr. H. Basson, on behalf of the pupils and ex-pupils of the school, read an address to Dr. H. G. Park, of Peterborough, eulogising him for the excellent work that he had done for the school and the far-reaching effect that his training had on their lives. As a memento a box of cutlery and a Morris chair were presented by Miss Alma Gould and Mr. Frank Dure to the doctor, who replied at some length, thanking the pupils for kindness, intimating positively that this was his last appearance.

DR. MARSH GIVES LECTURE IN A WARSAW CHURCH

Rev. Dr. Marsh was in Warsaw last night, when he gave a lecture on "A Night in the Skies, in the Warsaw Methodist church. The building was filled to the doors. A distribution of presents among the young folks followed the lecture.

A MERRY XMAS FOR CHILDREN AT SHELTER

The Christmas tree held at the Children's Shelter yesterday, was the most pleasant event that ever graced the interior of the Shelter in Peterborough. The tree was laden with beautiful gifts for the young folks, the generosity of the citizens of Peterborough being responsible for this. Mr. Angus McLean, grain buyer of Fenelon Falls, and brother-in-law of Mr. Henry, acted as Santa Claus. The neighbouring children called and assisted those at the Shelter to have, indeed, a very Merry Christmas.

MR. PRATLEY MEETS WITH SUCCESS IN HIS EXAMINATIONS

Mr George Pratley, 155 River Road Auburn, has received notice from the examining board of the department of Agriculture, Toronto, informing him that he had been successful in securing a Stationary Engineer's Certificate. The many friends of Mr Pratley will congratulate him on his success

MR. ELCOME WAS HONOURED BY BIBLE CLASS LAST SUNDAY

A very pleasing event took place at the Murray street Baptist Sunday school on Sunday last when the members of Mr. E Elcome's Bible class presented him with six handsomely bound volumes of Matthew Henry's comments on the Bible. The presentation was made at the conclusion of the study for the day, by Mr. Benj. Matthews, the oldest member of the class and a former teacher of the organization. Mr. Elcome made a pleasing reply, thanking the members of his class for their kindness. Rev. J R Webb, the pastor of the church, also added a few words of appreciation of Mr. Elcome's services.

ACCUSED HER HUSBAND OF BIGAMY AND OF SHOOTING TWO PEOPLE IN TORONTO; SENSATIONAL CHARGES IN POLICE COURT

Mrs. Chas. Rotchford Told a Thrilling Story to Police Magistrate Dumble This Morning—Husband Had Threatened Son With an Axe

REMANDED FOR ONE WEEK

That he had made a wife and family when he married her, that he had shot two people with intent to kill, and that he was afraid to go to Toronto for fear that it would be arrested on that account; that he had stolen toys on Christmas Eve, and coming home drunk had tried to hit his little son with an axe because he would not accompany him on another thieving expedition, were some of the sensational charges made by Mrs. Charles Rotchford, against her husband, who was charged this morning with creating a disturbance. Rotchford when asked to plead answered that he didn't know anything about it.

Mrs. Rotchford was called into the witness box and told the following story: "He came home on Christmas Eve, drunk, and with a sleigh and several other toys which he said he had brought home for the children. I ask him where he had got them and he said that he flapped them under his coat. He told me I could get plenty of furs in the same way and asked me to go down with him after me. I refused and then he asked the little boy to go. The boy commenced to cry and said that he was afraid to go, whereupon he got an axe and smashed the sleigh which he had brought, and then swung the axe and was bringing it down upon the boy's head when I knocked his arm away. He then seized me by the throat but I escaped with the boy, ran into the street.

He hasn't worked for three months and I have had to keep him and two children. He has another wife and family in Canada, and the police are looking for him in Toronto for shooting two people with intent to kill. He is afraid to go back there on that account."

"You knew I had another wife nine years ago," shouted the prisoner.

Mrs. Rotchford went on to say that she had been compelled to have her husband before the Magistrate in Bowmanville because he had ill-treated her.

Rotchford was remanded for a week while the police will look into his history.

PETERBORO' BOY SERVED IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR

After an absence of twenty years from Peterborough, and his friends here, Mr. Jas. Hunter is visiting his mother, Mr. Wm. Hunter, Roger street, East City. It has been learned that during his absence he saw active service in the Spanish-American War, both in Cuba and the Philippines. He has been warmly received by his many friends here, who have welcomed him back again to the city of his youth.

NEIGHBOURS GOOD TO PETERBOROUGH FIREMEN YESTERDAY

The members of the fire department appreciate the kindness of their neighbours who, on Christmas eve, remembered them in a materiel manner, which the firemen thoroughly enjoyed. Among the gifts were a gallon of oysters, several crates of oranges and an abundant supply of cigars. Dr. Greer presented each of the men with a box of cigars, and Ald. Johnston remembered them with cigars and oranges. The kindness of the neighbours helped to make the environment something like home, and the firemen are very grateful to them.

WEST PETERBOROUGH ELECTION PROTEST

The matter of the West Peterborough election petition came before Mr. Justice Britton this morning, at Osgoode Hall, Toronto,, under the writ of Mr. Watson, for a stay of all proceedings pending the disposal of the appeal from his judgment upon the preliminary objections. An order was made staying all proceedings in pending the decision of the Superior Court on the appeal made. The Supreme Court holds its first sittings in the new year—in the last week of February.

CLOTS OF BLOOD IN STOVE AND FURNACE STORE SHOW TRAVELS OF A LONE MIDNIGHT MARAUDER

Some time during Thursday night Mr. A. E. Mick's stove and furnace store on Hunter street was broken into. A trestle was built up the back window and a small pane of glass taken out. The thief crawled through this and unlocked the back door, and whoever he was cut his hand or some other part of his anatomy, as there are drops of blood on everything that he had touched. He attempted to pick the lock of the safe, but only succeeded in bending it in such a way that Mr. Micks had to call in a man to fix it. He went to the show, case and took a package of knives, but that is all known to be missing. The police have been notified and will have men put on the tracks of the burglar.

Girl Employees Of City Buildings Entertained The Various Officials

A most pleasant Christmas Eve surprise was that provided by the five young ladies engaged in the offices of the city buildings at 5 o'clock on Thursday evening when they entertained the heads and staffs of the different city hall departments to a high tea in the large committee room of the buildings. It is needless to say that all the city officials including his worship Mayor Rush, Police Magistrate, Dumble and Chief of Police Rostel accepted the invitation and that they were surprised and delighted is but putting it mildly.

The young ladies had exerted every effort to make the affair a success and they achieved their aim admirably. The table was beautifully decorated for the occasion, with a large yule log smothered in holly in the centre surrounded by cut flowers.

The delightful menu included turkey, goose, salads, jellies, cakes, candies, fancy breads, Christmas cake ices and tea and coffee. The city officials did ample justice to the array of good things provided, the hospitality of the young ladies being greatly appreciated.

After the needs of the inner man had been satisfied a resolution of thanks to the young hostesses moved by Mr D. W. Dumble, seconded by Chief Rostel and endorsed by his worship Mayor Rush was carried with standing applause and musical honours.

Miss Edna Armstrong acknowledged the resolution in a very prettily worded little speech which was received with applause and the dainty little supper brought to a close.

IN COLLISION AT SEA

Mr. Hugh Lane Writes to Peterborough Friend Describing Collision Off Dover ---He Was On One of the Vessels Bound for New Zealand.

BOTH VESSELS WERE BEACHED

Mr Hugh Lane who resided in Peterboro' for some time but returned about a year ago to the old country has written a friend in Peterborough telling him of his experience in a collision in the English Channel. In company with his wife he was leaving for New Zealand during the early part of the month and was sailing on the "Tongarino" when the accident occurred during the dark hours of the night.

In the dark the Tongarino crashed into a home going vessel, staving a huge hole in its side with the result that it had to be beached in Dover Harbour in short order and was almost lost. It was carrying a heavy

Stony Lake Youth Has Foot Badly Cut While Operating Shingle Saw In A Sawmill

Examiner Special.

Norwood, Dec. 26. — Mr. Thomas Puffer, a young man about twenty-two years of age, the eldest son of Mr. William Puffer, of Stony Lake, met with a serious accident at their shingle mill on the shore of the lake the other day. He was sitting on a box in front of the edger, edging shingles and without thinking, the saw being unprotected, shifted his foot in front of the big, rapidly revolving circular. The saw caught it and almost before he could realize what had happened, cut through the boot, severing the foot from the centre of the instep outward between the third and fourth toes. He managed to walk to the house and a messenger was despatched in pursuit of Mr. Puffer, who had started a short time before for Norwood, to inform him of the accident, and to procure medical assistance. Mr. Puffer hurried to the village and Dr. Wilson, who happened to be in town on his arrival, was soon on the way to attend to the unfortunate young man's injuries. Before leaving he telephoned to Dr. Kindred, of Havelock, to meet him at the lake, and who administered the chloroform while he attended to the dressing of the wound. When last heard from the patient was getting along nicely.

One Month In Jail Was Sentence For Blacklisted Man Who Got Drunk

A man who was found guilty of being drunk after he had been blacklisted, was sentenced to one month in gaol by Magistrate Dumble at police court this morning. The offence with which he was charged took place on Nov. 26th, but he had kept out of sight ever since.

Hills pleaded not guilty, but Ex-Mayor Wm. Yelland testified that he had seen him on Murray street the day in question, and that he was intoxicated. He had had a bag which he left on the street and which on examination was found to contain several empty whisky flasks and an unplucked turkey.

P C Newhall testified to going up and getting the bag which contained several empty flasks.

License Inspector Stewart gave evidence to the effect that the defendant was addicted to the use of liquor and that he had been blacklisted on July 11th.

At the request of Chief Rostel the defendant was put in the witness box and asked to state where he had obtained his liquor. He affirmed that he had been more sick than drunk, but stated that he had found a flask containing whiskey in the bushes on a vacant lot on Murray street, and that an hour after he had found the bag containing the turkey and other articles.

The magistrate sentenced him to one month in gaol, stating that it was of no use to fine him.

FINANCIAL POSITION OF THE CITY

Taxpayer Writes in Regard to the Controversy Over This Matter.

THE DISCUSSION IS USEFUL

To the Editor,—

Sir, — Apart from its somewhat personal aspect, the controversy now being waged between the present and former mayor of the city should serve a useful purpose in directing attention to what appears to be a very questionable feature of our municipal financing.

Apparently the council of 1907, in the exercise of its discretion, refused to float the debentures required to cover the previous year's local improvement expenditures, because of the unusually high rates of interest then prevailing. So far, so good. The remarkable circumstance is that they should immediately proceed to make further and larger expenditures for similar purposes, and thus more than double the magnitude and possibilities for loss to the city, of the problem which they had thought it wise to evade.

Not only so, but Mr. McWilliams, the mayor of that council, now comes forward, and blames his successor, Mr. Rush, for floating them even the next year, and for not passing them still on further. Does this not savor of rather reckless finance? Pray, where would he have this kind of thing end?

Surely if the conditions of the money market were such as to preclude the advantageous floatation of the city's debentures, that ought to have been taken a as restriction upon furthr similar expenditures until conditions had improved. If there is no law to prohibit councils from accumulating such liabilities, and passing them on to their successors to meet, it is manifest there ought to be one.

The doing of permanent improvements on temporary loans is a species of financing that should properly be kept within the narrowest possible limits.

Yours, etc.,
TAXPAYER.
Peterborough, Dec. 26, 1908.

Impossible to Repeat

—The musical service at St. Paul's church last Sunday was received with much acceptance by large congregations, both morning and evening, and many requests have been made for a repetition of the various numbers on the coming Sunday. Mr. Crane states that, for various reasons, it will be impossible to repeat the music next Sunday.

RETROSPECT OF THE YEAR'S PROMINENT HAPPENINGS

Coming events, it is said, often cast their shadows before them, but incidents of the past are real in as much as they mould our future conditions and make us what we are. We are oftimes urged to forget the years gone by—to live within the present and hope for the best in the future. But who amongst us can do this? There are precious few outside the strong-hearted individual whose memories fail to carry them back to revisit former scenes and recall the events of the past.

The Examiner has therefore compiled a list of some of the prominent happenings of the year whose dying stages we are now among and which closes next Thursday night. These have been obtained from the daily fyles, any of which would form interesting reading to the households who have subscribed for the Examiner as they bring back to memory the occurrences that were once read with eagerness. From among the most important events, the following have been selected:

January

1—New Year's Day.
Formal opening of new Fire Hall.
Curling Rink destroyed by fire.
3—Forty men start to work at breaking stones for the city.
4—Death of Mr. Wm. Pringle.
6—Election Day.
8—Fred Holland, Lakefield, fined $50.00 and costs for illegally selling liquor.
Opening of City Hockey League.
9—Mr. H R H Kenner accepts principalship of Collegiate Institute.
15—Charles Burke identified as man who robbed Purser's store at Buckhorn on Nov. 5th.
16—Initial banquet of Murray street Baptist Laymen.
17—Annual meeting of Royal Astronomical Society.
18—Canada Flakes Company formed in Peterborough.
21—A R Williams Company ask $50,000 from the city to revive Wm. Hamilton Company.
Annual meeting of Horticultural Society.
23—A $30,000 fire in Lakefield.
24—Death of Mr. William H Wrighton.
Mrs. Geo H Williamson attempts suicide at police station, in one of the cells.
28—Jas Thompson, Havelock, elected Warden of this county.
29—Charles Burke, committed for trial on charge of robbing Purser's store at Buckhorn.

SPELLING "REFORM."

The advocates of the mutilation and deformity of the English language, assume to dignify their "fad" by the name of "reform," and advance among other alleged reasons why their fantasy should prevail, that the present, and what is of more moment, the past, mode of spelling English words is difficult to learn, and so redundant as to involve a waste of time in its use. All teachers agree that the chief value of the study of mathematics consists in the mental training and educative processes involved in learning it. If this is true, the result justifies the study; and the result alone, for, in the case of ninety-nine out of a hundred who study mathematics beyond the simple rules—euclid, geometry, algebra, and so on upward—little or no use of them is made in the matters concerned in the discharge of the everyday duties of adult life. Similarly, the proper study and the mastery of the spelling of the words of the English language have an educative and mind-training value. The truth of this might be easily demonstrated, but it will not be denied by those who consider the matter any more than will be denied the educative and mind-training value of the study of mathematics. To advocate spelling reform on the ground that it will facilitate the acquisition of the knowledge of English orthography, is to encourage the vicious element of "cram," which is the bete noir of true educational science and art.

The proposition that the whole is greater than a part, is not more axiomatic than the assertion that knowledge, in the didactic sense, derives its chief value from the mental training and development involved in its acquirement. Thus the fact obtains that the process of study of English spelling is, in the true educative sense, more important than its acquirement, and the mental training involved may easily be regarded as possessing greater practical, if not greater developmental value, than the study of mathematics, which—especially the higher—have an educative or menticultural value out of all proportion to their general applicable or conscious utility in the humdrum activities of every-day life.

On the contrary, English spelling, hard, as it is considered, to learn, is of universal application and in continual use. English spelling is not hard to learn—costs, relatively, no more to obtain than any other thing worth gaining, if properly and effectively taught. The teacher must have an intelligent knowledge of the language whose spelling is being taught; must understand the component details of the magnificent complexity and cosmopolitan character of the word elements that go to constitute the greatest language of mankind. The proper teaching of English spelling is another form of teaching the history of the Anglo-Saxon race in all its ages and in every relation it has sustained to British civilization, and all that that implies, as well as to the spread of the great principles of constitutional government, and the loftiest conceptions of national life to the nations of the earth.

The degradation of English spelling to the flat inconsequence of phonetic orthography would be to denationalize it and reduce it in its written form to the level of banal jargon among the languages of mankind. To teach English spelling by eliminating the historical element, would be largely on a parity with teaching British history by designating dynasties and sovereigns by numbers, like convicts, without reference to the ethnic, dynastic or political relations that influenced, modified, moulded, and were, in many cases, the essence and determining factors in the events that constitute the history of their reigns. The English language, like the British constitution, is a growth, not a genesis, a development not a decree, such as the spelling reform enthusiasts would have issue, and the fashion of it will not soon pass away.

True, its form and spelling have changed. This result has been the work of centuries—advance has been due to the accumulated pressure of custom and usage of great minds, as the piled-up mountain snows of ages crystallize into the glacier, whose own bulk and weight provide the impulse to its slow but irresistible advance.

Another objection urged to the retention of English spelling, is the time wasted in writing so-called superfluous letters. The frivolity of such a contention is so palpable that it would seem a greater waste of time to seriously discuss it. Take any writing; for instance, these lines, and see how many letters could be dispensed with by recourse to the most rigid limitation of spelling to absolutely indispensable letters. It is safe to say that a penman using the most simple and most curtailed form of "reformed" kakography, wouldn't gain one line of manuscript in a hundred over an equally expert penman using the orthodox orhography.

Why should we adopt a deformed spelling as a concession to the demands of a spirit of rush and hurry that, to its hurt, dominates the world to-day? In nearly all things we do too much in a given time to do it well. In architecture, we do not build; we comparatively toss material into heaps. In business we are so hurried, so anxious to become rich, that we sometimes don't take time to be honest. In literature—in writing books—we dash off something that will hardly outlast the haste-frail binding that holds it together. In nearly all we do, we sacrifice solidity to speed; quality to quickness, and so we come to substitute smartness for intellect, shrewdness for brains, success for honesty, money for morality, and spelling "reform" for improvement. Should we not rather heed lest we forget that "what is worth doing, is worth doing well?"

The merits and demerits of applying the forcing methods of the hot house to so radical a change in English spelling, as proposed by the reformers, can only be indicated here, not argumentatively dealt with; but enough can be briefly said to justify the statement that true language reform, as well as all true reform, comes slowly, and has always done so. Christmas was inscribed in the calendar of time nearly twenty centuries ago, yet many nations still sit in darkness. Magna Charta was signed eight hundred years ago, yet the first British colony only got responsible goernment, A. D., 1840. It was a far cry from Chaucer's toddling uncertainty of word and spelling to the stately stride of Maucaulay's lines—which represent evolution, not revolution. The English language is the growth of ages. It can't be remade at a sitting of a spelling reform society, any more than a King Charles' oak, warped by the storms of a century, can be straightened in a day by a surgeon's splints.

Our Christmas and our cash have been ill spent, if we have not spared enough loose change to square our accounts and face the world with a clean sheet.

GET SQUARE.

While the Christmas spirit, with its altruistic influences and generous impulses is still upon us, we are in better mood to meet the responsibilities with which the new year confronts us. This applies especially to the duty and propriety of settling accounts with the utmost possible promptitude. The New Year's season is the proper time for adjusting mutual financial obligations, so that the year can be entered upon under two distinct advantages—ease of conscience, and the consciousness of having helped and being helped in facilitating the business of the city. Money is the supreme lubricant of the wheels of business. They will run with less friction and danger of creaking, if everybody puts his share of cash in motion by promptly paying his accounts. Ten dollars thus put into motion may, by a continuity of payment, serve to settle a thousand obligations, and add to the comfort and financial ease of as many individuals. You owe somebody the amount of a current account, somebody owes you under similar conditions. Mutual adjustment of these two obligations will benefit both. A similar process going on in all the business relations of the city, will do much to improve business, give everybody a good start for the new Year, and contribute to the successful operation of the business enterprises exploited in that period.

The general outlook for business the coming year is excellent. There is noted improvement in all lines of commercial and industrial activity.

WOLFE STREET WHARF TO BE EXTENDED FULL LENGTH

Government Engineer Authorizes Extension to South Limit of City Property.

The Dominion Government is not unmindful of the interests of Peterborough, especially in regard to its navigation and shipping interests. The Government last session appropriated $5,000 to provide a new Wolfe sreet wharf, a work which the Toronto News and other journals of its stripe, would say should be done by the municipality benefitted. It was found that this sum would only build the wharf southward from the first abutment of the C. P. R. bridge about two-thirds of the distance of the frontage of the city property at this point. Hon. Mr. Stratton went to Ottawa, and laid before the Government the proposition for an additional appropriation, to permit of the extension of the wharf to the southern limit of the city's lands. The idea was favourably considered, and Mr. J. G. Sing, C. E., the Government engineer of this district, was instructed to investigate the matter.

Consequently, Mr. Sing was in the city on Saturday, looked over the situation, and authorized Mr. John Hayes, who has charge of the work, to extend the wharf southward the other third of the distance of the river or lake frontage of the city property. The work will be undertaken at once, and, if weather conditions permit, will be completed this winter. If not, work will be begun in the spring as early as possible. When the whole wharf is completed the public and the city will have a splendid line of wharfage, and when a line of wharf is built, which will very probably be done in the not distant future in front of the city's property north of the C. P. R. bridge, the public will have a better appreciation of the action which led to the placing of the river front in the possession of the city of Peterborough. As it is now, the wharf is under way, and will stand for ages, and those interested in navigation, steamer owners as well as the public, will derive continuous advantage.

cargo which suffered much damage. The Tongariro had her bow smashed in from the water line downward, and also had a long tear in her side. The pumps were put to work but in spite of the emptying work of the four huge pumps the water was gaining and by ten o'clock in the morning there was ten feet of water in the hold. She was also beached in Dover Harbour close beside the other vessel. There was considerable alarm among the passengers on the Tongariro when the collision occurred but the officers assured them that there was no imminent danger. They were taken to London by special train and the novelty of spending Christmas on the sea was deprived them. They will start about the first of the year when the vessel has been repaired.

Mr Lane was rather well known in Peterborough, having been a member of the Charlotte street Methodist choir.

GLADSTONE A PAST MASTER IN PARLIAMENTARY ORATORY

He Improved With Age—John Bright His Superior in Pure Oratory.

O'CONNOR'S APPRECIATION

Dr. Johnson used to say that if a man wanted to acquire a fine English style he ought to spend his nights and days in reading Addison. I would say to the young men of England that if they want to learn all the arts of oratory they ought to study the career of Mr. Gladstone. Perhaps I should qualify that expression by saying the arts of parliamentary oratory—for I would not like to say that Mr. Gladstone was in pure oratory quite the equal of John Bright. Gladstone's mind was too subtle, his style too diffuse, his vocabulary too complex, to make him an ideal popular orator. He was great on the platform, but he was greatest in the House of Commons. Bright—with his terseness, his simplicity, his rigorous concentration on great broad lines of thought and of emotion which every man could follow—was in pure oratory far and away the greatest man I have heard in my time in the House of Commons. And on the platform John Bright was even greater than in the House. Next to my first hearing of "Romeo and Juliet," with the greatest and most fascinating Juliet either of my time or of any other in the chief part—I mean Adelaide Neilson—next to my first hearing of "Romeo and Juliet" in my 19th year, I put as among the gorgeous experiences of my boyhood the first time I heard John Bright. It was at a luncheon in the old Irish City of Limerick, and the audience, as well as the hall, was rather small; and the occasion might even from its immediate surroundings have been described as petty. And yet the scene dwells in my memory as radiant with glory, as standing out amid all my recollections of my entrance upon manhood as the most epoch-making, brilliant and fascinating. I still feel something of the thrill—almost amounting by its very excess to a shudder—which passed through my whole nervous system as that wondrous voice broke upon my ear; and the peroration, delivered with that sublime self-control which was one of the greatest factors in the potency of Bright's oratory, sounded to me and affected me more as would the burst of some great piece of music than merely the spoken word of a single human's voice.

But in the House of Commons and in its daily drudgery and detail Bright was nowhere and Gladstone was supreme. And now, before quoting a passage from Morley's magnificent biography which will illustrate my meaning, let me give the reader some observations of my own, as a long student of Gladstone's oratory, as to what constituted its charm and power. And first let me say this—it conveys a lesson to every young student of oratory—Gladstone's powers were largely the fruit of tremendous and constant practice. He was learning oratory from the days when he was a schoolboy at Eton, and he kept on learning till he was nearly 90 years of age. And he was always improving. So much was this the case that he was often better at the end of a session than he was at the beginning. From which the young orator should learn the lesson that the one sure guarantee of good speaking is to be always speaking. It is a counsel of perfection, some people may think; it is a provocative to becoming a bore, according to other critics. I do not wish the inference, however, to be drawn that a man should be always speaking in the same place; he can take out his practice in different places. Gladstone was able to speak whenever he liked in the House of Commons; but then he was Gladstone, and he was a front bench man while he was still little more than a boy.

The second remark I have to make about Gladstone is that he was always at his best when he was most in his ease—when he was calmest, when he started playfully and easily, and allowed himself to be carried easily and spontaneously along the current of his own oratory. I am glad that almost the moment I took up again these volumes of Gladstone's biography, by John Morley, I came across some passages which were an admirable illustration of what I have been saying. These passages deal with Mr. Gladstone when he was 84 and when he was carrying through the House of Commons his second home rule bill. The occasion, therefore, is just the kind of one to bring out the two points I have noted in his oratory—first, that he constantly improved, especially when he was in constant practice; and, secondly, that he was at his best when he was most at his ease.

The first passage I will quote is the following:

"It was Mr. Gladstone's performances in the days of the committee on the bill that stirred the wonder and admiration of the House. If he had been fifty they would have been astonishing; at 84 they were indeed a marvel. He made speeches of powerful argument, of high constitutional reasoning, of trenchant debating force. No emergency arose for which he was not ready, no demand that his versatility was not adequate to meet. His energy never flagged. When the bill came on, he would put on his glasses, pick up the paper of amendments, and, running through them like lightning, would say, 'Of course, that's absurd. That will never do. We can never accept that. Is there any harm in this?' . . . The chief fighting debater against the Government made a long second-reading speech on the motion that the clause stand part of the bill. A little before 8 o'clock, when the fighting debater was winding up, Mr. Gladstone was undecided about speaking. What do you advise?' he asked of a friend. 'I am afraid it will take too much out of you,' the friend replied 'but, still, speak for twenty minutes and no more.' Up he rose, and for half an hour a delighted House was treated to one of the most remarkable performances that ever was known. 'I have never seen Mr. Gladstone,' says one observer, 'so dramatic, so prolific of all the resources of the actor's art. The courage, audacity and melodrama of it were irresistible.' 'For ten minutes,'' writes another chronicler, 'Mr. Gladstone spoke, holding his audience spellbound by his force. Then came a sudden change, and it seemed that he was about to collapse from sheer physical exhaustion. His voice failed; huskiness and indistinctness took the place of clearness and lucidity. Then, pulling himself together for a great effort, Mr. Gladstone, pointing the deprecatory finger at Mr. Chamberlain. . . . By sheer strength of enthusiasm, and an overflowing wealth of enthusiasm, Mr. Gladstone literally conquered ever physical eakness and secured at fect electric in its influence even on seasoned 'old hands.' Amidst high excitement and the sound of cheering that promised never to die away, the House gradually melted into the lobbies. Mr. Gladstone, exhausted with the effort, chatted to Mr. Morley on the treasury bench. Except for these two, the Government side was deserted, and the Conservatives had already disappeared. The Nationalists sat shoulder to shoulder, a solid phalanx. They eyed the prime minister with eager intent and as soon as the venerable statesman rose to walk out of the House they sprang to their feet and rent the air with wild hurrahs' ''

This is a scene which I saw myself, and, indeed, took part in. There is another scene described by Mr. Morley which I also saw, and which produced even a greater impression on the House of Commons and on all sections of it, than even the remarkable one which I have just quoted. Here is Mr. Morley's description:

"On another occasion ministers had taken ground that, as the debate went on, everybody saw that they could not hold. An official spokesman for the bill had expressed an opinion, or intention, that, as very speedily appeared, Irish opposition would not allow to be maintained. There was no great substance to the point, but even a small dose of humiliation will make a parliamentary dish as bitter to one side as it is savoury to the other. The Opposition grew more and more radiant, as it grew more certain that the official spokesman must be thrown over. The discomfiture of the ministerialists at the prospect of the public mortification of their leaders was extreme in the same degree. 'I suppose we must give up,' said Mr. Gladstone. This was clear, and when he rose he was greeted with mocking cheers from the enemy, though the enemy's chief men, who had long experience of his Protean resources were less confident. Beginning in a tone of easy gravity and candur, he went on to the points of pleasant banter, got his audience interested, and amused and a little bewildered, carried men with him in graceful arguments on the merits, and finally, with by-play of consummate sport, showed in triumph that the concession that we consented to make was so right and natural that it must have been inevitable from the very first. Never were tables more effectively turned; the Opposition watched first with amazement, then with excitement and delight, as children watch a wizard, and he sat down victorious. Not another word was said, or could be said. 'Never in all my parliamentary years,' said a powerful veteran on the front bench opposite, as he passed behind the Speaker's chair, never have I seen so wonderful a thing done as that.''—T. P. O'Connor in T. P.'s Weekly.

ACTION AGAINST HARBOR COMMISSIONERS

Windows in Montreal Buildings Broken By Terrific Explosion.

Examiner Special

Montreal, December 26.—That an action will be taken by a number of the proprietors of large down town buildings against the Montreal Harbour Commissioners, appears likely. The claim for damages will be on account of broken windows. Six weeks ago a terrific explosion shook lower part of the city. It occurred on a Sunday afternoon, shortly after noon, and sent hundreds of business men hurrying in cabs down to the wholesale district to find out the cause. It proved to be an explosion of dynamite in the harbour; several tons that were stored on a float, having blown up. The explosion shattered thousands of windows in the business district, several of the large office buildings on St. Paul street, having hardly a whole pane left on the side facing the harbour. The Harbour Commissioners have been considering the matter of claims for the broken glass ever since, and finally they have announced that they will not pay for the damage. The claims altogether amount to only about $6000, but a number of the proprietors are very sore and declare that they will go to court about it. Arrangement are being made for a meeting of those interested, and it is likely that a test case will be arranged, the costs to be met by a common fund supplied by those interested. The commissioners have declared that they will fight the claims in the court, and will not pay up unless compelled to do so.

DIGESTS ALL THE FOOD IN THE STOMACH

Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear of Distress.

If your meals don't tempt you, or you feel bloated after eating and you believe it is the food which fills you; if what little you eat lies like a lump of lead on your stomach; if there is difficulty in breathing after eating, eructations of sour food and acid, heartburn, brash or a belching of gas, you can make up your mind that you need something for a sour stomach and indigestion.

To make every bite of food you eat aid in the nourishment and strength of your body you must rid your stomach of poisons. excessive acid and stomach gas which sours your entire meal—it interferes with digestion and causes so many sufferers of dyspepsia, sick headache, nauseous breath, and stomach trouble of all kind; putrefying the intestines and digestive canal, causing such misery as biliousness, constipation griping, etc. Your case is no different—you are a stomach sufferer, though you may call it by some other name, your real and only trouble is that which you eat does not digest, but quickly ferments and sours, producing almost any unhealthy condition.

A case of Pape's Diapepsin will cost fifty cents at any pharmacy here, and will convince any stomach sufferer five minutes after taking one tablespoonful that fermentation and sour stomach is causing the misery of indigestion.

No matter if you call your trouble catarrh of the stomach, nervousness or gastritis, or by any other name—always remember that a certain cure is waiting at your pharmacist any time you decide to begin its use.

Pape's Diapepsin will purify the sourest and most acid stomach without any fuss or discomfort all in five minutes and digest promptly of any kind of food you could eat.

WORRY, NOT WORK, IS FATAL

Nerves Cannot Stand the Former, Says Dr. Worcester, Founder of Emmanuel Movement—Cause of Nervous Disorders.

STRAIN AND NEEDLESS WORK

New York, December 24 — That the more intelligent physicians are disinclined to prescribe much medicine and that the more intelligent patients prefer to accept nature's relief was the declaration of the Rev. Dr. Elwood Worcester, of Boston, founder of the Emmanuel Church movement, in an address to an audience which filled St. George's Church, in Sixteenth street. Many prominent clergymen and physicians were present, and at the conclusion of the address expressed great interest in the movement, which is for the first time being introduced in New York."

"Functional Disorders of the Nervous System," was the theme of Dr. Worcester's address, and he described in plain terms the work in behalf of nervous sufferers which has been undertaken in Emmanuel Church, Boston. Religious and scientific principles upon which the movement bases its origin were explained. Success in the treatment of nervous diseases, Dr. Worcester said, convinced the followers of the Emmanuel movement that the Church has an important mission to discharge to the ill, and that the physician and clergyman can work together to the benefit of any community.

Work for the Nervous

Briefly, the speaker reviewed the work among the nervously and morally diseased. Prominent neurologists were consulted to ascertain whether such a project would meet with their approval and support. From the beginning the work has been carried on with the advice and co-operation of the physicians.

Dr. Worcester made it clear that Emmanuel Church is attempting to establish no new dogma, and that the single desire of those interested in the movement is to give to each patient the best opportunity for life and health.

"We believe in the power of the mind over the body," said the speaker, "and we believe also in medicine, in good habits, and in a wholesome, well regulated life."

In the treatment of nervous disorders, it was explained, free use is made of moral and physical agencies. When it is found that a nervous or physical disorder can be best treated through physical instrumentalities, that method of treatment is chosen. The Emmanuel movement, he said, has confined its practice to that large group of diseases known to-day as functional nervous disorders. Great success he said, has been achieved in the treatment of cases of alcoholism. Of the eighty or ninety patients treated last year, Dr. Worcester could recall only three who had not since lived sober upright lives. Those addicted to the cocaine and morphine habits, he said, could be greatly benefited, but he would make no claim that such patients could entirely be cured.

Causes of Prostration

"Nervousness is a disease of civilization," Dr. Worcester declared. "Complex conditions breed it. Primitive man may have been prone to it, but we have no knowledge of that fact. Thirty-five years ago even nervous prostration was comparatively rare."

It was also contended by the speaker that many of the nervous diseases of to-day are due to heredity. Often, he said, the disorder of the nervous system can be traced back to a parent or grandparent, who was either a drunkard or suffered from some mental affliction. Environment, complexity of life, indoor life, the unnecessary din and uproar of the city or the strain of one's daily work, he said, contributes to produce nervousness. That it is not work, but the worry, that causes the breakdown of the nervous system, was Dr. Worcester's contention.

"Calm and pacify your inward lives and cultivate an inward peace if you would avoid nervous diseases," he continued. "Conserve your energy and control the mind and you have solved the problem."

That fear is an element which enters largely into people's lives is the belief of Dr. Worcester. Hysteria, he said, is largely the tendency of thought to the objective self, which produces all manner of complications, more common in women than in men. Depression was given as another form of nervous disease which is difficult to treat.

THE CITY'S ASSETS ENUMERATED

Mr. Elliott Explains the Two Particular Varieties.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—What are the assets of the City?

There are, I am satisfied, two particular kinds of assets:—

Assets convertible into money and assets that are not convertible.

For instance the City Hall, Fire Hall, School Buildings, etc., of course it be admitted could not be sold for the cost of erection and establishment, but they are worth a certain amount if directly placed in the market.

There are other assets which, if placed in the market, would not realize anything, or at most very little, such as sewers, water mains, bridges, etc.

Sidewalks and bridges we will call conveniences, and not venture an opinion upon them at present.

Referring to waterworks or mains, these and sewers I think, go together, providing from the pocket of the ratepayer benefitted, for principal, interest and maintenance, and no more directly, but what they do indirectly, is of as much importance or more importance, namely, provide for the safe guarding of the health of the City, the very object for which they were built and afterwards maintained. With regard to revenue the waterworks rates gathered from the people provide for the interest on the money borrowed to construct them, and a sinking fund sufficient to meet the principal when it falls due, as well as the maintenance in the meantime. The sewers or the properties benefitted by them do the same thing; a rate upon the said properties is levied every year during the currency of the debentures sufficient to pay the interest on the money borrowed for construction, and to set aside enough each year by way of a sinking fund to meet the principal when it falls due.

Now what is the difference between the revenues?

In the first place we must admit that the sewer is worthless without the water main, yet the revenue from the waterworks is an indirect one in so far as the people are concerned, and a very substantial one too, from the fact that it saves the keeping of wells and cisterns, and the expenses connected therewith, and if properly managed gives to the people water to drink with no bad results to follow.

The same may be said of the sewers: the people have no expense in taking care and disposing of sewerage, and the health of the city is in that way guaranteed to a great extent, and one of the greatest assets a city has is its healthy record, both for advertising and other purposes.

It seems to me that no discrimination should be made between the earning power of the waterworks system and the sewer system of the city.

With reference to another asset the city claims namely, the interest of the City in the Administration of Justice Buildings of $9,000, it might be pointed out that in making the award of the amount payable by the City to the County each year, in lieu of the County meeting the expenditure as it arises, or the amount that should be borne by the City, the interest of $9,000, as above, is credited to the City by way of interest on capital invested.

With regard to fire hall, etc., if the city had not a fire hall of its own, what would be the amount to be paid each year by way of rental for one, as it is compulsory, or advisable, to have one.

The same may be said of schools and those buildings and institutions appearing on the Report of the Auditors and their appearance in the report would have no other than a good effect upon intending purchasers of debentures in the future, as they can plainly see that the money has been wisely expended that necessitated the existing debenture debt at the present time, and all liquidation of debentures and current expenditures met at the reasonable rate of same (17 mills general) with about three mills more for extra facilities, as well as being an advertisement of the city.

Respectfully yours,

J. M. ELLIOTT.

LID ON GAMBLING HOUSES

Police Inaugurate Campaign in Montreal —Half a Dozen Raids This Week.

MANY HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

Examiner Special.

Montreal, December 26. — A further step towards the placing of "the lid" on Montreal this winter was taken this week, when the police inaugurated a campaign against the gambling resorts of the city. In the past few weeks there has been an active movement for reform in the city. The initial step was taken to bring about reform in the city hall itself by Aldermen Robinson and Carter, who have come out with charges that there is a great graft in the administration of the affairs of the city. Their declaration created no little sensation and the matter was taken up by the city council with the result that an investigation will likely be held. A campaign was then commenced by the local press against the inefficiency displayed by the local police force. Burglaries are of nightly occurrence in the city and but few of the burglars are caught. The burglaries have if anything been more numerous since the campaign has started but the citizens have been awakened to the fact that the police protection, for which many thousands of dollars is paid yearly, is more or less of a farce, and it is not unlikely that the early weeks of the new year will see some sweeping changes in the administration of the department unless some improvement is noticeable. The next step in the cleaning up of the city was a campaign against the Sunday theatre started by the Sparrow Theatre Company, whose houses have always been closed on Sunday. They opened up two of the theatres under their control for Sunday shows and they declare they will continue to give Sunday shows until the other places of amusement, including the picture shows, are closed down by the authorities. There have been a number of gambling houses in the city operating practically openly, and the police now have declared their intention of closing these places up and keeping them closed. Many of these resorts are in the better class sections of the city, are well furnished, and are frequented by men prominent in business and social circles.

This week half a dozen raids have been made and a large number of people arrested. The corridor of the city hall police station is lumbered up with gambling paraphrenalia which has been captured in these raids. Many of the tables are of very expensive make, some being of solid oak and mahogany, and very handsomely fitted up. Three of the houses were situated on St. Catharine street, the principal retail shopping street of the city, and one was on University street, in the fashionable residential quarter of the city. All of those found in the places were allowed to go on furnishing $20 bail. They will come up for trial on Tuesday next, and meanwhile there are several other resorts which the police will visit.

A pool room which was doing a thriving business in St. Henri, one of the suburbs of the city, which was recently annexed, was also visited by the detectives. The place was crowded with "sports," who were busy playing the horses. They were allowed to go, but the proprietor of the place will have to stand trial.

Indications are that the campaign against vice will be maintained, as it appears that the police are anxious to make good in some way and prove that the force is not altogether worthless. Already places which hitherto paid but little heed to the laws are being run more carefully. It used to be said that with possibly half a dozen exceptions, it was possible to get a drink at any saloon in the city on Sunday, but this is so no longer. Saloon keepers are becoming frightened and last Sunday there were many places closed up tight that had not been closed for many a Sunday. The Sunday theatre is still in full swing, however, as nothing more will be done by the police in this regard until the case against the managers of the three largest houses, which is now before the courts, is settled.

OBJECTIONS OF HALIFAX SHIPPERS

Claim They are Being Discriminated Against in Matter of Ocean Freight.

Examiner Special.

Halifax, December 26.—That Halifax is being discriminated against in the matter of ocean freight rates, is the claim of business men of this city. They declare that this port is at a disadvantage, not only in regard to export freight originating west of Montreal and bound for Europe, but it is handicapped by a discriminating tariff on local ocean freights for Halifax from Europe. Under the revised freight tariff issued recently by the Allan line local ocean freight for this port is charged two shillings and six pence per ton more than is charged on similar freight for St. John.

Halifax shipping men declare that this is very unfair. Boats bound for St. John require 24 hours longer steaming than to Halifax but instead of making the rate to this port less or at least the same as that to St. John, it is actually made two shillings and six pence higher than on freight landed at St. John, and thus Halifax importers are subject to this extra charge.

That this discrimination is a violation of the contract under which the Allan Line received a subsidy is the opinion of the Transportation committee of the Halifax Board of Trade, which has taken the matter up and is in negotiation with the steamship company about it. If the Allan Line refuse to remove the handicap, the Government will be asked to force them to do so.

The Board's contention is that the Allan Line is subsidized to land freight here and that the contract specifically provides that there shall be no discrimination in rates. The clause in the contract which makes this provision reads:

"Section 14.—It is further understood and agreed that tolls to be charged in the way of either freight or passenger rates between ports on both eastward and westward trips shall always under substantially similar conditions and circumstances be charged equally to all persons and at the same rate, whether by weight or otherwise, in respect of all traffic of the same description and receiving in carriage the like accommodation: and, further that no toll shall be charged which discriminates against Canadian merchants or shippers or against emigrants to Canada."

The claim is also made that the port is also injuriously affected as compared with New York, Boston, Portland and St. John, on export freight originating west of Montreal. Freight going via Halifax has to pay one cent per hundred pounds more than freight via the other ports. The Board of Trade are also looking into this matter and will seek to have it rectified.

England's Knowledge Of The Possibilities Of Canada

Prof. Leacock's Speech at Banquet of Dominion Travellers' Association in Montreal.

A BETTER UNDERSTANDING

Examiner Special.

Montreal, December 26th. — The speech that was delivered by Professor Leacock at the banquet of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association was the topic of considerable discussion at the conclusion of the meeting. Some members of the society who were present stated that it was one of the strongest pleas for a better understanding between Canada and the Mother Country that they had ever heard. Said one gentleman: "It is exactly the idea that Canadians want to get hold of. This country, of which I now count myself a citizen, should realise that the Old Country is watching its rise with an immense amount of interest and delight. England knows the possibilities that lie before the Dominion. It knows of its enormous resources, and all the vast power that these resources are likely to give it. There is nothing more fascinating than to watch the making of a nation, and that is what England is doing, and she is prepared to do all that she can to help on that process. The idea that the Old Country simply looks on Canada as a land of ice and snow is so much buncombe, and simply shows that some Canadians have a wrong notion of the attitude of the Mother Land to her most promising colony—forgive the word. But at the same time, Englishmen in Canada have also the justifiable grievance that Canadians do not seem to appreciate the position taken up towards this Dominion. They do not seem to attempt to know England, Englishmen, or English ways. Some of our papers, for instance, show a lamentable ignorance of the politics of the Old Country. I am sometimes tempted to think that the despatches are sent from the Old Country from some Canadian city, for they most grossly misrepresent what is really the true condition of affairs. I do not want to enter into any political discussion nor to raise partisan controversy, so let me give you one or two cases to illustrate my meaning without raising unpleasantness. A short time ago I read that at the present time there was a big deficit in the exchequer of the United Kingdom. Now, the truth is that the National debt is lower than it was before the South African war. I read further that the House of Lords had the power to veto a money bill but had not exercised their power for many years. As a fact, the House of Lords lost the power of the purse in the time of the Comonwealth, and have never had it restored to them, and they can no more interfere in the monetary matters of the kingdom than an elephant can play billiards. Oftentimes I read of things supposed to have happened in England, that never could have occurred by any means. These are perhaps little matters but they show an ignorance of English affairs that is lamentable in the extreme. This is one reason why I join with Professor Leacock in asking Canadians to give some of their attention to the affairs of other nations and not to confine all their interest to internal matters. The wider interest both countries take in the welfare of each other the greater will grow the desire of mutual benefit and the widening and strengthening of the bonds that should bind one to the other.

Dummer Residents Celebrate Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob White Much Respected in Their Native Township—Old Friends Gather Round

MANY GUESTS PRESENT

An event of unusual interest was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob White, Pleasant Valley, in the Second Line of Dummer, on Monday, December 21st, 1908, being the celebration of the 50th anniversary of their marriage.

Invitations were only extended to the brothers and sisters of Mr. and Mrs. White, or representatives of their deceased brothers and sisters. Amongst the guests present were their daughter, Mrs. George Grant and her three children, of Paisley, Ont., Dr. and Mrs. Marvin, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Watts, of Warsaw, Mr. B. White, of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spence, Mr. and Mrs. George Payne, and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Sherin, of Lakefield, and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Batten, Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus Payne, and Mrs. Hamblin, of Dummer.

After the guests had done justice to a sumptous repast, they gathered in the sitting room and the Rev. Mr. Marvin conducted the service. The groom of fifty years presented the bride with a handsome wedding ring, after which a very suitable address was read from their daughter, Mrs. George Grant and her children accompanied by beautiful present to Mr. and Mrs. White.

The invitations requested no presents, but the bride and groom of fifty years did not limit themselves in that manner as the sisters or their representatives on both sides of the house were presented with suitable memorials in gold as remembrances of the happy event. The Pastor of the Church and the Missionary Society of the Methodist Church, who have frequently been recipients of Mr. and Mrs. White's benevolence were not forgotten on this occasion.

A special feature of entertainment was a duet by Mr. and Mrs. White, composed by themselves, recalling scenes from their old home and experiences of early days.

A very enjoyable evening was spent and the guests retired after wishing Mr. and Mrs. White many more years of health and happiness.

Crop Statistics In Manitoba Show Agricultural Advance

Examiner Special.

Winnipeg, December 26. — The Department of Agriculture of the provincial government has just issued a return showing the crop acreage sown during the past year. From this it is evident that there was a substantial increase, and also a larger number of farmers going in for mixed farming. The report shows that the harvest results have been found to be satisfactory. An early spring was followed by fine crop weather which, with few exceptions continued till close on harvest time, when it turned dry and hot, thereby shortening the returns and lowering the grade. High prices and favourable conditions gave dairying splandid results, with improvement and increase in all phases. Poultry also showed a considerable increase, but one of the most interesting parts of the report showed that there has been an increase in fall plowing, giving promise of a larger crop acreage than ever next year. In the north western district the yield of wheat was 16.5 to the acre; southwestern, 18.1; north central, 16.2; south central, 16.6; and eastern, 17.1 bushels. The total area under grain crop is given as 4,818,611 acres, and the total under all crops, 4,987,496 acres. The report estimates that 69 per cent. of the wheat crop had been marketed by December 1, 1908, or 33,984,252.2 bushels.

SOME CAUSES OF POOR LIGHT

Latest Electrical News of Interest From Schenectady.

Schenectady, Dec. 26.—Electric News Service.—The study of illumination has not only become an exact science in these days of perfection in artificial lighting, but every householder is eagerly reading anything that will give him a greater insight into this most difficult study.

Many a poorly lighted room can be easily remedied by changing the light fixtures or repapering. It was formerly the custom to blame the oil, or the gas, or the electricity if there were dark shadows in the room, or if the light failed to dispel the evening darkness. Now it has been proven that these same rooms, be it at the home or the office or the store, can be made almost as light as day with even less candle-power than before, all with a little study and planning.

A wallpaper which will "absorb" light is the greatest enemy to artificial light in the home. An illuminant is powerless to light a room if the colour of the walls absorb most of the rays. The illuminating engineers of the General Electric Company claim that a white wall will reflect 50 per cent. of light, whereas a red wallpaper will reflect only 13 per cent. A light buff or yellow will reflect 45 per cent; a dark brown about 12 1-2 per cent. A light apple-green wallpaper will reflect 40 per cent.; a dark green will give us 14 per cent. Dark wood trimmings absorb light; white wood reflects it. Velvets, chintzes, burlaps, will also absorb light; so will wallpaper, whatever its colour, but a tinted-surface wall reflects the light. Wallpaper in patterns is not only one of the greatest of all known absorbers of light, but it also has a bad effect on nerves and eyes.

The plainer the wallpaper the better for nerves and body, and the smoother the surface the more light it will reflect. In selecting wallpaper the way the room faces must also be taken into consideration. Those rooms facing north and east require lighter coloured papers than do rooms facing south and west.

Care in the selection of tints and wallpaper will not only lead to a better and a cheaper artificial light but will protect the eyesight, save the nerves and tempers. It will enable all to realize to the greatest degree the many advantages of artificial light from the electric current where many are now using some inferior illuminant because of an incorrect impression that electric light is too expensive.

It is estimated by competent engineers that it will cost the railroads of this country $5,000,000,000 within the next few years to keep pace with the increase of traffic. The expenditure of $4,000,000,000 would electrify all these roads and take care of all this increased business without increasing the trackage.

Electric irons are being extensively used in the manufacture of clothing. The use of the electric iron radically improves the sahitary conditions of the shop, increases the output and reduces the danger of fire.

The electrification of the St. Clair tunnel between Port Huron, Mich., and Sarnia, Canada, has been completed. This tunnel is one of the longest submarine tunnels in the world, and it cost half a million dollars to change the motive power from steam to electricity.

The electric locomotive holds the world's record for a mile with a mark of one mile in 27 seconds.

HIS SPIRIT ROSE IN MYSTIC LIGHT

New Brunswick Girl's Disquieting Vision in Her Room — Dead Brother Appeared to Tell Her of His Death.

A STRANGE COINCIDENCE

A very remarkable revelation that statements of apparently trustworthy witnesses are accepted of a supernormal kind has just been had of a family in New Brunswick with regard to one of its members who died within the past fortnight near Englehart, on the Montreal River, in Northern Ontario, and whose remains after disinterment, passed through Montreal on their way to Salisbury in the Eastern Provinces.

According to the statements of Jane and Robert McIlwraith, who are accompanying the body to the old home of the deceased, Miss McIlwraith had either a very remarkable vision, in which her brother Joseph appeared to her on the night of Tuesday, Nov. 24, or, as she believes, his ghostly body appeared before her in her bedroom and asked her if she did not know that he was dead. The brother had been away from home two years, at work in the silver region of Cobalt.

Was In Bed

She had been to bed for some hours and on awakening, as she thought, she saw a light in the room that could not be accounted for by lamp, candle or the moon. "Instantly," she said, "I saw my brother appear before me in a brownish suit of clothes that I had never seen him wear before. He suddenly seemed to start up from nowhere and he asked in a perfectly natural voice. 'Don't you know I am dead.' Having said that he receded back, presumably through the wall. The light also disappeared very shortly.

"I did not seem at all afraid until the light vanished and then I became so frightened, thinking about the appearance of my brother and the message, that I aroused my brother Robert, as well as mother, to whom I communicated the terrible experience."

The family were fearfully agitated but living some distance away from a telegraph station, they did not take steps for several days after the occurrence to communicate with Joseph. They had not heard from him for about six weeks and he was then preparing for work for winter on his claim on the Montreal River, which he was to develop with money he had saved at Cobalt. On the Friday they telegraphed and got an answer the following day that Joe McIlwraith had died of pneumonia a few days before, and had been buried. The telegram also stated that he had left fifteen hundred dollars behind him.

Remains Were Disinterred

It was decided that the remains should be disinterred and brought east in order that the deceased might be buried where he spent his early life. His brother went to bring them along, and to-day was met here by the sister who had the extraordinary experience. They all went East by the Maritime express of the I. C. R., Robert and the body having come East over the Ontario Government Railway and the Grand Trunk.

Miss McIlwraith seemed to be a woman of some refinement and exceedingly modest and sensitive-looking, but extraordinarily pale—a fact which she attributed to the shock she had received from the singular visitation and the startling confirmation given to the message. The brother found no difficulty in getting the money belonging to the deceased.

From the inquiries that Robert was able to make his brother died on the day before his sister had the remark-

The entertainment of last Monday evening held under the auspices of the Methodist Church, suited the taste of all Minden music lovers. After a splendid supper was served the audience settled down to feast upon higher things. The programme began at 8.15 and from that until 9.45 the entertainers displayed to an appreciative gathering the staff of the aesthetic life.

The singing of Miss Jean Robson of Norwood, was well received. The ease with which she sustained and sounded the high notes was charming while the richness of her voice seemed to disarm all criticism. The violin selections of Miss Julia Choate of the teaching staff of the Conservatory staff, Peterborough, were splendid. Her numbers that made exacting demands upon exactitude in the management of double stopping readily won her hearers. Miss Annie Ivory, notwithstanding she was handicapped by not having a piano, excelled particularly in passages requiring velocity, delicacy and softness of execution. Her tone of voice in "Face to Face" was clear and sweet.

OBITUARY.

MR. WILLIAM HAMILTON

The death occurred on Christmas day of Mr. William Hamilton, at his residence on the corner of Wolsley and Aylmer streets, at the age of forty-nine years, after being ill about two years. Mr. Hamilton was born in Coboconk, and resided in Cameron for a number of years, coming to this city about five years ago. He was respected by all who knew him.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Margaret and Mrs. Richard Telford, both of this city, and one son, F. Lloyd, traveller for the will be held from the residence at Quaker Oats Company. The funeral two o'clock on Monday afternoon and will proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

PETERBORO' MEN AT WHITBY

Trial to Come up Again on January 6th in Connection With Trent Valley Cold Storage Company.

WHAT THE CHARGE IS

The following is a dispatch from Whitby to the Toronto World :—

As a result of the action of the Trent Valley Cold Storage Co. of Peterborough, in seeking to collect a promissory note from a farmer named Harris, and the decision in the farmer's favour, two arrests have been made. Two Peterborough men, who promoted the company, and thereby secured money and notes from some 40 farmers near here, were arrested in Peterborough on Tuesday, on a warrant sworn out by John Emmerson, one of the farmers who bought shares in the Company.

They were brought here and taken before Police Magistrate Harper. After hearing the evidence he committed the accused for trial before the next court of competent jurisdiction.

Later before County Judge McIntyre the men elected to be tried by him, and he named Jan. 6 next as the day. The charge laid was conspiracy to defraud. D. O'Connell of Peterborough, appeared for the accused, and L. T. Barclay for the farmers. The accused were admitted to bail for $3,000.

In speaking of the case Mr. Barclay referred to the many cases of share floating companies that obtain signatures from farmers who were unprotected from fraud in the management of the companies. By the new amendments to the Joint Stock Companies Act a certain measure of protection is given, but it is the evident plan of the prosecution of this case in moving for a return of all these notes to make an example of this kind of business and to make such doings impossible.

In this case many farmers subscribed for stock because of the very plausible representations of the promoters, who talked of a good thing, but who apparently were not as wise as they should have been. From the judgment of Judge McCrimmon it would seem that there was fraud in the act and that the Trent Valley Cold Storage Co. was really an outgrowth of a bankrupt company similar in formation and aims in the same town.

The farmers had a very strong case presented by Lawyer Barclay, and it was because of this judgment that the warrant was issued.

In speaking to The World a prominent farmer of East Whitby, in recalling the promoting days of the company, said:

"They had some very slick promoters, who put up a most tempting proposition. They talked with my father for two hours, had dinner and then left, not having induced him to go into the concern."

CHRISTMAS DAY AT ALL SAINTS' CHURCH

Large Number of Communicants—Some Pretty Decorations.

Christmas Day this year lost none of its beauties to the worshippers at All Saints. The number of communicants was 12 per cent larger than the previous largest number in the history of the parish, which was four years ago. The decorations were this year carried out more extensively than usual and made the Church look exceptionally beautiful. A lighted star of exquisite beauty hangs before the chancel window. Mottoes of green, white and gold adorn the walls, which are also festooned with liberal wreaths of Christmas greening. The monograms of red in the chancel, panels of former years, have this year been replaced by symbols of the Christ and eternity in green wreathing. The Holy Table bears its beautiful festive hangings of white, and is made even more beautiful by goodly vases of flowers; it is surmounted this year, not by the usual brass cross (which, by the way, is only an ornament and not a necessary part of the Holy Table, and not found at all in many leading Anglican churches), but by a cross of green which shows to advantage with its white background.

The music was in keeping with the Christmas season. The early service was enriched by the introduction of a hymn, "While Shepherds Watched their Flocks." Two Christmas anthems were sung at the 11 o'clock service, at which the choir was strengthened by the introduction of a large number of boy choristers. The sermon by the Rector was an expansion of Canon Cody's sentence in the Canadian Churchman: "Christmas is the day of varied beauties — it is a great Home day, it is a great Heart day, it is a great Church day," and it is a great Parish day.

The Christmas offering was a very generous one, and given to the Rector, who hers wishes to thank his parishioners for it.—Com.

A PLEASANT CHRISTMAS PARTY

Enjoyable Time Spent Yesterday Afternoon and Evening at Home of Mr. Ellam.

A delightful Christmas party was held yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mr. Jack Ellam, 367 Stewart street, the hosts being Mr. Ellam and Mr. Ernest Naish. About thirty-five guests were present and a most enjoyable time was the result. Supper was served about seven o'clock, and afterwards games, music and dancing occupied the attentions of the merry folk until Christmas day was as far away again as ever.

MEN MAY COME AND MEN MAY GO, BUT 'XAMINER GOES ON FOREVER

Graduates of Examiner's Junior School of Journalism and Practical Stenography.

The Examiner knows, if others do not, that it is conducting a sort of College in journalism,—training clever young men in the art of newspaper work. That its work is well done is evidenced by the fact that its graduates are snapped up by publishers and employers of good men, departing graduate, and they drift away or are drafted away into new fields of labour and success. Within recent years there has been a small procession of these deputy-graduates of the Examiner's journalistic college, of men who had advanced to the city editor's chair. Beginning with Mr. Alf. Terrill, there followed Messrs. Clarry, Choate, Hutchinson and the latest, Mr. Bert Huston, who leaves on Monday to take—with the best wishes of the Examiner and a host of friends in city and country—a responsible position with the Canadian Grocer, one of the Toronto trade journals, issued by the McLean Publishing Company. He will make a success of his new venture, if he applies the same ability, energy and fidelity to his new duties, that have marked his connection with the Examiner.

However, men may come and men may go, but the Examiner goes on forever. Our staff is like a British line of battle when one soldier falls or drops out—another from the ranks steps forward to take his place. Mr. Fred Craig, who has been on the Examiner staff three years, takes Mr. Huston's place as city editor. He is a clever and popular young man and the Examiner bespeaks on his behalf, on the part of the public and the readers of the Examiner, the same courtesy, support and co-operation, which has been extended to his predecessors.

Subsidiary to the Examiner's school of journalism is the school of practical stenography, which seems to be a fatal profession for young ladies. When they have appreciated creditable efficiency others beside the Examiner appreciates their good qualities. Within a few years no fewer than three of the Examiner's lady stenographers have graduated into the matrimonial arena and have placed themselves in a position, where, instead of being "dictated to" they themselves do the dictating, as is the way of women since the days of mother Eve.

Market Showed The Effects Of Heavy Christmas Sales

The market was a lonely looking square this morning. The farmers wisely understood that after Christmas, there would be a big falling off in the amount of money exchanged. It was the realization of this that caused the farmers' sleighs to be few and far between and the number of purchasers equally scarce. It may be that some of those whose prices for turkeys, last Wednesday were particularly exhorbitant, were ashamed to come back so soon for more.

Objections Alleged In The Marriage To Tom Longboat

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Dec. 26. — Archbishop Sweatman has written Rev. A. H. Cregan, of Deseronto, in charge of the Indian reserve, where Tom Longboat met Miss Marsele, and who was announced to perform the marriage ceremony in Massey Hall, Monday night, that there will be objections. Furthermore administering a sacrament recently to one who was a "heathen" will be investigated.

Many Present At Entertainment At Salvation Army Barracks

The children's Christmas tree and entertainment held in the Salvation Army barracks last night proved a great success.

A splendid programme was rendered to a large audience, the hall being crowded. About nine o'clock great excitement reigned amongst those present, especially the children, when they heard the far-off hoots of the automobile and when the curtain parted there stood Santa Claus loaded down with presents for the Sunday School children, everyone getting toys and candies.

The hall was beautifully decorated by Bandsmen Hodges, Savage and Osborne, all the flags used being lent lent by Mr. J. J. Turner. A great share of the work fell on the shoulders of Bros. True and Shadgett, who made the preparations for the automobile and the Christmas tree, while the programme was specially made up by Mrs. Wesley Boorman and the teachers of the Sunday school. The Junior Sergeant Major proved an acceptable chairman. The following was the programme rendered:

Opening hymn, Hark the Herald Angels Sing

THE WORK ON THE TRENT CANAL

Only Two Sections Between Peterboro' and Trenton Not Under Contract

The following despatch from Ottawa is practical evidence that the Trent Valley Canal is not as the enemies of the government assert, a mere political expedient, but a seriously-taken and honestly prosecuted national enterprise which under the vigorous administration of the Laurier Government, has made more constructive progress than in the preceding sixty years it has been "dragging its slow length along:"

Ottawa, Dec. 24.—Special. — The contract has been awarded for section No. 7 of the Trent Canal. This section extends from Rice Lake to Healey's Falls, and is about 19 miles long. The work consists of a lock and dam at Hastings and dredging throughout the section, as well as the straightening of the river.

The contractors are the Randolph Macdonald Company of Toronto and the amount of the contract is $450,000.

This leaves about 16 miles yet to be contracted for between Peterborough and the southern outlet, including sections No. 4 and 6.

CAVAN SWAMP ROAD A MENACE TO PORT HOPE

So Thinks the Port Hope Guide—Brings Extra Trade to Peterborough.

Some time ago we published an article in this paper stating that the Counties' Council had passed an order for $600 to assist in building a road through the Cavan swamp. We found fault with the action of the Council on the grounds that it was driving the trade from these counties to the City of Peterborough. We asked Reeve Burnham and Deputy Reeve Merrifield to explain this action. At the next meeting of the Town Council they told us that the statement was untrue and that no such order had been made.

We learn to-day on good authority that the grant was made and that the money has since been paid. In looking over the minutes of the Cavan Council which met on the 15th we notice the following among the communications:

"From the Counties' Clerk, sending orders for $600 grant made by Counties' Council in assisting in opening a new road on con. 14."

In the face of this we would like to have some further explanation from our county representatives.

This road in question, which is no benefit to the Counties whatever, makes the distance to Peterborough either four or six miles shorter, and means the driving of our trade to the city of Peterborough.—Port Hope Guide.

TWO MEET DEATH IN A MINE

Coal Cutters in Joggins Workings Burned to Death.

ANOTHER MAY NOT SURVIVE

Curtain Screen Catches Fire and Before Workmen Can Escape They Are Terribly Burned In Accident In Nova Scotia Mine—Death Came Almost Instantly—Third Man Has a Chance to Recover.

Halifax, Dec. 26.—The horror of three men at Joggins Mines were saddened at Christmas time by a terrible accident which occurred in the mines there between 10 and 11 o'clock on Thursday night, when two men lost their lives and another is so seriously burned that but slight hopes are entertained for his recovery. The dead are John H. Coleman, Jr., and George Sawyer. The injured man is Frank McNeil. All three are coal cutters and belong to the night shift. They were working at the cutting in the old slope of the Joggins Mine, now owned and operated by the Maritime Coal, Railway & Power Co. In some way not yet explained the brattice cloth, a device consisting of burlap or canvas curtains in screens which cross the cut, enabling the free circulation of air, caught fire, and before the unfortunate men were able to escape they were so seriously burned, that death in the two cases mentioned resulted almost instantly. McNeil was also terribly burned, and the latest reports are that he is living, but with very slight hopes of recovery. Both victims were terribly burned. Coleman was a young unmarried man, about 26 years of age.

Dr. J. A. Munroe, coroner, held an inquest. After hearing evidence a verdict was given: That Coleman and Sawyer came to their death by suffocation.

Religious Faker Dead.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Cyrus R. Teed, "Koresh I." self-styled "Messiah" of the notorious "sunset flat heaven" in Normal Park in 1892 is dead in the midst of his colony in extreme Southern Florida. His followers, devoutly believing in his immortality, awaited his resurrection yesterday, but nothing has yet been heard of a resurrection.

Victoria Gratin, his wife, has assumed the throne with mediæval solemnity and has issued an edict that the body of the leader shall not be buried until there has been a manifestation of divine will.

Army to Reform Inebriates.

Auckland, N.Z., Dec. 26.—The authorities are making a new experiment in New Zealand. The prison authorities got so tired of their repeated failures in reforming the inebriate that they have determined to hand over all such cases to the Salvation Army. The Army has purchased two small islands to which the cases can be transferred—one island for women, the other for men. The object is to remove them from temptation. So far the experiment has been a success, although it is too soon to pass a permanent judgment.

Twins Hale at Ninety.

Babylon, N.Y., Dec. 26.—With faculties and health unimpaired, the venerable twin brothers, Samuel and William Muncy, celebrated their ninetieth birthday here on Christmas Day.

The brothers look so much alike that no one except members of the family can tell one from the other. Neither has ever used liquor, and both are supporters of the prohibition movement. Early to bed and early to rise has been their motto. Both have long been widowers, and each has a large family.

Gift From the Queen.

New York, Dec. 26.—The steamer Adriatic, which arrived here Thursday had on board six large cases containing several hundred copies of Queen Alexandra's book of photographs. They were consigned to Sir Edward S. Clouston, Bart., general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and are to be given as presents to hundreds of prominent Canadians. In the safe of the purser also was a present to Lady Laurier, wife of the Prime Minister of Canada.

Indian Head to Go.

Washington, Dec. 26.—The classic faces of the girls on the U. S. nickels and pennies are to be changed. Within a short time some prominent sculptor will be invited by the Secretary of the Treasury to submit new designs for the coins mentioned.

On the new pennies it is likely that old-fashioned Indian head dresses will be done away with. The penny coined yesterday is of the design adopted in 1864.

Change In Bisley Rifle Weight.

Quebec, Dec. 26.—A cablegram from London announces that the council of the National Rifle Association have decided that for the year 1909 the rule restricting the weight of the barrel to 3 1-4 pounds is abolished, and a weight of four pounds is substituted therefor. This refers to all match rifles used by marksmen at the Bisley meet.

No New Policies.

New York, Dec. 26.—In order that they may be certain not to exceed the limitation of new business prescribed by the new insurance laws of this state, the New York Life Insurance Co. announced yesterday that it would write no more policies, the insurance under which can be consummated in the present year.

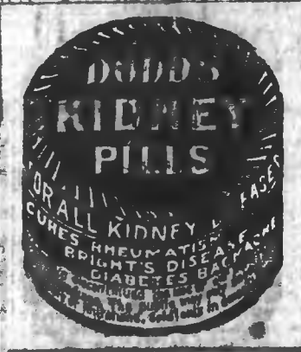
PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR



GRABBED HIS BEARD.

Royalist Frenchman Attacks President Fallieres Just to Pull His Whiskers.

Paris, Dec. 26.—While President Fallieres was taking a morning stroll yesterday, Jean Mattis, a poorly-clad individual, suddenly jumped upon the President from behind and threw his arms about M. Fallieres' neck in an effort to seize his beard.

The assailant was dragged off and turned over to two special detectives who had been following the party on bicycles.

President Fallieres' cane was broken in the struggle, but beyond a scratch on the ear he was not injured.

PRESIDENT FALLIERES.

As the detectives slipped the handcuffs on the man he cried: 'I am unarmed. I simply wanted to pull the President's beard."

During the examination Mattis boasted of being a royalist and talked confusedly of having done his "duty" and obeyed the dictates of his "conscience." Heaps of Royalist reactionary literature were found by the police when they ransacked his residence.

Medals of Gen. Mercier, the former Minister of War, stamps bearing the head of the Duke of Orleans, a card of membership in the Patrie Francais and other royalist documents were found on his person.

The investigation reveals the fact that Mattis was in close relation with the royalist organization, and this gives color to rumors that he was the instrument of a royalist plot. Serious evidence in this direction, however, is lacking up to the present time, and it is more likely that he is only a crack-brained individual seeking notoriety.

BABY THROWN FROM TRAIN.

Dead Body Picked Up by Sectionman Near Komoka.

London, Dec. 26.—The body of an infant was thrown from Grand Trunk train No. 27, which left here at eight o'clock Thursday morning, about five miles west of Komoka.

Section Foreman Archie McKellar was standing beside the track, and as the train whizzed by him he saw an object thrown from a window. He picked it up and discovered it to be a dead baby. It was wrapped in ladies' underwear and the outside covering was a newspaper. McKellar notified Coroner Mitchell of Komoka, who gave it as his opinion that the baby was born on the train, which made up in London, bound for the tunnel.

By the time the wires were got working the train had passed the tunnel and the mother of the babe could not be located.

Dutch Ships Leave Venezuela.

Willemstad, Curacao, Dec. 26.—The Dutch cruiser Gelderland, which has been operating in Venezuelan waters, arrived here yesterday.

Her arrival formally brings to a close the Dutch demonstration against Venezuela. Holland having recalled her warships pending the outcome of the diplomatic negotiations which are to be resumed between the Netherlands and Venezuela.

Crew of Yacht Mutinies.

Teneriffe, Canary Islands, Dec. 26.—The crew of the yacht Dalia, owned by Jacques Lebaudy, "emperor of the Sahara," mutinied while off this port and hoisted the Haytien colors. The vessel was forced to put into Santa Cruz, however, owing to lack of coal and on arriving here the mutineers were arrested. A fresh crew were placed on board the yacht yesterday.

Persecution of Jews.

New York, Dec. 26.—The American Jewish committee yesterday announced the receipt of a cablegram from the German Jewish committee of Berlin, saying there have been persecutions of Jews in Russia, Finland, this winter on a large scale.

It was added that many families have been driven from their homes.

Hon. Charles Devlin Ill.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Hon. Charles R. Devlin took suddenly ill while leaving church at Aylmer, Que., yesterday morning and has had to cancel all his engagements in connection with Quebec bye-election. He is suffering from collapse.

Director of Geological Survey.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—Reginald W. Brock, M. A. C., Ottawa, has been appointed director of the Geological Survey. Prof. Brock was for some time connected with Queen's University, but did field work for the Geological Survey.

THE DARKER SIDE OF CHRISTMAS

Britain's Unemployed Have Sorry Yule Tide Cheer.

THOUSANDS OUT OF WORK

Big Cities in England and Scotland Present Scenes of Distress and Suffering—Accidents Reported From United States on Christmas Day—Late Dinner Causes Death of Baby in Philadelphia.

London, Dec. 26.—The dark side of the English Christmas is the great number of unemployed and the distressing prevalence of destitution and suffering. This is seen principally in London and at Glasgow and along the Tyne and other shipbuilding centres, where many establishments have been closed and thousands of men are out of work.

A small band of shabbily dressed, miserable-looking unemployed persons have paraded the fashionable shopping streets during the past week, threading their way among the lines of motor cars and the crowds of aristocratic Christmas shoppers. The police accompanied the band as it marched in order to prevent disturbance. Its members shouted in unison as they marched, "We want work."

More than a thousand homeless men assembled on the Thames' embankment every midnight to get tickets to Salvation Army shelters. The Army, however, is able to accommodate but half the crowd, and the others disperse, many of them being obliged to spend the nights out of doors. The newspapers daily record cases of men being sentenced to imprisonment for stealing food who plead that they are starving or have families suffering from want. The appeals to charitable organizations for help were never so numerous or urgent.

The Salvation Army, and other charitable institutions yesterday gave dinners to many thousands of destitute persons, but these Christmas dinners were not a drop in the bucket when compared to the needs of the unemployed.

The number of British ships laid up in various ports this year is entirely unprecedented in the experience of ship-owners.

In the Bristol Channel, the Clyde, the Mersey, the Tyne and the Thames there is an extraordinary demand for mooring accommodation for ships with no work to do. The Tyne, for instance, is literally congested with idle ships. A return shows that there are no fewer than ninety-three vessels, with a total registered tonnage of 186,000, laid up in this river alone.

According to one estimate there are at the present time in home and foreign ports between 200 and 300 idle British ships, totalling between 400,000 and 600,000 tons. On a rough estimate the value of such a fleet is between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, and this huge aggregation of capital is not only producing nothing, but is costing money for upkeep. In addition, the inactivity of so many vessels means lack of employment for some thousands of seamen and firemen.

Dinner Late; Fatal Fight.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 26.—Mrs. Turner's tardiness in preparing the Christmas Day breakfast is said to have precipitated a quarrel between William Turner and his wife yesterday, during which their ten-weeks-old boy was killed. Mrs. Turner had the child in her arms, and in the fight she dropped it to the floor. Subsequently she was either knocked down or fell upon the infant, crushing it to death. The parents were arrested.

Ten Thousand Feasted.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26.—The new St. Louis Colliseum was given over to Christmas celebration yesterday, when the Post Despatch Christmas Festival Association gave a dinner to women and children.

Ten thousand tickets had been issued for the event. After the dinner presents were given to all the children. A circus wound up the day's treat.

Santa Claus Fatally Burned.

Detroit, Dec. 26.—Lee Wagner was fatally burned Thursday midnight while playing Santa Claus at a family re-union. Clad in a gay Santa Claus costume, which was set off by a great bunch of cotton whiskers, Wagner was leading the merriment when suddenly the cotton whiskers caught fire.

Christmas In Prison.

Ossining, N.Y., Dec. 26.—Christmas was observed in Sing Sing Prison yesterday with a more elaborate dinner than, it is said, had ever before been served to the prisoners in that institution. Chicken, many vegetables, hot tea biscuits, hot mince pie, lemon wafers, bananas, oranges and apples, with milk and sugar, figured on the yuletide bill of fare. The dinner was followed by a concert by the prison orchestra. The prisoners were furnished with cigars and smoked while they listened to the music.

Charity's Hand Open.

New York, Dec. 26.—Opening wide the hand of charity to make the day one of joy and gladness for the poor and unfortunate, and freely drawing upon the stores of plenty happily at its disposal to spread holiday cheer, from the highest to the lowest strata of its population, the City of New York celebrated Christmas of 1908 in a way that not only lived up to the best of its traditions, but set a new standard for the dispensing of holiday blessings upon its millions of inhabitants.

The unfortunate in the jails, the ill in the hospitals, the poor in their homes and the destitute and helpless in institutions were all remembered. That not far from 100,000 persons were assisted by means of donations of dinners and the like, is conservatively estimated, while the total of those reached at first hand and by indirection that the general outpouring of beneficence is beyond the possibility of anything like accurate enumeration.

Tunnel 14 Miles Long.

Odessa, Dec. 26.—The "Caucasian Post" announces that the construction of the transmontane railway between Machet and Vladikavkas, a distance of about 120 miles, has now been finally decided on, and will be begun, probably, next spring.

This enterprise involves the piercing of the Caucasian range by a tunnel of a little over fourteen miles in length. This will be the longest tunnel in the world, the Simplon, which now holds that distinction, being only a little over twelve and a quarter miles long.

The work of construction will occupy about ten years, and the cost is computed at $52,500,000.

An Expensive Feast.

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 26.—Mock Sen, the leper who has been in the involuntary and expensive charge of the city of Harrisburg since July 7, 1907, died at the municipal hospital yesterday, tuberculosis being the cause of death.

The cost of the Chinaman's maintenance was about $175 a month. Some months it went up to $200, one occasion being when he was told he could order some goods from a Chinatown house in Philadelphia. No one knew what he was ordering and the bill was $27.50. Mock feasted for a week.

Stamp Slot Machines.

Washington, Dec. 26.—If one man can drop a penny in a vending machine and obtain a piece of chewing gum or a handful of peanuts, why not be able to drop a coin and get a postage stamp?

That is just what the United States Postoffice Department want to make a popular feature of its service, and in an order issued yesterday announcement is made that the Department is now prepared to issue limited quantities of postage stamps in rolls of 500 to 1,000 for use in stamp vending and stamp affixing machines.

Comfort of Farmers.

London, Dec. 26.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—James Dunlop, member of the Scottish Agricultural Commission, recently in Canada, addressing a meeting of Scotch farmers, said in Eastern Canadian farms he was struck by the superior accommodations and comfort of the dwelling houses, compared with those of Ayrshire.

Speaking generally of the Northwest he said Manitoba had the best market, Saskatchewan the best land, Alberta the least rigorous winter, and British Columbia the banner province for fruit-growing.

G. T. P. Elevator Co.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—F. W. Morse, Montreal; J. E. Dalrymple, H. H. Palethorpe, W. K. Chandleir, Thomas Gillespie, J. A. Stevenson and Hugh Phillips, all of Winnipeg, have been incorporated as the Grand Trunk Pacific Elevator Co., with a capital stock of $1,000,000. The operations will be carried on principally at Fort William, but the head office will be in Winnipeg.

Want Right to Mine.

Ottawa, Dec. 26.—The Yellow Head Pass Coal & Railway Co. is applying to Parliament for incorporation as a mining company with the right to build one hundred miles of railway from the G. T. P. in Alberta southeast to the head waters of the Little Pemfina River and 25 miles from the G. T. P. along the Embarras River toward the McLeod River.

Drowned at Chatham.

Chatham, Dec. 26.—Herbert Johnson, aged four, son of Hector Johnson, farmer, near here, was drowned in the Thames River Thursday evening, and the body was not recovered.

The boy, with a brother, walked on the ice, was warned off, but Herbert later returned with his dog and broke through the ice. The dog also was drowned.

Newspaper Man Dead.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 26.—Charles West Spalding, a pioneer newspaperman, died in Kansas City, aged 79 years.

He is said to have been the first man to receive a President's message by telegraph. During the civil war he was a special correspondent of The Chicago Times.

Choked by Peanut.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—Martha Fones, a two-year-old child, lies dead at her home, while her Christmas tree, adorned with gifts and with candles alight, stands in the room.

The baby swallowed a peanut shell, which lodged in her throat, and died at a hospital despite the efforts of the surgeons.

Bank of Montreal
Established 1817

Capital Paid Up, - $14,400,000
Reserve Fund, - - $12,000,000
$26,400,000

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by laying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

SHOOTS HIS FATHER.

Amherstburg Negro Lad Pursued With Whip Kills Parent.

Amherstburg, Dec. 26.—William Thompson, 16 years old, son of Elijah Thompson, a colored man, who has been for many years a familiar figure in this section of Essex County, on Thursday morning shot his father.

Thompson is the father of ten children, of whom William is the oldest one at home. Thompson was displeased with the way in which the boy and two younger brothers had done some work he had assigned them, and flogged the two other boys.

Then armed with a whip he started to look up William, whom he blamed more particularly for the failure to do the work set out for the three boys. William saw him coming and ran upstairs to secrete himself. He found a Winchester rifle in the room and stood at the head of the stairs and fired at his father as the latter started up. The bullet passed through Thompson's liver and intestines, tearing a gaping wound in his body.

HOME TO VISIT, DROPS DEAD.

Alberta Man Intended to Surprise Daughter In London on Christmas.

London, Dec. 26.—To drop dead within a few blocks of the home of his daughter and son-in-law, whom he had traveled 2,000 miles to visit, and who intended his arrival to be in the nature of a surprise, was the fate that befell Robert Gillespie of Everts, Alta., at an early hour on Christmas morning.

Mr. Gillespie is the father-in-law of P. C. Clarence Kelly, by whom he was identified yesterday morning. He arrived in the city on a late train and was proceeding to the home of Mr. Kelly, 41 Oxford street, West London, when a severe attack of heart failure caused his death.

Show Men Protest.

New York, Dec. 26.—More than 300 of New York City's 550 moving picture show men met yesterday and protested with more or less vehemence against Mayor McClellan's action in revoking their licenses and closing their shows Thursday night. A committee of 25 was appointed to report on a plan of organization for the purpose of contesting the enforcement of the mayor's decree.

The mayor's closing order was rigidly enforced yesterday in Manhattan and the Bronx, where all places devoted exclusively to the exhibition of moving pictures were closed.

Manitoba Cuts 'Phone Price.

Winnipeg, Dec. 26.—Announcement will soon be made by the Government of a reduction in the present telephone rates.

Under Government ownership the telephones have been a financial success, and it is expected that the profits for the first year will amount to approximately $225,000.

As far as can be learned, although nothing has yet been definitely decided, residence phones in Winnipeg will cost but $20 after the first of the year, and business 'phones will cost in the neighborhood of $30 or $35, against $50 now charged.

More Arrests Coming.

Pittsburg, Dec. 26.—That at least $176,000 was paid councilmen for the selection of certain banks as depositories for the city's funds has been almost positively established by evidence submitted and statements furnished by the voters' league, and the Scranton, Pa., detectives employed by the league to give this city a municipal house-cleaning.

That other arrests are to be made is practically admitted by all concerned in the case, but the present intention is to let the matter rest until after Christmas.

LAST HEAT IN NAMED RACE WAS FINISHED IN THE DARK AT THE TURF CLUB'S CHRISTMAS MATINEE

The Turf Club's Christmas matinee provided one of the most warmly contested races that has been seen on the local track in many moons. All of the heats had been concluded in two of the events on the card, and five heats in the named race had been run off and still another was necessary to decide the winner. By this time it had become so dark that the cigars which the men in the grand stand were smoking, glowed in the gathering dusk like embers of a smouldering camp fire on a summer night. From the judges' stand one could scarcely recognize any of the faces across the track. There were then three horses left for the first three positions, Nate Nicholls of Lakefield, having driven Herkland to fourth place; they were Ashmore's Lou Keswick, Elmhurst's Harry Mac, and Whittom's Queen Bourbon. It looked as if the race would have to be postponed until Saturday, or the money divided as the race then stood. The starter, Mr. Martin Connors, called the three men to the stand where they decided to run another heat.

Raced in the Dark

They got away to a good start, bunched until they drew well around the west turn, and then they were lost to view except to those among the highly interested spectators, who possessed powers of sight equalling that of hawks. The dark background of the south fence made them almost indiscernible until they hit the east curve where they were seen close together but in file. Their steps sounded boggy in the heavy slush as they drew near the finish on up to the line where it required a penetrating glance to distinguish "Doc." Gibson behind Queen Bourbon as he won the heat and race, getting the best cheer of the afternoon. The Keswick horse was a close second, and also got second money in the race, Harry Mac finished third.

During the first three heats of the struggle, Bourbon was tailing along in the very rear division. In the third he broke his hobbles which were then removed, and without the straps he took the next three in first place each time.

The following is the summary for this race :—

Lou Keswick—2, 1, 1, 4, 3, 3.
Herkland—3, 3, 2, 6, 2,
Queen Bourbon—6, 5, 6, 1, 1, 1,
Harry Mac—1, 3, 3, 3, 4, 3.
Lady Black—4, 4, 4, 2, 5.
Black Cloud—5, 6, 5, 5, 6.
Time : 1.19, 1.17, 1.16, 1.20, 1.18, 1.20.

Free For all

Dr. Leach's Holland Boy, driven by Dick Monahan, took three in a row from Patterson, with Eddie Jones on the seat, in the free for all. The time was 1.1 .15 and 1.14. It was by no means a walk away for the old veteran. Patterson gave him a great run in each heat, although finishing in practically every case a length behind.

Matched Race

The matched race between Bourbon Brooks and Queen's Baron was a "frazier." The Elmhirst horse took the first heat by a narrow margin, but lost the next two. In the second, although alongside Queen's Baron at the start, he had hardly struck his stride. "Doc." Gibson drove Whittom's horse in a steady manner, cinching the last two heats, but with Bourbon nosing along at his side. The time was 1.17 1-4, 1.18 1-4, 1.18 1-2.

The matinee was a success in the quality of the races that were put up, but the crowd might have been larger. The track was heavy but the contests were keen and well fought The officers were well pleased with the sport and expect even much better at their annual meet which will be held in a week or two.

Tommy Burns Loses The Big Fight With Johnston

Sydney, N.S.W., Dec. 27.—Jack Johnson, the big negro from Galveston, Texas, is the world's champion heavyweight pugilist. He won the the title yesterday in the big arena at Rushcutters' Bay from Tommy

TOMMY BURNS.

Burns, the Canadian, who had held it since James J. Jeffries relinquished it, and after a chase of Burns that had led half way round the world.

The end came in the fourteenth round, when the police, seeing Burns [illegible] and unable to defend himself from the savage blows of his opponent, mercifully stopped the fight. Previously it had been arranged that if the police interfered a decision should be rendered on points, and Referee McIntosh without hesitation declared the big black man the winner, for all through the fight he had shown himself Burns' master in every style of fighting.

Burns, whose real name is Noah Brusso, in an interview after he had gone to his dressing-room, said: "I did the best I could and fought hard. Johnson was too big, and his reach was too great."

Johnson appeared fresh after the fight, while Burns' eyes were badly puffed and his mouth swollen to twice its normal size. The Canadian fought a game battle and showed indomitable pluck, but he was no match for the big Texas black.

The fight was for a purse of $35,500, of which Burns received $30,000 and Johnson $5,500. The ring was a 24-foot one and was pitched in the centre of a big arena built especially for the purpose at Rushcutters' Bay. The bout was to have been for 20 rounds.

The day dawned overcast and cool. Thousands of persons from all parts of the country were attracted to the scene and many reached there Christmas night and slept in the open. They came by street cars, automobiles, carriages and horseback, and at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, one hour before the fight was scheduled to start, every seat was occupied. The prices of seats ranged from $25 to $2.50.

The crowd was estimated at between 18,000 and 20,000 persons, and it kept perfect order throughout the fight.

BILL CROWLEY SAYS EDMONTON HAS MORE THAN EVEN CHANCE TO WIN

Mr W. B Crowley who accompanied the Edmonton hockey team on their trip to Montreal made a flying visit to his home and Peterborough yesterday and returned to Montreal last evening. He was given a warm welcome back to Peterborough by his many friends and was kept busy shaking hands while in the city. Talking of next week's Stanley Cup games "Bill" thought that Edmonton had more than an even chance of victory. They had a great team of individual players, who were in good shape and he thought they would work together well enough to beat the Wanderers.

He expressed himself as being thoroughly pleased with the West and with Edmonton

EDMONTON'S CHANCES ON PAPER FOR STANLEY CUP LOOK VERY BRIGHT

The first game in the Stanley Cup series between Edmonton and Wanderers will be played in Montreal on Monday night, and naturally Peterborough people are taking great interest in the battle, because of the presence of Fred Whitcroft and Jack Miller on the line-up and the fact that Bill Crowley is training the team. There has been much discussion over the coming games, and the feeling locally seems to be that Edmonton has a good chance to wrest the cup from its moorings. There is no doubt that Whitcroft has gathered together a wonderful team, a collection of seven stars who, if speed alone counts, have it all over the Wanderers. The defence men are especially fast. Pitre, who will play cover in the cup games, is as good as on the forward line, as he is further back and shoots down the ice like a meteor. He was one of the sensations of the old International League, and last year astonished the eastern critics by his great work. Lester Patrick's playing is too well known to need comment. He is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, defence man playing the game, and will be a source of strength to the challengers. On the forward line is Tom Phillips, the highest paid man in professional hockey and one of the fastest players and best stick handlers that ever donned the steel blades. McNamara is another star, and Jack Miller has already been heralded by the eastern fans as another Phillips. When it is said that Whitcroft will have trouble in catching the team, it will be seen just how fast that forward line must be.

If Edmonton is beaten it will only be because they have not developed enough team work to offset the machine-like combination of the Wanderers. The cup holders have a sturdy defence and a steady, hard shooting and checking forward line who, while they may not be as fast as Edmonton, will certainly plug away until the last whistle.

On the whole, however, Edmonton's chances look very bright.

HANDSOME PRIZE GIVEN TO THE BEST GUESSER

Christmas Day at the Roller Rink was a great success, there being 402 people present, afternoon and evening. A five dollar gold piece was given as a prize to the person guessing nearest the number of people who entered the rink, and Mr. Darling was the lucky winner, having guessed 400. There were about seventy-five guesses put in, but only the one was near the mark. Mr. Genno closes the rink for the season next Friday, New Year's night. There will be skating all week and the band will be in attendance the last afternoon and night.

A masked carnival will be the feature of the evening, from 7 o'clock till 10 o'clock, and a masquerade dance will be held afterwards. An orchestra will play the music from 10 o'clock till 12 o'clock. Mr. Genno and Miss Patterson intend to make a tour of the States, giving exhibitions of fancy skating, at the close of the season here.

OTTAWA BASKETBALL MEN EXPECTING THE LOCAL TEAM

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, December 27. — The Peterborough basket ball team, one of the strongest in Canada, is to play the Y. M. C. A. here on January 2nd. The local team is practising, and a great game is expected.

The Ottawa Y. M. C. A. basket ball team will not play any games over the border this season, despite the fact that several games with American teams had been arranged. This is caused through the fact that the teams in the U. C. are controlled by the A. A. U. which is affiliated with the Amateur Athletic Federation of Canada, while the Y. M. C. A. teams in Canada are under the jurisdiction of the C. A. A. U.

Mr. Fischer, head of the Y. M. C. A. Athletic Union in America, says the Ottawa Y. M. C. A. players would have to take out Federation cards if they played over the border, or else the American players would be suspended by the A. A. U.

The Y. M. C. A. laugh at the idea of taking out Federation cards and will cancel their games with the Yankee teams.

HOCKEY TEAMS PRACTISE ON MONDAY

Line-ups of the Teams Who are Asked to Be Out for Workout.

There will be a big practice of the Intermediate and Junior O. H. A. teams on Monday night. The Juniors have a game in Whitby on Jan. 1st, and they have only a little time in which to get into shape, so that it is important that they should not lose any opportunity for practice in the meantime.

The following teams are asked to be out on Monday night:

Intermediates.	Juniors.
Derocher	Goal — Len Giroux
Glover	Point — Fox
Parnell	c. point — Wade
Forwards.
Morgan	Ray
Moore	Hillier
Seymour	C. Giroux

THE KAISER-HURTUBISE BOUT IS OFF FOR PRESENT

It looks as if the wrestling bout between Charlie Kaiser, of Oswego, N. Y., and Eugene Hurtubise is off, at least for the present. The match was to have been pulled off here in a short time, but it has been found impossible to secure a hall in which the bout may take place. Accordingly a wire was sent to Kaiser to-day, calling off the bout for the present, owing to this fact, but the match will in all probability take place later if the arrangements can be made.

JACK MILLER IS AN OLD KEENE BOY

There seems to be a good deal of uncertainty in the minds of Peterborough people concerning the identity of the Jack Miller, who is making a name for himself on the forward line of the Kmdonton Stanley Cup team. Miller is a native of Keene, not Norwood, as has been stated and is an old Trent Valley League player who is extremely well known in this district. He is a brother of Miss Florence Miller, who was formerly soloist in St. Andrew's church choir. Jack and his brother have an ideal cattle ranch on the Han dHill Lake in Northern Alberta, and he is considered the best cattleman in the district. It is said by one who has seen him that while it may be a pleasure to see him in a lightning rush down the ice, to see him on the hurricane deck of a bucking bronche is a real treat.

STRANGE TALES OF ENGLISH DERBY

Famous Turf Classic is Surrounded With Many Mysteries.

If it were possible to write the full and true history of the Derby it would contain some startling revelations of strange doings behind the scenes of which the public has little and no actual knowledge.

There is, for instance, little doubt that a very different tale would have been told of Teddington's Derby but for the prompt action of his wide awake owner, Sir Joseph Hawley, says an English exchange. When the Kentish baronet attended the York spring meeting of 1841 he was amazed to find the bookmakers eager to lay odds to any amount against his colt, who was looked on as a certain winner of the blue ribbon a few weeks later. Sir Joseph at once scented mischief, and, leaving the course, he travelled as fast as relays of swift horses could take him to his training quarters, where he communicated his suspicions to Alec Taylor, his trainer.

As the result of their deliberation Teddington was at once removed to another box, placed under the charge of a different boy and a strict watch kept over him night and day. Whatever scheme was on foot to disable the horse was thus effectually checked. Teddington soon resumed his place as first favorite in the betting, and as everybody expected, won the Derby with ease.

Memorable Derby of '44

Another mystery which has not been solved to this day is associated with Leander and that memorable Derby of 1844. It was more than suspected that Leander was a four-year-old, but there was not sufficient on which to base an objection to his running. In the race his fetlock was broken by a kick from Running Rein, and he was effectually placed hors de combat. He was shot and buried, but when a party of sportsmen who wished to test their suspicions dug up the body at dead of the night they found that the head, which alone could settle the matter, was gone.

Ratan, the second favorite for this race, was made safe by a cunningly devised, bolus, but who administered it was never discovered, and, to crown this Derby as the most shady and fraudlent on record, Running Rein, who came in first, was found to be none other than Maccabeus, a four-year-old, and thus an imposter of the first water. But when it became necessary to produce the horse for an examination by experts it was found that he, like Leander's telltale head, had been spirited away.

A Dramatic Story

In connection with Running Rein, by the way, a dramatic story is told. A Captain Osborne had backed Orlando for a very heavy sum, and when Running Rein came in first he was faced with the alternative of blowing out his brains or being declared a defaulter. He was just on the point of choosing death rather than dishonor when a note was placed in his hand. "Running Rein" ran the missive, which was from a friendly tout, "is an impostor, and he won't get the Derby stakes. Put up all bets on Orlando you can get, and you will make a fortune."

The captain put away his revolver, followed the tout's advice and, instead of providing work for the undertaker found himself £18,000 in pocket.

The Dragging of McGregor

Few horses have ever started a hotter favorite for the Derby than McGregor in 1870. So rosy were his chances that odds of 9 to 4 were laid on him to an enormous amount, and the money was considered as good as won. To the consternation however, of his backers, he seemed unable to move freely in the race and finished a bad fourth behind horses who were not in the same century with him.

There was no doubt whatever that McGregor had been drugged, but who the rascal was who did the dastardly trick is as much a mystery to-day as it was at the time.

It is of this race that the following remarkable story is told: During the night before the race a jockey called Swift saw the finish of the Derby in a dream. He saw Kingcraft, which he recognised, pass the post a winner by a length and a half followed by a dark brown horse which he could not identify, and with McGregor, the favorite, a bad fourth. In spite of the jeering of his friends, to whom he told the story, he backed Kingcraft for every sovereign he could raise, and, to his delight as to the disgust of the scoffers, he saw his dream exactly reproduced, the favorite badly beaten and the despised Kingcraft winning a small fortune for him.

Even more remarkable is a story of that great Derby race of 1863, won by the despised outsider Caractacus ridden by Parsons, the stable lad. Although Caractacus was so badly thought of that Jim Goater point blank refused to ride him and odds of 40 to 1 were freely offered against him, a tipster gave him as a certain winner on the strength of a dream in which his blind daughter had seen the horse win "with a little boy on his back as pale as death." How vividly accurate was this dream forecast was admitted by all who saw the finish of that sensational race.

SPECTACULAR ESCAPES FROM DEATH TELL OF REMARKABLE EXPERIENCES OF HUMAN BEINGS

Narrow escapes from death are always interesting to read about or to see on the stage. They are not so satisfactory to the persons who experience them, especially, it is said, because they happen too quickly. Dramatic art assigns a suitable period of suspense, which enables the spectator to develop and enjoy all the thrills due the situation, but reality is generally abrupt, and hurls the fated individual into catastrophe before he can arouse his emotions. Of course, this view is opposed to the theory of old-fashioned fiction, that one instant in a crisis unrolls the map of an extensive career and performs a bleaching operation on the hair that would keep a coiffeuse busy for an hour.

A Swiss workman was busy repairing the roof of a small railroad station, says the Strand Magazine, when the cleat against which he was resting gave way, and he began to slide over the edge of the room. To avoid a spiked iron railing below he made a desperate jump into space. An express train was rushing by, and the man landed on the roof of a car. His outflung hand found and clutched a ventilator chimney. He was carried on four miles to the next station and descended unhurt. More tragic was the occurrence on a Rocky Mountain railroad. Four employees of the Great Northern were speeding down a precipitous grade on a handcar at thirty miles an hour, when a special train confronted them around a curve. There was no avoidance of a collision. Two of the men jumped to death on the rocks below. The others stuck to the car, and one was crushed by the wheels of the advancing engine, but the other man was tossed uninjured into a clump of bushes which grew on a projecting rock twenty feet below the edge of the cliff. It was the only safe place where he could have fallen.

Cyclist's Peril.

A Dr. Bach was cycling down the pass near Goschenen, in Switzerland, when his brake snapped and the machine darted forward at terrific speed. At the foot of the mountain is a bridge spanning a deep river gorge. The physician tried to guide his flying machine on the bridge, but the front wheel struck a side wall and he was flung over the parapet. While falling through the air he caught a chain hanging from a girder. The momentum of his body, suddenly arrested, nearly wrenched his grip loose, but he was a strong man and kept his hold. While swinging in mid-air, suspended over the raging river and unable to improve his perilous position, an automobile came chugging down the pass. The hapless man shouted for help, but he could not be seen from the bridge, and his cries were drowned by the noise of the motor and the sound of the river. A few minutes after the automobile had passed a carriage drove across the bridge. Again he cried out for help, but in vain. The awful strain on arms and fingers was becoming intolerable, and the doctor was about to drop into the torrent to an inevitable death when two peasants came by and saw him. They flung a noose over him and pulled him up. He fainted and was ill for a long time.

Harrowing five Minutes

A father travelling with his young son on an English railroad last year had a harrowing five minutes. The child was leaning against the compartment door when the door flew open and the youngster disappeared. The father frantically jerked the safety rope, which stopped the train, and jumped out. He was astonished and delighted to see the boy on his feet, running up the track. But at that moment an express on the other track came roaring by and the engine knocked the boy down and passed over him. The father groaned with horror. He could not believe his eyes when the train passed on and the little fellow jumped up and came pluckily toddling back. The boy had no injuries except a few cuts.

About two years ago a small steam yacht with a pleasure party aboard was off the outer harbor of New York when it was run down and capsized by a string of garbage scows. Of the eight aboard the yacht four clung to the keel of their vessel and were picked up, the others sank and vanished from sight. Among the latter was a young woman, Miss Fanny Day. She was reported drowned, and her family was mourning the tragic event when she walked in very much alive and well. Her escape was extraordinary. When the yacht turned over the girl was drawn by suction under a barge, and came up in a dark space. A chain struck against her face, she grasped it, and as soon as she could get breath screamed for help. A lid above was lifted and two men pulled her up into daylight. It happened that a load of garbage had been dumped through the bottom of the barge at the moment of collision, and the young woman fortunately rose through the open trap into the chamber. The trap immediately closed again, leaving her in the hold of the scow, imprisoned in darkness and filth, but safe.

Escape from Drowning

Another narrow escape from drowning occurred in Dublin. It was a foggy night, and a cab containing four persons drove straight into the Alexandra Basin. The cab happened to fall exactly across the mooring cable of a ship, the horse on one side and the cab on the other. Although the passengers were up to their waist in chilly water and boxed like rats in a trap, they were safe and were soon rescued by a rope at the hands of the ship's watchman. Only the horse lost his life.

Automobile perils are becoming commonplace. Some years ago the car of Mr. Conklin, a New York lawyer, was smashed to splinters by an express train, but he himself was carried along on the front of the engine above the cow catcher. Only a few ribs were broken, and he recovered. Several cases of horses and carriages going over high cliffs in England without serious damage are recorded. A Parisian woman doctor once went to call on a patient at a private hotel, and, entering a wrong door, which had a patent catch, found herself trapped in an elevator well, with the elevator slowly descending on her. No one was in the lift. She shrieked for help, and finally sank down on her knees, awaiting death. The concierge heard the cries, rushed out and stopped the machinery when the floor of the car was within a foot of the prisoner's head. A similar experience and a favorite situation of melodramatic authors was that of a Connecticut farmer who was cutting wood with a buzz saw operated by wind power. He slipped and fell on the carriage. He could not release himself, and the relentless machinery drew him ever closer to the saw until the teeth were slicing through his clothes. He would have been sawn in two in another moment if the motor had not ceased working owing to a sudden fall in the breeze. He threw himself off the carriage with a desperate effort just as the wind freshened and the saw once more made its swift revolutions.

Who was nominated this morning and who will be a candidate for the Council next Monday.

MAYOR HENRY RUSH,
Who will occupy the chief magistrate's chair for a second term by acclamation.

V. EASTWOOD,
Nominated for the Council to-day.

MAYOR RUSH WILL CONTINUE HIS WORK; FORTY-FOUR NOMINATIONS FOR ALDERMEN

His Worship an Unanimous Choice for the Chief Magistracy ---Mr. T. F. Matthews Also Elected Water Commissioner by Acclamation---Ten Nominees for the Board of Education.

THE ALDERMANIC LIST WILL DWINDLE

Mayor Rush re-elected by acclamation; Mr. T F Matthews re-elected to the Board of Water Commissioners, without opposition; ten nominations for the Board of Education, and forty-four nominations for the City Council!

The above was the result of the nominations held this morning in the Council Chambers. There was a large number of electors present who manifested considerable interest in the proceedings. Contrary to a rumour that was heard at times there was no opposition to Mayor Rush, who was an unanimous choice. Mr. T F Matthews was likewise unopposed.

The nominations for the Board of Education were held between 10 and 11 o'clock.

The subject of most talk was the nomination of forty-four citizens for for aldermanic honours. It was a busy time, things happening in a rapid manner. It is understood that quite a number of the nominees do not intend to stand for election. Those who do must qualify before 9 o'clock to-morrow night as required by the act.

The result of the nominations is as follows:

Mayor

HENRY RUSH—Insurance agent, proposed by Robt. Neill, seconded by Jas. Lynch.

Water Commissioners

THOMAS FRANCIS MATTHEWS—Manufacturer, proposed by W. G. Morrow and seconded by E. F. Mason.

For Board of Education

WOLFE STREET WHARF TO BE EXTENDED FULL LENGTH

Government Engineer Authorizes Extension to South Limit of City Property ---Conveniences for Gasoline Launches and Small Boats.

The Dominion Government is not unmindful of the interests of Peterborough, especially in regard to its navigation and shipping interests. The Government last session appropriated $5,000 to provide a new Wolfe sreet wharf, a work which the Toronto News and other journals of its stripe, would say should be done by the municipality benefitted. It was found that this sum would only build the wharf southward from the first abutment of the C. P. R. bridge about two-thirds of the distance of the frontage of the city property at this point. Hon. Mr. Stratton went to Ottawa, and laid before the Government the proposition for an additional appropriation, to permit of the extension of the wharf to the southern limit of the city's lands. The idea was favourably considered, and Mr. J. G. Sing, C. E., the Government engineer of this district, was instructed to investigate the matter.

Consequently, Mr. Sing was in the city on Saturday, looked over the situation, and authorized Mr. John Hayes, who has charge of the work, to extend the wharf southward the other third of the distance of the river or lake frontage of the city property.

Taking advantage of Mr. Sing's presence on Saturday, Mr. Stratton urged upon him the advisability of the plans of the southern end of the wharf being so modified as to the matter of height and in other ways, as to secure the convenience for embarking and landing, of gasoline launches and smaller boats. This proposal, which Mr. Sing assented to, will be carried out and will not only better serve the purposes of these crafts, but will obviate interference with the landing and departure of steamers, and remove a source of danger to the smaller crafts and their occupants.

The work will be undertaken at once and, if weather conditions permit, will be completed this winter. If not, work will be begun in the spring as early as possible. When the whole wharf is completed the public and the city will have a splendid line of wharfage, and when a line of wharf is built, which will very probably be done in the not distant future in front of the city's property north of the C. P. R. bridge, the public will have a better appreciation of the action which led to the placing of the river front in the possession of the city of Peterborough. As it is now, the wharf is under way, and will stand for ages, and those interested in navigation, steamer owners, pleasure crafts, as well as the public, will derive continuous advantage.

POSTMASTER WHO PERISHED IN THE FIRE AT TORY HILL ON SATURDAY HAD RELATIVES IN THIS CITY

Kinmount, Ont., Dec. 28.—The home of John Henry Anderson, at Tory Hill, was destroyed by fire at five o'clock Saturday morning.

Mr. Anderson is missing and bones found in the ruins suggest that he lost his life in trying to get out of the house.

Mr. Anderson was Crown Lands agent and also postmaster and storekeeper for a number of years.

He owned the public hall there, and on Christmas eve John A. Kelly, ventriloquist, Toronto, was giving an entertainment. After the concert a dance was held. Mr. Anderson went home about four o'clock.

It is thought a lamp was overturned. Mr. Anderson, was was about 59 years of age, was alone in the house, Mrs. Anderson being in Toronto. He leaves six children, three boys and three girls, His mother, Mrs. Duncan Anderson, lives on Wellmar Road, Toronto; two brothers also reside in Toronto, Dr. H. B. Anderson and Dr Duncan Anderson.

Coroner Giles, Haliburton, was notified, but decided that an inquest was not necessary.

Mr Anderson was a son of the late Duncan Anderson, formerly Crown Land agent and merchant of Apsley. Mrs. Anderson, mother of the deceased, is a sister of Mr. A. R. Kidd, of Peterborough.

The friends of the family in this district will extend deepest sympathy.

SUDDEN DEATH OF OLD RESIDENT

G. J. Gumpricht, Well Known Piano Tuner, Passes Away at His Residence on Aylmer Street.

The whole community will learn with painful surprise of the sudden death of Mr. George John Gumpricht, who by virtue of his profession, piano tuning, was well known in hundreds of city homes and in the surrounding country. Mr. Gumpricht passed away very suddenly on Sunday morning at his home on Aylmer street at the age of 66 years. He had been ailing for some time but was feeling better during the last week and spent a very happy Christmas.

On Saturday afternoon while sitting at the piano he turned suddenly faint and called his two youngest daughters to him; they managed to get him to a chair where he remained unconscious until his death occurred at 8.30 o'clock in the evening.

He was born in Hamburg, Germany, and came to this country thirty years ago. He first resided at Whitby and Oshawa, coming to this city in 1890. He was married 26 years ago to Miss Jessie Mundy, who still survives him.

There are five children, four daughters, Wilhelmina, Gorgie, Violet and Grace, and one son, Carl, all residing in this city; also one brother, William Gumpricht who lives in Hamburg, and one sister, Sister M. Gertrude, of Loretta Abby, Toronto, to survive his death.

The funeral, which will be private, will leave the family residence at 2.30 on Tuesday afternoon and proceed to Little Lake Cemetery for interment.

CONGRATULATIONS

The electors have served their own interests well, and have worthily honoured Messrs. H. Rush and T. F. Matthews by re-electing them by acclamation as mayor and Water Commissioner, respectively. Mayor Rush is not mayor through any wish or desire originating in himself. When he was a candidate last year he practically waived his claim to the usual accorded second term and in conformity with this has not sought re election; but on the earnest application of prominent citizens interested in the good government of the city, he placed himself in the hands of the public with the understanding that if his services were again demanded he would regard a response to such a demand as an act of public duty. It has been made, and Mayor Rush is Chief Magistrate of the city for another term. The re election of Mr. Matthews is a tribute to the satisfactory character of his services as chairman continuously of the Board of Water Commissioners for the past seven years. During this time his return has been twice opposed only. His repeated re-election is evidence that fidility to public interests and the discharge of public duties on business principles with the natural result of efficiency and satisfaction, bring public appreciation and practical recognition. Congratulations are due all round to the public, to Mr. Rush, Mayor, for 1909 and to Mr. Matthews, Chairman of the Board of Water Commissioners for another term of three years.

THE APOLOGY OF THE TIMES

Under the Canadian system of Government partyism is an inevitable feature. This condition is unobjectionable if the party system is not abused. But party zeal sometimes runs to regrettable excesses. The last election the Conservative party permitted itself to go to extreme lengths in promoting the political purposes it had at heart. It appeared that no national interests, no consideration of national improvment, restrained the party zeal. The interests of party and party successes were exalted above the greater good of the country. It was part of the late campaign to make an attack upon the Commissioners who have in charge the building of the National Transcontinental Railway. The Conservatives had a plot which would have been sprung at the last moment, but unfortunately for them it was discovered by their opponents, and nothing was done. About this time a certain correspondent of the London Times, who had been sent out here to give his views of the country fell into the hands of members of the "Tory" party with the result that he was inspired to write articles reflecting seriously upon the honesty of the members of the Transcontinental Commission. The charge was brazenly made that an organized system of robbery was in force, that duplicate books were kept, and that millions of dollars were paid out for which there was no work done. This, and similar articles were printed by the Times, and editorial comments followed calculated to place the Railway Commissioners in an unenviable light.

Hon. S N Parent, chairman National Transcontinental Commission at once instructed counsel in London to secure from the Times an apology and retraction, or enter a suit for libel. The result was that the following was printed in the Times on December 12:

"The Canadian Elections—Our attention has been called by Hon. Lamon N Parent, K.C., the chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission, of Canada, to a certain cable sent us by one of our Canadian correspondents, and appearing in the Times of October 24th, and the Mail of October 26th, 1908. We desire to say that this message was not intended to convey the slightest reflection upon the Commissioners or on their integrity. We ourselves do not regard the despatch as containing any such reflection and we regret that any body should put any such construction upon it."

The Times is not quite candid in its so-called retraction. It first prints a communication from a correspondent who did not know what he was writing about—a man who had been only a few weeks in the Dominion and who was easily influenced by Conservative politicians to write something injurious to the administration in an election year. Then it publishes an editorial based upon the assumption that the charges made by its correspondent were true. Then follows an apology and the statement that the cable was not intended to convey any reflections, and was not so regarded by the Times—followed by a regret that any body should put such construction upon it. The manner in which the Times treats the incident is certainly not in keeping with the honourable and high-minded traditions of its past. If it did not consider the cabled article one that tended to, and was intended to, reflect discredit upon the Commission, how was it that mischievous meaning of the article was taken so much in earnest and so fully credited by the Times as to be made the subject of an article of a similar tenor, written with a belief in the truth of the libellous articles contributed by its Canadian correspondent. The apology of the Times amounts to an expression of regret that the public who read its columns should believe what it-it evidently believed and treated as true.

THE SOIL WEALTH OF CANADA.

The end of the year is a favourable time for summing up the results of the year's activities in the year. The wealth of a country is based upon its agricultural production, therefore some salient figures of production will be of interest. From figures officially compiled, the following table of results is appended:

THE DOMINION—

	Bushels per acre.	Total bush.
Wheat	17.5	115,651,000
Oats	33.7	267,651,000
Barley	29.0	50,723,000
Corn, (husking)	57.4	21,007,000
Potatoes	145.4	73,228,000
Turnips, other roots	309.7	94,075,000

This only includes the main products. The provinces provided this grand total as follows:

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND—

	Bushels per acre.	Total bush.
Wheat	14.0	387,000
Oats	34.0	6,124,000
Barley	25.0	148,000
Potatoes	230.0	7,659,000
Turnips, etc	500.0	4,150,000

ONTARIO—

Wheat	21.0	17,284,000
Oats	35.0	108,794,000
Barley	29.0	21,570,000
Corn (husking)	60.0	19,932,000
Potatoes	127.0	23,279,000
Turnips, etc	300.0	58,800,000

MANITOBA—

Wheat	17.5	51,748,000
Oats	32.0	50,267,000
Barley	20.0	19,875,000
Potatoes	177.0	3,682,000
Turnips, etc	217.0	651,000

SASKATCHEWAN—

Wheat	16.0	35,940,000
Oats	32.0	29,7 000.
Barley	24.0	1,944,000
Potatoes	128.0	2,042,000
Turnips etc	488.0	802,000

ALBERTA—

Wheat	30.0	8,130,000
Oats	49.0	25,451,000
Barley	35.0	4,543,000
Potatoes	238.0	3,142,000
Turnips, etc	450.0	1,125,000

NOVA SCOTIA—

Wheat	20.0	412,000
Oats	35.0	4,727,000
Barley	26.0	258,000
Potatoes	167.0	7,315,000
Tyenips, etc	300.0	7,219,000

NEW BRUNSWICK—

Wheat	16.0	323,000
Oats	27.0	5,505,000
Barley	25.0	88,000
Potatoes	220.0	11,792,000
Turnips, etc	331.0	1,920,000

QUEBEC—

Wheat	14.0	1,447,000
Oats	24.0	37,020,000
Barley	21.0	2,302,600
Corn (husking)	32.0	1,075,000
Potatoes	103.0	14,317,000
Turnips etc	265.0	9,408,000

These are the main articles which go to make up the crops of the Dominion last year, and from the figures one can see the percentage per bushel of grain in the various provinces of the Dominion. The west, of course, holds the record for wheat production. The total value of the grain crop of the west last season was $126,168,048; of wheat the total was $87,668,040. This immense crop was made possible by the thoughtful provision of seed grain by the Government, without which the western crops would have been a failure.

FORMER PROMINENT CITIZEN IS DEAD

Mr. Thos. Menzies Passed Away Yesterday at Kingfisher, Oklahoma—Was Prominent Business Citizen of Peterborough for Over Thirty Years.

Mr. K. G. Lech this morning received a telegram, announcing the death at Kingfisher, Oklahoma, of Mr. Thomas Menzies, a former well known and prominent resident of Peterborough. Mr. Menzies has been in ill health for some time and his demise was not unexpected. Mrs. Menzies has been in the city on a visit since May and had arranged to to leave for Oklahoma to-day.

The late Mr. Menzies was a native of Perthshire, Scotland, where he was born in January, 1832. He was the only son of a family of four children, who came to America in 1851. After a years residence in New York, the family came to Peterborough, and Mr. Menzies, then about twenty-one years of age, entered into employment with a Mr. Rogers, who conducted a general store in Ashburnham. After five years in the capacity of clerk Mr. Menzies went into the stationery business on his own accord, in the premises no. occupied by Cunningham's music store. Here he, in the course of about thirty years, built up a large business in his line, subsequently adding private banking. Mr. Menzies was not only devoted to, and successful in, his business but found time to take an active interest in municipal matters, and was for several terms a member of the town council and way mayor for one term. For several years he was an officer in the militia, his commission bearing the signature of Sir Edmund Head, and in 1856 he was actively associated with the organization of the first volunteer company in Peterborough. He was a justice of the peace, and during the period between the death of the late Mr. Hatton and the appointment of Mr. Dumble, performed the duties of Police Magistrate. Nineteen years ago Mr. Menzies and family removed to Oklahoma, where they have since resided. Mr. Menzies is survived by Mrs. Menzies, four daughters and two sons. The daughters are, Mrs. R S Davidson, and Mrs. K G Lech, city; Mrs. George Lang, Kingfisher, Oklahoma, and Mrs. E Watrous, Enid, Oklahoma. The sons are Stanley, of Hennesy, Oklahoma, and Thomas at home. The late Mrs. Robert Graham, Lakefield was a sister. Nothing is, up to this writing, known of the funeral arrangements.

BOURASSA TALKS.

Declares That Sir Wilfrid Is Anxious to Get Him Back.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—Henri Bourassa, M.P.P., made an extraordinary statement at Ormstown Saturday evening to a joint meeting of 500 electors of Chateauguay for Ald. Mercier and H. Desrosiers, Liberal and Conservative candidates respectively.

Replying to the charge that he was a renegade from the Liberal party, Mr. Bourassa declared that so great was Sir Wilfrid Laurier's desire to get him back to the Liberal party that the Premier had offered to allow Bourassa, Lavergne and Laflamme to be returned by acclamation in the Province of Quebec.

Coming from Mr. Bourassa the statement in the face of the fact that he had defeated Sir Lomer Gouin and had denounced his Ministry on twenty platforms, is scarcely believed by the friends of the Quebec Premier, so it will be very interesting to hear from the federal leader on the question.

Mr. Bourassa also announced both at his Ste. Martine and the Ormstown meetings Saturday that he would make charges at the opening of the Quebec Legislature and with convincing documents in his hand would prove that the Ministers at Quebec were quite cognizant of the amount of $70,000 which were intended for an election fund for the provincial Liberals at the June election. This was connected with a rake-off in L'Abitibee deal.

Four Million Trees Cut.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 28.—The United States forest this year supplied four million Christmas trees, the forestry service estimating that one out of every four families observed the tree custom at yuletide. Gifford Pinchot, United States forester, upholds the Christmas tree custom and believes it should be maintained.

"The number of trees cut this year," he said, "is insignificant when compared to the consumption for other purposes, for which timber is demanded.

"This clearing of an area is equal to a good-sized farm should not be the subject of much worry when it is remembered that for lumber alone it is necessary to take timber from an area of more than 100,000 acres every day of the year."

Wants $50,000 For False Arrest.

Chicago, Dec. 28.—George W. Fitzgerald, former assorting teller of the United States sub-treasury at Chicago, has filed suit for $50,000 damages against Wm. Boldenweck in charge of the Sub-treasury and Herbert F. Young, a private detective. The suit is an outgrowth of the sensational arrest of Fitzgerald last spring charged with stealing $173,000 from the subtreasury vaults. Fitzgerald's acquittal promptly followed Boldenweck's refusal, under orders from Washington, to testify in the case.

Carsley on Board.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—It is understood that William Carsley, son of the late Samuel Carsley, and the present head of the Carsleys, Ltd., will soon take his seat as director and vice-president of the Provincial Bank. It is known that the late S. Carsley went to London a year ago and paved the way for the very successful financial deal completed a few weeks ago by General Manager Tancred Bienvenue and Mr. Bosworth of the C.P.R., and also director of the Provincial Bank.

Cut Cable Rates.

London, Dec. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Henniker Heaton, writing to the president of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, says there should not be the least difficulty in reducing cable rates by 50 to 75 per cent. as the result of the powerful pressure being brought to bear on cable companies and on foreign Governments and additional to the steps now being taken by the Imperial Government for the construction and laying of a few state-owned cables.

Hat Saves Her Life.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 28.—A Merry Widow hat with a flaring brim probably saved the life of Catherine Sheffield, a maid at the Belvidere Hotel, on Christmas morning. A milk bottle falling from the eighth floor of the hotel struck the hat just as the maid passed below and carromed off the wide brim, causing a slight wound on the top of the girl's head.

The hotel physician says the big hat alone saved the girl from a broken skull.

Judge Mathieu to Retire.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—It is generally understood that Mr. Justice Mathieu, one of the veterans of the Superior Court of this province, will retire within a few weeks and will be replaced by Mr. Justice St. Pierre of the Beauharnois district. The latter will be replaced by Mr. Wilfrid Mercier, a clever lawyer, who has been engaged for two years past on the codification of the provincial statutes.

Riot Over Opium Planting.

Amoy, Dec. 28.—Orders were issued Saturday to a number of natives at Tungan to cease planting opium poppies. They declined to acquiesce and a riot followed in which one officer and ten civilians were killed.

The population of Tungan is up in arms and 500 troops have been sent there to restore order. The authorities announce their determination to enforce the anti-opium edict.

HEADACHES ARE DANGER SIGNALS

They Tell Us Plainly That Something Is Wrong Inside.

There are tablets and powders that will stop a headache promptly—but removing a danger signal does not take away the danger.

In nearly every case a headache—of whatever kind—is a symptom of poisoned blood, due to Bowels, Kidneys and Skin failing to thoroughly remove indigestible food and waste, worn-out tissue from the body. Then digestion is poor, causing sick headaches, or uric acid is formed and deposited on the nerves, causing neuralgia.

Not only the danger signal, but the danger itself as well, is quickly removed by "Fruit-a-tives."

"Fruit-a-tives" are tablets made of the combined juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes, containing all their medicinal properties, concentrated and intensified. They cause the liver to secrete more bile, which moves the bowels freely and regularly, and cures the most obstinate cases of Constipation. They stir up kidneys and skin to throw off all the urea, or dead tissue, which has been poisoning the system. They sweeten the stomach, improve digestion and tone up the whole body. The headaches disappear—because the source is removed. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size, 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

MAYOR RUSH'S ADDRESS.

When no opposition was received in the form of other nominations for the mayoralty, Mayor Rush was called upon to address the electors. He expressed his appreciation of the honour that had been conferred upon him in the following words:

I take this opportunity of thanking the ratepayers for having elected me to the important position of Mayor of this city. Had I gone from door to door soliciting votes, I could not have expected such a decisive result. I have done the best I could, and I will endeavour to do my best again. That I have satisfied the Aldermen, goes without saying, for at the last meeting of the council they passed a resolution thanking me for the able manner in which I conducted the meetings.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

You will be pleased to know that you own about 62 acres of land, having a frontage of half a mile on Water street, with all the buildings thereon. On this property there is gravel, stone and sand enough to last the city many years for repairing the roads, for building new concrete sidewalks, bridges or any other concrete works. This property was acquired five years ago, and the rents from it, etc., has more than paid the interest on the investment. The City Engineer has also informed me that it has already paid back 77 per cent. of the $40,000 that was paid for it, in gravel, stones and sand. Then, again, after the gravel has been entirely exhausted the land itself will be more valuable for building purposes, as George street can be extended through it, thus giving a frontage to be sold on each side for building lots.

We have now over 40 miles of granolithic sidewalk, and about 13 miles of wooden ones, yet to be replaced by concrete. We have also nearly 24 miles of sewers, half a mile of which is on streets where there is no water. A little more than a mile of sewer has been built this year and 5 2-3 miles of concrete sidewalks, both costing slightly less than that of last year.

REGARDING THE DEBENTURES.

During the early part of last year, times were exceptionally good, work was very plentiful, and one could only with the greatest difficulty procure labourers, the demand being so great, but instead of closing down the civic work and reserving it for a year such as this has been, sewers were built on streets where there is no water, consequently they cannot b used. The ratepayers are still paying 4 3-4 per cent. for the use of the money it cost to construct them.

Instead of allowing the working man to avail himself of the opportunity of obtaining employment from those who were engaged in building, and thus reserving the civic work for a time when men were unemployed ,this branch of the work was kept going.

Perhaps the chairman of last year's Board of Works can explain the reason for this.

This year the first thing the Board of Works did was to pass a resolution that sewers would be built only on the streets on which there was water, thus saving the ratepayers paying interest on work that was not required.

A BETTER RATE.

The latter part of last year the manager of the Bank of Toronto appeared to be dissatisfied with the city account and demanded that the overdraft be reduced. Something had to be done, as no other bank in the city wanted the account in the condition that it was then in. I have a copy of a letter here (I will read it later) which was sent to the manager of the bank, with the knowledge, approval and consent of the ex-Mayor, after the sending of which an arrangement was made, the city to pay 6 per cent. for the use of any money they required for the year 1908, in excess of any that might be to the credit of the other civic bodies. I find no fault with the arrangement. It was the best that could be done under the circumstances.

About two months ago the chairman of the Finance Committee and myself waited on the manager of the bank and

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS,
Re-elected by acclamation to the Board of Water Commissioners.

arranged for the requirements for next year, 1909, at 5 per cent., being 1 per cent. better.

This year's Council, according to the agreement made last year with the bank, as per the letter I have just read, were obliged to sell the debentures, but the overdraft had been kept well within the limit arranged for by last year's council and the bank, thus saving the difference to the ratepayers, in interest.

THE LETTER.

The following letter was then read by the Mayor:

28th December, 1908.

P. Campbell, Esq.,
Manager Bank of Toronto, city,

Dear Sir, — At a meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council held last night, at which representatives from the Board of Education and City Trust Commissioners were present, the banking accommodation required in connection with the city accounts for 1908, was considered, and the following resolution was adopted:

"That the City Treasurer be instructed to inform the Bank of Toronto, that the banking accommodation required next year, for ordinary and extraordinary requirements, will be as follows: On the first of January, $125,000 on the combined accounts, and by February 15th debentures to the amount of $61,000 will be sold, and from that time on, a line of credit of $100,000 is asked for, but as near as can be estimated, taking into account the sale of $35,000 of school and water works debentures by March 31st, and $40,000 of local improvement debentures by June 1st, the requirements will be on February 15th, $95,000, March 31st, $75,000; June 1st, $60,000; July 1st, $75,000; August 1st, $25,000; from which date it will gradually rise to $65,000 on November 1st, and will remain at about the same figure until December 15th, and after that date will not exceed $100,000; and that the treasurer ask the bank to give the terms on which it will give the civic bodies the accommodation."

Of the $43,362.43 to be transferred to the City Trust account, about $20,000 will be held to 30th of June next to meet debentures maturing at that date, and about $10,000 of the remainder to pay the half year's interest to same date.

Kindly favour me with your reply at as early a date as possible.

Yours truly,
(Signed) FRANK ADAMS.
City Treasurer.

Mr. T. F. Matthews expressed his appreciation of his re-election by acclamation. Since 1902 he had, with his associates, tried to conduct the interests of the commission as if it was their own money, and not a cent of it had been wasted. During the past year 9,368 feet of cast iron pipes had been laid, weighing 122 tons. There were 227 private services put in, using 1.32 miles of pipe. In 1902, when the water supply system was taken over, there were 92,300 feet of pipes through the city, now there is 162,468 feet. There were 123 fire hydrants as compared with 213 at the present time. There were 1,070 services, and now there are 2,464. From these figures it may be seen that during the past seven years the waterworks system has been practically doubled. During the past year the total volume of water pumped was 624,947,640 gallons, an increase of 53,000,000 gallons over last year.

May Need New Dam

Continuing, Mr. Matthews dealt with what was needed for the system, stating the the increase would likely necessitate the erection of a new waterworks dam. During the last year the new method of taxation for the use of the water was put into effect.

By if vacant property and non-users are taxed according to frontage rate, the commissioners considering that if the value is increased by reason of the waterworks they should pay for it. Mr Matthews quoted figures, showing that the waterworks system was more than sustaining itself. A sinking fund of $37,400 has been secured and a reserve fund of $20,000. In conclusion, Mr. Matthews again thanked the people for the expression of their confidence in him by their finanimous re-election of him as a Water Commissioner.

THE CITY'S ASSETS.

To the Editor of the Examiner.—

Sir, — I observe that my remarks at the late Board of Trade meeting in relation to the city's debenture debt of one million dollars, and the available assets to meet it, are receiving some attention from correspondents of the daily press. I take no exception to this for the reason that discussion of so very important a public question is quite reasonable. One writer sets out with the statement that there are two kinds or assets one convertible and the other inconvertible. Very good: and every standard dictionary tells us that those things lands and goods which may be converted into money for the discharge of a debt, are assets. It follows as of course, that whatever can be so treated, are not assets as against money liabilities. The person referred to, classes sewers, sidewalks and schools as having a convertible value, but we cannot continue to live in this age without these accommodations and must not, therefore, even under great straits, sell them. They are not assets any more than health and education are, which though of vital value to the individual, put in the eyes of a creditor, are of very small account. Then, the writer classes sewers and water works together, and places the market block in a line with the fire hall. This block, the Hilliard Farm and the waterworks represent upwards of half a million in revenue-producing and convertible value, and these with one hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars of sinking funds on hand, fare a real set off against the million we owe, leaving a net debt of four hundred and twenty five thousand dollars to be made up by direct taxation. I think it was well understood I was not at the time dealing with our human duties in relation to schools, etc., but with the finances of the city, and comparing the city's resources as against its considerable obligations, and at the same time cautioning citizens against schemes that would make for convenience only, and are not absolutely necessary, while losing sight of the danger of crippling the city by a burdensome debt.

Your obedient servant,
V. E. MOORE.

ANNIVERSARY CONCERT OF ST. PETER'S T. A. S.

Ninth Annual of its Institution Will be Appropriately Celebrated.

The concert in connection with the ninth anniversary of the foundation of St. Peter's T A S will be held on January 8th in the St. Peter's school hall. Not only is this a commemorative affair but the proceeds will be used in dispensing charity among families. The concert will include an illustrated address on Rome and its classic ruins by the Rev. Dr. O'Brien. This will be the first time this address has been heard in Peterborough and the slides are said to be of high order. The rest of the programme will be of equal interest and will include some special local talent and a skit that will be put on by T.A.S. amateur performers.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Services Yesterday Were Very Bright and Hearty.

Very bright and hearty were the services at St. John's both Christmas day and yesterday. With over forty voices in the choir, the choral singing was splendid, the full choral Evensong last night, with the usual custom observed of Anthem and Carol singing after the sermon, bringing out all the powers of the choir and reflecting the highest credit on their training by Mr. B. J Davey. One of the brightest features of the work of this purely voluntary choir is the soprano singing of the boys, and the splendidly manner way they picked up their leads in the chorus from the "Messiah" "And the Glory of the Lord," was most effective, many of them singing from memory.

The works given last night in addition to Tallis' Service and Smart's "Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis' were as follows: — Chorus, "Nazareth' Gounod; Carol "In the Fields," Farmer, soprano solo by Harry Hill. Chorus "And the Glory," Handel; Chorus and Trio, "Hallelujah, Amen," Stainer Mrs. Evans, Mr. H Morphet and Mr. N Greenhalgh, finely rendering the trio of this difficult choral number.

In the vestry the Rev. Canon Davidson warmly thanked the choristers for their valuable services for God and the church.

Nearly 300 of the Sunday School children and their friends, also the girls from the Barnardo Home, attended the Christmas service in the afternoon at 3.15 p.m.

What a Great Man Said to the Great American People.

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist, who spent the best years of his life in perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his receipt to the American people he said, "Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world, but it is more than a fair dressing. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair; it stops falling hair; it gives vigour and strength to the hair roots." Wm. Madill sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle and guarantees it to do all that is claimed for it, or your money is refunded. If you do not reside near a druggist who sells Parisian Sage, send 50 cents to Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., and a bottle will be sent you all charges prepaid.

Music and Drama

Arrangements are being completed for the presentation of that very funny comedy "The Private Secretary," which will be acted under the auspices of the 57th Battalion Band towards the end of January. Mr Irving Beers, who had in charge the production of "All the Comforts of Home," will be the director of the new comedy, which will be put on by a number of the same artists who took part in that successful play. "The Private Secretary" will be put on in the Conservatory of Music Hall and rehearsals will commence in a short time.

CARL W. COOK STOCK COMPANY

The engagement of the Carl W Cook Stock Company, at the Grand, this week, promises to be one of the best popular priced attractions offered by the Management of the theatre this season. They have an entire line of new plays and specialties; among them, The Marvellous Vade, in an act of Magic and Mystery that is not only novel, but far above the average act of its kind. Miss Edyth La Nora, the Dresden Doll with her catchy songs, Geo. Cotter, that funny little fellow; Karl Hawk, the Kid from the country; Joe Vitta, baritone soloist, and others.

Their opening bill will be "Nature's Nobleman." This is a society comedy drama. There is no lack of comedy in the bill, the best class of comedy.

There is also an opportunity for the ladies to wear some handsome gowns, in fact, an costuming and attention to detail, the bill is a product in the real sense of the word.

BANKS IN SPLENDID CONDITION

The New Year Promises Better Returns On Investments—State of Money & Market in New York.

New York, December 24th, 1908. (Special)—After backing and filling with days of seeming heavy losses the stock market closed for the holidays with the average price of stocks at the point touched on December 12th. On that day the average was 118.18, and on December 21st, it had fallen to 115.20 only to regain in three days the losses scored in eighteen days. The market is now 26.70 points above the low price of November 21st a year ago and 18.18 points under the big record of January 1906. It can be seen by this that a good deal of business improvement has been discounted.

The report that E. H Harriman was seriously ill was used in the early days of the week as an excuse upon which to sell the market and Union Pacific dropped 10 points from its high mark. Later the announcement that James Hill had acquired the Colorado and Southern for the Burlington caused a steady upward movement to set in.

The announcement of this purchase has been followed by numerous rumors of other acquisitions. It is said that E. H. Harriman is after the Wabash, the St. Paul after the M. K. & T. and that the Rock Island crowd is also seeking to get a Gould property. On these rumors there was a great deal of semi-speculative buying which advanced the market

Money after showing a hardening tendency was easier after Monday due to the heavy decrease in loans by the banks last year. This could mean but one thing—that the banks had liquidated a geat deal of stock carried through the depression and were in a better position to finance further requirements. But with the banks and big men of the street sold out, the market is in a more vulnerable position than for some time. With tariff agitation, foreign diplomatic complications and slow improvement in business, it is reasonbale to suppose that the market will sell before starting upon another upward movement. Before the year is over, if good crops again bless the country, prices will be higher than in 1906 but those who buy upon margins should remember that all signs point to a reaction in the stock market.

Business is slowly recovering, the banks are in a better condition and during the month of January there will be distributed the stock and bond holders by leading corporations and municipalities $210,000,000 in dividends and interest. This was $18,000,000 more than was paid out last January despite the fact that dividends were cut and passed during the year and numerous bonds ceased to pay interest. During the year there was an increase of $800,000,000 in bonds and $200,000,000 in notes. The total bonds puon which interest was paid in January last year was $5,695,117,000, while this year interest will be disbursed on $6,521,657,000. It is safe to predict that the coming year investors will receive more in dividends and in interest than in any year in the history of the country. With these facts before them it can be understood why fluctuations in the stock market are not considered alarming by those who trade upon margins. They see only the upward movement and forget that the downward swing must follow.

MONSTER PETERBOROUGH TURKEY

Was Enjoyed by Lindsay People on Christmas Day—A Pudding To Match.

A couple of days previous to Christmas Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, of the "Big 20" restaurant, received by express from a Peterborough relative a monster turkey that weighed over 24 lbs. dressed for the table. This fine fowl was just what was needed to outweigh a huge home-made plum pudding received by Mr. Taylor from English relatives for the Christmas dinner, which was partaken of last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and family and a number of invited guests including Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fleming of Peterborough, the donors of the turkey. The dinner proved very jolly affair, the pudding contributing to the fun by yielding up a number of amusing objects placed therein by the makers in pursuance of a quaint old English fashion.—Lindsay Free Press.

January Will Be A Normal Month; No Unusual Cold Snaps Or Storms

Prof. Irl Hicks Says First Month of New Year Will be Marked by no Unusual Blizzards Although There Will be Some Weather.

PREDICTIONS FOR MONTH

The predictions of Prof. Irl Hicks, in the current number of Words and Works, appear to indicate that January will be marked by normal weather, with no record-breaking storms or cold spells, although we are apparently in for a fair share of both. Prof Hicks says:

A regular storm period, which is central on December 31st, will culminate on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Falling barometer, attended by general cloudiness and rain southward, with snow and boreal gales northward, will result during the first three days of the month. High barometer and change to very cold will rush out of the northwest immediately behind these blizzardous storms, bringing progressively a few days of fair, frigid weather to almost the entire country.

A reactionary storm period centres on the 6th and 7th. At this time earth is in perihelion, or nearest the sun, with Uranus in opposition and Neptune in conjunction with sun and earth. Full moon at extreme north declination is on the 6th. Decided reaction to falling barometer and warmer will pass eastward over the country at this time, resulting in general rains and snow storms on and touching the 6th and 7th. Don't be surprised if blizzards hit many sections at this time, with cold wave and high winds following from northwest. The 4th to 9th is a seismic period, centering on the 6th. Such may not occur, but maximum tendency will exist.

A regular storm period extends from the 9th to the 14th, is central on the 11th. The mercury period is central on the 13th, reaching from the 6th to 19th. Falling barometer and marked winter storms will pass over the country from west to east from about Sunday the 10th to Thursday, the 14th. The crisis will fall on and touching the 13th. Heavy sleet storms, turning to blizzards northward may be expected. A cold wave, with cloudy, blustering weather will follow the storms for several days. Preparations and watchfulness should be your watchwords.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 16th and 17th. The Mercury disturbance is still in force and will help to incite storms of sleet and snow on and touching these days. Cold rains will pass over regions to the southward. High barometer and frigid gales will bring fair cold weather following these storms.

A regular storm period begins with new moon on the 21st, is central on the 23rd, and extends to the 25th. Decided change to warmer will appear westward by the 21st, with falling barometer and cloudiness. These conditions will advance eastward, resulting in decided winter storms from Friday, the 22nd, to Monday, the 25th. Look with confidence for these storms and for violent change to high barometer and cold, pushing close on western flanks of storm areas. The chances are that a "January thaw" may appear during this period, with winter thunder and lightning on and about the 25th, but cold will follow, and 'don't you forget it."

A reactionary storm period has its centre on the 28th and 29th, at which time the cold will relax, the barometer will fall and cloudiness with rain and snow will appear. At this closing period for January, the indications are that disturbances will be comparatively moderate. The conditions existing at the preceding period, the 21st to 25th, promise much more general and active storms, in which cases the disturbed periods as a rule are longer continued, and the reactionary periods following are marked with less intensity. This is especially true when no other astronomic causes are bearing on the reactionary period, as is the case in this closing period for January.

We are reasonably certain tha January will not prove the most severe and disagreeable month of the present winter. Of course there will be some severe winter storms, and cold waves will follow each storm period in due order; but these will be what may be called normal. There are no apparent causes for phenomenal weather conditions, such as are usually to be expected in this mid-winter month. Naturally the winter's cold reaches its maximum in January, but such maximum cold is not always attended by storms out of the ordinary. It is the natural result of cumulative cold, arising from the fact that continued long nights and short days have allowed the boreal influences to reach high tide in the northern hemisphere. When aggravating combinations of astronomic causes fall in January, thus antagonizing and intensifying the natural tendency to maximum cold, our worst blizzards and greatest cold waves occue. As stated above, no such concentration of astronomic causes falls in the month.

Acreage Of Grain In Western Canada Will Be Much Increased

Manager of Ogilvie Flour Mills States That Area of Broken Land Will be Much Larger—Railroads Handled the Crop Well.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS GOOD

"General conditions throughout the West are steadily improving as a result of the excellent harvest and the satisfactory prices being obtained for everything the farmer has produced this year," said Mr. W. A. Black, general manager of the Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., Limited, in a recent interview.

"There has been an unusually large amount of fall ploughing the past season, and the quantity of moisture has been rather above the average, thus assuring most excellent prospects for next year's work.

"It is important to note," said he, "that there has been a very large amount of breaking of land during the past summer, which indicates that there will be a very considerably increased acreage of all grain next year.

"The crop movement on the whole this year has been very satisfactory indeed, the railroads having shown their ability to cope with the situation, and there has not been anything like the same congestion of previous years, notwithstanding the crop of all grains was larger.

"There has been a fair number of settlers coming into the country, and this season's profitable results will unquestionably attract a very large immigration in the near future. A great many settlers have gone home, either to Europe or to the south, and each one of these is really the best kind of immigration agent. The fact that they are able to make these trips indicates plainly that they are in a prosperous condition.

"Wholesale houses at Winnipeg report their payments as very satisfactory."

HOW CELEBRATION OF ST. JOHN'S DAY IS BEING DONE IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Dec. 28—St. John's Day the feast of the patron saint of the Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons fell this year on Sunday and the celebration in most Canadian cities was spread over three days. In Montreal most of the lodges held the annual installation of officers on Saturday. Yesterday was marked by devotional exercises, an immense church parade in which all of the city lodges took part being the feature.

This evening the celebration will take a lighter and more jovial form banquets having been arranged by the different lodges. Each lodge will dine in their own rooms and fraternal visits will be made by some of the officers to the different banquet boards during the evening.

The church parade yesterday was probably the largest held in Montreal by a fraternal organization in many years. The service was held in Christ Church Cathedral, one of the largest Anglican churches in the city. The Masons met at their Temple on Dorchester street and marched to the church attired in full lodge regalia, and accompanied by several bands.

The sermon was preached by the Rev Herbert Symonds.

The officers of most of the Canadian lodges were installed to-day and on Saturday, and the lists have been announced.

Servant Girl Disappears With Money, Leaving Infant Alone

Friday afternoon while Rev. W. C. Riddiford, pastor of the Park St. Baptist Church, and his wife were visiting some friends, his servant girl disapeared with the sum of $3.50, leaving a five months old baby alone for four or five hours.

When they returned about three o'clock in the afternoon they were much surprised to find the door open and only the baby to greet them. On investigation it was found that the girl had decamped taking a few clothes of her own and the money. Mr. Kelso, of Toronto was immediately communicated with to see if he could locate the girl. Mr. Kelso is superintendent of the Industrial schools at Toronto, and it was through him that Mr. Riddiford secured the servant. It is thought that she will go back to Toronto as that is where she came from.

NEW YEAR'S DAY AT ST. PETER'S

Rule About Eating of Meat on Friday Will Not Likely be Changed

Friday next being New Year's Day is celebrated as one of the holy days of the Catholic Church. The masses will be at six, eight, nine and ten o'clock. It was not announced yesterday whether the fact that it fell on Friday would allow the members of that church the use of meat. By special dispensation in the past there have been times when such was the case but unless there is word received to the contrary meat will have to be dispensed with in the family meals as ordinarily.

CANADIANS PLACED IN THE HIGHEST OFFICES

At the Recent Convention of the Maintenance of Way Men—Local Boy Among Them.

W. H. Noyes, of Toronto, who was a delegate to the Maintenance of Way Employees' Convention at New Orleans, has returned and stated that Canadian delegates were elected to the most important offices. Predomination Of Heathens Still Shown In World's Census

Present Estimates Compared With Those of 1885 Show, However, a Gain for Christianity—Ratio is 3.46 to 5.33.

GREAT MISSIONARY FIELD

The growth of Christianity since 1885 as shown by a comparison of statistics prepared during that year, and a recent statement, is the subject of an article in the Canadian Baptist:

In a religious census which he has just published, Dr. H. Zeller, Director of the Statistical Bureau in Stuttgart, estimates that there are 1,544,510,000 people in the world. They are divided as follows:—

Christians	534,940,000
Mohammedans	175,290,000
Jews	10,360,000
Heathen	823,420,000
The latter he subdivides as follows:—
Confucians	300,000,000
Brahmins	214,000,000
Buddhists	121,000,000
Other Bodies	198,420,000

In other words, out of every thousand of the earth's inhabitants 346 are Christians, 114 are Mohammedans, 7 are Israelites, and 533 are of other religions.

The estimate in 1885 was as follows:

Christians	430,285,000
Jews	7,000,000
Mohammedans	230,000,000
Heathen	794,000,000
Total...	1,461,285,500

Training vs. Long Service

In every business we see the long service man asking the trained one for advice.

Although the optician may claim he has had from fifteen to twenty-five years experience in the optical business, that is no proof that he is a trained man.

In the past seven months we have not had one dissatisfied patient. This is a pretty good record considering the large number we have fitted with glasses and the many who could not get relief elsewhere.

If you have trouble with your eyes and are discouraged, consult the Tate-Taylor Optical Company's Trained Optician.

They guarantee satisfaction or money refunded. Do it now.

EGG THAT WEIGHS QUARTER OF A POUND

Mr. John Bickell Has a Monster Sample of a Hen's Egg.

If the housewives of Peterborough could get eggs that weighed a quarter of a podun each they would not mind very much paying mid-winter prices for the article. Mr. John Bickell who resides at the corner of Benson and Wolsley sts., brought into the Examiner office on Saturday an egg of this kind which tipped the scales at exactly four ounces. The dimensions of the monster egg were 7 2-3 inches by six inches. It came in the nature of a Christmas box being laid on the 24th, by a black Minorca hen.

The Guide Has No Cause To Complain; Cavan Drain Benefits The Farmers; Gives Easy Access To Market

The Port Hope Guide complains because the Counties' Councils of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham gave a grant of six hundred dollars to assist in the completion of what is known as Cavan's Swamp Road, leading from Mount Pleasant to the Gravel Road, North Monaghan.

Its complaint is that the completion of this road and the shortening of the distance for the farmers of North Cavan, is diverting the trade from Port Hope and assisting Peterborough.

The attitude of the Guide is hardly to be commended. Mr. McNeil, the Reeve of Cavan, fully appreciates the advantages to be derived by the enlargement of the drain and the building of the road. Thousands of acres of swamp land will be redeemed and be made valuable, and the Guide should not complain if the farmers and their wives are able to do their shopping by driving eight miles instead of twenty-five or thirty.

When the member for West Peterborough, in the Local House, some years ago, prevailed upon the Government and the Legislature to grant aid to this work to the extent of four thousand dollars, he fully appreciated the benefit that it would be to the Township, to the City of Peterborough and the farmers who live adjacent to the road.

The Guide might as well complain of the Benafort Bridge diverting trade from Port Hope or Cobourg, but there are natural channels for business to be transacted, and Peterborough on account of geographical conditions is much more centrally situated for these communities to deal together. Shortening distances and making communication easier is what the farmers want, and our friend of the Guide must not complain.

Toronto Critic's Tribute To The Brilliant Work Of Miss K. E. Wallis

Speaking of the Women's Art Exhibit, a critic in the Toronto Star has the following complimentary reference to the brilliant work of Miss Katherine E Wallis, the Peterborough Sculptor, who is making a name for herself.:

The examples of Dutch sculpture in this exhibition of Dutch and Scotch art have already been noted in this column, and now to these have been added recently ten pieces by the Canadian artist, Miss Katherine E Wallis, which show intense personal feeling, as well as good technique. A little bronze figure of a chubby babe is most expressive of the yielding form of childhood, and has already found a purchaser in Montreal. "August's Child" is an ideal girlish head with crown of leaves.

Several animal pieces are full of action, and well felt, while the seated figure of a young woman, a bit of sketch work roughly built up from the model, is likely to be of interest only to an artist or one desirous of learning the artist's processes. What shows Miss Wallis' finished technique perhaps best is a low relief portrait in pewter of a woman's head, with fine attention to detail.

Miss Wallis is continuing her studies in Paris, where she is fast making for herself a place among the sculptors of that great art centre.

Presentation Made To Proprietor Of Royal Theatre By Members Of Staff

A pleasing function took place on Saturday night in the cigar store of Mr M. Pappas, George street, when the eight members of the permanent staff of the Royal Theatre gathered to show their appreciation of the courteous manner in which they have been treated by Mr Pappas since the opening of the amusement place, a week ago. The gathering took place at the conclusion of the last performance on Saturday night, and Mr Pappas was presented with a handsome piece of silver plate suitably engraved and an address containing congratulations to the recipient over the business at the Royal during the week and expressions of gratitude over the treatment received at the hands of the proprietor. Mr. Pappas who was greatly surprised by the presentation made a fitting speech expressing the pleasure he felt at being remembered by his staff on Christmas time. He remarked that the manifest success hitherto attained at the Royal was to a large extent due to the intelligent and thoughtful work of the staff.

Influx Of Strangers To The City Has Been Noticed In The Churches

The increasingly large number of strangers in the city has been remarked upon more than one occasion of late, and particularly has it been noticed in the local churches. These are not simply former Peterborough people returning home for the Christmas holidays, but entire strangers who have come here to reside. The churches, it may be said, are reliable indicators of the growth of a city's population, and when a very apparent increase in the size of the congregations is noted, it is because the whole community is greater numerically.

The explanation of this reported influx is not an easy one. It has been suggested that the anticipation of a business and industrial revival in the near future may be the drawing card. But apart from the reason of their incoming, it is some of the various church clubs and societies that are aware of the presence of strangers and they are meeting and receiving them, and assisting in welcoming them.

The Life History Of "Dutchy" Stone The Lakefield Salvationist

The Xmas No. of the War Cry contains the following story of "Dutchy" Stone of Lakefield:—

The conduct of some lone Salvationists has been nothing short of heroic. In a few small places where the Salvation Army has for a time been obliged to suspend operations, a few, or perhaps one, Salvation Soldier, has kept the flag flying in a noble manner, that has turned the tide of war and enabled the Army to renew operations on most successful conditions.

Some six years ago, a great stir was created at Lakefield, Ontario, by the promotion to Glory of "Dutchy" Stone, at the age of seventy-five years. He and his wife were the sole representatives of the Salvation Army in that little town, and for twenty years they kept the flag flying. They were remarkable characters in many ways, and surprised the people by regularly appearing on the streets, Sunday after Sunday, one beating the drum and the other carrying the flag. The costume of Father Stone was a marvel to all beholders; he always wore bright red pants, vest and coat, while on his head was an old German military helmet. To draw the attention of the crowd he carried a ram's horn which he blew at intervals.

People listened to this strange old man with the Dutch accent— listened in wonder and with pleasure, listened and were compelled to respect this fearless advocate of God and of the Salvation Army; they listened and were blessed.

In order to avoid the suspicion of keeping the Army money for himself he always took up the offerings in a G. B. M. Box, which was opened periodically by the officer specially appointed to that work. He was one of those earnest, cheerful, true hearted and believing souls, who are honoured of God in blessing hundreds of others and though, during his lifetime, the villagers had smiled at his oddities, they turned out en masse at his funeral, to pay their last respects to this fearless advocate of God and the Salvation Army.

His devoted wife was as loyal and faithful as himself and toiled hard at selling War Crys and collecting for special efforts. Though very poor, they gave a generous donation themselves. Two sons survive, one being the Rev. William Stone, a missionary amongst the B. C. Indians.

The old drum, which has a much battered appearance after twenty years' service, now hangs as a trophy in Peterborough Barracks, a silent testimony to the faithfulness of a humble but ardent Salvationist.

PRESENTATIONS MADE TO THE RETIRING CITY EDITOR

Mr. B. T. Huston Honored by the Examiner Employees and the B.A.C. on Eve of Departure for Toronto.

WILL BE MUCH MISSED

The job room department of the Examiner office on Saturday evening was the scene of a pleasing event when the employees of the establishment gathered to make a presentation to Mr. B T Huston, who has occupied the city editor's chair on the Examiner for the past thirteen months, and who has been a member of the editorial staff of this paper for the last three years, on the eve of his departure for Toronto where his good work has secured for him the responsible position of editor of the Canadian Grocer, one of the most important of the McLean Publishing Company's trade periodicals.

All the employees of the Examiner were present when Hon. Mr. Stratton in an appropriate speech referred to the regret which he and, he was sure every one connected with the Examiner, would feel at Mr. Huston's departure from Peterborough. Mr. Huston had been a most faithful member of the staff and had always done everything in his power to make this paper a success. In conclusion Mr. Stratton hoped that Mr. Huston would meet with every success in his new sphere of labour in Toronto.

Mr. F R Yokome, the editor of the Examiner added a few words of endorsation of Mr. Huston's many good points as a newspaper man. He had been faithful, painstaking and energetic and was an example to any young man who wanted to succeed.

Mr. Harry Lacheur then presented Mr. Huston with a neat travelling bag and a handsomely bound set of "Wit and Humour" on behalf of the employees of the Examiner.

Mr. Huston in reply thanked his friends for their kind words and gifts, and expressed his regret at severing his connection with the Examiner, his association with which he would always remember.

Ring From B. C. A.

On Monday night last Mr. Huston was the guest of honour at a pleasant little banquet at Hooper's Palm Parlours under the auspices of the B.A.C. of which organization Mr. Huston has been a member for some time. During the evening Mr. Wallace Wood on behalf of the members presented Mr. Huston with a very handsome gold signet ring suitably inscribed.

Mr. Huston who left this morning for Toronto, will take with him the best wishes of a very large circle of friends in this city. He was secretary of the City Hockey League and of the Peterborough Poultry Association and his departure will mean a loss to those organizations. He was also a member of the old Quaker Football Club, serving as secretary one year as well as being one of the Club's most valuable players, and secretary also of the lately formed Otonabee Athletic Club.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50 cents.

STORY OF THE FIRST XMAS TREE

Dr. Vandyke's History Dates Origin to 336 A.D., Re-told by Rev. H. R. Trompour.

The Rev H. R. Trompour, rector of All Saint's Church, departed from the usual custom of giving a sermon last evening. Instead he retold Dr. Henry Vandyke's story of the first Christmas tree, which dates back to 336 A D.

Two men St Boniface and Gregory who had been converted in an English convent were sent as Missionaries to the Thuringians, who in those days worshipped their God Thor, the God of War. After preaching to them they persuaded them to cut down a large tree that they used to worship under. They built a church out of the lumber made from fallen timber. While they were working, Gregory pointed to a small fir tree among the ruins and standing up told them the Story of the Cross, telling them to take that small tree as the symbol of their faith.

There were large congregations at both morning and evening services.

HARD LUCK.

It is impossible to satisfy everybody at any one time, or place on any one subject. The old saying "that what is meat to one is poison to another," applies with equal force to other departments of life besides the table. A good example of this varied application is shown in the fact that the beautiful mild weather of the early part of the season, while pleasant to be out in, has caused much distress among the merchants of the country, who sell clothing and expect to sell at a profit early in the season. Failing to do this their stocks are on their hands, and bills coming due, failures and assignments are inevitable. We are sorry to see our friends, Lang & Maher, the men's clothing and furnishing dealers, are struggling under this disadvantage and have been forced to place their stock in the hands of a clearance agent to dispose of on short notice. The announcement of the affair will be in to-morrow's Examiner.

Deaths Occur In Fires

Lives Are Lost at Sault Ste. Marie and Tory Hill, Ont.

A BIG BLAZE AT THE SOO

Hussey Block is Wiped Out and Alex. Kemp, Aged 65, is Missing—Said to Have Perished—J. H. Anderson, Postmaster of Tory Hill, Perishes in Flames Which Destroy Home—Other Fires.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 28.—Another disastrous fire visited the Canadian Soo at three o'clock yesterday morning, by which the handsome Hussey block was completely destroyed, and the Coronation block adjoining badly damaged.

One man, Alex. Kemp, aged 65, is believed to have perished in the flames. He conducted a carpenter shop in the basement, and has not been heard from since, although his coat and hat, which he wore one hour earlier, were found. He entered the building at two o'clock Sunday morning in an intoxicated condition.

The business places burned are: Carcoonen's large confectionary store, insurance $1,200; Partlow's second hand store; Kemp's carpenter shop; St. James' Hall, meeting place of all local Catholic societies. The following, who occupied rooms, were burned out: Mr. and Mrs. J. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Balder, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lemon, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Martel.

On the lower floor of the Coronation block, Bemroses' large clothing stock is almost a complete loss, and on the floor above the lodge room of Bessemer Lodge, I.O.O.F., was badly damaged.

The cause of the fire, which started in the confectionery store, is unknown, but those nearby say it followed an explosion. Yesterday search has been kept up for the missing man, Kemp, but in vain, although the ruins have been partially searched.

Great Loss of Live Stock.

St. Catharines, Dec. 28.—The large barns of Isaac B. Culp, about a mile east of Beamsville, were completely destroyed by fire Christmas night. While no cause of the fire is evident, the origin is attributed to tramps. The whole contents of the barn, except a couple of carriages, were burned. This includes sixteen head of cattle, five horses and a large quantity of chickens and other poultry.

When the flames were first noticed Mr. Culp ran into the barn to save the stock, but was kicked in the breast by one of the horses, and with difficulty found his way from the burning building.

P. O. Clerk Arrested.

North Bay, Dec. 28.—Edgar Cahill, aged 20, who has been employed in the postoffice at Elk City, is under arrest charged with forgery of a postoffice order for $30 in favor of W. Black of Cobalt. The order was endorsed and cashed.

Cahill is also accused of theft of a letter containing money.

He was released on bail of $1,000 to appear Jan. 5 for preliminary trial, T. W. McGarry, M.P.P., is defending Cahill.

Local Option For Alabama.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 28.—The record which Atlanta has been making under prohibition for a consistent decrease in the number of arrests for disorderly conduct, was marred Saturday when 233 such cases were tried in the recorder's court.

This was the highest number for any one day in the past two years. It included 74 arrests for drunkenness.

Autoing Fatal Exercise.

New York, Dec. 28.—While riding alone in his automobile near Spring Valley, N.Y., Hiram B. Berry, 63 years of age, a wealthy manufacturer, died of heart disease. He was found dead on the seat of the machine, which had run into a ditch when his hand fell from the steering wheel. The fatality occurred as the car was climbing a steep grade.

Young Student Slays Four.

Mainz, Germany, Dec. 28.—Because his demands for money was not gratified, a young student of astronomy committed a quadruple murder, killing his father, Dr. Racke, a former member of the Reichstag, and his three sisters, one of whom was betrothed on Christmas eve.

Mistaken For Bear.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 28.—Mistaking an intoxicated man clad in a long buffalo overcoat for a bear, Thomas Deckman, a well-known farmer, shot and instantly killed Thomas Andrews.

Andrews had been in jail but was paroled that he might go home for Christmas. He visited several saloons and later sat down in the doorway of a residence, where he fell asleep. The family thinking Andrews was a bear, called Deckman, who prodded the form with his gun, and getting no response, fired.

A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Carnegie to Clean Up Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 28.—It is said that Andrew Carnegie has put up about $150,000 in order to clean Pittsburg up morally, following the municipal bribery scandal in which it is alleged 88 councilmen, all but six have been found to be venal.

The story told in the fashionable Duquesne Club and the Pittsburg is that the same men who told Pittsburg conditions to President Roosevelt also went to Andrew Carnegie and laid an array of facts before him.

The result, according to rumor, was that he authorized expenditure of $150,000 in detective work, etc.

French Ships to Call.

Montreal, Dec. 28.—The Compagnie Generale Transatlantique, the French shipping company, will extend its operations to Canada.

The steamships La Gascogne, La Touraine, La Bretagne and Chicago will call at Canadian ports, beginning next season, according to the announcement made here on Saturday.

Further Enquiries.

Kingston, Dec. 28.—Local officers and officials connected with the Canadian Militia and Justice Departments are anticipating investigations by Government commission.

If it is decided to hold such investigations the penitentiary will again be under review.

Women For School Board.

Kingston, Dec. 28.—It is possible that several women may be elected to the Board of Education this year. Their claims for trusteeships are being presented by the newspapers and the electors are urged to select them for positions.

Canada Invited To Conference

Roosevelt Asks Dominion to Participate in Conference.

WILL DISCUSS RESOURCES

Natural Wealth of North America and Means of Preserving It Will Be Subject of International Meeting Planned by President and Mexico, Canada and U. S. Will Take Part—Letter to Earl Grey.

Washington, Dec. 28.—Announcement was made at the White House yesterday of a proposed conference looking toward the conservation of the natural resources of all North America, to be held at the White House Feb. 18 next.

Letters suggesting the plan have been addressed by President Roosevelt to the Governor-General and to the Premier of Canada, and to President Diaz of Mexico. They will be delivered to the officials in person by Gifford Pinchot, chairman of the National Conservation Commission and chief forester of the United States, whom President Roosevelt has chosen as his personal representative to convey the invitations and to confer with the authorities of the two Governments.

Mr. Pinchot will first visit Canada, leaving to-day. He will then carry the invitation to President Diaz at Mexico City. The President's letter to Lord Grey, is in part as follows:

"In May of the present year the governors of the several states and territories of this union met in the White House to confer with the President and with each other, concerning the amount and condition of the natural resources of this country, and to consider the most effective means for conserving them. The conference included also members of the Supreme Court, the Cabinet, and members of both Houses of Congress, together with representatives of the great associations of citizens concerned with natural resources. The conference was followed by the appointment of conservation commissions of the nations and a majority of the states.

"It is evident that natural resources are not limited by boundary lines which separate nations, and that the need for conservation of them upon this continent is as wide as the area upon which they exist. In view, therefore, of these considerations, and of the close bonds of friendship and mutual aims which exist between Canada and the United States, I take especial pleasure in inviting you to designate representatives of the Government of Canada to meet and consult with representatives of the states and other departments of this Government, and the National Conservation Commission, in the City of Washington, on Feb. 18, 1909. The purpose of the conference I have the honor to propose is to consider mutual interests involved in the conservation of natural resources, and in this great field to deliberate upon the practicability of preparing a general plan adapted to promote the welfare of the nations concerned.

"I have this day addressed a similar invitation to the Republic of Mexico, expressing my hope that representatives of that Government will also be present and participate in the proposed conference of the natural resources of North America.

"The conclusions of such a conference, while wholly advisory in character, could hardly fail to yield important beneficial results, both in a better knowledge of the natural resources of each nation on the part of the others, and in suggestions for concurrent action for the protection of mutual interests related to conservation."

Escapes Lynching.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 28.—A startling story of an attempt at lynching was told yesterday by D. F. Jones, a negro of New Gascony, Ark., labor agent for the Gracie plantation.

Jones is in the hospital at Pine Bluff, where he is recovering from the effects of what he declares was an attempt to lynch him near Gilliam, La. He says a number of white men who were enraged because he was preparing to take out of the district a number of negro laborers, placed a rope about his neck and drew him up a pole, with the intention of hanging him. The pole broke, he says, and he managed to escape after being badly whipped. Jones is in a critical condition.

Found Dead In Bed.

Chatham, Dec. 28.—Mrs. Files of Dover, aged 27, was found dead in bed on Saturday morning. Deceased had not been ill, and when she retired at night she was in the best of health. At three o'clock in the morning the baby, which slept in the room, awakened Mr. Files, who tried to arouse his wife. It was then found that she was dead. Heart failure is supposed to be the cause of death.

Auto Ambulance Struck by Train.

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 28.—In a collision between an automobile and a train, Samuel Knela was perhaps fatally injured. John Petty of Oakland and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Riley of Berkeley were badly hurt. The machine was dashing along at a furious pace, carrying to the hospital a man who had been injured by a trolley car.

Tug Sinks; Four Drown.

Frankfort, Mich., Dec. 28.—The 15-ton fish tug Rhine of Frankfort, Mich., was wrecked against one of the harbor piers here Saturday night, trying to make the harbor in a strong southwest gale. The little vessel was broken in two and the four men comprising her crew were drowned.

Body Thrown on Track.

Vancouver, Dec. 28.—During a row with drunken companions, Odlin Lee of Wharnock, was murdered. Standing by the track side he was hit over the head with a bottle. His companions are believed to have thrown him across the track, and the incoming train from Seattle ran over him.

Italian Feud Ends In Fire

An Italian Fight at North Bay Causes Heavy Loss.

OCCUPANTS BARELY ESCAPE

Stabbing of Man Named Amanda Is Followed by Fierce Factional War Resulting in Burning on Sunday of Store Belonging to Carmen Sandrelli — Property Loss Is $5,000 — Money Burned.

North Bay, Dec. 28.—Early Sunday morning the store and dwelling of Carmen Sandrelli, Italian merchant, was burned to the ground, the occupants barely escaping with their lives. So quickly did the flames spread that nothing could be saved, and cash amounting to $350 was burned. The loss on the building is $5,000; contents $1,000; grocery stock $1,500; insurance $4,250.

The cause of the fire is attributed to incendiarism on account of the fierce feud existing between the Italian factions here which was intensified recently by the murderous stabbing affray in which an Italian named Amanda escaped death by a narrow margin. Amanda's deposition accused Sandrelli of the stabbing, but evidence was given throwing the blame on another Italian who left town the night of the affray, and Sandrelli was acquitted. Amanda is recovering and still accuses Sandrelli.

Revolutionists Fight Troops.

Moscow, Dec. 28.—Baron Cotte, chief of the secret political police, was killed and Col. Muraki was wounded in a fierce encounter on Saturday with revolutionists who were entrenched in a suburban villa.

Artillery was finally brought to bombard the place, which was taken at four o'clock in the afternoon, after holding out for 24 hours.

The attacking party were astounded to find only a single body inside the building, which was identified as that of the well-known revolutionist, Tehernoff, head of the central committee of social revolutionists, who, with a comrade named Siderkin, fired 80 rounds of ammunition from Mauser rifles.

Tehernoff killed himself with the last round. Siderkin was captured, having been seriously wounded.

The Government casualties were two killed and five wounded.

Runaway Boys Suffer.

Washington, Dec. 28.—After ten hours' exposure to a snowstorm in their bare feet, and with scant clothing, four boys who escaped from the reform school at Morganzea, were found half frozen, under a corn crib ten miles from Morganzea.

Assaulted and Robbed.

Belleville, Dec. 28.—Word has been received here of a daring burglary at Stocko; where the residence of Andrew Canniff was broken into and Mr. Canniff beaten into insensibility and robbed of $2.

PETERBORO' JUNIOR O.H.A. TEAM HAS SOME VERY PROMISING YOUNGSTERS

The junior team that has been selected for to-night's practice will in all probability represent the Peterborough Hockey Club in the junior O.H.A. game at Whitby on Friday, although of course the line-up is liable to be changed if the management see fit to make any substitutions. The seven selected, however, should give any opponents that they may be stacked up against, a lively battle. Len Giroux, who has been selected as goal keeper, guarded the nets for the Rough Riders last year, and gives promise of developing into a most useful player. He is quick and reliable and should be of great strength to the team. In front of him will be Fox and Wade of last year's Karnots. Both are husky hard working youngsters who check hard and who are capable of making occasional dashes that should make things interesting for their opponents. Charlie Ray who it is altogether likely will be found with the intermediates will play rover for the first couple of games. He is playing with the Strathconas last season was one of the features of the City League, and he should prove a king pin of what on paper looks to be a speedy forward line. Cyril Giroux, who has been slated for centre is a well built and aggressive player, who possesses that faculty of boring in all the time that will make him a dangerous opponent. Ken Pentland at right wing was one of the stars of the High Lifes' City League team last season, and will undoubtedly prove himself worthy of a place on the junior O. H.A. line-up. Hillier on the other wing was with the Knockers last year. He is a speedy skater, carries the puck well and will no doubt nick in with the other forwards. The team is an untried combination but it looks reasonably strong and with earnest practice this week will give Whitby a hard go on their own little rink.

EDMONTON AND WANDERERS PLAY FIRST STANLEY CUP GAME TO-NIGHT

Great interest is being taken in Peterborough in the Stanley Cup series, between Edmonton and the Wanderers, the first game of which will take place to-night. The general feeling in Peterborough seems to be that Fred Whitcroft's bunch of stars have a royal chance of beating the Wanderers, but others seem inclined to believe that the team work of the defenders will prove too much for the challengers. To-night's game should pretty clearly indicate the relative merits of the two teams. The following line-ups and officials have been announced for the first contest to-night:

Wanderers.	Edmonton
Goal.
Hern	Lindsay
Point.
Ross	Patrick
Cover point.
Smaill	Pitre
Rover.
Gloss	Whitcroft
Forwards.
Gardner	Phillips
Smith	Miller
Johnson	MacNamara

Referee—Russell Bowie.
Judge of play—Chauncey Kirby.

CITY LEAGUE SCHEDULE TO BE DRAWN UP TO-NIGHT

The schedule for the senior City League will be drawn up this evening at a meeting to be held in the Y.M.C.A. at which all clubs intending to play this season are asked to be represented. Teams who are not represented and who have not paid their $20 deposit will not be included in the schedule. The League this year will be made up of the Strathconas, Belmonts, T.A.S., West Ends, Roughs Riders and Lakefields. Another important matter that will come up to-night is the election of a secretary-treasurer to succeed Mr. B T Huston, who has been forced to resign the office owing to his departure from the city.

ARTHUR BURN FAILED TO SHOW ANY CLASS IN THIS RACE

Calgary, Dec. 26—The Herald's annual road race, 6 1-3 miles, was run yesterday in the face of a bad dust storm. Thirteen started, but the conditions caused several to drop out. Mecklenburg won easily in 36.48 1-2. Jas. Fitzgerald of Edmonton, finished a strong second. Art Burn, who took the trophy twice previously, was badly out of condition, and did not figure prominently.

JOHNSTON FIRST COLORED HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

Jack Johnson, the new heavyweight champion, and the only coloured man that ever held the championship, hails from Galveston, Texas, where he was born in March, 1878. He is big and rangy, and as quick as the proverbial cat in his movements. He is considered to be the showiest boxer since the days of Jas. J. Corbett, and his hitting power was demonstrated in his fight with Burns to be great. Johnson stands 6 feet, 2 inches. Johnson began his ring career in 1901, and has lost but two battles—one to Marvin Hart in twenty rounds, and the other to Joe Jeanette at Philadelphia on a foul. The most notable man he ever met before Burns was "Bob" Fitzsimmons whom he smothered in two rounds at Philadelphia This, however, was in 1907, when Fitzsimmons was but a shadow of his former self.

THE HOCKEY PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

Juniors Especially are Urged to be Out in Preparation for Whitby Game.

The members of the Peterborough junior O.H.A. team are especially requested to be present at to-night's practice of the intermediate and junior players inasmuch as the juniors have their first O.H.A. game in Whitby on New Year's night. Whitby have a fast team of Juniors and are a bad combination on their own ice, so that the local youngsters will have to be in the best possible shape for their game this week. A practice game will be played to-night between the following teams:

Intermediates.	Juniors.
Goal
Derocher	Len Giroux
Point
Glover	Fox
Cover
Parnell	Wade
Forwards.
Moore	Ray
Rose	Cyril Giroux
Dusty	Pentland

SCHEDULE FOR BOWLING LEAGUE THIS WEEK

Some Interesting Games are Billed for The Coming Week.

Some interesting games are promises in the Peterborough Bowling League at the P. B. C. alleys this week and the standing may be pretty well shaken up before the end of the week. There are three games postponed from last week which will have to be pulled off this week.

These fixtures are the B A C Migets. Grays, Frontenacs and Examiner A-Examiner B games. Following is the schedule for the week—

Monday—B A C—Belmonts.
Tuesday—Hams—Midgets
Wednesday—Bankers—Iroquois
Thursday—Grays—Exam B
Friday—Lock Works—Exam A
Saturday—Frontenacs—Pacifics

SPORTING ANNUAL IS COMPLETE

Sporting Editor Andrews Issues His List of Records Complete up to This Month.

T. B. Andrews, of Milwaukee, Wis., sporting editor of The Evening Wisconsin, has published his 1909 Sporting Annual Record Book, containing records of all the noted fighters, trotting, pacing, running, bowling, athletic, baseball, automobile, etc. The book contains many fine illustrations of the world's prominent fighters, and all the up-to-date records. It is now the leading Sporting Annual of the country. Copies can be had for 1½ cents by addressing the publisher.

ANOTHER PETERBORO BOY IN HOCKEY IN THE WEST

Mr Alf. Kemp, a Peterborough boy who went west a few years ago, and is now located in Edmonton, is another of the hockey enthusiasts in the western town who is in the limelight. He is one of those who are chiefly interested in the Edmonton Hockey Club which still has an amateur status. Many of its players practised with the Stanley Cup challengers. They are willing to turn "pro" if they can get other teams in the West to play with them.

ST. ANDREW'S TEAM AS IT WILL PRACTISE

The St. Andrew's Young Man's Guild Hockey team will practise to-night at Knox rink at 6.45. The following players are asked to be on hand, and any others wishing to turn out:—Russell Patterson, Norman Rae, Harry Rae, Geo. MacDonald, Frank Gillespie, Murray Miller, Elmer Curry, Wallace Flanagan, Ernest Reid, Harvey McCullough, Thos. Donaldson, Mort. Johnston, E. Dormer, Luther Sills, Arnold Stanton, Gordon Wright, Jack Logan, Jack Sharpe.

TOM BURNS MAY RETIRE A MAN OF WEALTH

Tommy Burns (or Noah Brusso, as his name really is), the defeated champion, was born June 17, 1881, at Hanover, Ontario. He is 5 feet, 7 inches in height, and stockily built. Burns began fighting in 1900, and in his numerous battles lost but four, one to Mike Schreck in ten rounds, one to Jack Sullivan in twenty rounds, one to Philadelphia Jack O'Brien in six rounds, and the recent fight with Johnson.

Burns is said to be wealthy, and the $30,000 purse he received last week will enable him to retire a wealthy man.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE NOTES

The Strathconas have signed Fred Roddy, the point player of the Charlotte street team, who were champions of the City League three years ago.

The T.A.S. had a good practice on Saturday night, and the Abstainers' teams in the junior and senior City League promise to be strong.

The Strathconas will practice tomorrow night between 7 and 8 o'clock, when the following men are asked to be out in uniform: Wilson, Dobson, Rossy, Fox, Barber, Dusty, Ray, Seymour, McMillan and Weatherstone.

Lakefield will be represented in the City League this season with about the same line-up that they had last year and they must not be overlooked. Some of those youngsters will be greatly improved this season and the team should be much stronger.

The West End City League team is somewhat of an unknown quantity, but it is said by those in the know, that the Jackson Park bunch will uncover a lively bunch of juniors when the League season opens.

The T.A.S. team have signed Ken Pentland, who played with the High Lifes in the City League last year. Pentland is a good forward, being a nice stick handler and fast skater, and he should prove a source of strength to the Abstainers.

Derocher and Meagher are the only members of last year's Strathconas who will not be with the High Commissioners this season. Derocher will guard the citadel for the T.A.S. this year and Meagher is not expected to play the game this season.

ORIENTAL HOTEL WILL GET RETURNS OF GAME

Will Have Complete Bulletin Service of Edmonton-Wanderers Game.

The Oriental Hotel, with its customary enterprise, has arranged for a complete bulletin service in connection with the Stanley Cup game at Montreal to-night, between Edmonton and Wanderers. The game is creating much interest in Peterborough, on account of the number of Peterborough boys who are connected with the challengers' team, and no doubt a big crowd will avail themselves of the opportunity to follow the game by means of the Oriental bulletin service. As each goal is scored it will be bulletined.

HOCKEY

The Belmont Hockey Club met yesterday and appointed Mr. Robert Hall, manager. Mr. Bert Rose is the sec.-treasurer.

• • •

The Lindsay Intermediate O. H. A. team have fixed a list of their players with the O. H. A. secretary. On looking over the list it is seen that the only new player of much prominence is Reg. Blomfield, the former Lakefield boy and the old Argonaut forward. Blomfield is fast and will be a welcome addition to the Sougog line-up. Of last year's team Lindsay have Newton, goal; Koyl, point; Sullivan, cover-point; Stoddard, rover and Taylor, centre. The absentees being Cote and Randall, the two wings, the latter of which is with the Guelph pros.

Following is Lindsay's list of players:—

Kenneth Lane, Kenneth Randall, W E Stoddard, B. N. Sylvester, A Lyon Koyl, Byron Green, Joe Killen, J A Duck, Harry McConnell, Fred A. Taylor, C H. Sullivan, Basil R. Newton.

WRESTLING.

Hamilton, Dec. 26—A crowd of about 500 saw the wrestling and boxing tournament last night at the Armoury rink. The feature was to have been a wrestling match between Chrysler and Roehm, of Buffalo, but after eight minutes Roehm quit. They had agreed that only punching should be barred, but Chrysler gave Roehm several short-arm jabs which he objected to. Referee Hayes ordered him to go on, and Chrysler offered to cut out the objectionable tactics, but Roehm refused to go back, and Chrysler was given the decision. Charlie Conkle went on for a three-round boxing match with Bert Ten Eyck, which resulted in a draw. A Buffalo man, who was expected to meet Ten Eyck failed to show up. The three-round boxing match between Cox, National A. C., and Watt, Victoria A. C., also resulted in a draw.

CURLING.

A recent dispatch from London states that the Canadian curlers will play the London Caledonians at the Princess Skating Rink on February 11th, a date which synchronises with the passing of the Canadians through London to take part in the international bonspiel in Switzerland. Mr. R. M. Waddell, of the Peterborough Club, will be with the Canadian curlers.

• • •

The ice Saturday night at the curling rink was very good and the following games were played—

Moore, skip 12	Foote, skip 13
Hall, skip 12	Webb, skip 10
Hicks, Skip 12	Tandi, skip 13

The ice at the Charlotte street rink is almost uniformly good. Mr MacIntosh having seven good rinks and the fun is spreading. The personnel of the rinks will soon be selected by the skips and the games will be under way for the season.

• • •

One of the interesting games played at the curling rink on Saturday was between Harry Foote and Archie Moore's rinks. The score was close all the way finally resulting 13-11 in favour of Mr Foote. A point claimed to have been made by Mr Moore would have evened up but the score was announced as above.

Bloodshed at Church Festival.

Gallipolis, Ohio, Dec. 28.—A bloody fight took place in the Baptist church at Bidwell at a Christmas entertainment. Panic-stricken men, women and children jumped from the windows and many narrowly escaped serious injury. The trouble started when Harrison Pounds, colored, of Vinton, pulled a pistol and shot Alfred E. McDaniel of Nelsonville, Ohio, three times. McDaniel stabbed Pounds several times with a knife. Both men are in a critical condition.

Robbers Torture Farmer.

Toledo, O., Dec. 28.—By burning his feet with lighted matches, two masked robbers on Friday compelled H. A. Schabew of Curtice, O., to open a safe in his farmhouse and turn over $180. After tieing their victim to his bed and placing a gag in his mouth, the bandits went to the barn, stealing a horse and buggy and escaped. A posse is in pursuit.

Germany Willing.

London, Dec. 28.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Le Liberte, referring to Hon. Mr. Fielding's visit to Paris, says that Germany is watching the outcome of the hitch and will be only too glad to take the place of France with a German-Canadian commercial treaty.

Plot Against Wilbur Wright.

Demane, France, Dec. 28.—Just before making a flight on Saturday Wilbur Wright, the American aeroplanist, discovered that some one had filled the oil box of his aeroplane with gasoline. The discovery probably prevented a serious accident.

Amateur Cracksmen Foiled.

Neepawa, Man., Dec. 28.—Amateur cracksmen broke open two blacksmith shops and then broke into Crawford & Co.'s store, and with stolen tools made an apparently unsuccessful attempt on the safes.

Hold-Up at Woodstock.

Woodstock, Dec. 28.—The police are working on a sensational case. Roy Ingles, a young man employed in the Thomas Organ Factory, was held up on Queen street Friday night by five men and robbed of $50.

They bound him and under threats sent him to Henry Craig, cooper, with a note which demanded $1,000 to be sent by the bearer under pain of having himself and his property burnt up.

So far the police have made no arrests, but developments are looked for. This is the second note of the kind that Mr. Craig has got.

Shoots Sister and Self.

Cincinnati, Dec. 28.—James Leary, a brakeman on the Cincinnati Southern Railroad, shot and killed his sister, Mrs. Lydia Dillon, at a family reunion at his father's home in Mount Zion Village, Kentucky.

After firing all the bullets in his pistol into the body of the woman, Leary walked into a store several blocks away, bought additional cartridges and returned. He went into the parlor where lay the body of his dead sister and killed himself. She had reproved him for drinking.

Juvenile Shoplifters.

New York, Dec. 28.—An unusual case of shoplifting developed in one of the big departmental stores on Saturday, when three little girls, the oldest 13 and the youngest eight years of age, were arrested by the store detective, charged with stealing goods valued at about $40.

The list of stuff included three teddy bears, seven dolls, a doll's dress, two veils, a set of dishes, rings, child's boots, a pistol and a sewing-box.

Shooting Was Fatal.

Cuthbert, Ga., Dec. 28.—Chas. Worrell, a member of Mercer law class, and son of Judge Worrell, Saturday afternoon killed Will Lew[illegible] negro, in a shooting affray here.

Alex. Glenn, another negro, was killed, the latter by Alex. Bridges, white.

The double shooting threw the negroes into a state of excitement and a general outbreak between the races is feared by some as a result of the trouble.

A Mountain Tragedy.

Chillicoate, W. Va., Dec. 28.—Edmund A. Williams, 41 years old, a typical mountaineer, was found guilty of murder in the first degree for shooting Beno Swiger, 74 years old, who was a guest in the Williams' home.

The defence was that Swiger had given one of the Williams' children so much whisky that the little girl became intoxicated.

The Lemieux Act.

Ottawa, Dec. 28.—Prof. Shortt, civil service commissioner, goes to Atlantic City this week, where he will address the legislation committee of the American Federation of Labor on the working of the Lemieux Act. The labor organizations of the United States are at the present time taking a good deal of interest in the working of the Canadian law.

Crazy Man's Crime.

Nicholasville, Ky., Dec. 28.—Becoming suddenly insane, Mat Young shot and killed his uncle, Deputy Jailer Logan Young, and seriously wounded Deputy Sheriff George C. Holloway. Young and Holloway had been sent to take Young into court for a lunacy hearing. The crazed man then escaped on horseback, heavily armed.

PROMINENT ELECTORS MEET TO CONSIDER CANDIDATES

Conference Held in the Interest of Nominating Good Aldermanic Candidates.

A meeting of about forty of the prominent electors of the city was held on Saturday evening to consider the nominations in the interests of the city of aldermanic candidates and to deal with the rumoured intention of Aldermen Morrow and Neill to retire from municipal life at the close of the present term. They were urged to consent to allow their names to be placed in nomination.

The meeting though held rather late in the day thoroughly canvassed the situation and decided upon a course of action, which it is hoped will result favourably to the representative interests of the city.

OBITUARY.

MELVILLE E. HERRON

The death occurred yesterday morning of Mr. Melville E. Herron, a very well known and highly respected resident of Cavan Township, near Springville. The deceased, who was twenty-six years of age, had a large circle of friends in Peterborough, where he resided for some years. He attended the Peterborough Business College, under the late William Pringle, and after graduating from that institution was employed for some time in the Kingan Hardware Company. Later he was in the employ of the Lindsay branch of the Metropolitan Life Assurance Company. About two years ago he was taken ill and he has been an invalid ever since, growing steadily worse, until death came yesterday morning. He was a bright and promising young man and his many friends in the district will regret to learn of his demise. He was the son of Mr J. J. Herron, lot 20, con. 11, Cavan, and is survived by two brothers, Messrs. Bruce, of the North-west, and Lloyd, at home, and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Robertson, of South Monaghan, and Mrs. Lindsay Vance living in the Northwest.

The funeral will take place to-morrow at one o'clock to the Union Cemetery at Fraserville.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

There are a few people yet who have not paid their accounts to us and as our terms are cash, we will thank parties to remit or call and pay at once, as we do no twant 1908 accounts to go into 1909. Fined Twenty Dollars And Bound Over To Keep The Peace

Twenty dollars fine and bound over to keep the peace was the imposition Magistrate Dumble placed upon a young man who assaulted Elton York on the day before Christmas. York is a bartender at one of the local hotels and was deliberately struck by the other man, who was under the influence of liquor. A brawl resulted in which the defendant bit one of York's fingers and both men were cut and bruised.

PRESENTATION MADE TO THEIR SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. Alf. Johnstone Honoured by the Pupils of Bethany Tabernacle Sunday School.

At the close of the Sunday School exercises in Bethany Tabernacle, Mr Alf. Johnston, the superintendent of the Sunday School was agreeably surprised by the presentation to him of a beautifully upholstered Foster chair from the members of the Sunday school, accompanied by the following address:

Dear Mr. Johnston:— Will you please accept this chair as a slight expression of the esteem and respect with which you are regarded by us and as an acknowledgement in some part of our appreciation of your services as our superintendent. We thank you for your faithful attendance and the pains you have taken in instructing us in that knowledge which only is able to make us wise unto salvation and hope that when as scholars and teachers days and years are over on earth, we will again all assemble in that happy land around the Throne abovem singing 'Praise Him Who is Worthy."

Signed on behalf of the school.

Mr. Johnston made a suitable speech in reply thanking the members of the school for their kindness.

THE CANADIAN ALMANAC FOR NEXT YEAR IS OUT

It is a Little Library in Itself and Contains Much Important Information

Constant as Christmas comes the Canadian Almanac, that stalwart and sterling veteran of Canadian publications. The number which the Copp-Clark Company has placed on the Examiner's table is numbered the sixty-second, its life having extended over the space of two generations. All that need be said in praise of this year's Canadian Almanac, to anyone that has ever seen or used one, is that it is as complete as ever in its contents embracing every subject of current Canadian interest, upon which a work of reference needs to be consulted. In addition to the standard features of information this year's number contains the text of the Franco-Canadian treaty and the latest addition to titled Canadians. To show how the information is brought up to the present date, the book contains a complete list of the members of the Dominion Parliament elected the 26th of October last. In a word it is almost easier to tell what the Canadian Almanac for 1909 does not contain than to specify the fullness and completeness of information that packs its nearly 500 pages of close printed matter. The Canadian Almanac is a little library in itself. Price 50 cents at all the bookstores. Toronto Copp-Clark Company.

Brother Murders Brother

Hawkesbury Syrian is Slain After Quarrel Over Money.

GIRL IS FATALLY WOUNDED

Because His Brother Would Not Lend Him Funds With Which to Start In Business Salem Assaly, a Peddler, Kills Him and Then Turns Revolver on Cousin—The Murderer Escapes in Confusion.

Hawkesbury, Dec. 29.—J. M. Assaly, merchant, of this town, was fatally shot here last night about 6.30 by his brother, Salem Assaly.

The murderer then turned the revolver on a lady, who was a cousin of both, and fired one shot at her, which took effect at the base of her brain.

Both victims are still living, but the doctors hold no hope of recovery.

J. M. Assaly, one of the victims, had been a resident of this town for the past five years, and was a model citizen. The lady, who was shot, was only recently from Syria. The three lived in a house on Regent street.

Salem Assaly has been peddling goods, which, he obtained from his brother, and for some time has worried the latter for money to start a business for himself. The refusal led to frequent quarrels.

Salem again last night demanded money as the three sat at the table, and being refused, jumped up, drew a revolver and shot both.

In the confusion Salem Assaly escaped, but it is thought he will be captured.

Grain Shipments.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Trade and Commerce Department states that of the crop of 1908 there were shipped from Port Arthur and Fort William up to the close of navigation on Dec. 12: 43,835,598 bushels of grain, as compared with 23,482,497 in the corresponding period of last year. Wheat shipments amounted to 36,017,483 bushels, as against 20,545,850; oats, 5,953,201, as against 2,040,620; barley, 1,460,864, as against 578,523; and flax, 517,913, as against 317,493 bushels.

Of the season's wheat output from Fort William and Port Arthur, 563,374 bushels were carried in Canadian vessels and 12,418,109 in foreign vessels to United States points.

Canadian vessels also carried 1,186,196 bushels of wheat to Buffalo, so that in all 13,604,605 bushels of Canadian wheat, or a total of 16,286,157 bushels of grain, found their way to export points via United States route.

Future of Labor.

New York, Dec. 29.—"In the future, labor is to rise still higher. The joint stock form opens the door to the participation of labor as shareholder in every branch of business. In this, the writer believes, lies the final and enduring solution of the labor question. Nothing can stand against the direct management of owners. We are only pioneers whose duty is to start the movement, leaving to our successors its full and free development as human society advances."

These are striking statements found in an article by Andrew Carnegie in the January number of The World's Work. The article is taken from Mr. Carnegie's new book, "Problems of To-Day."

Yellow Syndicate.

Paris, Dec. 29.—The investigation by the police into the Mattis incident—Mattis is the unemployed waiter who on Christmas Day waylaid President Fallieres on the street of Paris and made an attempt to pull his beard—has revealed Mattis' relations with the "yellow syndicate," a royalist organisation, and as a result the police Sunday sealed up the offices of the newspaper published by the organisation, with the intention of making a thorough search of the premises.

The editor of the paper is Pierre Bietry, a deputy from Finisterre. Sunday night he defied the orders of the police and broke into his office.

Longboat is Married.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—At St. John's Anglican Church last night at seven o'clock Thomas Longboat was married to Miss Lauretta Maracle of Deseronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Creegan, the rector in charge of the Indian Reserve at Deseronto.

As no announcement was made of the church in which the marriage would take place the wedding was a very quiet one. Miss Essie Clause of Albany, N.Y., was the bridesmaid, and Thomas Flanagan, Longboat's manager, acted as best man, while the bride was given away by her brother, Albert Maracle of the reserve.

Representatives Are Nominated

Electors of Ontario Municipalities Name Their Candidates.

THIRTY-SIX ACCLAMATIONS

Most of the Cities, Towns and Villages Throughout the Province Will See Good Contests — Ninety Places Will Vote on Local Option Measures — Bylaws Dealing With Others Things Are Few.

Municipal nominations were held throughout Ontario yesterday, the feature being the small number of elections by acclamation, candidates for the various offices being plentiful almost everywhere. There are not many important questions coming before the electors in the way of bylaws compared with last year, except that some ninety odd municipalities will vote on the local option question.

Following is a list of the mayors elected: D. McLachlin, Arnprior; C. Krug, Chesley; G. Sutherland, Ingersoll; A. Loerch, Listowel; W. S. Hall, L'Orignal; J. W. Horseley, Meaford; J. de W. Randall, Niagara; R. Rankin, North Bay; W. S. Davis, Oakville; C. Hopewell, Ottawa; H. Rush, Peterborough; I. Matthews, Port Arthur; M. Mullen, Preston; J. P. Henry, Ridgetown; W. Edwards, Rockland; J. E. Hayes, Seaforth; G. Geddes, St. Thomas; M. Sawtell, Woodstock.

The following reeves were elected by acclamation: H. C. Melin, Ayr; J. W. Gage, Barton; J. F. Dawson, Ernestown; J. A. French, Glanford; E. Meekley, Matilda; A. E. Baker, Merrickville; M. Ryan, Newburgh; E. Norman, Osprey; G. A. Wallace, Pilkington; J. H. Smith, Port Colborne; W. H. Pugsley, Richmond Hill; G. Telfer, South Dumfries; Dyoux, South Easthope; J. H. McKay, Tiverton; A. P. Potter, Tottenham; L. Boyce, Warkworth; W. Ronald, West Williams; J. J. Wilkinson, Woolwich.

Strathcona Will Stay.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, who recently arrived from London, where he has been negotiating with the Imperial authorities on the cheap cable proposition, made an important statement touching the rumored retirement of Lord Strathcona from the High Commissionership last night.

There is, he declared, not a foundation for the many stories going the rounds of newspapers on both sides of the Atlantic regarding the retirement of Lord Strathcona. The Canadian High Commissioner, Mr. Lemieux stated, will, if he so desires, remain in London as the representative of the Dominion as long as there is breath in his body.

C.P.R. to Build to Gowganda.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—The Herald yesterday afternoon says: "It was learned yesterday on good authority that, although no actual decision had been arrived at, there is every probability of the C.P.R. building a railway to Gowganda, the new silver field towards which prospectors are being drawn from all parts.

"The C.P.R. is prepared, it is said, to construct the road without a subsidy, from its system at Sudbury, which would run in a north easterly direction into the heart of the new silver country by Gowganda, Miller and Estreit Lakes, Obushking and Hanging Stone, where thousands of stakes have been driven."

Mexican Power Conference.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—J. H. Plummer reached the city yesterday, and E. R. Wood, C. H. Cahan and F. S. Pearson, representing both sides of the Mexican Power Tramway's conference, are expected to-day.

There seems to be a somewhat more conciliatory feeling abroad, and it is doubtful now if the meeting will generate any spectacular display of fireworks.

There will be a conference of Mexican Power directors at the Bank of Montreal to-day, after which the situation will be more clearly defined.

The 'Frisco Relief Fund.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—With a balance of $397,267 on hand, the relief corporation which had charge of the distribution of the fund donated to San Francisco during the time of the fire of 1906, will turn this money over to the various charitable organizations the first of the year.

During its existence the corporation distributed $9,553,149.

Crew Lost In Collision.

Newcastle, N.S.W., Dec. 29.—The British steamer Advance, a small coaster, and the British bark Iverna were in collision off here yesterday.

The Advance went down, and, with the exception of her first officer, all the members of her crew lost their lives. The Iverna put into Newcastle leaking badly.

Tailors on Strike.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—Operators, tailors and pressers, numbering some 25, and employed up to yesterday morning by A. Summer & Co., clothing manufacturers, have gone on strike as a protest against working with non-union hands.

Boy Shot by Companion.

Windsor, Dec. 29.—Gordon Little, seven years old, was accidentally shot by a companion who was handling a Flobert rifle. The bullet entered his eye and may cause death.

Frightful Disaster In Italy

Earthquake Kills Several Thousands in Southern Provinces.

MESSINA IS DEVASTATED

Two-Thirds of City Wiped Out by Worst Upheaval in Years — Huge Number of Dead Cannot Be Estimated—Inhabitants Are Flying From Stricken Places—Tidal Wave Works Havoc.

Rome, Dec. 29.—The three provinces of Cosenza, Catanzaro and Reggio di Calabria, comprising the department of Calabria, which forms the southwestern extremity of Italy, or "the toe of the boot," were devastated yesterday by an earthquake, the far-reaching effects of which were felt almost through the entire country.

The town of Messina, in Sicily, was partially destroyed, and Catania was inundated. In Messina hundreds of houses have fallen, and many persons have been killed.

The fate of entire regions within the zone of the earthquake is unknown, but reports received here up to a late hour last night indicate that the havoc has been great, and the destruction to life and property more terrible than Italy has experienced in many years. The uncertainty of the situation has filled all Italians with the deepest distress, for they still have fear that the day may come when that part of the country, which seems to have been most blessed by nature, will be destroyed by the blind forces of that same nature which nearly nineteen centuries ago overwhelmed Pompeii and Herculaneum.

All reports show that the present catastrophe embraces a larger area than the earthquake in 1905. The tidal wave which followed the earthshocks, on the eastern coast of Sicily sunk vessels and inundated the lower part of Catania. It is known that a number of people were killed in that place.

The Italian Government has proceeded energetically to concentrate at the points of greatest need troops and engineers. Members of the red cross were despatch to various places, and camps and provisions were immediately prepared, all available railway lines and warships being used for their transport.

The city of Messina has suffered probably more than any other place, the latest information coming indirectly from that quarter stating that two-thirds of the town was destroyed and several thousand persons killed.

The steamers Washington and Montebello, which were in the harbor later, proceeded to Catania, loaded with injured, who were so stupified by terror that they seemed unable to realize what had happened, simply saying that it looked as though the end of the world had come. Five steamers left Catania for Messina, to assist in removing the injured from that place, who are reported to number thousands.

At Catania, the panic-stricken people, fearing shocks, absolutely refused to re-enter their houses and are camping in the squares, which are free from water, and the surrounding country. The tidal wave sunk 500 boats there and did great damage to several large vessels and steamers, including the Austrian steamer Buda.

Not only did Catania suffer from the effects of a tidal wave, but a similar body of water inundated the handsome streets of Messina, which flank the harbor, covering them with a thick layer of mud, which rendered difficult the succoring of the wounded, many of whom could be seen lying under the wreckage. It is reported that the villages of Faro and Ganzirri, adjoining Messina, has disappeared. The effects of the earthquake were aggravated by fire from an explosion of gas, the flames of which swept along several of the streets, adding terror upon terror.

In Calabria, the region around Monteleone, was most affected. The village of Stefanaconi, the inhabitants of which number 2,300, was practically destroyed. Only five persons were killed, but many were injured. Mons. Morabito, the Bishop of Mileto, who distinguished himself in the earthquake of 1905, did valiant work again yesterday. He rushed into places where the ruin was the greatest and brought aid and encouragement to all.

Thousands of people abandoned their homes, although a terrific rainstorm prevailed, and filled the air with lamentations and prayers. In some places, such as Brizzo, Cotrone, Santa Severena and Piscopia, the people had the courage to enter the churches almost while they were falling and carrying out the saints. They bore these in procession through the open country, invoking the mercy of God.

In the mountainous regions inland the population has taken refuge in grottoes and caves, where peasants and priests, soldiers and persons of gentle birth are living in common. Their bed is the ground, and fires burn to keep off wild animals. In Albi alone there are 2,000 people homeless.

Cardinal Nava, Archbishop of Catania, exhorted the people to be calm. He promised that the body of St. Agatha should be carried around in procession. St. Agatha is regarded as the special deliverer from all scourges.

While the number of deaths at that place is not believed now to be large, there were several tragic occurrences. Among the children swept away by the tidal wave was a boy 15 months old, who was torn from the arms of his mother. The mother, too, was overcome by the force of the water and lost consciousness, but her body was caught by a raining and remained there until she was rescued.

Midnight reports state that Reggio, the capital of the Province of Reggio di Calabria, eight miles from Messina, on the opposite side of the strait, has met the same fate as Messina, but these reports have not been confirmed owing to the lack of telegraphic facilities.

Protests In P.E.I.

Halifax, Dec. 29.—Four election petitions have been filed in the courts of Prince Edward Island. The first petition is against the election of Hon. Jos. Reed, who was elected by the casting vote of the returning officer. Another is against the election of Murdock Kennedy, the only Conservative member returned in Queen's County. Others are a petition against the election of Hon. James Cummiskey and against the election of Matthew Smith as assemblyman on the usual charges of corrupt practices.

To Extend St. John Harbor.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 29.—Hon. William Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, has intimated to the city that if it and the C.P.R. will surrender to the Government control of certain property they own along the harbor front, the Government will at once begin dredging work along the lines of a further extension of the harbor facilities. The city is willing, and it is believed, the C.P.R. will be.

Waterworks Surplus.

Brantford, Dec. 29.—The Brantford waterworks system, at present the only municipally-owned public service of this city, declared the splendid surplus this year over and above payment of interest and sinking fund of $12,400.

The net earnings were $61,793.68, being $8,000 in excess of last year. This showing is the best yet.

When Elizabeth Came.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"When the home is ready, Roger, send for me and I will come," Elizabeth Atwood had said when her lover bade her goodby.

Roger Blake had kissed her tenderly and gone into the western wilderness to make a home. He had little money, but strong hands and the sturdy ambition that overcomes stupendous obstacles.

In spite of these assets five years passed away before the Wyoming farm was declared to be in readiness for a mistress.

In the east Elizabeth taught school, sewed on her simple trousseau and enjoyed herself as a healthy, attractive girl cannot help doing. Every week she wrote a long letter to Roger.

One August day, when the five years had expired, Roger made a last tour of inspection about the ranch. On distant hill slopes his cattle grazed. Nearer home fields were undulating green seas of wheat and oats. Rustling cornfields spread away to the westward.

In the midst was the home lot, the low house surrounded by vine covered verandas, grassy lawn and thrifty young trees. Flowers and shrubs had been set out the first year with loving care.

The farm was paying at last. The poultry yards occupied a good acre. They were to be Elizabeth's special care. All the hard, drudgery work had been done by Roger, and now the home was ready.

A month before he had sent Elisabeth $100. He had said he would expect her on the 10th of August and would meet her at the little station twenty miles distant.

This was the 10th of August, and Roger had not heard one word from his sweetheart. Nevertheless he harnessed the sorrel team to his buckboard and started forth to meet the 12:30 express from the east. Before they returned to the farm they would drive to the minister's and be married.

Roger whistled merrily as he rounded the sorrels before the lonely little station. The station master sauntered out and chatted about the weather and the crops.

There was a piercing shriek, and the express thundered along the platform. A couple of trunks were dumped from the baggage car, and a girl in brown alighted from one of the coaches. By the time Roger had reached her the express had pounded away into the west.

The girl's face was covered by a thick, brown veil, but it was Elizabeth without a doubt. Roger knew the straight, slim figure, with its almost boyish freedom of movement, and the curve of dark hair at the back as she turned her head.

"Elizabeth!" he cried exultantly as he grasped her hands in his.

"Yes," she answered quite coolly. "How do you do?"

"Fine," he said mechanically as he released her hands and fell into step beside her.

"You have a carriage here?" she questioned.

"Around on the other side. You are glad to get here, ain't you, Elizabeth? Or were you tired of waiting?" There was agonizing appeal in his blue eyes as they reached the buckboard and he assisted her to a seat.

"It was a long journey," she replied, with a puzzled glance at him. "I suppose you are one of the farm hands?"

"Elizabeth Atwood! Don't you know me—Roger?" He turned his cleanly shaved, sunburned face toward her.

She uttered a little cry and hastily threw back her veil. "Who do you think I am?" she gasped.

Roger Blake stared. It was the face of a stranger. Her eyes were soft and dark like those of his sweetheart, and her cheeks had the same oval framed in dusky hair. Save for these points of resemblance there was no likeness between the two girls. Elizabeth Atwood was very pretty, but the stranger was beautiful.

"I am afraid you are disappointed," she faltered at last. "I am Elizabeth Wood, and I have come to visit the Waylands, and I supposed you were one of Cousin Dick's pet cowboys. I thought it strange you should call me 'Elizabeth,' but I had resolved not to be surprised at anything out here," she laughed merrily, and Roger joined her with a faint heart.

"I came here expecting to meet a friend I hoped would be on your train," he admitted soberly. "Your appearance deceived me; you are much alike."

"I was the only passenger," she said sympathetically. "I hope your—your friend will come tomorrow. Where can my cousin's carriage be?"

They were sitting in the buckboard in front of the station, and the agent was trundling two trunks toward them.

"Seen a team from Wayland's?" asked Roger Blake.

"Nope. Want these on the wagon?"

"Too heavy. Wayland will send for them. If his outfit arrives tell them I've carried the young lady over to his place."

"I hope I'm not taking you out of your way," she protested. "I can wait. I sent a letter"—

"That's all right. I guess your letter went astray the same as the one I should have had. I've got plenty of time to spare," he added grimly. "I was going to be married this morning."

"Oh, I see. I am very sorry," she said sincerely. Then she maintained a sympathetic silence while Roger drove her over the long road across the prairie to the Wayland farm, which adjoined his own on the north.

"How long are you going to stay?" queried Roger just before their journey ended.

"Weeks or months perhaps. I have no near relatives and have been teaching school. My cousins have asked me to come here and enjoy a long rest. I hope your trip to the station tomorrow will be a more successful one—and thank you," she said, with a friendly smile, as they parted.

Ten days afterward Roger met her riding out of the canyon. Her face was prettily tanned, and her broad brimmed hat made an effective frame for her lovely face.

"May I congratulate you today?" she asked brightly.

Roger shook his head slowly, and for the first time she noted the tense, drawn look about his pleasant mouth and the misery of his haggard eyes.

"You have heard—I hope it is not bad news?" she said, with that frank friendliness he had found so attractive in her before.

He drew a letter from his pocket and extracted a newspaper clipping. "That's all the explanation I've had," he said bitterly.

"Married—to some one else—to James Farnham—how very strange!" she said in a low, agitated voice.

"Why is it strange? Do you know the man?" demanded Roger eagerly.

The girl's face whitened, and a look of distress came into her eyes.

"Don't tell me anything if it pains you," said Roger gently.

"I must. You see, I was engaged to him, and he jilted me for another girl. I didn't know her name until now. I couldn't stand it, and so I ran away, but now"— She paused and a dreamy contentment replaced the pain in her face.

"Now?"

"Of course he couldn't be worth being very sorry about, after all! And life is so good here—so clean and free. I love it."

"So do I," said Roger sincerely. "And about that other, I don't believe it is worthy of great sorrow. Shall we gallop?"

* * * * * * *

Months afterward Elizabeth came to reign as mistress of Roger's home. But it was not Elizabeth Atwood.

It was that other Elizabeth who came to him in his great trouble and who, forgetting her own sorrow, sought to comfort him. And in the end each found a loyal, deep loving heart, and the home in the wilderness sheltered them as the man who builded it had dreamed.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

Observe these simple rules and you will agree that the one who gets the most from life is

A CAT AND A CANARY.

They Went Away Separately, but Came Back Together.

A lady friend of mine, says an English writer, has as pets a canary and a cat. The two were the best of good friends, and when the bird's prison door was opened it would come out and perch on the cat's back while it trilled forth a song of gladness.

One day my friend left her two pets together, and on her return the bird was nowhere to be found. Pussy was curled up on a cushion, sleeping contentedly, and my friend jumped to the conclusion that the cat was answerable for the bird's disappearance, consequently she caught up the cat and, holding the supposed delinquent before the empty cage, beat it rather mercilessly. Poor pussy mewed piteously, but her relentless mistress put her outside and shut the door against her.

Next morning, feeling rather ashamed of her outburst, she made inquiries about the cat, but pussy was gone.

Some days later she heard a faint scratching at her window, and on opening the casement a cat crept in and laid a bedraggled canary at her feet. At first she did not recognize her pets in the two disreputable looking objects before her. When she did recognize them her delight was great.

Presumably the canary had gone out by the open window, and, finding liberty sweet, it had flown to a neighboring wood. How the cat found the bird and brought it back uninjured is a mystery.

DEATH VALLEY.

The Burning, Blasting Winds That Sweep This Arid Waste.

The prevailing winds in Death valley are from the west. Though originating in the Pacific ocean and saturated with humidity in traveling the intermediate distance, they are intercepted by the lofty peaks of four ranges of mountains, which absorb all of their moisture, so that by the time they reach the valley all humidity has disappeared. The blasts are as if heated in a fiery furnace, and no living thing can survive the intense heat. Even birds indigenous to the region die.

It is in the months of greatest heat that the sandstorms of Death valley are most deadly. They rage with intense fury, obliterating the landscape and dimming the light of the sun, withering the scanty vegetation and covering the trails deep in powdered dust. At all times the aspect of the valley is superlatively desolate. No spot on earth surpasses it in aridity or Tophet-like heat.

During the heated term an hour without water means death. Meat becomes putrid in an hour. Eggs are cooked in the blistering sand. Water is only palatable by means of large, porous, earthenware jars, common to all hot countries, suspended in drafts and reduced in temperature by means of the rapid evaporation of the moisture from the outside.

Wedding Ring Mottoes.

The custom of inscribing within the hoop of the betrothal or wedding ring a motto or "posy," as it was called, was formerly very prevalent. Hamlet asks, "Is this a prologue or the posy of a ring?" Some posies were very tender and beautiful. Among the more appropriate posies may be mentioned "Deux corps, un coeur," "My heart and I until I die" and "I am yours" from sixteenth century rings, "Love ever," "Love true, 'tis joy," and "Time lesseneth not my love" from the seventeenth century, "Love me," "My soul will keep thine company to heaven" and "En me fidelite je finirai ma vie" from the eighteenth. In the ring which "Florizel" (afterward George IV.) gave to the hapless Perdita were the words "Je change qu'en mourant—Unalterable to my Perdita through life."

What He Wanted.

"You are a poor young man?"

"I am."

"Then what you want is a thrifty, economical wife."

"Not at all. What I want is a rich, liberal wife."

Established 1817

Capital Paid Up, -	$14,400,000
Reserve Fund, - -	$12,000,000
	$26,400,000

The Bank of Montreal at the end of its fiscal year, October 31st, 1908, added another $1,000,000 to its Reserve Fund, thus further emphasizing its great strength and stability.

With a Saving Department at every one of its many Branches, it offers the opportunity for all, who so desire, to avail themselves of its many advantages by opening a Savings Account.

A Savings Bank account is the best safeguard against misfortune, being always ready and available, and earning interest all the time.

Consideration for one's family demands that all heads of households should provide against the day of adverse conditions, and there is no simpler way than by laying systematically from time to time a portion of income or earnings in a Savings account.

Deposits can be made from One Dollar up, and withdrawals can be made at any time, without notice or delay.

ADROITLY TURNED.

It Was a Small Hole, but the Englishman Crawled Out.

"I was watching a number of young Englishmen shooting at a target recently while I was on the other side," remarked an American army officer, "and at my elbow was a pompous Britisher of the old school, who, after shaking his head impatiently at the frequent misses that were made, at length said to me: 'That only goes to show how the young men of England are degenerating. All this sort of thing reflects on the British nation.'

"'It certainly is mighty poor shooting,' I agreed.

"At that the old gentleman flared up and exclaimed: 'I say! Perhaps you can do better, sir?'

"'If I couldn't shoot better than that, I'd be ashamed to eat breakfast,' I answered.

"Thereupon I was handed a rifle and told to show what I could do. I shot, and the first time I missed the target completely, so the laugh was on me, but before they could laugh twice I plugged the bullseye six times in rapid succession. At this the old gentleman was a trifle disconcerted, but he complimented me by saying: 'Really, now, you can shoot a bit, can't you? I say, there's nothing like a Yankee marksman with an English gun, is there, old chap?'"

A GREAT COMBINATION.

When Husband, Wife and Mother-in-law Co-operate.

Shortly after his marriage, which took place in 1890, John Burns, the British labor leader, settled down as a journeyman engineer in Battersea and twenty years after confessed that he was the first engineer to make with his own hands an electric tram car in Great Britain. In those days, however, people did not believe that electric traction was possible, and Burns had to take the dynamo and tram to the Crystal palace and run the latter round the grounds for six months before people could be induced to believe in the novelty.

But the people were so nervous that, although the charge was only sixpence, none of them would venture in the newfangled invention. Then Burns was struck with a brilliant idea. He said to his wife, "You have got to come down to the palace three times a week and get into the first electric tram car as a decoy duck for the others." This was only temporarily successful. So Burns brought along his mother-in-law, "and," said the energetic labor leader when relating the incident, "when a husband, a wife and a mother-in-law co-operate success is assured."

Towers.

The patient architect had just succeeded in getting Mrs. Drippingold to decide between the charms of renaissance, classic and Queen Anne for the plans of her magnificent new country house.

"The only details I ain't goin' to leave to your discretion," said the wealthy lady, "is the matter of towers. I want plenty of towers that folks can see for a long way off when they're ridin' by."

"But what kind of towers do you want?" inquired the unfortunate architect—"Norman, Gothic"—

Mrs. Drippingold closed the English novel of high life on which her soul had been feeding.

"Why, ancestral towers, of course."—Puck.

Friendly Advice.

A very matter of fact Scotchwoman called to see a neighbor, an elderly woman, who had been ailing for some time.

"And how do you find yourself today, Janet?" was the greeting.

"Ah, Martha, I'm very bad. This cold, damp weather 'll be the end of me. I'll be a dead woman before very long."

"Hoots, toots, woman! You've been saying that any time these last twenty years. I've no patience with you. I'll tell you what it is. You want firmness of mind. Fix a day for your dying—and stick to it."

Jaded.

Fiddled Into Office.

Loesing relates that in 1848 he met at Oswego, N. Y., Major Cochran, then nearly eighty years old, a son-in-law of General Philip Schuyler, who told the story of his election to congress during the administration of the elder Adams. A vessel was to be launched on one of the lakes in interior New York, and people came from afar to see it. The young folks gathered there, determined to have a dance at night. There was a fiddle, but no fiddler. Young Cochran was an amateur performer, and his services were demanded. He gratified the joyous company, and at the supper table one of the gentlemen remarked, in commendation of his talents, that he was "fit for congress." The matter was talked up, and he was nominated and elected a representative in congress for the district then comprising the whole of New York west of Schenectady. He always claimed to have "fiddled himself into congress."

SPLENDID FOR THE OLD FOLKS

Prescription To Relieve Bladder Troubles Which Anyone Can Mix.

IT ACTS ON THE KIDNEYS

Cut this out and put in some safe place for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever.

The prescription is simple and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood, relieving the worst forms of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood. There is nothing better than Kargon Compound for the kidneys.

This prescription is safe to use at any time.

A Finland Festival.

Paul Waineman's "A Summer Tour in Finland" contains this pretty bit of folklore: "Midsummer is the great annual festival of Finland. From every height a bonfire leaps to the sky in honor of the mating of night and day, who are then united. The Finns possess a poetical legend relating to this annual custom. Kolt and Amarik, the sunset and sunrise, beseeched the lord of the sky to give them permission to be eternally a bride and bridegroom and once a year to clasp each other in their glowing arms."

A Lesson From Nature.

"Young gentlemen," lectured the eminent instructor, "you are old enough now to put away the childish and trivial amusements that sufficed for you when you were younger. Learn a lesson from the dumb brutes and even from the reptiles. When they arrive at maturity they comport themselves with a certain dignity."

"It isn't so with the rattlesnake, professor," objected the young man with the bad eye. "The older he grows the more rattles he plays with."

Stopping the Exodus.

During service in an English church on a warm Sunday many of the congregation, finding the air oppressive, rose and silently stole away. The minister, perceiving that the exodus was about to become epidemic, paused in his discourse. "Brethren," he said, "I am here to deliver a sermon, not a soliloquy!"

Women and Words.

Mrs. Stubb—Now, women are not impulsive, like you men. They always measure their words. Mr. Stubb (with a sigh)—Oh, if some of them would only give short measure!—Chicago News.

The Outcome.

The Doctor—Now that you are going to school, Johnny, perhaps you can tell me what happens when an irresistible force strikes an immovable object."

"People send for you, doctor."—Life.

As money increases the love of it increases.—German Proverb.

FREDERICK AND VOLTAIRE.

Stormy Relations of the Miserly King and the Lavish Author.

The world knows plenty about the elements of strength in the characters of great men, but less about their weaknesses. Here is a story that shows the other side of the natures of Frederick the Great and Voltaire:

Frederick the Great had a leaning toward literature. He wrote poems, plays and booklets that, in his opinion, possessed rare merit. So it seemed fitting to him that great literary men should fraternize, and he sent an invitation to Voltaire to be his guest. Accompanying the invitation was a sum of money to defray the great Frenchman's traveling expenses to the Prussian capital.

Let it be explained at this point that Frederick was extremely penurious and that Voltaire was not only extravagant, but had many of the characteristics of what we would now call a grafter. It should also be understood that Frederick despised grafting, and Voltaire abhorred miserliness.

Voltaire accepted the invitation—and then had an afterthought. Why not take a favorite niece with him? So he wrote to the king that if he would send an extra thousand louis he would bring the girl.

"Sir," replied the king, "I did not ask the young lady to do me the honor of visiting me, and I shall send nothing to pay her expenses."

"The old miser!" said Voltaire to a friend. "He has tubs of money in his treasury, yet will not grant me this wish."

However, Voltaire went to Berlin, but each found that he hated the other too much to make their friendship permanent.

The king once gave Voltaire a package of poems to revise.

"See," said Voltaire to a German nobleman, "what a quantity of dirty linen Frederick has sent me to wash!"

The king thought his guest was too free with the chocolate and sugar and gave orders that he be put on a restricted daily allowance.

Voltaire retaliated by gathering all the wax candles he could find in the halls and storing them in his trunk.

Soon the royal palace became too hot for him, and he began to pack up. Then Frederick missed his package of poems. At once he scented a plot. Voltaire intended to take the verses back home with him and palm them off as his own. Lord Macaulay has said that the poems were so bad that he was convinced Voltaire would not for half of Frederick's kingdom have consented to father them. But the king thought differently, being the author of the poems.

So the Prussian monarch had Voltaire thrown into jail at Frankfort and kept him locked up for twelve days. Sixteen hundred dollars that was found in his pocket was taken away from him. The king in the days of their friendship had given Voltaire a life pension of $3,200 a year, and the money that was confiscated was a semiannual installment.

Thus ended their friendship.

Spanish Nicknames.

One of the peculiar ways in which Spanish differs from English is in the names the language gives to all people with a certain infirmity or peculiarity. A blind man is referred to as el ciego, a man with but one eye is a tuerto, a pug nosed man is chato, one who is cross eyed is a bisojo, a cojo is a lame man, and a manco has but one arm. If he is humpbacked, he is a jorobado; if baldheaded, a calvo, and if his hair is very short he is a pelon. The feminine titles for the same classes are the same, with the exception that they end in "a" where the masculine terminato with "o." These short names are used most commonly. In fact, they are applied as nicknames in many cases, and especially among the lower classes persons are addressed or referred to only by these names.

A Wedding Present.

A widower in Scotland proposed to and was accepted by a widow whose husband had died but a month or two previously.

To celebrate the occasion he asked the widow's daughter what she would like for a present. She wanted nothing, she said, but being pressed to name something she replied:

"Well, if you want to spend siller you might put up a heidstone to my father."—London Telegraph.

The Ruling Passion.

"John! John!" called the excited little wife.

"W-what is it, Lucy?" muttered the big baseball player as he drowsily turned over in bed.

"Why, there is a man downstairs."

"W-what's he doing?"

"He's in the dining room after the plate."

"Trying to reach the plate? Put him out, Kelly; put him out at third!"

Reproved.

"I suppose," said the sad eyed youth at the musical, "you know the difference between bel canto and coloratura?"

"Young man," answered Mr. Cumrox severely, "I never bet on race horses."

PRACTICAL FASHIONS FOR SKATING COSTUMES

IN order to be a true sport it is not necessary for a girl to array herself like a tomboy in unbecoming, ungainly garments simply because these chance to be particularly practical for the special form of athletics in which she may chance to indulge. It is quite as possible for a skating or tobogan costume to be at one time becoming and in keeping with the sport as it is for a party frock to be both pretty and suitable for the occasion, and the agile tennis player or clever skater will elicit double the admiration if she herself looks charming and smartly gowned. On the other hand, there is the reverse extreme to be avoided. Nothing is in worse taste than any elaboration or costliness in a gown for country or out of door wear.

Of all sports that of skating is surely the most delightful; unquestionably it is the most invigorating and most health giving, and the girl who can not skate forfeits half of the pleasures of winter. For the city girl a few lessons taken in a rink will give her sufficient idea of balance and of the rudiments of the sport to make it possible to soon become a proficient skater on real ice.

The correct skating costume is of a rough material, with skirt shorter than the ordinary and a half fitted jacket of three-quarter length, while the hat should be small and should fit snugly on the head. Plaited skirts are not worn this year, but a skirt to be comfortable to skate in should have greater width and flare than is given in the regular fashionable model this season. An excellent style of skirt is one that closely resembles the old golf skirt of heavy tweed, made circular, with a deep double stitched hem at the feet to keep the material from blowing about in the wind. A plain gored skirt is also good for the purpose, but no matter what the design the material should be of fairly heavy quality.

FOR outdoor skating a good length of skirt is one which reaches just to the top of the laced boots, but for the girl whose skirts are still short this one may be of the same length as the rest of her gowns.

The jacket for a skating costume should be made full large, to allow of a sweater being worn underneath, as there will be few days so mild as to make this added protection unnecessary. The old Norfolk jacket is an excellent model for this dress. A medium three-quarter length is best for a skating jacket, as, unless it is extremely cold, too long a coat is a great inconvenience. Straps of the same material or of leather may be used on this coat, and leather collar, revers and cuffs are always smart on the Norfolk jackets.

Rough tweed, homespun, heavy ribbed serge, cheviot and camel's hair cloth all are excellent for a skating costume, while for a rather smarter style of costume corduroy is exceptionally pretty. The coarse ribbed serges are perhaps newer than any other of these textures, and in the bright reds and warm taupes and browns are most attractive. Strange to say, the Directoire coat, with its loose back and trimmings of straps and buttons, does not look too exaggerated for a skating costume, and many of the rough serges are made in a much modified Directoire design that is extremely smart.

The best color for a skating dress depends, of course, wholly upon the wearer, but red, if it is at all becoming, is sure to look charming, and all reds, from the deepest in tone to the most brilliant, have ever been the favorites for this style of dress. Brown, green and dark blue are all serviceable colors, while the lighter shades are sure to be attractive if not quite so useful.

Corduroy is an excellent material for hard wear, and even in the light shades is frequently made use of for the skating costumes. Even white corduroy will not prove such a bad investment, as the material can be either washed or cleaned, and for the girl who spends all or a great part of her winter out of town a white corduroy costume will give an attractive change from the darker shades that have such constant wear.

Save in the most bitterly cold weather a fur coat is too warm for skating, and it will be but seldom that an ordinary well interlined coat, with sweater underneath and perhaps a wide fur collar or stole, will not be sufficiently warm. An extra wrap will be necessary, however, to slip on whenever an occasional rest is indulged in, and for this a medium length fur lined cloth coat is most useful. This wrap will be especially attractive if made of the same color as the rest of the costume.

A small hat is essential for skating, as any width of brim will make out of door life in windy weather a misery instead of a pleasure. The little fur turbans that can be bought so reasonably at this time of year make about the best skating hat procurable. Black fur is, perhaps, the most useful, as it can be worn with any gown, but the brown mink or fox and the gray squirrel will prove intensely becoming, besides being more youthful for young girls. The white toques are exceedingly becoming also, and these are undoubtedly the most effective of all.

For indoor skating a rather more elaborate style of dress is worn than is considered appropriate for the country. A simple but pretty gown throughout of smooth cloth or serge will be warm enough for active exercise, with a fur or fur lined coat to put on the moment that one leaves the ice. It is essential that the wrap be very warm and the dress itself not too heavy, as in a rink the damp air is peculiarly penetrating, although the cold is scarcely noticeable while one is actually skating. If proper precautions are taken that the coat be put on immediately one sits down and that too heavy garments are not worn while on the ice there is little or no danger of taking cold in a rink, but so soon as the skater becomes overheated and then rests in the damp, unnatural atmosphere a risk is incurred.

An ordinary walking suit with a silk or wash waist can be worn in a rink provided there is an extra wrap also at hand. The skirt is of course longer for indoors, and as the skates lift one some two inches from the ice the regular school dress will serve perfectly. Light colors are also often seen in a rink, the pastel blues and soft raspberry pinks and old rose being especially pretty. A gown throughout of deep pink cloth, with a long fur lined cloak of the same shade, trimmed with mink or white fox and a hat of the same fur, makes an extremely attractive skating costume.

The accessories also should be most carefully worked out if the skating costume is to be really smart. Upon the veil, gloves and boots much of the effect of the whole will depend. The girl with straight hair will do well to wear a fine thread veil with her little fur toque. This veil will not show, but her short ends of hair will be kept from blowing in her eyes and the veil will also help somewhat to keep her hat in place. Veils are not generally considered in good taste for a girl whose hair is not yet up on her head, and she should certainly not wear a dotted veil or one of a conspicuous pattern, but if her hair is not still worn hanging loose or in a braid, this fine veil is quite permissible.

In gloves, heavy pigskin or gray castor are both smart, while for the country fur lined leather or white woollen gloves are equally popular, the woollen being of course the more thoroughly comfortable as well as the more durable.

High brown laced boots are now the accepted skating shoes. A laced boot is practically obligatory for skating and the higher this shoe the more comfortable it will be. These boots can be lined with a soft fleece for the girl who suffers in cold weather, but as a rule heavy brown stockings will be sufficient.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE APRIL GRANDMOTHER

"CLOSE your eyes tight," exclaimed the April Grandmother as a shrieking whistle, a clanging bell and a frantically waved police club announced the approach of a fire company equipment. "Cinders or pieces of coal with projecting points lodging in the eye cause more acute pain than smooth objects, which almost invariably are passed on by the tears or by the action of the lids. But," she added, in tones gently expressive of annoyance, "the dust of a great city's streets is scarcely more harmful to the eyes than is the constantly looking at objects within close range of the vision such as a seemingly endless procession of rapidly moving vehicles and pedestrians.

"Still more trying is the going from darkened theatres into the strong sunlight of the streets, for, as the pupils of the eyes expand in the darkness, to be suddenly exposed to a bright light is extremely injurious. An abrupt transition from light to darkness is often attended with less serious but none the less certainly injurious consequences, particularly if there is a reflection of the light on snow. It is not because I am interested in the features of those perennially young and handsome musical celebrities that I linger before their photograph stands in the lyceum foyers when leaving an afternoon concert," she explained, "but because after prolonged use in an artificially lighted room the eyes should be gradually accustomed to the sunlight.

"But the damage that can be done to the eyes when one is in the streets is as nothing to that which results from indoor use. A sense of fatigue is often experienced from reading for a long time, in which event the vision, instead of being sharp and clear, gradually becomes blurred and misty, if not absolutely obscured. Of course it is possible to obtain temporary relief from this condition by bathing the eyes, but to persist in struggling against such a strain is apt to induce a headache, accompanied by dizziness or irritation. In any event it is well to intergupt the strain of long continued reading by occasionally raising the gaze from the page and looking into space, although in studying or perusing anything that requires thought this is likely to be done unconsciously. It is a mistake to persist in reading when overcome with sleep, as the constant tendency of the eyes is to diverge, and they have to be forced back by a supreme effort of the will. This often results in congestion of the blood vessels of the mucous membrane which covers the external surface of the ball of the eye and the inner surface of the lids.

"No matter how weary a girl may be with study or with pleasure she should never go to bed without first washing her eyes in order to remove any dust which may have gathered on their lids during the day. The sleeping room should be kept dark, as 'crows' tracks' will form under any sort of artificial light, particularly that of gas, which also consumes oxygen."

"The eyes should not be exposed to a bright light immediately after awakening in the morning. For a few moments after arising it is better to get about the room by the aid of whatever light may penetrate the drawn blinds, meanwhile bathing the eyes in pure, cool water. On no account should the lids be rubbed, as that process will wrinkle them as quickly as will weeping. But if such an expression of grief is unavoidable be sure to gently massage the cuticle beneath the eyes with a little cold cream, as that is where lines first of all form, and if the skin is thin they are quite as likely to arrive at sixteen as at sixty."

Novelties in Veil Pins.

COLLAR, cuff and veil pins contribute so materially toward the trim effect of the costume that every young girl should have a collection of them. With ordinary care such pins will last indefinitely, as they are substantially put together and fitted with a catch back and pin that are joined without the use of soldering or rivets.

They are of three distinct sizes and of innumerable pattern. The simplest designs are plain, flat surfaced oblongs, or curved, narrow ovals of rolled gold plate, dull or brilliant silver, jet or gun metal finish, mother of pearl, white or pink coral, crystal, Australian green stone, matrix, onyx and jade. Some of the pure and alloyed metals as well as those of composition have doubly bevelled edges, while others have beading borders or surfaces chased in Romanesque, Oriental and Greek designs.

Dutch silver pins of exquisite workmanship, similar to that employed on the brooches and stickpins, are of both flat and oval shape, and in some of them are set the tiniest of brilliants, emeralds and rubies.

Many of the French gold and silver pins have small brilliants, turquoise, pearls and corals sunken into their centres, designs picked out with tiny chips or jewel beadings and margins.

According to the length of the pin, rows of fresh water or Roman pearls, garnets, French emeralds, moonstones and rhinestones are set in gold, silver or platinum in such a manner that only the semi-precious mineral is in evidence. While these are exceedingly attractive looking the settings are naturally less trustworthy than are those of the sunken order.

Delicious Sandwiches for Afternoon Tea.

SANDWICH making is a culinary art which should be cultivated by the girl who likes to get up impromptu collations for her schoolmates. To make attractive looking sandwiches there should be provided an assortment of special cutters for the correct shaping of circles, diamonds and triangles, the square forms having utterly gone out of fashion. Another requisite is an exceedingly sharp knife with which to shave wafer thin slices from bread baked the previous day, as perfectly fresh loaves are apt to crumple unpleasantly while being cut.

In addition to fresh and potted ham, tongue and chicken sandwiches made by laying or spreading the meat upon buttered bread from which all the crust has been shaved, there are many kinds of appetizing cheese sandwiches. One variety is made of a mixture of cream cheese and finely chopped stuffed olives, and another has a marmalade and cream cheese filling. These are spread upon white or gluten bread. Rye bread is employed for the Swiss cheese sandwiches, which are slightly flavored with Dutch mustard; wheat bread for a filling of salted domestic cheese and graham bread for a paste composed of grated cheese and butter sprinkled with pepper and paprika.

Chicken, lobster and mixed salads that are stuck together with mayonnaise are all excellent for sandwiches of the more delicate type, while sour pickles mixed with ham, roast beef or chicken are more substantial. But for a really sustaining luncheon there is nothing better than lean slices of roast beef, chicken or turkey between thick pieces of bread over which hot dish gravy is poured.

Hard fried or hard boiled eggs, finely chopped or fried oysters make an excellent filling for a substantial sandwich, and still more satisfying are those of crisply fried bacon mixed with minced chicken placed between toasted bread.

An easily made sandwich is composed of finely chopped sardines covered with salad leaves and moistened with the box oil.

Sweet pickles chopped and spread between sliced bread make appetizing sandwiches, and still more sweet are those of powdered chocolate or maple sugar made by adding an equal number of spoonsful of boiling water, stirring it over a fire until smooth and then spreading it upon buttered bread. Melted chocolate cream and marshmallows are also excellent sweet sandwich materials, and so are any of the queer preserved fruits imported from China and Japan. The best known among these fruits are ginger and limes, but there are several others which have thick syrup or are themselves so liquid that they may easily be reduced to paste consistency.

Social Amenities for The School Girl.

GIRLS who are creeping out from under their mothers' protecting wings and are beginning to act for themselves in regard to things social often feel that one of the most trying of their new responsibilities is the writing of formal notes. Yet these should not be a bugbear, for there is a certain knack about them which, once acquired, makes them a really simple matter.

If they have not yet made their début girls rarely receive engraved invitations, as they belong distinctly to formal life, but they receive many formal written invitations, to which they must respond. These are usually written in the first person, but sometimes the third is employed when the writer wishes to be particularly formal and imitate the style of an engraved card.

When you sit down to respond to an invitation carefully study its form and imitate it as nearly as possible in your reply. If the first person is used reply in the first, but if the invitation reads "Miss Blank requests the pleasure of," &c., be as formal in your response and say "It will give Miss Smith much pleasure to be present," &c., which is a newer, smarter form than the stereotyped "Miss Smith accepts with pleasure," &c., so long used.

Be very careful about all the little details. If a note or an invitation begins "My Dear Miss Smith" do not make the mistake of replying "Dear Miss Brown" when you should say exactly what she does, "My Dear." But when she writes "Dear Miss Smith," why, then, you do the same. This is so simple a rule that there is positively no excuse for not following it. In regard to the ending of a note, too, the same rule applies. If the note to you ends "Sincerely" or "Most sincerely" it is very bad manners for you to end your reply "Cordially" or "Most cordially." There is a shade of meaning between the two which the words themselves convey, and when a person uses to you the warmer of the two etiquette as well as proper feeling requires you to respond in the same tone.

In correspondence two of the rules which girls should have by heart are promptness and brevity. The girl who answers her invitations at once endears herself for that if for no other reason. Reply the same day you receive it, even within the hour if you can. Remember you cannot do it too soon and that, after all, it is just as easy to do it that day as several days later. Remember, too, that if you are prompt in replying you put yourself on record as an extremely well bred young person, whereas if you are dilatory you are thought just the contrary and besides giving persons reason to have a poor opinion of you you cause them annoyance by leaving them in doubt as to whether or not they are to have you as one of their guests.

If the note you receive covers only one or two pages confine yourself to as few in replying. It is an art, of course, to be concise, but why should not you acquire the art? Are you not as clever as the person writing to you? If you feel that you are not, then make up your mind at once to become so, and go about it by imitating the style of the note to which you are about to reply. This, if your model is a good one, will teach you how to turn phrases and give you facility and felicity of expression.

Of course, invitations are not the only form of formal correspondence. Girls are required to write notes about all sorts of things, to acknowledge presents, to felicitate their friends on any new happiness, like an engagement, a marriage or the birth of a baby, and there are also the occasional notes of condolence. All of these, unless one is writing to an intimate, should be brief and to the point. In writing congratulatory notes do not use the words congratulation or congratulate. They are obsolete, and good usage now requires that one shall say "felicitate." Always put considerable warmth into a note of felicitation. You are writing of happy things and you should make your words convey a spirit of joy in the other's joyousness. But try not to gush, for that is overdoing it, and sometimes has a false ring.

Scented note paper has gone out of fashion, and so have vivid colors, huge monograms or anything that borders on the extreme. For formal writing the large correspondence cards of white linen are popular this season. They may be written on on both sides, but for the brevity of a very formal note one side suffices. A margin should be left on each edge just as one does with note paper.

ROBERT DI BARNARDO

INGLES IS JAILED.

Youth Who Told Black Hand Story Is Trapped.

Woodstock, Dec. 29.—An alleged attempt to extort money by Black Hand methods from Henry Craig landed Roy C. Ingles, about twenty years old and of respectable family, in the police cells yesterday afternoon. Last Thursday night Ingles reported to Chief Thomson that he had been held up by four unknown men about 7.30 and robbed of fifty dollars, and he said they put in his hands to deliver a note for Henry Craig demanding $2,000, with a threat that he and his buildings would be burned if he did not comply. The chief thought the story a queer one and started to investigate, and yesterday arrested Ingles at the Thomas organ factory, where he is employed.

Under close examination the young man, it is said, confessed to the whole story. He said he was not held up or robbed, that he made his nose bleed, tied the rope on one of his wrists, wrote the note himself and then went to Craig's house with the note in an endeavor to frighten money out of him. He admitted sending two other threatening letters to Craig, and said he was alone in the transaction. The prisoner is charged with having sent threatening letters demanding money, and he will appear before Magistrate Ball to-day.

QUEBEC BYE-ELECTIONS.

Sir Louis Gouin Succeeds In Carrying All Four Seats.

Montreal, Dec. 29—Sir Lomer Gouin swept the green yesterday in the four bye-elections, the Conservatives losing two of the few seats won in June last.

M. J. Walsh defeated Ald. O'Connel in St. Ann's by 200 votes, while in Chateauguay M. Mercier carried the seat by 144. In Laval Hon. H. E. Leblanc, the Conservative leader, is again defeated, J. W. Levesque, who was elected in June by 6 being returned by 145 majority. In Quebec Centre Leclerc, the Government candidate, defeated Ald. Lavigueur, Independent, by 140.

Bad Fire at Bracebridge.

Bracebridge, Dec. 29.—Fire which broke out on Sunday night in L. E. Godson's law office, in the Sibbett Block, and spread to the McCosh Block, caused a loss of $100,000. The principal losers are: Thomas & Co., jewelry, books and stationery, and publishers of The Gazette newspaper, loss $20,000, insurance $7,000; John Carruthers, dry goods, loss $2,000, insurance $1,500; G. Simmons, goods, loss $6,000, insurance $3,000; Max Axler, general store, loss $1,500, insurance $800; James Whitton, hardware, loss $20,000, insurance, $10,000; Thomas E. Godson, law offices, loss unknown; G. W. Sibbett, on block, loss $14,000, insurance $8,000; John McCosh, block loss $16,000, covered by insurances.

Pope Sees Joan of Arc?

Rome, Dec. 29—The Italia publishes a report, which has caused a sensation in ecclesiastical circles, that Joan of Arc recently appeared in a vision to the Pope and addressed him solemn words of encouragement, exhorting his holiness to continue his present policy, which she promised would shortly be crowned with triumph.

It was while the holy father was plunged in devout prayer and meditation in his private oratory, immediately after the ceremony of reading the decree of beautification, that the apparition appeared.

It was noticed that when the Pope came out of the oratory he was very pale, and during several days maintained a marked silence.

Brutal Assault on Sister.

London, Dec. 29.—George Cook of St. Thomas was arrested yesterday on a charge of assaulting his sister, Mrs. Howell, a widow, with whom he had come to spend Christmas.

The police found Mrs. Howell hidden in a clothes closet at three o'clock in the morning with her face a mass of bruises and covered with blood. She did not regain consciousness for some hours.

Vancouver Terminals.

Vancouver, Dec. 29.—Counsel for the Hill railways announced yesterday that recent purchases of land made on the east end of Falls Creek were made, with a view to establishing permanent terminals in Vancouver. Approximately a million dollars' worth of property has changed hands during the last ten days in connection with the deal.

Mills' Case Postponed.

Welland, Dec. 29.—John F. Mills, the Toronto promoter, who is charged with defrauding Charles Asher of this place out of $1,500 in connection with the organization of an automobile manufacturing company, appeared before Magistrate Burgar again yesterday, but no evidence was taken, the case being further changed to Jan. 6.

Hottentots on Warpath.

Cape Town, Dec. 29.—The Hottentots in German South West Africa are again on the war path.

They recently raided some cattle posts near the Bechuanaland border, and murdered two Europeans.

Seven German soldiers were sent in pursuit of the raiders, but they were all shot down by the Hottentots.

Hostler Suffocated.

St. Thomas, Dec. 29.—Michael Holleran, hostler at the Duke House, was found dead yesterday standing in his room.

He had been ill and in the night walked between the dresser and the wall, where he became wedged, and suffocated.

New Depot For New York.

Hartford, Conn., Dec. 29.—It is learned here yesterday that the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad is about to make a most important move by establishing its own passenger station in New York in the vicinity of Third avenue and 34th street.

Six Months In Central.

Belleville, Dec. 29.—Wm. T. Woods, who pleaded guilty to stealing an overcoat and pair of gloves from the Temperance Hotel, was given six months in the Central.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables About Steady—Cattle and Hogs Firmer In U.S. Markets.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—London cables for cattle are steady at 12c to 14c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10¼c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Dec. 28.—Trade at the Union Stock Yards today was fairly good and while receipts were exceptionally small, only 11 carloads, there was a good demand and everything was well cleaned up at steady prices.

Export—A few buyers were on the market and from the fact that they wanted the cattle to fill export space, there was a good demand created. There is said to be a good inquiry for really good export cattle, steers and bulls. Export bulls ran all the way from $3.75 to $4.25.

Butchers—For butchers there was a good active demand.

Milkers and Springers—Only a few milkers and springers were offered and for these from $30 to $50 was asked.

Lambs—Prices are steady and unchanged demand for both choice and medium, and the offering was soon cleared out; choice butchers' brought from $4.75 to $5; medium, $4 to $4.40; common, $2.50 to $4, and canners, $1.50 to $2.

Hogs.

Selects, fed and watered at the market, were quoted yesterday at $6, with $5.75 to growers, f.o.b., cars, at country points. These prices are practically the same as a week ago.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Dec. 28.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Dec. 25 were 1043 cattle, 253 sheep and lambs, 1442 hogs and 117 calves.

The offerings this morning for local consumption were 500 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 300 hogs and 100 calves.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the market for cattle, and prices were fully ½c per lb. higher than they were a week ago. This was attributed to the limited supply and the fact that the demand from local butchers was better than it usually is at this time of year, as they generally buy sufficient stock the week before Christmas to supply their requirements until the first market is held in the new year. There has also been some demand from local exporters, and sales of few choice loads were made last week at $5.15 per 100 lbs., and some heavy bulls at 4½c per lb. There was an extra choice load of Ontario stall-fed steers on the market to-day, for which 5½c per lb. was asked; but, as this figure seemed to be higher than buyers cared to pay for stock, they will likely be exported. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday stated that trade was slow but prices were firm at an advance of ½c to 1c per lb. as compared with those of a week ago. The top price here to-day for the best steers was 5c, but 5½c would have been paid for really choice stock. Good cattle sold at 4½c to 4¾c; fair at 3¾c to 4¼c, and lower grades down to 2c per lb.

There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs, prices being firm for good demand and small supply, and sales of choice lots of sheep were made at 4½c to 4¾c, and culls at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. Lambs brought 5½c to 6c for choice, and 5½c to 5¾c for good lots, per lb.

Calves met with a fair sale at prices ranging from $3 to $8 each, as to size and quality.

The market for hogs was stronger, owing to the small offerings and good demand for the same. Selected lots held at $6.75 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

A RIGOROUS LAW.

South Australia Plans Drastic Measure Regarding Hotels.

London, Dec. 29.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Melbourne correspondent of The Chronicle writes that the South Australian Legislative Assembly has just accepted a most drastic licensed victuallers' bill. Some idea of the changes which the measure legalizes may be gathered from the following facts:

It proposes to close all hotels during Parliamentary elections days (federal or state), Christmas Day and Good Friday, renders illegal single women holding licenses, unless they at present do so; abolish duplicate barrooms unless special permission is given by the magistrates; requires travelers to journey ten miles from their homes before they become bona fide travelers; tightens the provisions of existing law.

Respecting closing at 11 p.m., if the bill passes the legislative council, South Australia will have in operation the most advanced liquor law of the whole Commonwealth.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The C.P.R. have appointed a freight and passenger agent at Prince Rupert, B.C., the G.T.P. terminus.

The Finance Department at Ottawa have received $100 conscience money.

While Hon. Mr. Lemieux was in mid-Atlantic on his way west on the steamer Amerika he was surprised to receive wireless messages from Lord Northcliffe, Mr. King and Fred Cook, who were passengers on the Lusitania, going east.

W. L. Mackenzie King will visit India en route to China on Hindu immigration matters.

Hon. Mr. Fielding, now in Paris, is said to be quite hopeful that the French-Canadian treaty will be ratified.

Boy a Bad 'Un.

Windsor, Dec. 29.—The inquest into the shooting of Elijah Thompson, a Malden farmer, by his son, will be held at Amherstburg on Thursday.

Facts gleaned by Provincial Detective Campeau would indicate that the young parricide was subject to paroxysms of passion, during which he was in the habit of threatening to kill those who excited his anger.

After young Thompson shot and killed his father, his mother held him until an officer arrived. The prisoner buried his teeth in his mother's arm and struggled to free himself, but was prevented from escaping. The charge of murder will likely be laid.

Combination In Philanthropy.

New York, Dec. 29.—"If a combination to do business is effective in saving waste and in getting better results why is not combination far more important in philanthropic work?" In this question is set forth the text of an article by John D. Rockefeller, published in The World's Work.

The general subject of the article is "the value of the co-operative principle in giving." He says he has "seen the organization of the Roman Church secure better results with a given sum of money than other church organizations are accustomed to secure from the same expenditure."

Ask For Conciliation Board.

Ottawa, Dec. 29.—The Department of Labor has appointed Zebadie Berube and Felix Marois of Quebec to be the members of the board of conciliation under the Lemieux Act, in the dispute between the John Ritchie Shoe Co. of Quebec and its employes. This case is notable because it is the first instance in which employer and employes have agreed to submit their dispute to a board of conciliation.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has applied for a board on behalf of the employes of the Kingston & Pembroke Railway, but no action has yet been taken.

Drunkenness In Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 29.—Dean Farthing on Sunday delivered his farewell message ere he became Bishop of Montreal. He said Kingston was on the whole a moral city, but he knew of no place where drunkenness was so evident. Surrounding the city hall were sixteen saloons. This was shameful. It was accountable for by failure of the Christian people to fight the enemies of the King of Righteousness.

Party politics also kept the liquor conditions in Kingston as they are.

Suspend the "Unfair" Lists.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—The Central Federated Union here has received from Mr. Gompers a letter saying that he has discontinued the "we don't patronize" list in future issues of The Federationist.

The Central Federated Union also decided to suspend its unfair list.

In Luck.

"It's no fun being married. My wife is coming to me all the time and asking for money!"

"You're lucky! I have to ask my wife always for money when I want any!"

PREDICTIONS OF THE FAYS LED TO A MAN'S SUICIDE AND ALMOST RUINED A PROVIDENCE STORE

Said Bank Would be Robbed and Certain Buildings Would Collapse, But the People Believed in Them in Spite of Their Trickery.

HAD TEMPORARY SUCCESS

A few days ago the report of the death of John T. Fay by his own hands was received from Oakland, Cal. During the week in which they appeared here there was more or less credence placed by the public in the "mind" or "telepathy" which he performed in conjunction with his wife Eva Fay. The notoriety which they attained was not alone confined to this side of the border, but was even widespread through the United States.

Those of the Peterborough theatre-goers who saw their performance here may be enlightened by the following expose from an American paper:

"The so-called mind reading of the Fays was the cheapest, tawdriest kind of trickery, and there was no more telepathic communication between the two performers than there is between two blocks of granite. But the people in the cities visited by the Fays took the tricksters at their own valuation, and for two or three seasons they enjoyed a heaping measure of success. Their entertainment was unwholesome in its effect.

"In this city a man committed suicide because of a so-called revelation by the Fays, and more or less excitement was occasioned by their prediction that one of the local banks would be robbed on New Year's day. Of course, the bank was not robbed, and although many people were naturally disappointed at the failure of the "prediction," they did not lose faith in the "prophet." At one time the Fays predicted that a certain store in Providence would collapse on a certain day. The store is still standing but the announcement kept patrons away from the place for weeks and almost ruined the owners. In a word, the Fays were fakers of the most blatant type, and the only wonder is that they were able to fool the people for so many years with such a crude form of trickery."

HAZEL BRAE CHANGES

Great Improvements Have Been Made at Local Dr. Barnardo Home for Girls.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE WORK

A great many improvements have been made by the Hon. Geo. A. Cox at Hazel Brae, Dr. Barnardo's Home for girls. A large wing has been added to the north side of the old building. The first floor is used for a dining room and play room for girls. The second floor is a large dormitory which holds 40 beds and the third is also the same sized dormitory. In both of these rooms there are at present 32 beds. The old dormitories will in future be used for general sleeping quarters. These new rooms were the most needed of any improvements that were made as the old ones are very dark and low and have only one window in east.

What was formerly the dining room has been moved away about 50 yards from the main building and will be used as a school room for the children and a large play ground will be opened in the spring between this building and the main building. A large new laundry has been installed with all the modern improvements in the basement of the new wing also a new lavatory for the children. A new boiler and furnace was also put in which heats the whole building with steam. All floors through out the building have been relaid and the house thoroughly cleaned, papered and whitewashed.

The infirmary has been enlarged to hold ten beds, while before it only held half this many and a stair case has been put in connecting the front building with the third floor. Before there was only a very narrow staircase at the back of the house and it was necessary to go through the girls' rooms to get to them.

There are generally about 30 girls in the home, and since 1882, 5,183 girls have been brought out from England, 3000 of which the officers of the home are in touch with. 600 girls are boarding in different places their board being paid for them.

At the present time there are 13 persons on the office staff, four of these do nothing else but travel round visiting the girls to see how they are getting on and reporting their condition to the home in England. There are also six people on the horse staff to look after and keep the home in a sanitary condition and teach the girls the various duties which make them the best of housekeepers.

DESTITUTION IS LESS

Demands for Relief Are Not As Heavy as Last Year--No Xmas Tree This New Year's.

NO RELIEF KITCHEN IS NEEDED

Casual inquiry substantiates the opinion that the distress and destitution which was experienced at this time last year is fortunately not so noticeable at the present time. It is those connected with charitable work who are aware of the fact that the general condition of the poorer class is greatly improved. Mr. F W Millen states that he has found this to be the case and not nearly as many demands have been made during the season thus far as during the same period last winter. Mr. E L Goodwill remarked to a reporter this morning that he had found a similar state of affairs. He considered that many of those who had been a burden on the city last year had gone elsewhere during the summer, and others had probably benefitted by the former experience. It is not likely that there will be a relief kitchen provided this winter at least not from present indications.

The Christmas tree which had been held in the Market Hall last New Year's eve is also being dispensed with. Everything points to a fairly good winter, and it is believed to be an evidence of what is to be expected in the near future in the form of improved industrial conditions.

NOMINATIONS IN THE COUNTY YESTERDAY; SOME OF THE ELECTIONS BY ACCLAMATION

The nominations for the various ships yesterday caused considerable interest in some places while in others the representatives for next year were allowed to go in by acclamation. This is the case in Smith where Reeve R. N. Scott was re-elected for the fourth term and the deputy reeve and councillors were also returned by acclamation. There will be no contest in Galway either, where the council is returned by acclamation. There will be interesting struggles in South and North Monaghan, Dummer, Havelock and other places in the district.

The following is as complete a list of the nominations as could be obtained up to the time of going to press:

In Dummer

Warsaw, Dec. 28.—The nominations for Dummer township to-day resulted as follows:—

For Reeve—
C J Darling, and John L Kidd.
For Council—
W Carveth.
W Hanblin.
R Ferguson.
J J Crowe.
H McDonald.
J Graystock.
E Martin.
W J Elliott.

No Contest in Galway

Kinmount, Dec. 28.—Galway Council elected by acclamation for 1909 as follows—

Reeve—O Coben.
Councillors—J Clark, Wm. Hunter, James Allen and A Grigo.

The last two are new men. D. Curton and J Jackson resigned.

Smith

The nominations for Smith Township resulted in the re-election by acclamation of the old representatives. Reeve R. N. Scott was re-elected for the fourth time, and the other representatives re-elected were Deputy Reeve Thos. H. Graham, and Councillors J. H. Garbutt, Fred McKee and Wm. Davis.

Contest for Douro

The municipal nominations in Douro were interesting and with two nominees for reeve and eight for councillors there promises to be a close contest. The nominations were as follows:

For REEVE—
Dennis Maloney and Frank Mober.
FOR COUNCILLORS—
Michael Welsh.
Patrick Parley.
Bartholomew Leahy.
William Charlton.
Ambrose Coughlin.
Michael Maloney.
Edward Jury.

Four of these seven will be chosen for the Council.

Otonabee

The nominations for the municipal council of the Township of Otonabee resulted as follows:

For Reeve—John H. Fife, William J. Porter.

For Deputy Reeve—W. B. Stewart, elected by acclamation.

For Councillors—William A. Anderson, Donald K. Cameron, Thos. G. Hazzlett and John Miller.

The elections will be held on Monday next and are arousing much interest.

Havelock

Havelock, Dec. 28 — A nomination meeting was held in the Town Hall to-night, Monday, from 7.30 to 8.30 o'clock.

Following are the nominations for Reeve—

Joseph Knox, Jas. Thompson, Wm Mathison, R. J. Graham, Jesse Campney.

Withdrew—Jas. Thompson, Wm. Mathison and Jesse Campney.

Nominated for Councillors— George Young, Jas Scott, Thos. Wood, Geo Phillips, Jesse Campney, W A McMaster, Thos. Bennett, and Abraham Wallar.

Withdrew—Jesse Campney and T Bennett.

Nominated for Trustees—W.T. Curtis, Alf. Spencer, C. H. Brewster, Wm. Mathison, Chas. Taylor, Dr. Holcroft, Isaac Burton, W. A. McMaster.

Withdrew—Alf. Spencer and Wm. Mathison.

Belmont Nominations

The nominations for Belmont resulted as follows—

James Russell, Reeve, elected by acclamation

Councillors—W. E. Griffith, John Anderson, W. Rylott, and A. Wide elected by acclamation.

North Monaghan

For Reeve—Wm. G. Howden, R. A. Dobbin and John Brown. The two first withdrew, leaving Mr. Brown elected by acclamation.

For Councillors—W. G. Howden, R. A. Dobbin, H. J. Forster, G. H. May—members of last year's council—Walter McKee, Jos. S. Bell, Jas. Morrow, J F. Clarke, T. D. Young, Wm. Robson.

Great interest was taken in the nomination proceedings, more than one hundred ratepayers being present, and in the language of an elector "there was a warm time."

A MINOR ACCIDENT TO FREIGHT CAR ON C.P.R. CAUSED DELAY

Axle Broke Between Here and Kendry Siding Blocking the Line for Several Hours.

THE EXPRESS ONE HOUR LATE

A minor accident occurred yesterday afternoon on the C.P.R. a few miles west of Peterborough, blocking the main line for several hours and holding the west bound express at the local station for an hour.

The mishap occurred to one of the cars of an east bound freight. One of the axles broke, causing the car to leave the rails and after running along some distance the train was brought to a standstill.

The auxiliary was called out from Havelock and after a rapid run, temporarily repaired the damage and returned to Peterborough. The road was thus cleared. The auxiliary went back between five and six o'clock for the broken axle and after picking it up returned to Havelock.

ELECTED FOR THE FOURTH TIME AS REEVE OF SMITH

MR. R. N. SCOTT,
Re-elected yesterday by acclamation

BELMONT MAN WAS BADLY INJURED BY A FALLING TREE

Fred VanSickle Was the Victim of a Painful Accident on Saturday Last.

RESULT MAY BE SERIOUS

Havelock, Dec. 29—Mr. Fred Vansickle, who resides in the north part of Belmont Township, was severely hurt by a falling tree on Saturday last. Mr. Vansickle was felling one tree when it lodged in another one, and endeavouring to dislodge it he was struck by the falling tree. Dr. McKechnie of Marmora was summoned to attend the injured man and is unable to tell for a few days what the consequences will be.

Lakefield

The nominations at Lakefield resulted as follows:

For Reeve—Wm. Graham, John Bygott. Arthur Kidd.

For Councillors—J. A. Labell, Arthur Robenson, Henry Moore, Clare Bravender, Robert White.

For School Trustees—Chas. Tanner, Dr. Gibson, J. W. Ridpath.

75,000 DEAD AS RESULT OF EARTHQUAKE

J. N. Barber, (Special)

Rome, Italy, Dec. 29.—In its late edition to-day the Tribune estimates the number of earthquake victims at between 65,000 and 75,000 dead and twice that number as injured or suffering desperately from hunger and exposure.

Palermo, Sicily,—12,000 people are dead in Messina, according to the latest reports from that city. It is feared that hundreds of the inhabitants are still alive under the ruins and are doomed to perish in the flames that are sweeping what is left of the city.

Toronto, Dec. 29.—Geo. Dunstan, secretary of Standard Exchange, dropped dead this morning.

CONGREGATIONAL MEETING OF KNOX CHURCH DECIDED ON

The Board of Managers of Knox Church held a meeting last night when it was decided that the annual congregational meeting would be held on Wednesday, January 23rd. The report of the recent concert was received and audited and a satisfatory result was formed.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the church are expected to provide tea which will be served prior to the meeting. Last year's affair was successful in every respect and even better results are expected on this occasion.

A NUMBER HAVE RETIRED

The chief topic on the streets today is the aldermanic race and there is considerable discussion as to the personnel of the field that will allow their names to go to the people on Monday next. There is certain to be a contest both for aldermen and Board of Education, although at 5 o'clock only eleven had qualified for the former. It is likely that about seventeen or eighteen will permit their names to go on the ballot paper, and about eight for the Board of Education.

Ex-Fire Chief Rutherford, who was nominated yesterday intended to be a candidate but discovered to-day that he had not the necessary qualifications in regard to property, which will prevent him from being a candidate.

The Examiner has endeavoured to obtain from as many as possible of the nominees a statement as to their intentions in regard to running or not but found considerable difficulty in the case of some who preferred to wait until the last moment to see who was qualifying before they fyled their own qualifications. The following aldermanic nominees have stated their intention of being candidates:

For Aldermen

Those who will run—
Ald. W H Bradburn.
Ald. H Phelan.
Ald. Geo A Gillespie.
Ald. Bailey.
Ald. Elliott.
Ald. Morgan.
Ald. R Nelll.
Ald. Turner.
Ald. Morrow.
Jas. Bogue.
J J Duffus.
Jos. R Metheral.
Archie Moore.
W H G Armstrong.

Will not run

Those who have signified their intention of not running are:
Benj. Shortly.
Ald. Tovey.
Dan Cushing.
John O'Brien.
B F Ackerman.

Board of Education

Those who will run for the Board of Education are:
Robt. Fair.
Dr. McClelland.
Dr. Frederick.
Wm. Madill.
W G Robinson.
B F Ackerman.
M A Morrison.

Will not run

Dr. Boucher.
R. Hicks.

Those who Qualified

The following had qualified at 2 o'clock this afternoon:
Ald. Bradburn.
Ald. Elliott.
Ald. Turner, Jr.
Ald. Phelan.
Ald. R Nelll.
Jos. R Metheral.
A R Moore.
Jas. J Duffus.
W H G Armstrong.
Jas. Bogue.
Geo H Duncan.

For Board of Epucation

R Fair.
B F Ackerman.
Dr. Frederick.
M A Morrison.
R R Boucher—withdrawn.

Broadcast Distribution Of Examiner Souvenir Number Secures The Greatest Publicity

A common objection preferred to the advertising value of a special edition is that its distribution is not made so general and judicious as to bring the greatest value to the city. This does not apply to the last issued special souvenir edition of the Examiner, which is ensured a wide and effective disposition in all parts of the country.

Among the large interests which have undertaken to distribute copies where they will do the most good in regard to making known the advantages and resources of the city are the Bank of Montreal, which has procured and undertaken the distribution of 100 copies of this souvenir number, the Quaker Oats Co., a similar number and the following banks and firms each a liberal quantity—Dominion Bank, Toronto Savings and Loan Company, Bank of Ottawa, Peterboro' Lock Manufacturing Co., Belding, Paul & Co., Ltd., Peterboro' Canoe Co., Ltd., Peterboro' Basket Co., Ltd., J. J. Turner & Sons, George Matthews Company, Curtis Bros., McDonald Estate, Brinton Carpet Co. of Canada, National Hotel, Oriental Hotel, Adam Hall, J. C. Turnbull & Co., The Canadian Cordage Co., The Peterborough Manufacturing Co. Besides these specified interests, many other business establishments have taken copies for distribution, not individually in so large numbers but aggregating numerous copies.

From the well-known character and enterprise of the interests mentioned and of the others we are certain that they have not purchased copies of the souvenir edition of the Examiner to gather dust in office corners but for distribution in places where they will do the most good in making known the resources, industrial, commercial, and the general advantages of the good city of Peterborough. It is to their interests to do this for every welfare of the city will gain from having reliable knowledge of it widely circulated; we have only to be known to be appreciated.

Large Generator Shipped From C. G. E. Works Recently

It was learned to-day that the C. G. E. Works billed a large 200 h.p. generator for the J. R. Booth Company, of Ottawa. It will be used at their large lumber mills at the Chaudiere Falls. The equipment supplied by the C. G. E. Company was loaded on four cars, and is considered an important contract. It was practically completed six months ago but was delayed in shipping because of the fact that the Booth Company could not use it at that time owing to a mishap to their plant, according to the explanation received.

WATCH NIGHT AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH THURSDAY NIGHT

On Thursday night at 10.45 o'clock, a solemn service of prayer and thanksgiving will be held at St. Luke's church. The members of St. Luke's and friends are requested to spend the declining moments of the old year and the opening of the New Year in the House of God. Dr. Langfeldt will give an address appropriate to the passing of another period of time.
